Great is Greenville, the Queen City of the Delta! This is the verdlct of all who attended the Woman's Missionary Conference recently held in that charming Delta town. Echoes of this statement will long be heard throughout the length and breadth of North Mlssissippi.

When that most hospitable and splrited of small towns, Ripley, to her own deep regret, was forced by a combination of untoward and uncontrollable circumstances, to forego the privilege of entertaining the Conference, Greenville threw herself lnto the breach and saved the day. On a few weeks' notice, she organized her forces, formulated her plans, and dld the honor of a hostess clty wlth such efficiency, thoroughness and gracious courtesy as to win fresh laurels for her big-hearted people, long noted for their public spirit and hospitality. Thls is the way Delta Methodists do things. Would that there were time and space to list the faithful Commlttees and their efficient chalrmen who made this splendid achievement possible. All honor and grateful appreclation to these, as to the rank and file of Greenville's fine citizenry, and to that royal pastor-host, Rev. E. S. Lewis! We are deeply indebted to all who contributed so graciously both to the pleasure and success of our Conference.

Because of the exigency of existing conditions, it became necessary to crowd a business and inspirational program, planned to fill three and a half days, into two and a half. Thls necessitated the utmost dlspatch in the business routine, which was put through at high tension, but in perfect order and with parliamentary decorum. If any one present was still skeptical enough, in this advanced day of woman's recognized efficiency along many lines, once thought foreign to her sphere, to doubt her executive ability, that doubting Thomas must have left this Conference a convert. Our capable President and her able staff of helpers, with every delegate, caught step to the order. "Double quick; forward march;" and came through with flying colors, making the Conference of 1918 a record occasion.

The Treasurer's report showed that the Methodist women of North Mississippi had "gone over the top" with a gain of 15½ per cent, instead of the 10 per cent goal set by the Missionary Council. Other phases of the work also showed a substantial growth. A grand total of over $14,000 at a time when so many noble and patriotic demands are being made upon our liberality, brought the Conference to its feet in a paean of thanksgiving, volced in the Doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow!" The Aberdeen District led in finances with something over $2400, the Winona District ranking second, while all made a splendid showing. The Sardis District scored the greatest percentage of gain over last year's finances. All honor to the faithful District Secretaries, whose diligence and unselfish devotion, blessed of God, have made this advance posible!

The budget for 1918 was fixed at $16,000, and constitutes our venture of faith in response to the tremendous challenge of the times. No one doubts our ability, under God, to redeem our every pledge made in His name, and to His blessed cause.

The Conference was greatly helped and inspired by the presence of several notable missionary workers, each of whom brought a burning message of faith, zeal and love. Among these were Miss Richardson, our own Conference deaconess, and Miss Elizabeth Streater, for some years a faithful evangel of her Lord in Mexico. Both of these consecrated women left the impress of their sweet consecration and deep spirituality upon the Conference, their devotional talks being a source of uplift to all. Mrs. Cram, wife of our missionary, Rev. W. G. Cram, who for fifteen years has held aloft the banner of Christ in far-away Korea, was a most welcome visitor. Her address on Sunday evening was very entertaining.

The climax of the meeting's inspirational features was reached Sunday morning, in the masterly sermon of Dr. John M. Moore, Home Secretary of the Board of Missions. It was a mountain-top experience to follow this eloquent and scholarly divine as he treated in a most illuminating manner that supreme petition in our Lord's prayer, "Thy kingdom come." With bated breadth, the audience hung upon the gifted speaker's burning words as he explained in terms of the Kingdom's coming, that the titanic influences, destructively at work to-day, are but clearing the way for the constructive forces of righteousness enunciated in the gospel of Jesus Christ. A new and hope-inspiring significance was given to the present upheaval of a world-old order of things. Dr. Moore interprets the colossal turmoil of to-day as the new wine of Christ's transforming spirit, bursting the old bottles of oppression, tyranny, and wrong. Christ's kingdom of "peace on earth, good will to men," can not be co-existent with the autocracy and self-righteousness of the Powers of Central Europe." God speed the day when the transforming work of the gospel shall be complete—

"When the war-drums throb no longer, and the battle-flags are furled,
In the parliament of man, the federation of the world"— a federation, please God, which shall be a fulfillment of the divine plan of the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ."

Two presiding elders, Rev. V. C. Curtis of the Greenville, and Rev. J. H. Holder, of the Sardis District, and a number of other preachers of the North Mississippi Conference were appreciated visitors. Their presence and words of encouragement gladdened our hearts. Gor bless them, every one!

The First Presbyterian Church of Greenville was most gracious in its Christian courtesy, our business sessions being held in their commodious place of worship. The Methodist choir, aided by special musicians, was untiring in its beautiful ministry of song, which proved both an aesthetic joy and a spiritual uplift.

Other features of the Conference deserve special mention; and other gracious helpers merit more than a passing word of appreciation; particularly is this true of the courteous solicitude shown us by our district hostess, Mrs. E. T. Clark, of Cleveland. But time and space forbid further personalities and details. However, may I not close as I began, by saying in one broadly inclusive statement of appreciation, "Great is Greenville, Queen City of the Delta?"

NOT LOST, BUT GIVEN.

It is said of a returned English soldier that, when he was being commiserated on the loss of his arm in the trenches, he replied, proudly: "I didn't lose it; I gave it." Glorious reply. What a transformation of our stewardship if we could think of our tithe not as the payment of a debt, but as the offering of a gift! What a transfiguration of our service if we could list it as a heart impulse instead of a conscience pull! What an ennoblement of life if we could live it as a gift to the world! When a man gives his health or his time or his money—or his life—you cannot talk to him about being robbed. He has forestalled the comment. Jesus said: "No man taketh my life from me; I lay it down." Such ought to be the spirit of His disciples. It is very hard to defeat a man with such a spirit.—George Clarke Peck.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

UGH! A DOSE OF NASTY CALOMEL

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're billous, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

PAY Loan Accounts With Liberty Bonds

The Executive Committee of the Board of Church Extension has instructed me to say that Liberty Bonds will be accepted in payment on loan accounts. The order is made for the double purpose of aiding congregations in paying their debts, and to assist the Government in prosecuting the war for freedom.

Freckles—

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

A Fight for Life

It has been fight or die for many of us in the past and the lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called "An-u-ric." You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, backache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as Bright's disease, diabetes or stone in the bladder.

To overcome these distressing conditions take plenty of exercise in the open air, avoid a heavy meat diet, drink freely of water and at each meal, take Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets (double strength). You will, in a short time, find that you are one of the firm indorsers of Anuric, as are thousands of neighbors.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"I suffered greatly with my back and kidneys. I called in doctors and they did me no good, but recommended an operation. I saw Anuric for kidneys and backache advertised so sent up to the drug store and got a package, and it cured me. This was one year ago. I was down in bed and had taken many different kinds of medicines but obtained no relief from them."—A. W. CUMBIE.

CAESAR, MISS.—"This is to certify I have been taking Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets for uric acid and kidney trouble, and would say to anyone who is afflicted with such, please, for your health's sake, try Anuric without delay. I had used several different remedies but to no avail, now I am recommending Anuric Tablets far and wide.

"I have known of Dr. Pierce's Remedies for 20 years, they are well worth using."—B. J. WILLIAMS.

Step into the drug store and ask for Anuric, or send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial pkg. Anuric—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Order your Children's Day programs to-day. Please send for as many as you need, but do not send for any to waste. Programs for the Conference will cost near $250. Order through your Sunday Schooi Fieid Secretary.

Let the men who failed to observe the day, iast year consider this: Had the day been observed in every church of every charge, we could now have an eiementary worker in the field. Our best Conferences have such workers. "Awake thou that sleepest, arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."

The Sunday school at Shipman's Chapel, under the care of Mrs. R. L. Beevers, is planning for a great Children's Day service. Miss Ruth Beevers has a ciass of twenty-five young people that she hopes to organize and have it take as a "special" a school in Japan. This class is well able to undertake this splendid task.

Rev. T. M. Bradley, of Cleveland, is building his monument of brick. When this edifice is compieted he wiil have a plant that will enable his people to do effective work in religious education. It is a mystery why we have never constructed our churches in the past so we could teach religion in an effective way. At last we are moving in the right direction, but moving too slowly.

Some good work has been done in the beautiful town of Glen Allan. Brother J. H. Smith and his wife are worthy successors of those who have done so well. I never saw people more eager to learn the plan of religious education. After conducting a profitable service at the church, I visited the school conducted by Miss Ruth Barwick. At the morning devotionai service nearly every child took part in the prayers, and for directness, spirituality, and scope I never heard prayers that showed more careful training. I was struck with the prayers of two little Italian girls as they prayed for their own land.

Brother John Robertson is making a record at Hollandale. He is going at the work like a veteran. He has captured the hearts of his people and they are foiiowing his leadership right royaiiy. He is organizing, teaching, and mobilizing his forces for a lasting victory in that fine town.

One year ago I visited Brother Lott at Merigold. One thing we did then was to organize a teacher-training class. It is one thing to organize and quite another to go on. The teachers of this class have completed the first book in the course and are well on the way through the second book. This kind of work is the test of the great preacher. The school at Aliigator is not large, but the superintendent and teachers are undertaking the full program of a first-ciass school. Lott has demonstrated his ability to lead to victory. Such men shall see the kingdom of God come in power. Wouid that we had more Lotts!

Our great, good women of the W. M. S. are alive to the needs of the world. These women are foremost in aii kinds of Red Cross, Armenian Relief, French Orphans, and all kinds of war-work. With one hand they reach out to help those who dwell in the uttermost parts of the earth and with the other they lay hold upon the child in our midst. The women are going to help put mission study in our Sunday schools all over the Conference. The day is coming when the earth wiil be covered with the knowledge of God. Did it ever occur to you that this knowledge must be given by teachers that know God?

SELF-POISONING.

Did you know that when you allow a slight case of constipation to continue you are poisoning yourself? The pores of your skin cannot carry off all the impurities of your body, and you should never force them to do more than their share by not keeping your bowels open. When constipated take Van Lax for your liver. It cleanses your entire digestive system. It does not gripe or nauseate. Contains no Calomel and no habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant in taste and results. It is the ideal treatment for constipation and auto-intoxication or self-poisoning. Try it. Sold everywhere in bottles 50c. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, resulting in an injured finger, a stubbed toe, a splinter or any other one of the numberless petty injuries that are likely to happen in any family any day, may not seem serious at first but when neglected and aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand may become infected and develop into an ugly sore. The sore is only one step removed from blood poison, and that only one step from death. Don't play with fate. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately and freely in all skin injuries. Its constant use for ninety-seven years has made it a family word in every household. Write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

A SLIP OF THE KNIFE

COMMENDED BY DR. SAWYER.

Rev. E. A. Vail, of 525 Julia Street, New Orleans, who has long been a Christian worker in this city is thus commended by Dr. J. T. Sawyer:

Dear Brother Vail: Yours of recent date came duly to hand. I am glad to be able to write something about you. I have known you for many years, first making your acquaintance when I was holding a Gospel Wagon Meeting on Elysian Fields Street. One night I noticed you were circulating among the crowd of hearers at our street service there tracts to all who would accept them. I have been present often at your Keller Market Mission and elsewhere, and noted your faithful work among sinners. You have been active in the jails and prisons, talking and pleading with the inmates to come to Christ. I feel sure that you have been in God's hands; and, led by his Spirit, you have been a blessing to great numbers of people. You have lived a devoted Christian life; and, being a steady worker in the vineyard, God has been your helper. You have been instrumental in the saivation of very many precious souis. Keep it up, dear brother, and God wiil be with you to the end of your useful life. Your brother in Christ,

JOHN T. SAWYER.

REV. J. M. GUINN COMMENDED.

Rev. J. M. Guinn, our pastor at Brooksville, has since the Annual Conference left his charge to accept a chaplaincy in the Army. He is a very choice young minister and was highly appreciated by his people, as the following letter sent us by his presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Duren, attests:

Rev. J. M. Guinn, Brooksville, Miss.

Dear Sir and Brother: Personally, and on behalf of the Church, we deem it a privilege to express, though it may be inappropriateiy voiced, our appreciation of your work since you came among us a iittie more than a year ago. You came as a stranger to us, but we were to find in a very short while that you merited our highest respect and esteem. At the risk of appearing to flatter, we want to say that you have won, by your steadfast devotion to your work in the cause of Christ, an abiding place in our hearts that is second to that of no pastor we have ever had. Through your untiring zeal and Christian conduct, you have helped the Church to a higher plane of Christian living. You have held and lived before your congregation a iofty conception of duty to God, their community, and each other. Your labors have been so directed that the work has progressed with a minimum of discord. One of the most laudable of your many good quaiities is your earnest desire, often expressed, of a closer co-operation with all Christians in winning souis for Christ, regardless of denomination. And we note with pleasure the harmony existing between our church and the other churches of the town. It is unnecessary for us to mention your work in helping the community to a higher realization of the advantages of clean, moral iiving; nor to caii attention to your work among the young people, pacticularly the boys, who are to be our men of to-morrow and the directors of our Christian, educationai, and political institutions. The response of the community, the devotion of the boys, and the gratitude of the parents attest your worth, along these lines, better and more strongly than we can hope to do. Nor are we, as citizens of the Republic, unappreciative of the very active part which, in addition to your many other duties, you have taken in all the patriotic movements of the community.

Finaliy, whiie deeply regretting that we must give you up, we congratulate and commend you most heartily upon this vast and most unselfish manifestation of your ioyalty in so nobly responding to the cali of your country to carry the love and comfort of Christ to men amid the flying shot and shell of a foreign battlefield. We know that there, as here, you wiii measure up to the full standard of a man among men and wiii be ever faithful to your trust.

We pray God's richest biessings upon you, and that, if it be His wiii, you may be safely returned to those who love you, after the great principles, for which the nobiest men of the world are fighting, have been vindicated, and the cause, in which we aii believe, is victorious. Wiii you not aiow us to subscribe ourselves,

Your friends.

CALOMEL ROBBED OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Unpleasant and Dangerous Qualities Removed—New Variety Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of medical science is a purified calomel, known as "Calotabs." The old-style calomel, as all doctors know, was the best and most generally useful of all medicines. The new variety, known as Calotabs, is purified and refined from all objectionable qualities, and is most delightful in effect.

One Calotab on the tongue at bedtime, a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no danger. Next morning you awake feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please. There is no restriction of habit or diet. Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages; price, thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends Calotabs, and will refund your money if you are not delighted with them.

A SPRING MEDICINE

That Will Make You Feel Better, Look Better, Eat and Sleep Better.

In view of the fact that disease is ever the same, a medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has been successful for more than forty years in combatting disease and preserving health, is a safe one to rely upon.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is known everywhere as the standard blood purifier, tonic and vitalizer. Its record is one of remarkable results. It has given entire satisfaction in the treatment of scrofula, eczema, humors, catarrh, rheumatism, loss of appetite, that tired feeling and general debility, and is taken as effectively at one time of year as another.

There is nothing better as a prompt, general tonic for weak and run-down men, women and children and old people, invalids and convalescents.

It is pleasant to take, aids digestion, and supplies the vital organs with the rich red blood essential to health.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

My dear Dr. Meek: Please announce the following committees to serve at the approaching session of the Aberdeen District Conference to be held at Tupelo; on March 28-31:

Examination for License to Preach and Recommendation for Admission on Trial—W. M. Young, J. B. Randolph, E. M. Shaw.

Recommendation of Local Preachers for Deacon's or Elder's Orders—W. L. Graves, C. W. Baley, W. N. Dodds.

Quarterly Conference Records—O. P. Armour, D. R. McDougal, J. A. Mayfield, J. M. Valiant, W. T. Furr.

Other committees will be appointed at the opening session of the Conference.

Bishop W. B. Murrah will preside and preach each morning at 11 o'clock, including Easter Sunday. J. T. Lewis will preach the opening sermon on Thursday night. T. B. King will speak on "A Layman's Obligations to the Church" on Friday night; Saturday night O. P. Armour will preach. J. E. Thomas will preach the closing sermon on Sunday night.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Drink lots of water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

We are anticipating a delightful and profitable occasion, and Tupelo is working for a record-breaking attendance of all lay members and delegates as well as preachers.

You would be most welcome among us, Mr. Editor, and we extend you a cordial invitation to be present.

Fraternally yours,
THOS. H. LIPSCOMB, P. E.
Aberdeen, Miss.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT NOTES.

The end of the first quarter finds the work well advanced in this district. In most instances pastors and people have systematically planned and are now busy executing.

Rev. J. S. Purcell is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. He has the situation well in hand at Crystal Springs and expects at the proper time to undertake the building of a new house of worship.

Tylertown is responding to the capable leadership of their pastor, Rev. H. A. Gatlin, who is energetically pushing the work of the Kingdom. Their new building will soon be a reality and will reflect credit upon pastor and membership.

Rev. A. B. Barry has accomplished much during the first three months of his pastorate at South and East McComb. Evangelist Bennett has closed a most successful meeting at South McComb with many conversions and 45 accessions. He is now at East McComb. Brothers Barry and Bennett make a good team.

The presiding elder keeps busy. He has recently purchased a new Overland automobile and now so much "leg-it" isn't required of him. His experience, comprehensive grasp of things, and sympathetic working out of plans, makes his leadership an inspiration and power in this district.

ACOUPHONE.

A SUGGESTION.

It was my (ill) good fortune to be an inmate in the Shreveport Memorial Sanitarium at Shreveport two weeks in February, and while there I met Brother W. E. Aiken of the Elmore charge who was constantly called in (and back home to be with his children) to see his good wife who had been sick nearly three months, being confined to her bed eight weeks, and in this sanitarium over three weeks. This is a first-class institution under the auspices of the Catholic Church and supervised by the Sisters of Charity. The head surgeons are Drs. Willis, Knighton, and Nelson—fine Christian men. With so thorough a management and service, it calls heavily on one's purse.

Seeing Brother Aiken as I did and feeling a small share of his heavy burdens, though he did not complain in the least, I feel constrained to make an appeal to the good people reached by our Church organ to remember him. This is the day of great giving. I am sure a generous check to our unfortunate brother would tide him over and enable him to take courage and give better service in our Lord's vineyard. He was assigned to the Kentwood charge at the last Conference, but his wife was so sick that she was unable to be moved. All fraternal organizations look after those who have misfortunes, but our Churches now are often negligent in this respect, though the New Testament Church made provision for the needy. (Acts 6:1; 1 Cor. 16:2; 2 Cor. 8:9; Gal. 2:10.)

Feeling impressed to write this without Brother Aiken's knowing it, I leave it with you and the Lord, yet I would cite you to his promise in Prov. 19:17.

Yours in his name,
EFFIE E. PACE.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 862D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

You Can't Rub It Away; Rheumatism is in the Blood

Liniments Will Never Cure.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain, and go after that. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain.

You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has never had an equal as a blood purifier and scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store, and get on the right treatment to-day. If you want special medical advice, you can obtain it free by addressing Medical Director, 23 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Iron Is Greatest of All Strength Builder, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Delicate, Nervous, Run-down People in Ten Days' Time In Many Cases.

MOST people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston Physician who has studied widely, both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, when, as a fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people, who were ailing all the while, most astonishingly increase their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a fofrm that can be easily absorbed and assimilated, like nuxated iron, if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, and other physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

OUR GOSPEL MESSAGE.

The world is aching for a gospel, and it is the labor of the Church to present a gospel that can reach the world's most awful need, that can get down to its deepest depravity, and bring cordials and balms to its most appalling sorrow. And the old Gospel can do it! Yes, the old Gospel, in working attire, proclaimed by a Church which believes it, is gloriously efficient to meet the most tremendous needs of this most tremendous day. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." That Gospel, preached by a Church that believes in it, a Church that is redeemed by it, a Church that will give its blood for it, is the sure and certain secret of a comforted, purified, unified, regenerated and transfigured world. In her preaching of an atoning Savior, the Church must on her part fill up that which is lacking of the suffering of Christ.—J. H. Jowett.

ST. MARK'S HALL NOTES.

We have been in great need of volunteer helpers in the Sewing School this month. This has been due to sickness, and other unavoidable causes. The success of this work depends largely upon the teacher. Can you not come, or send a substitute? The day is Saturday, the hour 2:30 p. m. The following ladies have taken the story hour one day each month. Mrs. Geo. S. Brown, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. King and Miss Cora Godat.

The members of the Junior Missionary Society gave a Rubber Social. The admittance fee was a pair of old rubbers, a prize being given for the largest. After the program, rendered by twenty children in costume and presenting the needs of heathen children and those of our home mission fields, various games connected with rubber were played. Refreshments were served, and over three dollars added to the treasury.

Thirteen Campfire Girls enjoyed a hike to Metairie Ridge. If you never popped corn over the open fire, these maidens can assure you there is a treat in store for you.

A Valentine social was given on the 15th of February, the occasion being the opening of our Neighborhood Parlor. There were about sixty-five present, among whom were grandparents, mothers, fathers, young people and children. It was a typical neighborhood gathering and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Our supply store is in need of clothing a great deal. A large number of needy persons come each week, and we do not want to fail them.

Our new boys' worker, besides her daily clubs and classes, has charge of the Intermediate Epworth League, and has organized a boys' class in Sunday school.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXTENSION OF WORK AND FINANCE, LOUISIANA ANNUAL MEETING.

In order to reach the goal set by our Council of a ten per cent increase in membership, organizations and finances, we recommend that our district goal be:

1. (a) Two new adult organizations. One Young People's organization. One new Junior organization. One new Baby division.

(b) That our financial gain be $1400, or $200 per district as a minimum.

(c) That there be a ten per cent increase in Mission Study and Bible Study.

(d) That ten boxes from ten auxiliaries in each district be sent.

(e) That one hundred per cent of the auxiliaries observe the week of prayer. That every auxiliary, adult, young people and junior, in every district observe the week of prayer.

(f) That the pledge be paid in full by Harvest Day.

(g) That we do definite Social Service work.

2. That a campaign for new members and new auxiliaries be begun immediately.

3. In order to forward the campaign for new auxiliaries we place a Conference organizer in the field as soon as possible.

4. In order to further the campaign each auxiliary plan to give a missionary program in nearby unorganized churches.

5. That where there are as many as three interested women we try to effect an organization.

6. That all auxiliaries try to reach the standard of excellence for the Roll of Honor, and that each member be supplied with the standard of excellence in leaflet form, and that an enlarged copy be kept before the Society. We recommend also that the Recording Secretary keep an accurate account of points gained at each meeting; total for the year to equal seventy-five points in order to put the auxiliary on the Honor Roll.

7. That the District Secretary present the needs of the Scarritt Bible and Training School at the district meeting, and make a plea for volunteers.

8. That the first meeting in January be observed by all auxiliaries as pledge day, and that pledge cards be placed in the hand of every member.

9. That the solicitation of pledges be continued until each member has made response.

10. That the envelope system be used for offerings where the budget plan is not used.

11. That auxiliary treasurers procure new record books as soon as they are ready for distribution.

12. That we instruct our representatives to the Council to make a pledge for our Conference of $6000.

13. We suggest that auxiliaries adopt the budget plan of collecting offerings.

14. That as a Conference we make our budget for 1918, $15,000.

Mrs. J. J. HOLMES,
Chairman.
Mrs. R. W. WINSTEAD,
Secretary.

I HAVE LEARNED.

In telling us that he had learned in whatsoever state he was therewith to be content, the great apostle to the Gentiles laid special emphasis upon the first three words. Paul was not one of these easy-going souls to whom contentment is a gift of nature, and sometimes a rather dangerous gift too. He throbbed and thrilled with ambition and restlessness and the desire to be getting on, and anything like contentment that came to him had to be grown in the field of discipline and experience, the stern and forbidding field where the best of life's fruits are nurtured. He had to learn it, and it was because he had to learn it, and the process was a testing and difficult one, that he speaks of the result with a note of triumph, as of a great and significant achievement. It would seem as if he felt that one of the very finest and most satisfactory things he could say about himself was that he had accepted life as a school and had faithfully tried to learn the lesson which it would teach. Happy man was he that he could say "I have learned."—Christian Guardian.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quickly healing the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth), into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have a full pint—a family supply—of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

From the Field

Oak Ridge, Miss.

Dear Advocate: On March 4, we held our first quarterly conference on Oak Ridge charge at Oak Ridge, with a fairly good attendance for Monday in the country. The statistics of last year showed some progress all over the circuit. The pastor's salary for the ensuing year was increased $106. Brother Sharbrough preached three times for me the preceding Sunday—at Bovina, Flower Hill, and Oak Ridge—to appreciative congregations, and was a great deal of help to pastor and people in more than one way. The influence of his sermons at these places will be felt all through the year. He also gave an instructive and inspirational address at the opening of the second session of our Agricultural High School on Monday the 4th. Considering the peculiar situation, religiously, of the schools of Warren County, I consider his address timely indeed.

I will say in this connection, that the old Redbone Church of this charge was burned on Feb. 26, without any insurance. It was supposed to have caught fire from forest fires. It was one of the best country churches in the county and many preachers in Mississippi remember the church with pleasure. It was a historic old landmark of this county. The Federal soldiers used it during the siege of Vicksburg for a hospital. In recent years the Government had given a few hundred dollars for its repair, and it had been repaired, but now we must rebuild, which is a problem in these peculiarly stressing times. Reader, if you feel disposed to donate anything toward the rebuilding of this church, it will be thankfully received and greatly appreciated.

I never enjoyed the work of a Methodist pastor more than now. The times are so propitious. The rank and file of this circuit are giving more serious attention to the preaching of the Word than in any of the other years I have been here. Oh, for a circuit-wide, Pentecostal revival! Expectantly,

J. A. WELLS.

Jefferson Street, Natchez.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have thought for some time that I would drop you a few lines from Jefferson Street, Natchez. But the weather has been very cold and we had much sickness in the city, and some in our own family, and it has been hard to get started to write anything. The people gave us a royal reception the day we arrived here, at the train and at the parsonage, and made us feel at home at once. I found that my predecessor, Brother Emery, had made a deep impression and won a warm place in the hearts of the people of Natchez, not only of the Methodist Church, but of the entire city. He is held in very high esteem.

We have made a start in the pastorate of our charge and find that the work is quite a big task. To do the pastoral work and anything like measure up to the demands in the pulpit will require the best I have in stock. They tell me that the congregations are good, and the evening congregations are improving.

On Monday evening, Feb. 25, the church gave us a formal reception, in which the other Protestant Churches took part, and quite a number of our Hebrew friends were there to add to the welcome extended. I find the pastors of the Presbyterian and Protestant Episcopal Churches both very pleasant and congenial, and the rabbi of the Jewish Temple is also a very cordial and fraternal gentleman. The Baptist Church at this time is without a pastor. Everything bids fair to make our stay here very happy.

When one looks at the line of men who have filled this pulpit, from the sainted father of our Dr. A. F. Watkins, to the last one just going out, he feels that the requirements will be great, for they have surely been served by the best class of men the Conference had to give. I have made some headway getting into the homes of the people, and will soon be able to know most of them, if I do not know them already. In work and sentiment, and in the support of the war, our church is up to the best, and Natchez is at the very top. Our patriotic day last Sunday was quite a success, and will lead to having a general patriotic day pulled off in the city by all the churches.

The board of stewards, of their own accord, increased the living allowance for the pastor $200 for the year. We are planning to make a drive next Sunday and secure part of the claims against us for the year and save the usual fall drive. Our hustling and wide-awake presiding elder, Brother Sharbrough, was with us at the beginning of the year and looked well after the interests under his care. Our people love him as a man, like to hear him preach, and regard him very highly for the work's sake. They look upon him as a competent presiding elder. His coming to Natchez is looked forward to with pleasure.

Now, Doctor, I know you are a very busy man, but if you will come up to see us, I will let you preach for me on Sunday and take you fishing on Monday, and I know you would have a good time.

The official board of our church are a first-rate body of men and it is a pleasure to be associated with them in the work of the Kingdom of the Lord.

—W. H. Saunders, P. C.

BURDETTE'S FAVORITE TEXT.

How many quotable things are being printed from and about the late Robert J. Burdette! One of the most discriminating and popular is one that concerns his favorite text of Scriptures. When asked what it was, he gave this answer, which multitudes will appreciate: "When I think of a favorite text, half a dozen dear ones leap to my lips. Stormy days I want a cloak; cold days I want the sunny side of the wall; hot days I want a shady path; now, I want a shower of manna; now, I want a drink of cool, living water; now, I want a pilgrim's staff; now, I want a sword—a bright Jerusalem blade. My favorite text? I might as well try to tell which is my favorite eye. The one I might lose is the one I might want."—Biblical Recorder.

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.
I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.
I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.
C. V. TRUITT.

Johnston, S. C.
I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful curative powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from indigestion and nervous debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to baffle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she began using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.

DYSPEPSIA

Blaney, S. C.
I have suffered for many years from gastric troubles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.
W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.
For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.
OSCAR T. SMITH,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.
I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.
C. A. CROSBY, M. D.

Fredericksburg, Va.
Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.
WM. C. CARTER.

Roper, N. C., Oct. 30, 1914.
I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.
MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.
I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.
MRS. THEO. KUKER.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 24, 1914.
It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones.
MRS. JAMES R. CARTER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.
For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.
S. A. DERIEUX.

Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.
It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit, I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.
REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.

LIVER AND KIDNEY

Ohoopee, Ga., Aug. 21, 1914.
I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.

Carlisle, S. C.
It is fine for liver troubles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.
REV. A. McA. PITTMAN.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

Columbia, S. C.
I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

Wesley, Ga., May 12, 1914.
I had been down with bladder trouble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minutes at a time. In three days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.
S. B. D.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.
My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.
Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.
W. J. STRAWN.

Williamston, N. C. Oct. 3, 1914
My doctor said I would have to be operated on for gallstones, but since I have been drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor.
W. H. EDWARDS.

Columbia, S. C.
My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 13. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3216.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MARCH 28, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

THE LIVING CHRIST.

It was the risen, living Christ who put heart and hope into the despondent disciples after the dark and awful tragedy of Calvary. It was the living, ascended Christ who sent forth the Holy Spirit in wonderful power to reassure and strengthen his followers on the day of Pentecost. It is the living Christ who is the Captain of our salvation, and from whom has come the promise to those commissioned to go forth in his name: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." It is the living Christ who is our high priest and advocate before the heavenly throne; it is he who is preparing a place for us in eternity, who has declared that he will come again and receive us to himself, that where he is, there we may be also. Hence, though our Lord was crucified and was dead and buried, triumphantly may we sing with the sacred poet:

"Lives again our glorious King;
Where, O death, is now thy sting?
Once he died our souls to save;
Where's thy victory, boasting grave?
Soar we now where Christ has led,
Foll'wing our exalted Head;
Made like Him, like him we rise;
Ours the cross, the grave, the skies!"

A CHURCH'S TREMENDOUS RESPONSIBILITY

No organizations in the world carry obligations so weighty as the Christian Churches. To them God has committed the most sacred interests and duties of the most far-reaching significance. They are the custodians of the Holy Scriptures and the agencies through which the Divine forces are expected chiefly to operate in executing the vast scheme of world redemption. The true members of the universal Church of Christ—every branch of the True Vine in all denominations—are the witnesses and representatives of our ascended Lord on the earth. It was of these that he spoke in his wonderful Intercessory Prayer when he said, "As Thou has sent me into the world, even so have I sent them into the world."

The Churches are also under a profound responsibility to their own members. The work of saving mankind can only be done through organized effort. An individual Christian cannot hope by his personal endeavors to reach beyond a very restricted sphere. The Churches, with their various arms of service, must be used if the millions of the race are to be brought to the Lord Jesus. So the Christian people of a denomination are compelled to rely upon its governmental machinery as the channel through which they are to make their labors widely effective. Hence they toil for a time in one place, and then pass on to another field; they sacrifice and turn over to their Church their gifts for the upbuilding and extension of the Kingdom. Their Church owes it to them to see that what they have accomplished is not allowed to come to naught; to make these funds count for the utmost possible in the achievement of the high ends for which the Master brought the Church into being.

Nor is this yet the whole scope of a Church's obligations. It, furthermore, owes an immeasurable debt to the inhabitants of earth who are perishing for the want of the Gospel. The risen Lord has commissioned and commanded it to do its utmost to carry the reclaiming agencies of redemption to all the sin-cursed sons of men. The well-being of these spiritually needy ones for time and for eternity is, by divine appointment, largely in the hands of the Christian Churches.

With such interests committed to them, how stupendous are the responsibilities of the Churches; and if they fail to be true to these priceless trusts, how fearful must be the consequences, and how great their guilt! Their noble missions cannot be fulfilled unless the unadulterated Gospel is adhered to and taught, and unless they are kept sufficiently pure to be used as vehicles for the working of the regenerating and transforming power of the Holy Spirit. A Christian Church that has departed from the sound doctrines of the Word, or which is dominated by worldly influences, no matter how strong it may be numerically or how extended may be its showy activities, is really apostate and unworthy of the name it bears. As has so often been said, Churchanity is not necessarily Christianity. Canon Farrar in commenting upon our Lord's act in weeping over Jerusalem, after explaining that the Greek word translated "wept" really meant "wailed aloud," says:

"And well might he wail aloud! Was not the city of Jerusalem the most 'religious' city in the world? Was it not wholly devoted to religion, or, at any rate, to religionism? Could not its Temple Service number its white-robed array of 40,000 priests, and its endless army of attendant Levites? Did not the blast of silver trumpets announce daily its morning and evening sacrifices? Did not the High Priest enter its Holy of Holies every year with the golden censer and the blood of the Atonement in his hands? Were not some 2,000,000 pilgrims, from every region of the world, with Gentile proselytes among them, streaming on that very day to its Paschal Feast? Ah, yes! there was sumptuous ritual enough, and more than enough, but no righteousness; abundant externalism, but no religion pure and undefiled; and to his eyes the city was but a glistening sepulcher, a hollow sham."

A writer in a recent Church review declares: "It has often been pointed out that the great religions obey the law of periodicity. They are founded in enthusiasm; they enjoy their time of effervescence; they pass to a period of decline. Corrupt and degenerate forms of Christianity still exist in various parts of the world. The period of the prophets in Israel was followed by the 'night of legalism.' Reform and reaction summarize much of the religious history of mankind. A constant tendency to degeneration manifests itself in all ages and among all religions." (So far as Christianity, however, is concerned, it has been the Churches that represent it, rather than the religion itself, that have exhibited this tendency.)

The imperative call to all branches of the Christian Church in this day of insidious and aggressive

THE PLAN AND PROSPECT OF UNIFICATION.

By Bishop W. A. Candler.

Very many inquiries have reached me asking an expression of my opinion concerning the proposed plan and the prospect of "Unification."

I have been disposed to refrain from making any public statement, feeling that the official statement of the Secretaries of the Joint Commission was all that could be taken as authoritative, and that additional utterances by individual members of the Commission might not be seasonable or serviceable.

But as other members of the Commission have expressed themselves freely, in both the secular press and the papers of the Church, perhaps it is proper that I show my opinion also.

It must be understood, however, that I speak as an individual only, and that my opinion, or the unauthorized utterance of any member of the Commission, is worth no more than the value which may be attached to it by those who consider it.

The Christian Spirit of the Commission.

Let me say in the outset that a fine Christian spirit has prevailed in the three meetings which have been held. Nothing else, of course, was to be expected of such an assembly of Christian men.

Results Stated Correctly by the Secretaries.

Of the results of the three meetings, the official statement of the Secretaries is a full and accurate exhibit, so far as I know, or believe.

That statement shows a number of points upon which tentative agreements, and no more than tentative agreements, have been reached. It shows also that a number of the most vital matters have not been passed upon by the Commission yet.

A member of the Southern Commission, who has attended every meeting, writes me in response to a letter in which I asked him to tell me what had been done at the sessions which, on account of sickness, I could not attend, as follows:

"We have adopted at one or another of the three meetings held a good many things tentatively and subject to future amendment, but have adopted nothing finally, except some resolutions which do not touch definitely the points of chief importance. We have not yet adopted anything on the status of the Negro in the re-organized Church, or anything definite on Regional Conferences. These things, and practically everything else of any importance, have been left for definite action to the meeting at St. Louis on April 10."

He is, and has been, an ardent advocate of Unification, but he adds: "In my judgment we cannot get ready any report to the General Conference recommending any definite action on the matters which are vital."

Another member, who strongly favors Unification, wrote me the day after the meeting closed in Savannah, as follows:

"The Commission has adjourned in disagreement and provided for a meeting in St. Louis on April 10. I opposed another session and do not think I will attend. I want Unification, but it seems impossible now."

The Negro Question Not the Only Difficulty.

Some seem to think that the only issue which is difficult to settle is that of the status of the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church

THE BURDEN-BEARER.

Have you been to the Bearer of Burdens to-day,
O, one with the careworn face?
Have you told him your troubles, your need of his aid?
Have you told him your sins and the grief they have made,
And asked for his pardoning grace?

Have you opened your heart in the closet of prayer,
And showed him its uttermost woe?
Have you told him its bitterness, strife and despair?
Have you told him the secret of agony there,
The thing which no mortal may know?

Have you told him before of the sore-pressing need,
The toil of the long, weary day?
The anxiety weighing like lead on your brow,
The impatience that begs for deliverance now,
Instead of awaiting his way?

Can you hear his sweet voice in the Word speaking low,
"O, weary one, come unto me?"
Then come with your trials, and all that you do;
For he is the Bearer of Burdens for you,
And no one can comfort as He.

—Helen F. Clark.

ANY ONE MAY HELP.

We cannot copy the great work which Christ did for the world, but we may copy His spirit. The smallest trickle of water down a city gutter will carve out of the mud at its side little banks and cliffs, and exhibit all the phenomena of erosion on the largest scale, as the Mississippi does over half a continent, and the tiniest wave in a basin will fall into the same curves as the billows of mid-ocean.—Alexander Maclaren.

POWER OF PURITY.

It is a marvelous thing to see how a pure and innocent heart purifies all that it approaches. The most ferocious natures are soothed and tamed by innocence. And so with human beings there is a delicacy so pure that vicious men in its presence become almost pure; all of purity which is in them is brought out; like attaches itself to like. The pure heart becomes a center of attraction, around which similar atoms gather, and from which dissimilar ones are repelled. A corrupt heart elicits in an hour all that is bad in us; a spiritual one brings out and draws to itself all that is best and purest. Such was Christ. He stood in the world, the Light of the world, to which all sparks of lights gradually gathered. He stood in the presence of impurity, and men became pure.—F. W. Robertson.

THE JOY OF FORGIVENESS.

By Wm. C. Allen.

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.—Romans 12:21.

Good to forgive; best to forget.—Robert Browning.

One of the finest instances of forgiveness I ever heard of occurred in England during the intolerant days of the seventeenth century. In the midst of a religious discussion one of the disputants angrily struck his opponent a cruel blow on the face, mockingly exclaiming, "Take that for Jesus Christ's sake!" The injured man quietly replied, "Friend, I do take it for Jesus Christ's sake." That was all. With his Lord's precept and example, was it not enough?

An aged Christian recently died who, before his death, personally saw or wrote all living persons whom he felt that he had wronged during his long career, requesting their forgiveness. He even asked to be absolved because of long-forgotten unfair treatment of a college-mate sixty years before. He had been a proud man, but craved full reconciliation with men and God before he died. Did not these acts of humility prepare him for entrance into the eternal service of his forgiving King?

Probably many professors of the Gospel find it more difficult to acquit those who have insulted or abused them than do others. Their lives are often regulated by the light as they see it. They do not wish to compromise with evil. Their religion promotes a sense of justice, and they almost involuntarily feel that their motives or decisions are correct. They may thus, without meaning wrong, ignore the view-point of another and unintentionally assume an unjust attitude. This may be easily succeeded by inability to manifest forbearance, by the keen thrust, the sharp correspondence, the bitter word. Seed are sown that yield bad fruits. Let those who love the Prince of Peace watch and pray lest they be led into this very real temptation.

In the heat of the moment we sometimes magnify our passions and utter words that afterwards we would give very much to recall. Our unruly tongues have gotten the best of us. Our weakness, which at the time we thought to be strength, has been exposed. Our humiliation in the sight of men may be as nothing in comparison with self-condemnation. Self-justification has no place in the repentant heart. How can we get right with those whom we have wounded or with God?

There is a sovereign remedy. I think that those who know that there is quiet with Jesus understand the cure. It is not altogether found in efforts to forget the past. It is discovered in getting into touch with Christ—in going to the place of secret prayer. Those who thus seek absolution at its Source will be prepared to forgive others. When we pray for our enemies we forgive them. We comprehend why our Lord laid such emphasis upon forgiveness: "If ye forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you, but if ye forgive not their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Let us never forget the magnificent possibilities and terms of remission at the fountain-head of Eternal Love!

It is hard to ask another to forgive us. Often the real aggressor in a controversy will ungraciously meet our advances, but we are clear. That should be enough. When we exercise such tests of discipleship, how often cantankerous spirits are overcome by the spirit of reconciliation and love. They, too, forgive!

One of the delights of Christian experience is a sense of the forgiving mercies of God. How happy is the reconciled heart! What soul-peace reigns! What new determination is created to more loyally serve God! If God thus pardons us for Jesus' sake, shall we not for His sake forgive others? We can carry to those who have humiliated us the same happiness that we have so freely received of God. Across the ferment and contention of the ages rings the apostolic cry, "Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you."

FROM THE TOP.

Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

I am literally at the top now, for Mansfield is the highest place in the State of Louisiana; and it is a good place to be. I don't want anybody to crowd me off. The General Conference ought to meet, disapprove the unification scheme, elect the necessary officers for the ensuing quadrennium, and say, "Since Dr. Steel has reached the top we will remove the time limit from the pastoral term so he won't have to move;" then adjourn and go home. They could put that program through in a few days and have more time to cultivate their "war-gardens," and these are more important now than spouting jets of oratory.

By the way, Meek, the minutes show that seventeen of these Louisiana preachers voted for me as a delegate to the General Conference. Hurrah for that bunch! I admire their good judgment and their nerve, and when we meet at Philippi I'll set 'em up. We need not despair when we have seventeen heroes who will vote for a man who speaks his mind regardless of whether it catches the breeze or not. I purposely sat in the rear of the Conference while the voting was going on to be out of sight, and laughed at the birds roosting on the platform, and sighed at the politic speeches at strategic moments! When everybody in Rome was setting up his statue on his door-steps, and old Cato, the most famous man among them all, had none, some one asked him why he did not set up his. The grim old fellow who, with all his faults, was a reality and not a sham, replied that he would a great deal rather he should ask him that question than to ask him why he set it up! Verbum sat. But, alas, "verbum sat" must go now, for it is old, and the unificationists are bent on blotting out the past! Thank the Lord, Cuffy, a veritable "angel in ebony" (that is what Bishop Haven called the Negro), Cuffy stands in the way. The Commissioners may be like Balaam, and try to force the thing, but even an ass has better sense than to go on against such an obstacle.

The meeting of the Wesley Bible Class Federation was a great success. We missed the light of your countenance and I was asked who was the reporter for the Advocate, but could not answer the question. This Federation is a big thing, undeveloped as yet in Louisiana, but composed of the elements that control things. There was not a false note in the music of this Mansfield meeting from first to last. The attendance was good in spite of the great war meeting in Shreveport, which kept some from coming and took many away. There were over 200 registrations. Dr. Bulla was on hand with his sunny smiles and helpful counsel and captured the hearts of our people. Bishop McCoy gave us a great discourse on the relation of the Bible to the great war-problem, and the greater problem of after the war. We'll whip Germany, but then? Rich beyond the dreams of nations, controlling the trade of the world and carrying it in our bottoms, will we become "drunk with power" and have the "heathen heart that puts its trust in reeking tube or iron shard," and be but "valiant dust that builds on dust, and guarding call not God to guard!" There is the problem, mightier than that of crushing the autocracy of the Kaiser. The presiding elders were with us, and several of them contributed valuable addresses and papers. Dr. Carter read a patriotic paper as the formal message of the presiding elders of the Conference. It was highly seasoned with "Briscoe Sauce;" or, to change the metaphor, it was a shot, and the shot was hot, and it hit the spot. It was a big time. Everybody enjoyed it.

Cheer up, Meek. I have just read that the Presbyterians have failed to agree at the last meeting in Atlantic City. They can't unite, neither can we. The more I study the plan agreed on by our Commissioners the more assured I feel that it will be rejected by the General Conference. It is such a complete surrender to the North, such a complete self-obliteration, that our representatives are not going to submit to it. We are willing—I say "we" because I am one of many who oppose it—to unify on a plan that gives us some show; but not on this plan. Dr. Foote, who is in favor of union, says they give up 400,000 members to our 40,000; but as I see it they give up absolutely nothing, because by this ingenius scheme they lodge all ultimate authority in the practically supreme General Conference, and there have the majority. I think our Commissioners are pious, but some of them are mighty weak, and easily overcome by the odors of Dr. Goucher's Saratoga roses. Thank the Lord for Bishop J. W. Hamilton. I abominate his principles as heartily as he abominates mine; but he is a true man, and I'll warrant there was no "give" in his attitude. There should be none in ours. I entirely disagree with Dr. Foote. This is no time to be patching up things; but a time for every man to stand for what he believes is right. Hamilton stands flat-flooted for his side of the matter. By the way, he once offered me the appointment to one of the largest Methodist Episcopal Churches, when my own Bishops could not find even a patch for me. That shows what Hamilton thinks of a man who sticks to his principles. I wonder if some of these captious critics who want to jump on me, and think I am "narrow" and "provincial," ever turned down a big metropolitan city church offered them by a

Northern Methodist Bishop? That church was not in the South either; but Hamilton knew that the great church he invited me to consider would stand by a man who spoke his mind. Nothing could induce me to leave Dixie and my own Church; but I smile when these little millennial angels turn up the white of their eyes in holy sorrow at my ungodly "provincialism."

My garden flourishes, Meek. I have named Shankle's cocoa grass the Germans, the Bermuda grass is the Austrians, the cockle-burrs are the Turks. These foes are arrayed against the English (peas) and the Irish (potatoes) and the Italians, beets, and the French, beans, and the Americans, corn, and so on. My "Scovel No. 1" is like a machine gun. You ought to see me mow down the Germans and the Austrians and the Turks that threaten to destroy my garden. I take immense pleasure in sweeping the field. Hindenburg is slow with his boasted western offensive; but when he makes it he will meet just what these vegetable Huns are getting when then they tackle my truck.

Mansfield College grows on me. Bobbitt's maidens are either a happy set or a big bunch of rosy-cheeked hypocrites, for they outwardly appear to be having a good time; and as I have three girls in the bunch I know they have to work. Oh, if the people of Louisiana, and especially the Methodists, could realize the opportunity there is here to educate Christian women they surely would supply the means so much needed to properly equip this school. For $2000, in addition to what he has in sight, President Bobbitt could build his new dining-room, with a department for domestic science; and for $2000 more, he could put in what has now become an almost indispensable part of the equipment of a college, a moving picture plant for instruction purposes. Who will be the man or woman to wear the feather of a gift to start this good work?

Now if you want to read anything else from the pen of this "Ink-slinger" send 50 cents and get my "Tale of the School in the Sticks." It is a pedagogic curry-comb and will make some folks (apologies to Bulia) wince and probably kick. I have waited for somebody to say what ought to be said, and as nobody would do it, I have done it. There now!

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON WAR WORK.

The Commission on Chaplains and War Work met in Nashville, Tenn., at the Methodist Publishing House on Wednesday, February 27, heard the report of the Secretary, Dr. John M. Moore, and reviewed the field, discussed the conditions vitally related to the matter of Chaplains and War Work, appointed a Sub-Committee, consisting of Dr. W. F. McMurry, Dr. John M. Moore, and Dr. John R. Nelson, to draw up a statement and make recommendations.

The following is the report of the Sub-Committee which was presented, discussed, and unanimously adopted. W. R. LAMBUTH, Chairman.

We, your Special Committee, appointed to draft for formal adoption the conclusions reached in our general discussions of War Work as related to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, submit the following:

First—We are gratified to learn that Annual Conferences, and groups of Annual Conferences, here and there throughout the Church, have initiated and are carrying on work in connection with the cantonments, aviation camps, and army posts located within their bounds, such work being undertaken in the interest of the soldiers as in their judgment our Church should perform. The brethren who have undertaken, and are doing this work are entitled to the gratitude of the Church; and in some places, are deserving of financial aid from the Church at large.

It is worthy of note that there has been pledged or contributed by the Church, in the interest of such work, the approximate total of $120,000, which is being used to support camp pastors, to build tabernacles, maintain social service headquarters, and such other activities as seem to be needed.

Second—We are of the opinion that through proper organization and leadership, our Church can render a distinct service, such as has been mentioned in the preceding paragraph, that will be alike helpful to the Government, to our soldiers, to the Church itself, and that it is ready to respond with all the money necessary for the full discharge of its duty in the premises.

It is our judgment that we can no longer, as a Church, impose this responsibility and leave this heavy burden upon the shoulders of the brethren or Conferences contiguous to the catonments, aviation camps, and army posts. The work to be done in some cases is too heavy for local resources. Our soldiers come from almost every congregation throughout the bounds of the Church, and large sections of the Church would be wronged and would properly resent any program, or lack of program, that would exclude them from participating in this patriotic service.

Third—We recognize the fact that this is an emergency committee with powers and privileges not very well defined; nevertheless, we are strongly of the opinion that Bishop W. R. Lambuth, who as Chairman of the Committee on Chaplains has been designated by the College of Bishops for this emergency work, should give as much time as he can possibly command from his official duties, to the general direction of this Church-wide war work, from this date until the meeting of the General Conference in May. We further recommend that in behalf of the committee he should give to the Church a carefully prepared statement of the work already done and that now being done; also, that the Church should be made acquainted with the needs of the field as far as it is possible to set them forth. To accomplish this end, he should be provided with funds sufficient to take care of the travel necessary thereto, and the expense of a secretary. We also believe it would be wise for him to establish headquarters at some point where this work can be best represented and directed.

Fourth—The investigations that we have been able to make have led to the conclusion that there will be needed, up to the end of 1918, not less than a total of $250,000, and we are fully persuaded that the Church will gladly contribute this amount, if given the opportunity to do so. Many of the Conferences have already made liberal contributions toward this war work fund of a quarter of a million dollars.

If Bishop Lambuth will consent to undertake this task, we recommend that an executive committee be constituted, consisting of the Bishop and two other members of your committee to be selected by him; and that this executive committee shall have full authority to formulate plans for the raising of funds and the expenditure of the same, until the Church can make, through its General Conference, such provision for this work as its wisdom may dictate.

Fifth—We recommend that the General Conference be requested to take the whole question of the Church's relation to the war work into consideration, to the end that it may locate the responsibility of directing the Church's activities in its war work program, in some organized department of the Church, or in what may be called a Commission, with a strong man at the head, giving all his time to the work. Such a commission should have charge of the whole question of war work activities, including the recommending of chaplains for the army and navy; the selection of camp pastors; church activities in the interest of patriotism; propaganda in the interest of Liberty loans, food conservation, etc., as may demand the attention of the Church.

We have in mind, of course, that this War Commission should have: (1) General oversight of the Church's activities in connection with cantonments, aviation camps, and army posts, with authority to provide tabernacles and tents where needed; and select and recommend for appointment, counsel and instruct camp pastors, and other workers, keeping always in mind the great work being done by the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross, and supplementing that work in every possible way; and (2) that it should arrange and direct a Church-wide campaign in the interest of winning the war, which would include a bureau of information, a list of available speakers, the preparation of a patriotic program, etc.

In a word, we would relate vitally the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the Government in this crisis in our Nation's history, and in the most effective way possible. There is no division of opinion among the members of your committee at the point of the need of the proper organization for this great task. Large sections of our Church, remote from any centers where our soldiers are mobilized, would, if given the opportunity, as gladly participate in the work of meeting the Church's responsibility as those immediately related thereto.

Sixth—We recommend that in connection with the coming General Conference, there be arranged a great Patriotic Meeting, and that our Chairman be requested to take up with the Committee on Arrangements the matter of a suitable hour, and that speakers be secured for the occasion.

Respectfully submitted,
By W. F. McMURRY,
For the Committee.

RESOLUTIONS ON UNIFICATION.

(Adopted unanimously by the New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting.)

Resolved by the New Orleans Methodist Preachers' meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

1. That we heartily approve the efforts of the two Episcopal Methodisms to reunite by reorganization.

2. That we consider that our Church is committed to it by the action of our General Conference at Oklahoma City authorizing a commission to treat with a similar commission from the Methodist Episcopal Church, and that any effort now made to hinder the realization of our desires is out of place.

3. That we rejoice in the progress made by the commissioners as shown in the recently published proposed Constitution. We believe the general plan proposed to be reasonable, equitable, and workable. We earnestly pray that the Commission at its meeting in St. Louis may be able to agree on the unadopted parts so that the whole plan may be before our General Conference in Atlanta for consideration.

4. That to the best of our knowledge the people we serve are practically unanimous in their desire for unification, feeling that the time has come for the removal of the embarrassments that have long been a disadvantage to the largest success of Methodism. We with them feel that it is time that the Commission and the Church at large should know our real attitude toward the proposition.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the Secretary of our Commission, Rev. F. M. Thomas, and the St. Louis Christian Advocate, and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication. Signed: J. CLIDE ROUSSEAUX, Secretary New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting, M. E. Church, South.

SOCIAL EQUALITY.

By Way of Introduction.

"Recollections, Viscount Morley," 2 Vols., $7.50, Macmillan, November, 1917, is the autobiography of Lord John Morley, a British statesman of the first order who has held office of Cabinet rank, when the Liberal party has been in power, almost from the beginning of his parliamentary career. And he is quite as distinguished as a man of letters as he is as a statesman, being the autnor of a number of books, chief among which is his brilliant "Life of Gladstone," the greatest British statesman of the nineteenth century, of whom he was the official biographer.

Lord Morley is not less noted as one of the chief apostles of Agnosticism, as his Recollections abundantly show, and great surprise was expressed when he was chosen to write the Life of of Gladstone, that "the greatest infidel in the world should have been chosen to write the biography of the greatest Christian in the world."

Southern Methodists who have felt the blighting touch of Andrew Carnegie in the educational field, whose hand is also believed to be potential if not active in the union propaganda so sadly agitating Protestantism, might profit by reading Lord Morley's Recollections, in which a number of references are made to the Laird of Skibo, to the extent at least of learning what order of men are his intimates, and from this his purposes may be easily deduced.

Proof of the Pudding.

Writing to Lord Minto, Viceroy of India, September 1, 1909 (Vol. 2, pp. 336), Lord Morley, then Secretary of State for India, says: "To-day Booker Washington comes to Skibo where I am staying, being a great friend of my host's. (Italics mine) I had talks with him when I was in America six years ago. The future of the Negro in the U. S. A. has always profoundly interested and excited me, as well it might. What will the numbers amount to, twenty or fifty years henee? Terrible to think of!! Talk of India and other 'insoluble problems' of great States, I declare the American Negro often strikes me as the hardest of them all."

To the same correspondent, writing apparently about two weeks earlier, August 12, Lord Morley says (Vol. 2, pp. 314-315): "I got a week's leave from Cabinets, and am writing this from Skibo on the Moray Firth, where we are staying with our best of friends, the Carnegies. The scenery is beautiful, the heather eoming into full bloom, the sea-air delicious after dusty London, and the idleness as welcome as daylight. There are many Americans here (Italics mine), so it is like being abroad, or on an Atlantic liner."

Comment upon these extracts seems unnecessary. A SOUTHERN METHODIST.

FROM DR. SAWYER.

Dear Doctor Meek: The Unification Resolutions offered by one of our pastors at the last meeting of the New Orleans Southern Methodist Preachers are said to have been unanimously adopted. I was not present, and so lost the opportunity of showing my colors by a speeeh and vote agalnst them. There are others of our preachers here who, like myself, are anti-union, so far as the pending plan is concerned. It would have been well for all who voted for these Resolutions to have signed their names to them so that it might be known "who is who" in this thing. The faet is, the New Orleans Southern Methodist preachers are not unanimously for unification along the proposed lines. A respectable minority are unreservedly against it.

By the way, in the plan so far proposed there is so much mysterious machinery that close studying is necessary to get at its true inwardness. All honor to the three Southern Blshops and the three prominent laymen who in the Southern Commission voted against the Rogers plan! All honor also to the Baton Rouge First Methodist Church stewards who have so strongly espoused the negative side of Unificatlon of the Savannah type in their resolutions, published in last week's Advocate! May God bless you, Doctor, in your splendid efforts and clear-cut arguments on the right side of this burning question!

JOHN T. SAWYER.

VOICES FROM THE PEOPLE.

Hopes Church May Be Saved.

Dear Dr. Meek: May God help you in the work of saving our Church in Atlanta! I wish I knew that all our delegates would be as firm in their position as you are. J. H. INGRAM.

Evansville, Miss.

Wants None of It.

Dear Dr. Meek: I hope that you will stand against the unification scheme at the General Conference. I am not in favor of it, and I do not see how any full-blooded Southern Methodist could be. Do you? W. N. DODDS.

Verona, Miss.

Satisfied with the Church, South.

Dear Brother Meek: I am with you as to the unification matter. I have long been a member of the M. E. Church, South, and am perfectly satisfied with it just as it is. I pray that it may never cease to exist. F. W. FLOWERS.

Smithdaie, Mlss.

Has Intensified Opposition.

Dear Editor: As to the effect of publishing the unification scheme up this way, I will say it has added to the already huge amount of dlssatisfaction. Our people are positively opposed to it, and the preachers whom I have seen are openly against it. A SOUTHERN METHODIST.

McComb, Miss.

The Old Vanderbilt Spirit.

Dear Dr. Meek: It has been with profound interest that I have read your utterances pertaining to the pendlng plan of unlon. You have spoken my sentlments. Surely this is nothlng short, in its spirit, of another Vanderbilt University case—trying to settle a great matter in defiance of the will of the people. It looks to me as if the present plan would result in the complete dismemberment of our Church. As for me, I will never consent. I can not. J. F. RONE.

Ethel, Miss.

Strongly Against It.

Dear Dr. Meek: I read every word you write on unification, and I am with you heart and soul. Like Dr. S. A. Steel, I will say, "I will never leave the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but if the old ship goes down like the Titanic, I will have to swim away from the wreck." There is another thing I should like to say: If any one from a Bishop down to the poorest layman is dissatisfied with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, I do not know of any law to prevent him leaving that fold and seeking sheiter under the hospitable roof of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Meridian, Miss. MRS. S. B. FLYNT.

Much Interested.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Southern Methodist Church is two years my senior. For 62 years I have enjoyed its communion, endorsed its doctrines, and have watched with unabated interest the heroic efforts of our Bishops and faithful ministers—through Reconstruction days as well as others. I have rejoiced with them in their success and can not forget their labors and sacrifices. I have served the Church in my weak way as a steward, President of the Woman's Missionary Society, and as a teacher in the Sunday school. I still teach a young people's class. I perhaps will soon have to answer the last roll-call; but I hope to see our Church come out from under the elouds which are now hovering above it, wielding the sword of the Spirit and marching on to victory. I am with you on your stand against the pending scheme of union. You have been a fearless defender of our beloved Church against the wrong kind of union. May God bless you and all others who are with you in this great fight! MARTHA RYE.

Amory, Miss.

A Point To Be Noted.

Dear Dr. Meek: In a late issue of the Advocate, I note that you will reply to some strictures on our civic or political policies by some of the M. E. Church editors or officials. Permit me to suggest a thought which I would like to see expressed oftener, and which I should like to see stressed. With apologies for this on my part, I will say that I call your attention to it fearing that amid the stress of other things you might overlook this. They say the "solid South" must be broken. We remain solid merely as an aet of self-protection. There are not lacking men in plenty who know that it would be best to have two political parties instead of one; that they may act as a foil to each other, thus securing purer politics. (Louisiana is a notable example of the one party system and its consequent corruption. And in James Bryce's "American Commonwealth" we may see how the Louisiana government is looked upon.) But the South is obliged to remain solidly Democratic to prevent the Republican Party from forcing upon us Negro equality and Negro rule. They practically know nothing of the hordes of ignorant blacks constituting a large part of our population. This participation in politics was tried once and found wanting. As much as we may deplore the one party rule, we can not depart from it, or the floodgates would be opened, and the disaster would prove tragic. A LOUISIANA METHODIST.

NORTHERN BISHOPS REPORTED AGAINST IT.

Dr. Melear, editor of the Methodist Advocate-Journal, the official organ of the Northern Methodists in the Chattanooga-Atlanta area, has spoken out in opposition to the pending scheme of Unification, and he is said to claim that Bishop Bristol, Bishop Leete, and Bishop Thirkield share his views. A report has also reached us from several sources that the Board of Bishops of the Church, North, has had a meeting in New York since the Savannah session of the Joint Commission, and that it there developed that a large majority of that influential body are against union along the proposed lines. And there is a rumor afloat that another meeting of the Northern Board of Bishops is to be held soon after the St. Louis meeting of the Unification Commission. As a matter of fact, the evidence continues to multiply that the published plan of union is creating widespread dissatisfaction, both in the South and in the North, and among both the whites and the Negroes.

BROTHER CHAMBERS AT TRAINING SCHOOL.

Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sunday School Field Secretary, was with us at the Mississippi Conference Training School, on March 19 and 20, delivering four inspiring messages. The four subjects discussed were: "The Word of God," "The Pupil," "Saving Our Childhood," and "God's Need of Us." Brother Chambers was known to us as an enthusiastic student of Sunday school affairs before his appointment to his present position, but he is profiting by his opportunity to specialize. Our faculty and students appreciated his efforts among us. ROLFE HUNT, President.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS NEEDED FOR THE WORK AT CAMP SHELBY.

To the Pastors and Laymen of the Mississippi Conference:

Dear Brethren: On account of the urgent need of a stenographer to assist in the splendid and important work being done by our pastor at Camp Shelby, our Conference Board of Missions has authorized Brother R. H. Kleiser to raise $800 immediately as an additional "missionary special" to provide for the salary of an assistant and office expenses. We are confronted by almost unlimited opportunities for service at Camp Shelby, and it is our sacred duty to make the most of them. We trust that this call for additional aid to carry on religious work among the soldiers within our own borders will meet with a ready response throughout the Conference. Yours fraternally,

W. H. LA PRADE, President.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

THE PLAN AND PROSPECT OF UNIFICATION.

in the unified body which is proposed. This is far from being a correct opinion. There are other matters quite as serious and perplexing. For myself, I may say that I do not approve by any means all that is contained in that part of the Official Statement of the Secretaries which sets forth what has been "tentatively" agreed upon. Doubtless other members of the Joint Commission, on both sides of the house, would, if asked, say the same with reference to their position concerning the things which have been "tentatively" agreed upon.

Two Divergent Policies with Reference to the Negroes.

The question of the status of the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Unified Church which is proposed presents, of course, a perplexing issue. This is so, not because our Northern brethren, or we, entertain any unchristian sentiments with reference to the Negroes, but because two radically different policies have been followed by the Church, North, and our Church, to reconcile which is extremely difficult.

The Policy of the Northern Church.

Our Northern brethren have Annual Conferences composed exclusively of Negroes, and these Conferences elect colored delegates, both male and female, to the General Conference which legislates for the whole Church. The color line is drawn in all the Courts and Conferences of their Church until the General Conference is reached, and even in that body some marks of it are visible. Negro Bishops to preside as General Superintendents in any and all Conferences, whether white or black, have not been elected by the Northern General Conference, nor are such elections in the future probable. This fact is known and recognized by all parties.

The Northern Church through its Freedmen's Aid Society, has expended upon its work among the Negroes a great deal of money, but its Negro members make no more than about one-seventh of all the Negro Methodists in the United States, notwithstanding the generous financial and other aid which has been given them.

The Policy of the Southern Church.

The Southern Church, on the other hand, organized in 1870 its colored members into the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America. Bishop McTyeire, in his admirable "History of Methodism," says: "At their request they were constituted an independent body under the name chosen by themselves, 'The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America.' The Discipline of the parent body was adopted without material alterations, and two Bishops, of their own election, were ordained." At its organization in 1870, this Church had about 75,000 members. It has been given aid by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but by no means as much as the Northern Church has been able to give its Negro members. Nevertheless, over many obstacles the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America has made steady progress and now has about 250,000 members. Its growth was never more rapid than at present.

Negroes Do Best in Churches of Their Own.

From these facts it appears the Negro Methodists who are organized into Churches of their own are more successful than when they are in a Church, a large majority of whose members are whites. The policy pursued by the Church, South, has been vindicated by history, and that pursued by the Church North, has not been so successful, nor so free from embarrassing difficulties.

The Difficulty of Harmonizing the Two Policies.

It is now clear how difficult is the problem of harmonizing these two policies.

The Church, South, can not in good faith and conscience cast off the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America, to which it is bound by every consideration of honor and duty, and accept assessments from the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Church, North, or any other similar body that might be organized by the Unified Church, to give financial aid to the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. That would be to throw off the body to which the Church, South, owes a special obligation and to unite in making the colored members of the Church, North, a sort of Afro-American aristocracy, with a preferred claim upon the benevolence of the white Methodists of the United States.

On the other hand, the Church, North, cannot dispose of its 300,000 colored members in the United States in any way which is not agreeable to them. And it is now apparent that the colored members of the Church, North, do not wish to go out of their Church, nor accept the plan now pending in the Joint Commission with reference to their position in the Unified Church which is proposed.

What Negro Leaders Say.

Some of their most influential leaders are protesting against the proposed plan. They insist that it cannot be enforced, even if adopted, without the consent of the Colored Annual Conferences of the Church, North; and one has charged the Commissioners of the Church, South, with discourtesy because of the position which they have taken on the matter of the status of the Negro in the Unified Church which is proposed. His language in part is as follows:

"The impropriety, or the delicacy, or the inconsistency, if not the discourtesy, has not yet dawned upon the Commissioners of the Church, South, and upon some of the Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it seems to us, of saying to a group of members who are an integral part of the Church that 'we' prefer having 'you' take an independent relation. What if it were suggested to our missionary white Conferences in the South and West that they should accept an independent relation? One must be inconsiderate, if not indifferent, to the feelings of the Negro when he can so persistently argue for his independent relation. In a well regulated home if a suitor (the analogy here is not complete, for the Church, South, is not a suitor in that sense) stipulates as a basis of union that certain legitimate children should be put out of the home, forthwith negotiations would break off. And it would be hard to imagine any suitor, however intense his or her desire, making the severance of legitimate children a basis for union, however undesirable and objectionable those children may be. There is a point here in common courtesy that sticks."

Another Negro leader in the Church, North, has denounced the proposed plan with reference to the Negro as "a flagrant violation of democratic principles." He addresses his protest in the main to his own Church, and the general tenor of his article may be gathered from the following extract from it:

"Finally, brethren of our Methodist Episcopal Church, you are interwined among our heart-strings and we had hoped that we were entertwined among yours. Your suggestion to curtail our rights and reduce us to an insignificant ecclesiastic clinic for practice to both you and the Southern Church mortifies us beyond expression. But if you say that you want and must have union with the Southern Church at the price you have fixed in the tentative report, at the price of our rights and feelings, and run this modern car ruthlessly, or with the recklessness of Jehu, we shall stand aside and not allow ourselves to be crushed. You have the votes and you can carry it. We will not vote against your plan, but we cannot retain our self-respect, or hope to continue to demand the respect of our race in this country, by surrendering our rights, and we do not surrender such, one iota. With their present estimate of us and their purpose as expressed in their propositions in the Commission to reduce us to dummies and wards, we affirm it as our conviction that we shall not be able to live in peace with them at present. It is patent to us that neither of us has come to that full growth of manhood in Christ where we are willing to recognize each other as full brothers in Christ and treat each other as such, for one of us is suspicious and the other is unjust. Our rating in Bradstreet or Dun is not attractive, but our rating in love and human character gives us a degree of inspiration. We are weak in numbers and power, but not in spirit and purpose. Concerning us, we may say: 'As unknown, yet well-known; as dying, and behold, we live; as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.'"

Doubtless these colored leaders in the Methodist Episcopal Church have many white brethren in their Church who agree with their views and will join with them in their protest.

Perplexing Difficulties Evident.

Is it not evident that the Joint Commission has had, and does yet have, most perplexing issues with which to deal? Can such issues be settled by the waving of a hand, or the scratch of a pen?

Would it be wise, or best to try to force a mechanical unification of organization in advance of a real unity of Spirit? "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" (Amos iii. 3.)

Is there not danger of creating an injurious irritation of the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church towards that Church and thereby doing it much harm? May not strife be engendered among our Northern brethren that will do their Church much hurt?

May not hurtful contentions be set up in the Church, South, also?

May not American Methodism suffer in all its branches through impatient zeal for unification, which pursues a sentiment without facing fairly the difficulties in the case?

Some have gone so far as to say that if a final agreement is not reached at the meeting in St. Louis, American Methodism will be discredited and the Joint Commission suffer merited reproach. Is such an utterance justified? Can such an extreme utterance serve any good end?

After three meetings of the Commission and many meetings of Committees and Sub-Committees, no more than tentative agreements on some points have been reached, and no agreements at all have been reached on the most vital and perplexing issues. Why should any one demand that a plan be finally and fully agreed upon at the meeting in St. Louis, or the Commission stand discredited and disgraced?

The Commission did not create the difficulties with which it has to deal, nor can the ignoring of these difficulties, nor any effort to remove them by high-pressure methods serve well the cause of unification, nor promote the welfare of American Methodism, nor advance the Kingdom of God in the world.

A Departure from the Original Plan.

Perhaps calm consideration has not prevailed sufficiently with reference to this matter in the past. The original plan of "Unification by reorganization" was framed by a Joint Commission in May, 1911, but it was not given general publicity, it having been agreed that the Commissioners from each Church would submit it to their respective General Conferences. The General Conference of the Church, North, was the first to meet after the plan was framed, but at its session in May, 1912, for some reason, the plan of "Unification by reorganization" was not considered.

The General Conference of the Church, South, which met in 1911 at Oklahoma City, late in the session (two days before adjournment) adopted the plan with an amendment; but this action was taken without debate, or full discussion.

The General Conference of the Church, North, at its session in Saratoga, May, 1916, approved in general terms the plan, but acted without debate.

Pursuant to these actions of the two General Conferences, the Joint Commission was appointed with instructions "to elaborate and perfect" the original plan in accordance with its "basic principles." So eager has been the Commission to find some plan acceptable to all parties, it has departed far from the original plan which it was set to "elaborate and perfect," in framing the tentative plan which has been sent out recently in the published statement of the Secretaries. Nevertheless, after all its efforts, the results thus far achieved are manifestly unacceptable to very many good people in both Churches.

In view of all these facts, judicious people will perceive the difficulties of the case, and counsel that we make haste slowly. There has been quite enough of action without discussion. Haste and high pressure may easily make more division than unity.

Our General Conference in 1914 said, "Unification by reorganization" was to be regarded as "feasible and desirable," and one does not dissent from this judgment when he insists that unity within both these great Churches is even more desirable than their unification by reorganization. Peace and harmony in one's own household is more important than the formation of the best possible partnership with one's neighbor.

It was never more important than now that our people be united and harmonious.

The Great Battle

CITIZENS OF HOMER, LA., SPEAK.

After a mass meeting of more than 500 people recentiy heid in Homer, La., which was addressed by Judge Brooks, of Dallas, Texas, the following resolutions, for which we are indebted to Rev. W. L. Doss., Jr., our pastor at that place, were adopted:

Whereas the history of the liquor business in the United States of America and in other natlons has long shown it to be a great morai, political and economic evll, and

Whereas, the liquor industry and the brewing industry in our country has shown itself so unwiiiing to take such steps as wouid he to the advantage of our Nation in the present world war, and

Whereas, there is a growing sentiment throughout the Natlon demanding the prohibition of this business, and

Whereas, the Congress of the United States has adopted an amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibiting this traffic and has submitted the same to the General Assemblies of the several States of the Union for ratification; therefore be it

Resolved (1), That we cltizens and voters of the Parish of Claiborne, in mass meeting assemhled, do hereby call upon our Representatives and Senators in the General Assembly to use all their influence and power at the next session of our State Legislature for the ratification of this amendment.

Resolved (2), That we do hereby most respectfully cali upon the General Assembiy of our State to take favorable action on this amendment, that our State may not stand in the way of economic progress and of moraiity in the Nation.

Resolved (3), That we call upon our General Assembly to pass such laws creating a dry zone about the cantonment at Beauregard as will put whiskey and other liquors beyond the reach of soldiers in training at that place.

A DOCTRINE THAT SHOULD BE ELIMINATED.

Dear Dr. Meek: On the 304th page of our Dlscipline it is declared of infants: "Though failen in Adam, are born into this world in Christ the Redeemer, heirs of life eternal and subjects of the saving grace of the Holy Spirit," and yet Watson in his Institutes says on page 392: "As to infants, they are not indeed born justified and regenerate." Ralston in his Elements of Divinity, page 58, asks the following questions about infants: "And if at the first moment of their existence they are perfectly innocent and regenerate through Christ, when were they condemned and unregenerate through Adam? Was it before they had an existence? If so, what conception are we to form of a condemned, unregenerate nonentity?" On page 156 he said: "The infaut is not required to beiieve, but if it die in infancy, the Spirit of God can create anew, and fully justify and prepare it for heaven."

So our present doctrine as published in our Discipline is against our standards, and not only is that true, but it is against the Bible. "Behold I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me." Psalms 51:5. And again: "The wicked are estranged from the womb; they go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies."—Psalms 58:3. If they were "born in Christ" as our Discipline asserts, they would hardly go astray from the womh, speaking lies.

Let the false thing be eliminated from our Discipline and all of our literature.

Meridian, Miss.

I make it my constant prayer that God wouid most graciously be pieased to dispose us ali to do justice, to iove mercy, and to demean ourseives with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind, which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion; without a humbie imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation.—George Washington.

TO THE METHODISTS OF LOUISIANA.

Dear Brethren: It seems proper for us to write you regarding things of some import to the whole country under the present circumstances. Last year was a great year to us in the matter of returns from the fruits of our labors in the material reaim; the success that crowned our labors in the spiritual were not to be despised. Great responsibilities were assumed by us as a nation, the greatness of which as a people we have not yet realized. It is to a consideration of some of the necessary work and burdens arising from this assumption by our Government that we call your prayerful attention. Last year was a year of great money-making by our peopie. This we need hardly expect this year. For the next two or three years it will not be a question of money-making but a question of living making.

Since the war of '61-'65 the South has never fed herself or her livestock; our corn crib and smokehouse has been in the West and North. Prohabiy the North and West will raise as great crops in 1918 as in 1917, but, owing to the great burden of transportatlon put upon the railroads by the war, the question of bringing to us the products of the North and West is a large one. During this great conflict upon which we have entered, the object of which is to make the world safe for Christianity, the South ought not to impose the super-burden upon the country to transport its foodstuff, when of aii parts of the country she is best able to feed herself and ought to be able to contribute no small amount to the assistance of our Allies.

We of Louisiana are pre-eminently an agricultural people; farming is our chief industry. We can easiiy raise everything necessary for life of man and beast. Here abllity lmposes obligation. If we can, we ought.

There is nothing as uncertain as the quantity and price of our hitherto chief farm product—cotton. The boll weevll has not been kiiied out nor has he departed. The wise thing for the South to do is to piant sufficient food products with which to feed herself and ali her live stock and have a generous surplus in order to fatten her surplus cattle and hogs for market.

Bear in mind that for the next two or three years it is not a question of makIng money but a questlon of making a living and to keep living and going your Church and her educational institutions.

We must win the war if Christian civilization is to survive. The triumph of the Hun means to set back the hands of time—possibly for centurles!

As much can be done in the fieid of economics as on the field of battle towards that great end. We have made a great contributlon of man power to our country in the thousands of our boys who have gone to the army. This is patriotism of a high type; and we glory in our record; but it takes just as high a type of patriotism at home, in the field of economics, as it does on the battle field, In order that the forces there may be properiy sustained.

So you see that every bushel of grain, and bale of hay, and side of meat, and can of lard, that we fail to produce here take that much from the men who are in the trenches fighting for the preservation of our liberties.

So we caii upon you to fall in with the efforts of the Government and to give each of its suggestions at least a triai. Let the farmer in the alluvial lands give at least the following ratio: cotton, two acres; corn, one. No substitutes counted. The hill farmer: two acres of corn to one of cotton and plant plenty of velvet beans, peas, and Lespedeza. Let your cotton be your surplus crop. The importance of this exhortation is evidenced by the fact that the Government is sending men preachlng the gospel of self-support to each section. Let us not be slow to heed the preaching; for rest assured, if we neglect the warnlng we will be in danger of the JUDGMENT. For should we negiect the raising of the proper amount of food stuff and the roads of the country are loaded to the limit in carrying coal to the coasts for our fleets, and food for our troops and our Aiiies. how can we get it? No matter how much there may be elsewhere, and no matter how much cotton we may have, there is one thlng cotton is not good for and that is a steady diet for the human being.

Food we will have to have if we survive. You can do without new clothes but you cannot do without food. Just as the old negro, who was clothed in rags and was spending ail his money for food stuff. when asked why he dldn't buy some clothes, said, putting one hand upon his back: "This will credit me," and putting the other on his stomach, "This wants cash." You can patch your pants but you can not patch your pantry. So let's see to it that we of Louisiana are at least self-sustaining.

To help win the war we are freeiy giving our boys. Wiii we aiso give our brains? Or shall we just go on in our life-long habit of cotton-production? And we as a people in the South are bound by our agricultural habit. Now, in breaking this habit it takes thought and constant care, as in the breaking of any other. Can and will we rise to the occasion? To this end pray and work also.

Everything depends upon the product of the field. What boots money if there is nothing to buy, if no man offers you anything in exchange for it? What gain is there if you get $175 for a bale of cotton if it buys less corn than your $60 used to buy? Your $150 bale now buys less corn than your $60 bale bought.

The price of cotton has not gone up so much; in fact, it has not kept pace with the price of all other products. When your cotton was twelve cents, your meat was twelve. Now your cotton is thirty cents and your meat thirty-four to forty. Yea, what shall it profit us if we raise all cotton and have no food; and what shall a man get in exchange for his cotton? You can darn your socks but you can't darn your supper.

The Government is not asklng us to produce food for our soidiers or our Allies, it is simply asking the South to feed itself and its live stock—in other words, to be a help and not a hindrance in this great struggle. Surely this request is almost selfish enough to appeal to every one. Will we as a people heed it? It is going to take ali the tonnage of American transportation to carry supplies to the armies in France for the next two or three years, and every ton deflected from this will have its effect in prolonging the war and in hindering the usefulness of the army. Shail we be helpers or hinderers? It is up to us.

Let us awaken to the realization of the great task that is before us. Let us all realize that the possibility of invasion is before us, that the present conditlon of Belgium, Poland and Russia is a possible, nay, a probable, future for us unless we awaken and as a people consecrate ourseives to this great work and gladly welcome hardships and sacrifices in the beginning, and by continual contribution of ourselves, and all our energies, make victory sure.

As a people, beyond the knitting circie we do not know there is a war on us, though our Government has been in it now for nearly a year. Let the efforts we make this farming year lay the foundation of our economic success, and thus crown the efforts of our army and navy with the laureis of victory. Well, say you, have you no messages as to our Church needs and obligations? Yes, but before you can give anything you will have to get it. If you have nothing you can do nothing.

So when we turn our eyes in this direction we are urged to do the things spoken of above. If we have to spend all our cotton money for sustenance of ourselves and our stock then the Church and its calls will have to go unheeded.

There never was a time in ail the history of the Church of Christ that there was as great a cali for her in the world's work; never so definite recognition on the part of the world of its need for those essential things which she alone can suppiy. In the crisis on the world now every human thing upon which we have leaned has failed. Never was there such a lookIng around for something stabie. Not only is the earth being shaken, but also the heavens. Learnlng and might have failed; the effort of the super-man has come to naught: there remains to bear the supreme burden only the common man and his faith in God. Will he measure to his opportunity—will he prove true to his trust? Nothing will stand humanity in stead in this great conflict but faith in the living God. He is trying out the nations. Which shall abide? What is to become of the civilization of earth?

There is no hope for us as a nation except in God. We need not put our trust in our superb navy and its men, nor in the great army that we are equipping and sending to face the foe: for we fight not against flesh and blood only, but against all the powers of darkness. If it were but just human foes, we might combat them successfully with human force; but against us are leagued all the powers of spiritual wickedness, and if these triumph we are doomed to a long night of utter darkness. As we look toward earth we see tottering thrones and devastated countries and humanity wrecked and wretched.

"Sureiy the future looks black enough, yet it holds a hope, a single hope, one and one power only can arrest the descent and save us—that is the Christian Reiigion. Democracy is only a side issue. The paramount issue underlying the issue of democracy, is the reiigion of Jesus Christ, and Him crucified; the bed-rock of civiiization, the source and resource of aii that is worth having in this world that is, and which gives promise in the world to come." Let us look toward heaven and catch the light of God and hear the voice that says "Not by might nor by numbers but by my spirit."

God is in the midst of this great cataclysm that is upon the world. "He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat; O be swift, my soul to answer Him! be jubiiant my feet." With ali our opportunity of doing and being good, we had largely forgotten God and our reiation and responsibilities to Him.

You need not waste time asking, "Why does God ailow this great war to go on?" You can rest assured that He is allowing it, and your question proves that His allowing it carries the answer: To bring us back to the consciousness of God being in the affairs of men. If we wiii not let Him in in the way that He wishes He wiii thrust Himself upon us in a way that is recognizabie by our senses. God prefers to treat us like men, but if

GOD WANTS THE CHILDREN.

God wants the merry, merry boys,
The noisy boys,
The funny boys,
The thoughtless boys—
God wants the boys, with all their joys.

That He as gold may make them pure,
And teach them hardness to endure;
His heroes brave He'd have them be,
Fighting for truth and purity,
God wants the boys.

God wants the merry, merry girls,
The happy girls,
The lovely girls,

JACK'S GOOD NAME.

"And I can't do anything for him—not one single thing." Jack shook his head mournfully as he arrived at this sorrowful conclusion. "I can't go and see him because I haven't got the time. I can't send him fruit and books and things, like well-off folks do when their folks have to go to the hospital, because I haven't got the money. I can't earn a cent more'n mother and the young ones need. No help for Billy from me."

Billy was an orphan boy younger than Jack. He had recently moved into Jack's neighborhood. Going on an errand, he had fallen from a street car and broken his leg.

Jack was office boy in a place which made large demands on his time, and, indeed, on every other thing which might be said to belong with a growing boy. His duties were many, and his master exacting. But it never occurred to Jack to question the reasonableness or otherwise of anything which was required of him. He was nothing more than a good, plodding boy, having very fixed notions on the subject of his duty, which notions were expressed in few words: "I'm going to do the best I can."

There came a day when Jack stood face to face with a hard question. Taking a moment on his way home to run in and see how Billy was getting along, he found him with a cloud over his usually cheerful face.

"What's the matter, Billy?"

"They've been telling me"—Billy shook his head despairingly—"that I won't get well till no telling when, unless I go away from here."

"Whew, Billy!" said Jack, in dismay.

"The folks here are telling me of a real nice place where I could go for twenty-five dollars, where I'd get good treatment and stay as long as I needed. They think that's awfully cheap, but"—the poor Billy sighed wofully—'twenty-five dollars is a lot of money."

"It is that!"

"So I'll be back near you the beginning of the week, and then I'll be with you evenings. And"—hopefully—"I guess I'll get well without any twenty-five dollars."

Jack talked about it with his mother. "I wish the poor boy could go," she said. "It might be the settling of his health for years to come."

"But how can he?" said Jack, in a discouraged tone.

"If it could be paid a dollar at a time," she said, half questioningly. "You might be able to put by a dollar a week for it."

"I don't see how you will spare it, mother."

"We might pinch a little closer."

After a little more talk Jack made his plans.

He went the next morning to his employer and asked if he could advance the twenty-five dollars, deducting a dollar each week from his pay until the amount was made up.

Mr. Strong looked keenly at the boy as with much hesitation he pressed his request, telling of Billy and his needs. "How do I really know you'll work it out?" asked Mr. Strong. "You can't give me any security, can you?"

"No, sir," and Jack dropped his head.

"You might, you know, leave me before the twenty-five weeks were up."

"I'd promise not to," said Jack earnestly; "but I haven't a thing to give you for security."

Mr. Strong's manner changed as he went on: "Your promise will be enough. I'd take your word, Jack, for more than twenty-five dollars. You have worked for me a good while and I know what you are. Your good name makes your promise all the security I want." As Jack was turning away, his face beaming with gratification at the kind words, Mr. Strong added: "I'll speak more about it tomorrow."

"If—if"—Jack strove to stammer out his thanks—"if there's a thing more about the place that I can do that—I don't do, I'd be glad, sir—"

"There isn't," said Mr. Strong kindly. "You are honest and faithful in everything. Such a reputation is a valuable thing to start on in life."

Mr. Strong, on going home that evening, spoke to his grown-up daughter:

"Bertha, haven't you something to do with some of these fresh-air businesses?"

"Yes, father; you have given me money for them."

"Where they send poor little lads into the country and feed them up and brace them up and return them as good as new?"

"Exactly that kind of thing," said Bertha, smiling.

"Well, I have a boy for you—one for whom I want a top seat."

So Billy went out to one of the places provided by some of the Master's faithful who strive to follow in His footsteps in showing lovingkindness to His little ones. Jack's heart gave a great bound when he learned that Miss Bertha Strong was to see to Billy's outing, for surely it must be something better than could be afforded by any one else. Looking into his pay envelope at the end of the week, he turned back with it to Mr. Strong. "You have given a dollar too much, sir. There's the expense for Billy, you remember."

"I remember; but that goes on the account of your good name. There's nothing more to pay. And there will be a vacancy in the office next door by the time Billy comes back; if he is your kind of boy, he can have the place."—Youth's Companion.

RESOLUTIONS ON UNIFICATION.

Whereas, the Joint Commission on Unification has recently given out a statement of the present status of the movement for the unification of American Methodism, showing agreement upon almost all points involved, and indicating encouraging progress toward a sane and wholesome solution of the Negro question, which is the most difficult problem before the Commission;

Be it Resolved by the Methodist Preachers' Meeting of Shreveport, Louisiana Conference, that we rejoice in the progress made by the Joint Commission and commend its members for the frankness with which each issue has been met and discussed and the earnest and statesmanlike efforts made by them to carry out the spirit of the instructions of the two General Conferences and secure unification upon a basis fair and honorable for all concerned.

Resolved (2), That we affirm our hearty approval of the movement to secure unification, upon a proper basis, of the great body of Methodist people and to overcome the unfortunate loss and friction and waste growing out of a divided Methodism.

Resolved (3), That while we believe that the plans of the Commission should be the subject of full and frank discussion in reference to every question involved, so that unification, when adopted by the two Churches shall be genuine and whole-hearted, we would most earnestly discourage any harsh and unbrotherly spirit in the consideration of the matters at issue.

Resolved (4), That believing that the most helpful element in promoting the movement up to its present development has been the volume of prayer that has gone up from all sections of both Churches and that persistent prayer will lead to a solution of all the difficulties in the way, we call upon all the membership of our Church to continue in prayer to this end, and suggest that Wednesday, April 10, the date of the final meeting of the Commission, be observed throughout our Church as a day of special prayer that American Methodism may be united both in spiritual fellowship and confidence, and in such organized form as shall promote the advancement of the Kingdom.

The above resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Shreveport Methodist Ministerial Association on March 20, 1918.

Lord Bacon says: "Let not a man trust his victory over his nature too far; for nature will be buried a great time, and yet revive upon the temptation." Furthermore, the mere entertainment of a sound morality in one's thought will not be enough to keep nature dormant. Only a passion for righteousness—a profound spiritual attachment to God—can do that.

secularism is to be true to Christ. Far more important is it for them to be truly and deeply spiritual than it is to have great numbers, large financial resources, or world-wide dominion. The huge ecclesiasticisms have of all Church organizations usually been the ones most lacking in vital religious power. When John Wesley said, "I look upon the world as my parish," he had no thought of organizing a Church that should embrace the globe. The truth is, it took much constraining, both divine and human, to induce him to set up any Church at all. His passion was to evangelize the world, not to ecclesiasticize and religiously govern it. The Romish pattern made no appeal to him.

No Church can afford to do shoddy work. If it maintains schools, they should be Christian in fact, not merely in name. If it projects missions, they should propagate a genuine Christianity, and not simply extend the reach of a material civilization. If it organizes charities, along with ministries to the body should go the richer ministry of healing to sin-stricken souls. And from its pulpits should go forth not deliverances for intellectual display, but messages accompanied by the Holy Ghost, gripping the consciences and changing the lives of men.

It will doubtless be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the Judgment than for the Church which in this time of high privilege proves unfaithful to her Lord and spots her garments by a dalliance with the world.

SOME OBSERVATIONS ANENT UNIFICATION.

1. Nothing could be more ridiculous than the affirmation, sometimes heard, that the General Conference has spoken and that no one has a right to oppose Unification. What the last General Conference did was to express the view that Unification according to the basic principles contained in the Plan recommended by the original Joint Commission was feasible and desirable, making at the same time provision to negotiate further concerning the matter. It was not in the power of the General Conference to commit THE CHURCH to anything in the way of a plan of Unification, because that question is constitutional from top to bottom; nor could twenty General Conferences acting alone do so. All such questions are wide open until ratified by three-fourths of the members of the Annual Conferences. If the last General Conference had settled the question, the one soon to meet in Atlanta would have no alternative but to accept the pending plan. This consideration alone shows how utterly silly is the twaddle about the issue not being an open one. We feel profoundly sorry for any brother whose thinking is so confused that he does not know better than that. Any Southern Methodist now has a perfect right to oppose Unification if he wishes to do so, and he would still have that right even if the approaching session of the General Conference should endorse the bunglesome and ruinous scheme that now holds the stage. Until a General Conference shall have adopted some definite and complete plan by a two-thirds vote and three-fourths of the members of the Annual Conferences shall have concurred in that action, the whole project is wide open for discussion, and may with perfect propriety be combated by any member of the Church whose convictions are against it. And as for our part, while we agreed to accept the Oklahoma City Plan, and stand ready to make good that pledge, we expect to fight the present proposal to disintegrate and absorb Southern Methodism to the last extremity, and if God permits us to live, nothing shall swerve us by one hair's breadth from this purpose.

2. This is no time for vague and indefinite resolutions about favoring union on "a proper basis." The negotiations have passed that stage. If brethren favor a union with the Negroes in the General Conference, on practically all the General Boards, on the Supreme Bench of the Church, and with a vote on constitutional questions (or possibly a lawsuit to segregate them in any respect); with the Church, South, literally chopped to pieces in the very heart of its territory, with a General Conference and a Judicial Council dominated overwhelmingly by the Northern Methodists, with Regional Conferences made up of delegates to the General Conferences from certain areas, meeting at the same time and place as the General Conference; with an oligarchy of some three-score men dictating in all the affairs of its Regional Jurisdiction, and with all the property now held by the Southern Church deeded to this Northern and Negro dominated Church, they should plainly and unequivically say so, and let the Southern Methodists of this section clearly see for what they stand. There should be no indulging in verbal camouflage now. The effect of such resolutions, however artfully they may be worded, is to give support to the things that we have catalogued above, and the manly thing to do if one is for them is openly to champion them.

3. We desire to say that, no matter what the Commissioners may do at the St. Louis meeting, we do not believe that this cumbersome and (to the Church, South.) disastrous form of union can be put across. We are confident that it cannot, because the masses of our Southern Methodist people are against it. The pro-Vanderbilt, liberal-theology, and Northern-influenced elements in the Church may make a good deal of noise here and there; but when the loyal hosts of the Southern Church shall have been heard from, there is, in our opinion, no doubt what their verdict will be. We saw a letter from a distinguished South Carolina preacher, who goes about a great deal, a few days ago, in which he said that the overwhelming majority of the people of that State do not want union along the suggested lines. Dr. Caspar S. Wright, one of the best known Methodist ministers in Texas, thus spoke in the Texas Christian Advocate of March 21: "This scheme will never be accepted by the rank and file of our preachers and people, and it is passing strange that a majority of the Southern Commissioners have accepted it even 'tentatively.'" Dr. E. C. Moore, of Montgomery, Ala., writing in a recent issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate, declared that 90 per cent of the people are against it. In our opinion, that estimate is not excessive as to the people in Mississippi. As is well known, this question was to the fore in the election of delegates to the General Conference in this section, and more than three-fourths of them are opposed to union except on a safe and conservative basis, such as the Oklahoma City Plan, for instance. Organic union is far weaker with the laity than it is with the preachers.

4. We trust that our people will henceforth pay no attention to the customary exhortations about praying FOR union. We have had a surfeit of that kind of pious parading. Some one may ask, Do you not believe in prayer? To be sure, we do; but not in that kind of praying. The proper thing to do is to pray that the Lord's will may be done in the matter, whatever it may be. It is akin to sacrilege when a great and complicated issue, about which wise and good men are divided, is at stake, for human beings to attempt to act in the place of God Almighty in determining with absolute certainty what ought to be done, and then to set about importuning him to do it. No truly devout person who has a proper conception of his relation to God and the nature of prayer wants to engage in any such praying as that.

But what about the wastage of men and money? Could God favor that? Setting up organic union is not the only way to stop needless overlapping. We have already a Federal Council of Methodism, representative of the two Churches, which has been constituted for that very purpose. The truth is, however, this talk about wastage has been terribly exaggerated. It does not necessarily follow because we have a church in the Northwest, or because the Northern Methodists have a church in the South, that there is no need for these churches, though that is the way the thing is generally represented and harped upon. As a distinguished minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church said to us not long since, many of these churches would continue to be needed and used even if Unification should come. Are we under no obligations in the discussion of this question to state the facts correctly and keep within the bounds of truth?

Henry H. Ahrens, recently connected with the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, in Washington, and who has accepted the position of Publicity Manager of the Centenary celebration of American Methodist Missions, arrived in New Orleans from Memphis on Friday, March 22. In the Tennessee city he attended the great committee meeting of 100 laymen which planned for the coming missionary work.

Mr. Ahrens formerly was with the old New Orleans Picayune and later on the staff of The Times-Picayune, and has many friends in this city. He was given a fine welcome on his return Friday.

Mr. Ahrens characterled the meeting at Memphis as one of the history-making events in the annals of the Methodist Church, South, where $35,000,000 was placed as a minimum figure to be raised in the next five years for foreign and home missions, church extension, and war work. Some members of the committee said they believed $35,000,000 was too small a sum to ask of Southern Methodists to carry on the great enterprises in view. Those who had made a careful survey of the field asked for only $18,000,000, but on closer study the larger amount was decided on.

Prominent men from the Methodist Church in Canada, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Southern Presbyterian Church in the United States, and well known members of the Methodist Episcopal Church attended the conference.—The Times-Picayune.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The annual meeting of our General Board of Church Extension will be held in Atlanta, Ga., April 30 to May 1.

Do not forget to take an offering for the Louisiana Orphanage next Sunday. This is a matter of much importance.

Rev. G. P. McKeown, of Edwards, Miss., remembers us with two subscriptions, and in his business letter says: "Our work is progressing nicely."

Rev. E. C. Driskell, of Greenwood Springs, Miss., gives us 2 names for our mailing files, and thus remarks: "My work is moving on well. I expect to send you other subscriptions soon." Thank you, Brother Driskell.

Rev. W. J. Wood, who is in his third year on the Winona (Miss.) Circuit, reports that his work is making headway, and that his people are continuing to treat him royally, among other things often helping to replenish his pantry.

Rev. H. B. Vandenburg, of Melville, La., has, we regret to state, recently had an attack of la grippe, which kept him indoors for two weeks. He is now, however, again able to meet his appointments. We are indebted to Brother Vandenburg for two subscriptions to the Advocate.

Rev. C. E. Downer, of Petal, Miss., March 21, writes: "We have a revival meeting in progress, which will probably continue through Easter Sunday. Rev. J. S. Purcell, of Crystal Springs, Miss., is doing the preaching. Our work in general is moving along well and the prospect for a good year is encouraging."

Rev. J. H. Ingram, our stirring pastor at Evansville, Miss., is greatly delighted with his present field. He declares that he is serving some of the best people in the world—an affirmation that the Editor, who has tarried thereabout, is not inclined to dispute. Evansville has, we are pleased to note, developed into a half-station.

Under date of March 17, our esteemed and longtime friend, Rev. D. L. Cogdell, writes us as follows from Corinth, Miss.: "I have had a trying time of late, having had la grippe nearly all the winter. I am up now, but do not feel as well as I did." We trust that this worthy veteran will soon be quite himself again.

Rev. L. G. Lord, the promising young pastor of our North Main Street Church at Water Valley, Miss., sends us a list of 8 subscribers, 5 of them being new. He says: "This lacks 2 of being my allotment of new subscriptions, but I feel sure that I have not yet reached the limit. All the indications point to better and greater things in this field."

Rev. J. B. King writes: "On account of the failure of my health, I had to give up my work at Florence, Miss., and Mrs. King, my son, and myself are in the sanitarium at Magee, Miss., for treatment." We are sorry to learn of the illness of Brother King and his loved ones, and we pray that their physical afflictions will soon be over.

We make grateful acknowledgment to Rev. C. H. Stralt, of Johns, Miss., for a fine list of 9 subscriptions to the Advocate, and he states that he still expects to send others. Referring to his charge, he says: "Everything is moving along all right. Brother Dan Kelly will preach for us at the Shiloh Camp Ground the first and second Sundays in September."

Writing from Collins, Miss., Rev. R. T. Pickett says: "Our work is starting off much better with improved weather. We believe that the Williamsburg charge, is destined soon to rank with our best circuits. Among other advancements, the pastor's salary has been increased." Brother Pickett's letter brought us 4 subscriptions, for which we are grateful to him.

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon, Miss., Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference, writes: "I have received from Rev. T. J. Haltacre, of Gunnison, Miss., a check to cover the educational assessment on his charge, and also a check from Rev. C. A. Parks, of Ackerman, Miss., to be applied to the same cause." We are happy to see such reports coming in early.

From Gridley, Butler County, California, Brother C. W. Huff sends us a remittance to renew his subscription. He speaks in appreciative terms of the Advocate, affirming his agreement with it touching the question of Unification. He says: "I have enjoyed reading Dr. S. A. Steel's letters very much and also 'The Open Letters' of Rev. J. W. Ramsey. I hope that these brethren will write often for your paper."

Brother H. H. Ahrens, who has been selected as Publicity Agent of the Centenary Missionary Campaign, was a pleasant caller at our office Friday of last week. He came to New Orleans from Memphis, Tenn., where he had been attending the meeting held there in the interest of this movement. Brother Ahrens informed us that Rev. N. E. Joyner and Brother A. M. Mayo, of Lake Charles, La., were among those present at the conference in the Bluff City.

From a letter from Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss., we extract the following: "I am serving a fine people here. Everything points to success in the Master's name. You may state in the Advocate that I have a son in the 27th Company, Field Artillery, which is now stationed at Ft. Greble, R. I., but which is expected to be moved to France soon. My son is a sergeant in this Company." We regret that Brother Armour did not give us the name of the loved one who is with the colors.

Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Sardis (Miss.) District, writes: "We have closed a great first quarter, the best since I have been on the district. Last year all our charges increased the assessments for their pastors except two, and this year also there will be advances in all of them except possibly one or two. Some have made increases as large as $300, and some have gone up $200. The entire district will show an aggregate increase of about $3750. Everything is moving along well."

Rev. J. R. Murff, of the Iuka (Miss.) Circuit, writes hopefully of his work, though he has been much hindered in getting about among the people by the inclement weather and the loss of his horse. He is now, however, active in his "loved employ." Brother Murff has our thanks for 5 new subscriptions, which he states have come from a single church; and he says that he yet has five other churches to canvass. We feel sure that he is making no mistake in trying to place a Church paper in the homes of his people. The Advocate owes much to the rural pastors in its territory.

We are in receipt of the following note: "I desire to call attention to a mistake in a memoir appearing in last week's issue of the Advocate. Mrs. W. S. Smith was the daughter of Mr. A. J. and L. H. Sullivan, instead of 'A. J. and L. H. Williams.' She was a sister of Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of the Mississippi Conference.—M. S. Smith." We regret this error, and are glad to make this correction. It is a matter of importance in all copy where the names of persons are given to see that they are plainly and unmistakably written."

Rev. W. Fred Long sends us the following notice: "The State Sunday School Convention will be held at Meridian, Miss., April 2 and 3. Some of the leading specialists of America will have parts in the exercises. Dr. W. H. Frazer, of Belhaven College, will conduct the Bible periods. Mr. W. C. Pearce, international Adult Bible Class Superintendent; Mrs. M. J. Baldwin, Elementary Superintendent; Mr. Clarence M. Dannelly, of Montgomery, Ala.; Mr. Van Carter of New Orleans, and Prof. T. W. Shannon will be among the outside speakers. Attention will be given the Red Cross work, the Liberty Loan, and War Saving Stamps—in fact, to all war agencies."

A correspondent sends us this note: "Mrs. T. E. Marshall, after a brief attack of pneumonia, died in Gordonsville, Tenn., on Feb. 24, 1918. She is survived by her husband, Mr. T. E. Marshall, two sons —Major B. J. Marshall of the 48th Infantry, United States Army, and Rev. T. E. Marshall, Jr., of Gordonsville, Tenn.; and one daughter, Miss Bessie Marshall. As her life had been quiet and uneventful, so her going was peaceful and serene. She passed away calmly trusting in the Hand that had led her all through life's journey to conduct her safely home." We extend sympathy to the bereaved loved ones, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

Dr. H. B. Carre, formerly a professor in the Vanderbilt School of Religion, but who is soon to sail for France where he will engage in Y. M. C. A. work, spent the latter part of last week and the first part of this week in New Orleans visiting relatives. A reception complimentary to Dr. Carre was given by his mother, Mrs. W. W. Carre, at the residence of Mr. D. Beach Carre last Saturday afternoon, which was attended by a large number of Dr. Carre's personal friends and many of the Methodists of the Crescent City. On Sunday at 11 o'clock Dr. Carre occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist Church and delivered a suggestive sermon to a great congregation, many of whom at the close of the service shook his hand, bidding him good-by and assuring him of their interest and prayers as he goes across the Atlantic to take up his new duties.

Rev. Earl B. Moll, who is a student at Centenary College, Shreveport, La. (having been there since 1915), and who is a licensed preacher in our Church, would be pleased to assist in revival meetings this summer. He has already made several engagements for July and August, but he yet has open practically the entire month of June. Brother Moll has had considerable experience in evangelistic work, having been associated with Rev. R. A. Bozeman a part of the time in 1917, and having also conducted successful revival campaigns when laboring alone. He refers any one who would like to know something of his work to Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., Donaldsonville, La.; Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, Greenwood, La., and Rev. J. C. Rousseau, New Orleans, La. Any of the brethren desiring the services of Brother Moll should write him at once, addressing him at Centenary College.

A correspondent [illegible] us of the marriage in the Methodist Church at Mt. Olive, Miss., on Monday evening, March 18, of Miss Willie Bobbie Cottrell, and Mr. R. J. Turner, of Wills Point, Texas, Rev. T. P. Cottrell, the father of the bride, officiating. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and there was a large attendance. Miss Josie Cottrell, a sister of the bride, sang, "I love you truly," being accompanied on the piano by Miss Sara Lou Rawls, who also played the wedding march. The groom is a successful merchant at Winnsboro and is a young man of excellent attainments and high character, being a steward and the Sunday school superintendent of the congregation with which he is connected. The bride is possessed of many graces and accomplishments and has a large circle of friends in South Mississippi. The happy couple left the next day after the wedding for San Antonio, Texas, where Mrs. Turner will remain, while her husband is at Camp Travis. The Advocate extends congratulations.

TO THE METHODISTS OF MISSISSIPPI.

During the months of December and January, we had in the Home an epidemic of measles, pneumonia and whooping cough. Owing to the whooping cough, the local hospitals would not take our children. This required us to have trained nurses in our own building. During January and February, the unprecedented cold weather, with the sickness, required fire all day and night. This made heavy drafts on our fuel supply and we ran short. With a car of coal "somewhere on the road," we were forced into the local market, and to pay local prices. These two items made heavy drains on our finances. These two bad months prevented many churches and Sunday schools from observing "Orphans' Home Day," and our receipts fell short at least forty per cent. In view of these two facts, it would help us very much if you would take a special offering for our Home on Easter Sunday. Can you do this?

Yours in the work,
B. F. LEWIS,
Superintendent.

Our Advocate Campaign.

FROM OUR WORKERS.

Rev. W. N. Dodds, of Verona, Miss., gives us 20 subscriptions, and in his letter says: "Of these 13 are new. My apportionment was 7. So you see we have 'gone over the top.' I think I can send you others later." This is a fine record.

Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss., writes: "I am sending you 12 more subscriptions, making 24 that I have given you—16 of them new. The number assigned me by the district stewards was 9; but I do not expect to stop yet." Hurrah for the Aberdeen District!

Brother F. A. Howell, of Durant, Miss., forwards us 6 names, and says: "I hope to send in new names when I look after renewals in April." The Advocate has no more faithful friend than this worthy layman who takes care of its interests in his community every year.

Miss Mollie Higginbotham, our unfailing friend at Mer Rouge, La., writes: "Please find enclosed 7 new and 16 renewal subscriptions to the dear old Advocate, with a check to correspond." We do not need to say that we are grateful for this fine work in behalf of the Conference organ.

Along with 2 additional subscriptions, Rev. C. T. Floyd, of Holcomb, Miss., sends us the following message: "We have been doing our best to put the paper in all our homes. Our allotment was 9, and we have given you 33 new subscriptions up to this date. I hope to send more later." Brother Holcomb has, indeed, wrought well.

Rev. W. R. Goudelock, of Acona, Miss., favors us with 6 names for our mailing files. He says: "This field was very closely worked by a lady member of our church last December. Three-fourths of the Methodist homes in this charge are visited by the New Orleans Christian Advocate." We wonder if there are many communities in Mississippi that can match this showing.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

The following friends, whose kindness has not been elsewhere mentioned, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. M. L. Ward, Ratliff, Miss., 7; Rev. W. W. Hartsfield, Caledonia, Miss., 8; Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, Fernwood, Miss., 6; Rev. R. H. Clegg, Harperville, Miss., 4; Rev. G. C. Gregory, Ashland, Miss., 3; Rev. J. G. Sloane, Haynesville, La., 3; Rev. James L. Sells, Wiggins, Miss., 2; Rev. J. A. Patterson, Vaiden, Miss., 4; Rev. J. F. Campbell, Benton, Miss., 4; Rev. W. J. Dawson, Woodville, Miss., 2; Rev. C. L. Oakes, Ebenezer, Miss., 4; Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, Athens, La., 2; Rev. A. F. Moore, Fulton, Miss., 4; Brother B. F. Goza, Magnolia, Miss., 13; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Bayou Chicot, La., 2; Rev. J. H. Ingram, Evansville, Miss., 8; Rev. A. M. Bennett, Tyro, Miss., 3; Rev. W. R. Williams, Buena Vista, Miss., 3; Rev. J. L. Lay, Calhoun, La., 2.

Grandma Used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mrs. EMILY ROOK was born in Tennessee. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Claitor, moved to Mississippi during her childhood days. She joined the Methodist Church at the age of 13 years, and was a consecrated and faithful member until her death, which occurred at her granddaughter's (Mrs. Minnie Rone) at 10:45 a.m., on March 8, 1918. She reached the ripe age of about 79 years. She was the mother of four children—3 girls and 1 boy; two of whom, with a host of grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and numerous relatives and friends, mourn their loss. Our loss is her gain. Why should we not be submissive to our great Father who doeth all things well? She was "a mother" to all, and was loved by all who knew her. Her friends were almost without number. Her two most cherished songs were, "The Life-Boat," and "Just Over in the Glory Land," which she sang and helped to sing only just the day before she died. Her remains were laid to rest in the Tabernacle Cemetery at 3 p. m., on March 9, 1918, Rev. Mr. O'Bryant officiating. May God's richest blessings abound with us all!

ONE WHO KNEW HER.

Mrs. MARY FANNIE BROWN (nee Moncrieff) was born on Oct. 22, 1871, near Simsboro, La., and died at her home, near Logansport, on Feb. 19, 1918. Her father, George W. Moncrieff, was a local preacher. She was converted in early childhood and joined the Methodist Church at the age of fourteen, under the ministry of that saintly father in Israel, Rev. John A. Miller. Reared in an atmosphere of high ideals, she developed those traits of character that make one proficient in service to others. Sister Brown was a faithful wife, a devoted mother and a loyal friend. One of her neighbors bears this testimony concerning her, "That she was a Christian, her life testified. She was humble, and God-fearing, but joyful in the love of Christ." In her home-going, the community has lost a helpful neighbor, and the church a faithful member. Besides the bereaved husband, there are eight motherless children, her mother, and several brothers and sisters to mourn her departure. A large concourse of people attended the funeral service at Longstreet, where the interment took place. She was needed much here, but the Master came and called her away. And now hearts beat faster, and through tear-dimmed eyes loved ones behold the City of God. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Her pastor,

WM. SCHUHLE.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas we stand in the shadow of a great sorrow and are deeply conscious of an inestimable loss in the sudden death of our beloved friend and brother, E. R. Ballard; and

Whereas for the greater part of his stay among us he had served as a member of the Official Board of his church, being the chairman of the Board at the time of his death; and

Whereas he commanded the confidence and love of his brethren and was highly esteemed by all who knew him; and

Whereas by his life of purity and service and constant devotion to the great interests of the Church he had been an inspiration to the community; therefore, be it

Resolved (1), That the members of Moore Memorial Methodist Church have, in the passing away of Brother Ballard, lost a faithful co-laborer; that his noble example, cheerful service and wise counsel will be sadly missed, while the hand that wrought so well will be richly rewarded in due season.

Resolved (2), That the Quarterly Conference Board has sustained a great loss, in that death has come and taken away one of its most faithful and useful members; that his relations with us were at all times both pleasant and profitable.

Resolved (3), That we, the Official Board, in Quarterly Conference assembled at Winona, on March 19, 1918, hereby extend our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved family and commend them to the loving care of God our Father.

Resolved (4), That these resolutions be spread on the Quarterly Conference Minutes, that a copy be sent to the Winona Times and the New Orleans Christian Advocate, respectively, for publication, and that a copy be mailed to the bereaved family.

Signed: L. M. Lipscomb, presiding elder; W. N. Duncan, pastor; R. C. West, secretary.

FROM BROTHER BOWMAN.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am enclosing you the second round of quarterly conferences for the Lafayette District, Louisiana Annual Conference. I have made my first round, except in the French mission section, where I will be this week. There is every indication of good, forward work. I find the district in most excellent shape, and every man is at his post, faithfully discharging his duty. I have a fine body of men, both laymen and preachers, and, while I am a stranger to most of them, I have been made to feel at home. I could say good things for each of the men. All are worthy of mention. Places that have been deemed problematic seem to be adjusting themselves under the leadership of the pastors. All stand in high favor with their people. Not a complaint has reached me, so far. May it so continue!

Well, the General Conference will soon meet, and I do not care how soon—so that some ghosts may be laid to rest. If there had been anything like the effort to spiritualizing Methodism as there has been to bring about so-called unification, none can tell how much greater work for the kingdom would have been accomplished. But this upheavel is a part of the program of the age. Unrest and opposition to things that be, is to be seen in every avenue of life. The whole world is in a mighty upheaval at the present time; but I have a strong faith that God's purposes will be wrought out and that his kingdom will advance, though it will be through the dynamics of the Holy Spirit rather than through the mechanical forces of mere man.

Now, Doctor, I want you to come to the Lafayette District Conference in Abbeville, May 27-30.

H. W. BOWMAN, P. E.

Lafayette, La., March 16, 1918.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slighest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated hy the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid disease, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below hy signing your name. Clip and mail to the Shivar Spring,
Box 17-D, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

TO LOUISIANA METHODISTS.

we insist He will treat us like mules. So He said and now He is doing it. The most of the race had so far lost its spiritual sense that only force and the destruction of physical things could speak a language that we could understand.

"He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He has loosed the fateful lightening of His terrible swift sword."

This is true beyond doubt.

As a nation there are dark days before us—days of toil, days of suffering, days of tears, days when we would say like him of old: "Behold I go forward, hut He is not there: hackward, hut I cannot percelve Him; on the left hand, where He doth work, but I cannot behold Him; He hideth Himself on the right hand that I cannot see him." God grant, that when they come, there also may arise in us a great consciousness of the fact that though we may not know where and why God is, He knows where, and how we are, and that we may volce with him of old our faith in the words: "But He knoweth the way that I take; when He hath tried me I shall come forth as gold."

THE PRESIDING ELDERS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

BIENVILLE, LA.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am pleased to send you a few dots from the Bienville charge. As you will note in the Minutes of the last Conference, this is my first year on this charge. We landed here on Nov. 24, which was, if you remember, a very cold and disagreeable day. In fact, it was the beginning of the first bad spell of weather that we had during the winter. We were met at the train by one of the stewards of the charge and carried up to the parsonage, where we found a good fire and a pantry full of good things to eat. I shall never forget how kind and good the people were, and have been since. It causes me to pause and ask myself sometimes, if we as ministers deserve such good treatment when we do so little for the uplift of humanity. It makes me feel very humhle indeed when I realize how good God ls to me, and yet in turn render so little to him. Well, I wlsh to say a few things concerning my work. I have had the pleasure of preaching at all the points on this work, and at some points several times. I find a splendld class of people on the charge—people who seem to respond to the Gospel truth. My stewards are men of fine business ahility, anxious to do the thing that is right. I conceive that the work is moving upward. Our Sunday school interest is growing rapidly. I have organized at some of my churches a Missionary Committee. This work I think is very important, for it relleves the pastor of that much labor, and perhaps embarrassment, while it hrings the Committee into touch with the real church work. I wish to say that I am pushing the claims of the Advocate this week. I already have several new suhscribers, and expect to get more. So you may expect from this charge, in the next few days, a nice list of names. I will not continue to weary you at this time, for I might desire to wrlte again. So with many hlessings to you for the splendid paper you are giving us, and asking that you remember me and my people in your prayers,

I am yours in the work,
C. B. POWELL, P. C.

THINGS SUGGESTIVE.

Dear Doctor: Well, now, why should I be so personal, as this ls not lntended either for the Botany Bay collection or for your private drawer, and why shouldn't I be less formal (a'la Sam Steel) and just say, untltled, "Meek?" How will that do for an introduction?

I was sitting at my desk a few days ago, and suddenly there came a humming—simply that and nothing more, a humming at my aural door. He (or possihly she) hummed a tune I'd heard before; then I recalled that some "smart Aleck" had said that one swallow didn't make a summer, nelther should one mosquito; hut the whole transactlon recalled the "Haec fabula Docet," and the Gnat on the hull's horn, as per Aesop. With one broad swipe that "war song ceased"—shoo fly, don't bother me. And that recall of the old fahle writer remlnded me of other days when Sam and I were boys together (he, however, the more sedate and the elder), and that also leads me to say to my old friend (he wrote me a card a short time since which I carrled around like a hoy does his first pocket-knife, and what he said on that card was pleasant reading and to the point), lf he's not too much interested ln that war garden, we'd like to have some more of his spice in the columns of the Advocate. By the way, I find myself with an embryo-garden—not on the roof, but close by the side of the Annex; and it looks like it's going to give us some greens and spuds and such like. Mr. Knapp made us a visit a few days ago and made a speech to our farmers which produced both thought and laughter. He said a fellow could piece his shirt, darn his coat and mend hls pants, but he couldn't plece his breakfast, darn his dinner, nor mend his supper. A neighbor said you can change that clause about the dinner if things keep going along conservation lines.

The culinary department at this house has fallen in with all the days: wheatless, meatless, sweetless and verging into eatless—still my avoirdupoise keeps time to the menu. As to the heatless part, that was the time that tried our energies. Three harrels a week, by order, and to stand by to see that the other fellow didn't get your load of coal—that was pretty strenuous.

With Brother J. Tillery Lewis' permission, I'd add one more feature to the preacher's calling. All he has said is to the polnt, and is well said; hut my addendum is that he should literally be the servant of all. I am confident this thought would not have escaped him had he received as many and various kinds of letters as I did the week before his writing. Beginning with February 28 and ending with March 7, there lay on my desk slx letters calling for attention to all kinds of projects, from helping to buy a farm to renting a house. A wldow in Texas wanted to keep out of hands of the land agent, and therefore wrote; from far off Iowa one seeking a milder climate desired to know of the hills around Vicksburg and the health of the delta. Another wished to secure my decision between houses which are for rent; from Virginia came a request for a certain date, and, still another brother had a project and requested my ald and "trenchant pen"—ain't that flattering to my ego? And I must not forget that appeal to hasten to a wedding march for an event close at hand, and, in addition to these, further instructlons from Washington, D. C., have come from Mr. Hoover and others with their "therefores." So in despair I said, Who is equal to these things?

Some time back I noticed that General Pershing said that he desired that every American soldier should be allowed a certaln amount of initiatlve and individuality whlch had always characterized the boys under the Stars and Stripes, and reports from the front suggest that the dough boys are making good. No written instructions if you please—hut be ye men.

Freckles

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them

FROM THE FIELD SECRETARY.

To one who has never had the delightful privilege of heing in coast country a first trip is indeed a delight. The beautiful roads and comfortahle homes, the orchards of pecans and oranges, and the general appearances of thrift, all inspire one with a desire to stay. No wonder those Europeans looked for "a Fountain of Youth" after they had visited the coast country.

My trip along the coast through the Seashore District was delightful, indeed. At each appointment the people and preacher were so kind and thoughtful and gave me such a good hearing.

Two Teacher Training classes and one individual student were started. I was so glad to find that they were all realizing their need of more and hetter training. Six Wesley Bihle classes were organized, two Cradle Rolls, and two Home Departments. There were others who half-way promised some of these, and it would not be surprising to me to hear that they had succeeded in putting in one or more in several of the works visited.

The Young Men's Bible Class at Shubuta has ordered "Japan, the Key to the East." They are going to study it for the next quarter. Quite a number of the Sunday schools are discussing the taking of this work for one quarter and many have bought books to read.

I attended the Wesley Bible Class Federation at Mansfield and enjoyed the fine fellowship and inspiration of this great movement. It was the finest body of Sunday school workers I have had the privilege of seeing brought together. To my mind, it was a great meeting.

I have just been with Dr. Hunt (at Montrose) in the Mississippi Conference Training School. He has a fine class in teacher-training which will get the Blue Seal Diploma this Commencement, and another class which will get the incomplete diploma. Two young ladies definitely decided for Christ in the last service there. I thank God and take courage.

Children's Day will soon he here. I was told that the programs had gone to the press, and, unless unforeseen delays occur, they will he off the press and mailed out in plenty of time for the observance of the day on time. May God make the day a blessing to each Sunday school!

Pray for me.

Joint Field Secretary.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

Why I Believe in Nuxated Iron

As a Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder

By E. Sauer, M. D.

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron. It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; Physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigncur Nannini, a prominent Clergyman, rcecommends it to all. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor dep't.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says there are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood builder, but do not know what to take. In his opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Note:—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, and other prominent people with such surprising results and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

SAYS LEMON JUICE WILL REMOVE FRECKLES

Girls, Make this Cheap Beauty Lotion to Clear and Whiten your Skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a hottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion heautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER!

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents huys a large hottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and does not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your hones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

HALF SICK, HALF WELL

A Condition That Will Not Improve Upon Itself.

In the Spring the depressing condition that many call Spring fever often runs through families and neighborhoods.

This indefinite, hard-to-describe state of poor health probably means that you are thin-blooded and anemic. Exhausted thin blood gets thinner, low vitality falls lower, poor appetite becomes poorer. Then the thoroughly exhausted system can no longer resist, and on comes the prostrating illness or serious disease.

Treat the half-sick, Spring-tired condition with that splendid course of medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla, to fortify the whole body; Peptiron, to Ironize and make rich red blood; Hood's Pills to rouse the liver to its regular daily duties,—and the half-well revives to perfect health. Each medicine is valuable in itself but is trebly so when used in this combination.

If Back Hurts Use Salts for Kidneys

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you —Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

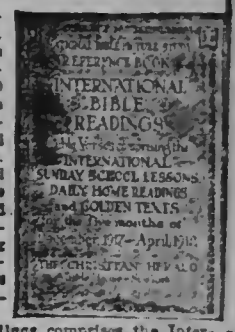
DEAR FRIENDS:—Let me tell you about my sad misfortune. I am a poor crippled boy, fell and hurt my side and back when I was a little boy out hunting; went to bed and never got up. I have been down in bed 19 years, and it seems so bad to be so I can't walk to go anywhere. I want an automobile so I can be put out in it and taken out; think it would help me. I am going to try to sell enough Deep River Grit Whetstones to get me an automobile. They are very fine and beautiful stones and put the sharpest edge on knives and tools. Kind friend, just think of what an awful helpless and desolate condition I am in, being here confined to my bed for 19 long weary years, suffering all the time and deprived of ever walking about any more in this world. It breaks my heart, but I will try to trust in God and I hope when you hear about me you will help me get the car, and all I ask is that you send me one dollar for one of these stones, so I can soon get the car, and it will almost mean new legs for me. Please don't forget me, and may God bless you. Yours in misfortune,

JOE MORPHEW,
Trade, Tennessee.

Can YOU Find a Bible Verse That Fits This Picture?

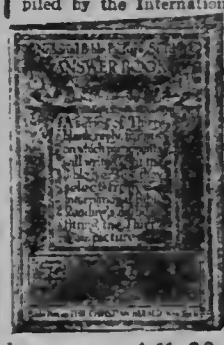
$5,000.00 In Cash

Will Be Awarded Those Who Submit the Most Suitable Bible Verses for 30 Beautiful Bible Pictures. Picture No. 1 is shown above.



First Prize, $1,000.00
Second Prize, $750.00

Christian Herald National Bible Picture Study



OUR plan is to present a series of 30 pictures, for which the public will find the most suitable Bible verses. 1,001 cash rewards are offered to give a concrete goal toward which to work—first prize is $1,000.00 in cash—and the gain in increased Bible knowledge and insight cannot be valued!

THE COMPLETE OUTFIT

To the right is the reference book of the Study, called International Bible Readings—a short collection of only about 2,000 Bible verses, from which all must make their selections. You are not asked to search the whole Bible. Only the verses included in International Bible Readings will be accepted as answers for the pictures. The most fitting verse for the above picture and all 30 pictures must be found in this little booklet of verses.

International Bible Readings comprises the International Sunday School Lessons, Daily Home Bible Readings and Golden Texts for December, 1917, and January, February, March and April, 1918—compiled by the International Lesson Committee.

To the left is the Answer Book, in which you will write and submit the Bible verses you choose from International Bible Readings as best fitting the 30 pictures. Think how your scrutiny of the pictures, your selection of the most appropriate verses from the reference book, and your act of writing them down will impress the verses lastingly upon your memory? And meantime your fascinating task may be winning a large cash prize! Competition in the Study without expense is possible under the rules, which are given free upon request.

All 30 Pictures

We guarantee that all who accept the remarkable special offer below will receive all 30 pictures, as well as the complete Study Outfit—there will be nothing more to secure at any time.

A Magazine You Will Prize

In receiving the Christian Herald for 10 weeks, too, you will realize why more than 300,000 families love it. It will have wonderful features, enthralling stories, inspiring pages of pictures, articles and poems. Take advantage of our special offer at once.

Special Introductory Offer

THE COUNCIL DAILY.

Following the universal policy of economy and conservation, the Council Daiiy, which has heretofore been published in separate issues for each day of the Council session, will this year be published in one issue and mailed to subscribers immediately at the close of the session from our own Publishing House in Nashville. The proceedings of each day will appear in order and will be compiete. It is hoped that by this plan there will be a gain at two points: the cost of publication will be reduced, and subscribers will be insured a safe delivery.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI ANNUAL MEETING.

The sixth annual session of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference was held in Greenville, on March 1-3, with a good attendance from all districts. Because of the decision to conserve as much time as possible, the usual business program was covered in two days and the Conference closed after the devotional service on Sunday evening.

Though this conference was unique in that a large volume of business was very quickly and ably dispatched, it was characterized throughout by an atmosphere of spiritual uplift and inspiration. From the first sounding of the note of gladness because of the great things God had done for us, to the echo of the last bugle call to service, each member was impressed with the present day urgency to a deeper consecration and prayer life, greater self-sacrifice and more strenuous activity in behalf of missions.

The splendid reports of officers, secretaries and representatives of special institutions, bore strong evidence of progress during the year and growth along each line of activity. The goal of a 10 per cent increase was more than met, and yet each report showed clearly the possibility and necessity of a still greater advance for this year.

The devotional services throughout the conference were especially helpful. The practical lessons drawn were so forcibly applied, that during these moments many hearts were filled with new courage and inspiration.

The Memorial services, conducted by Miss Corinne Rogers, were splendidly arranged and solemnly impressive, a fitting evidence that the women of this conference recognize the blessings which are ours from the lives and service of those gone on before.

Mrs. Conger's annual address was one which will be long remembered by each member present. The strength and force, the beauty and appeal of this stirring message are thoroughly in keeping with the character and work of our beloved President.

With the great world war and the principles involved therein as a background, Mrs. Conger outlined very clearly our duty to serve and conserve in the greater, spiritual war of Christianity, stressing the challenge of the times as a peculiar and unprecedented opportunity for service. Plans for the observance of the Missionary Centenary were explained, and we of the North Mississippi Conference were urged to meet our obligations and do our share, that the Methodism of tomorrow may measure up to the demands of to-day.

Mrs. Conger urges wider publicity in the auxiliaries and a careful following of the social service topic for the year, "Observance of the Sabbath Day." She lays emphasis, also, upon the importance of the district meetings as a means of enlisting a larger number of workers and securing a greater extension of work.

This Conference was especially fortunate in having present two returned missionaries, Miss Elizabeth Streater of Mexico and Mrs. W. G. Cram of Korea, both of whom are rich in service for the Master.

Miss Streater presented very clearly the work in Mexico and made a strong appeal in behalf of the Mexican as a dependable and lovable fellowbeing. Her work in Mexico is very interesting and her talk was most instructive to us who are so poorly informed concerning the conditions there.

With Mrs. Cram we took a most delightful journey to Korea, where we learned to know the country and people more intimately and where we were led through the several departments of mission work—educational, evangelical and medical. After several amusing experiences, and some serious ones, we came back to America with a deeper and more sympathetic interest for the Koreans than we have had before.

In conclusion, Mrs. Cram reminded every one subject to draft in the army of God to be sure that the exemption papers are signed by the great General, Jesus Christ, before feeling justified in remaining out of the service.

The annual sermon was preached by Dr. J. M. Moore, Secretary of the Home Department of the General Board of Missions of our Church. Choosing as a text, "Thy Kingdom Come," Dr. Moore with great eloquence and force presented the universality of this petition, defining the difference between nations and peoples as merely a difference in the ideas and ideals existing in the minds and expressed in the life of the nations and peoples. Dr. Moore sounded the glad note of the triumph of Christianity, saying that we are looking to-day upon a world in which the Kingdom is coming. In a most impressive manner he paid tribute to the heroism of our boys at the front, who are giving their best and all for the establishment of the principles which herald the coming of God's greater kingdom. To the brave mothers, giving their boys to fight for these principles of the church and humanity, he spoke a message of commendation, making glad their hearts for the great privilege which is theirs to-day.

It was most fitting that the audience, so deeply moved by the thoughts of this sermon, should renew their pledge of love and service by partaking of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, administered by the pastor, Rev. E. S. Lewis.

To the pastor-host, the Greenville auxiliary and the charming people of that city, too much praise cannot be given. The bounteous hospitality evinced on this occasion was most certainly in accord with Greenville's reputation as the "Queen City of the Delta." It is impossible to realize that plans for the entertainment of this conference were not in operation throughout the year. Greenville very graciously came to our rescue when it seemed that the Annual Conference could not meet for want of a place. With very short notice, the women became so efficiently organized that every wheel in the great machine moved in perfect unison, producing the greatest possible amount of pleasure and benefit to the guests, and making possible the best meeting of the North Mississippi Conference.

That this was the most successful meeting in the history of this conference must certainly be an undisputed fact. The review of the past year's work revealed a record unprecedented in this conference. The program, well planned and executed, embraced all things most needful and helpful. Delegates received a larger vision of the work and needs in mission fields, and a spiritual uplift and helpful outlook which will be disseminated to all sections of North Mississippi. The plans laid out for the present year are larger in scope than ever before, embracing a 10 per cent increase over the best year on record. The women of this conference are learning to say "We can, and we WILL," as we come into a fuller realization that we "can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth us." MARGARET LEACH.

Hair Needs Food

just as every other living thing does, and, just as every other living thing, it will die if it is not fed. Hair food takes the form of the natural oil on which it subsists. Fifty years ago the Creoles of Louisiana, who prided themselves on their hair, discovered a recipe for beautiful hair. By the use of this natural hair oil, "La Creole," they kept their hair beautiful, light and fluffy. This secret has been handed down through generations and presents the very best hair food and hair disease remedy. Does your hair fall out? Is it coarse? Is it stiff? Has it lost its natural luster? Then ask your dealer for a bottle of "La Creole" hair dressing. The price is only $1.00 and it will be the life of your hair. If he can't supply you, write at once to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

FOOT COMFORT ASSURED.

Brooklyn Man Solves the Problem.

It is no longer necessary to suffer agonies that are caused by misfit shoes, for Mr. Simon of Brooklyn has proven that he can fit perfectly by mail. Simon's Ezwear shoes are built to give every possible foot comfort; they are soft and stylish and do not need breaking in. They fit like the proverbial old pair, the minute you wear them. Every pair is guaranteed to give satisfaction and to fit perfectly.

Mr. E. P. Simon will gladly send a free catalogue of over 500 styles of Ezwear shoes to all who write him, along with his scientific-measuring blank. Write for your copy to-day and give your feet their much needed happiness. Address all communications to Mr. E. P. Simon, 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn. N. Y., and you will receive personal attention.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me.

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters.

Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

WHILE AT WAR

Women Suffer at Home.

WOODFORD, TENN.—"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription also the Golden Medical Discovery and find them to be as represented. When suffering with nervous prostration 'Favorite Prescription' cured me when other medicines failed. I think it is a grand medicine and never fail to recommend it to suffering women."—MRS. ROSA LEE HOGAN, Route 1.

SYLACAUGA, ALA. —"I have used Dr. Pierce's Remedies and they are fine. I used the Cough Remedy myself and my wife has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with good results. More than once she used this medicine when in a delicate condition."—W. B. GRANT.

"Favorite Prescription," the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and "Golden Medical Discovery," the great-est general tonic, are both put up in liquid and tablets, and are to be found in nearly all drug stores. They have enjoyed an immense sale for nearly 50 years, which proves their merits as well as the statements made by users. If not obtainable at your dealer's send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will mail trial package of either tablets.

From the Field

Dubach, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: The prospects are fine for a good year on this work. Our people are loyal and appreciative. We have recently purchased at Dubach a beautiful pipe-toned cathedral organ. Our Easter offering at Harmony was taken on the 17th and it amounted to $33. The "poundings" never cease to come into the parsonage here. Our people are spiritual and progressive.—C. F. Sheppard, P. C.

Iuka, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: This is to say I still read the Advocate and enjoy it very much. My work is progressing as well as usual. I have been a pastor for 33 years, and, while I have not fallen behind in my collections in 15 years, I have never heard a report that satisfied me. I am doing my best, and am working among a good people. It remains to be seen at the end of the year what the result of my labor will be.—L. A. McKeown, P. C.

Courtland, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: We are in the midst of what seems to be the prospect of a great revival, which we have so earnestly desired and prayed for for many days. Our services are under the direction of our Conference evangelist, Rev. J. H. Bell, and his singer, Mr. Templeton, both of Columbus, Miss. The crowds are growing, as well as the interest, with each service. We may run on into the second week.

—R. I. Collins, P. C.

March 21, 1918.

Bogalusa, La.

First Church, Bogalusa, is now enjoying a most gracious revival under the leadership of Rev. W. R. Hendrix, D.D., pastor of St. Mark's Church of Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Hendrix is a fine spirit and a princely and Scriptural preacher. The singing is led by a big chorus choir, directed by our own choir-leader, Hon. Karl I. Bean, of Bogalusa. Plans are about complete for our new church building and work will be begun soon. Opportunities for Christian service are multiplying daily here, and we serve a busy and responsive people. I have appointed a live and capable young lady to canvass for the Advocate. You will hear from her.

Fraternally yours,
A. INMAN TOWNSLY, P. C.

Neshoba Circuit, Miss. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: This is my third year as pastor of the Neshoba Circuit, and I hope to make this the best of the three, although progress this year up to the present time has been slow. The weather has been very cold, and the roads have been so muddy that it has been almost impossible for the people to attend church. However, we are having nice, warm weather now, and our people seem to be taking on new life. I feel hopeful of a successful year. Good progress was made here during the year 1917. Our beautiful new church at Sandtown was completed, painted, and dedicated. An old debt on our parsonage of $600, with the interest on it for two years, was paid. Our noble, big-hearted people at North Bend are building a magnificent church. They have the flooring laid. They also have the doors and windows in and have let the contract for painting the outside. When completed, it will be worth nearly $2000. It would be an honor to any community. With all of these good things, and with a raise of $120 on the pastor's salary, should we not expect a good year if we try?—S. E. Flurry, P. C.

Drew, Miss.

The first quarterly meeting for Drew was held last Sunday and Monday. The presiding elder was on hand and gave us two good, strong sermons, as is his custom when he comes to us. We had about half the members present at the official meeting, several being away from town—some of our best men—and we missed them; but the business went on all the same. The general report on the state of the church was not as good as we desired, but while we are not losing any ground, there is great room for improvement in every branch of the work here. We have great possibilities, and they must be improved or God's cause will suffer in these parts. I have promised God and myself to do my best, for I owe it to him and to this people, and I am sure if the preacher lays himself out something will happen.

Now, Doctor, I am going to tell you something, and it will be best for me if you will keep it quiet for one more year. The Board of Stewards put the salary for the pastor at $2000. For the sake of Moike, Brother Meek, don't let it out, for there are a number of preachers whose mouths are just watering to come here and I'll get rolled for my job as sure as you live, if you do. I know some presiding elders who want to come here, and they are on the inside, you know, and if I am moved before my time is out, you know something will sure happen. But I do not blame the brethren, for it is good to be here. We have some of the salt of the earth in this charge. They haven't only got the salt in them, but they use it for the cause of God. This congregation is not rich, no one of them, but they are liberal with what they have. The last $200 of the $2000 salary was put on by Brother J. J. Beck, who said he would pay it in addition to his assessment if they would make it $2000, if he could not get it otherwise. Before he left the house Brother Grettman said, "I'll divide it with you if necessary." But it will not be necessary if we live. We have raised for all purposes to date about $1200. Our Foreign and Domestic Mission assessments are in hand. Nine persons have been received into the Church by letter. The prayer meeting is fairly well attended and the congregations are good. Come up here and preach for me, brother. It will do you good.—W. S. Lagrone.

GOLDEN SILENCE.

The truth that "speech is silver and silence golden" can not be too often enforced. The harm that is daily done by hasty speech is incalculable. In the home, in the school, in business, in society, "speaking unadvisedly with the lips" causes half the heartaches and nearly all the misundestandings. A Celtic proverb runs: "Melodious is the closed mouth." Old John Trapp averred that the tongue is set midway between the head and the heart that it might take counsel of both. Truly a tongue made wise by the suggestions of a clear head, and rendered tender by the promptings of a sympathetic heart, would do good and not harm in the world. Everywhere in Scripture we are counseled to cultivate care in speech. To be "slow to speak" is commended. We are to make sure that we use "sound speech," and that we have our commonest addresses "seasoned with salt." The perfect man is he that sins not with his tongue. Jeremiah says quaintly: "This Seraiah was a quiet prince," and James devotes the most of one whole chapter to unfolding the evils of an unrestrained tongue. It is related that a peasant once came to a monk to be taught the Scriptures. The holy man began with a psalm: "I said, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue." The peasant went his way to practice this, and never returned. Lifelong was the lesson and lifelong the endeavor to master it.—Central Christian Advocate.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

10-CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 14. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3241.

"APATHISTS."

The word "pacifist" has been in vogue for some time, but the undesirable class of persons whom it designates does not by any means embrace all who are falling short of duty in this stormy and strenuous day. A writer in The Outlook has lately coined another expressive word that fittingly sets forth the attitude of not a few individuals—the word, "apathist." Are there not many among us who may thus be classed at this time when the call is loud and clear for every man to do his best?

The Church, too, has suffered at the hands of "apathists" throughout its entire history. The only worthy service to either State or Church is a whole-hearted service.

A PRESENT GOD A NECESSITY.

The place that God is given in any religion is a matter of the utmost importance. It is immensely weakened as a power in the lives of men if the Supreme Being is set afar off behind unvarying laws, so that he may not come directly into touch with human souls. Faith in the nearness of God and that he is ever ready to stretch forth a helping hand to those who look to him, is a mighty source of strength to struggling humanity. There is no stronger restraint against wrong-doing than the belief expressed in the words, "Thou God seest me," and there is no more potent incentive to high service than the conviction that the infinite Father is attentive to one's endeavors. One of the most striking characteristics of deeply spiritual persons is the emphasis they put upon the immediate presence of the Lord and the privilege of communing with him. Well may we beware of any teaching which, whatever other beautiful pretensions it may make, would thrust God into the background and lay less stress upon the duties and obligations that we owe to him. Never should we forget the words of the Master: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment."

THE THINGS MOST ESSENTIAL.

Those who imagine that the strength and efficiency of a Church are to be measured chiefly by its numbers and financial resources could scarcely be worse mistaken. To be sure, we must have workers and the means to maintain them; but no matter how numerous and well supported they are, without sound teaching and spirituality they will accomplish little toward the real upbuilding of the Kingdom. Dr. Albert Taylor Bledsoe, in one of his great review articles, quotes an authority as having said that all the pecuniary aid that Methodism received from England during the first eighteen years of its existence in the United States was fifty pounds; yet how phenomenal were its achievements throughout that period! Do not misunderstand us: we would not have our people give less, but vastly more. But we do not wish to see them rely upon material agencies, to the neglect of other things that are incomparably more essential.

A NEGLECTED MEANS OF GRACE.

Are we not neglecting fasting too much in this day? If there had not been merit in it, the Lord Jesus would hardly have stressed it as he did. A banquet may be popular and showy in the material results achieved by means of it; but does it strengthen the soul and generate spiritual power like abstinence and prayer? It is when Zion travails that sons and daughters are born unto her. Extending Churchanity is not necessarily extending Christianity.

REV. FRANKLIN N. PARKER, D.D.,
Who will head the Louisiana Delegation to the General Conference.

Dr. Parker is a son of Bishop Linus Parker, who for many years edited the New Orleans Christian Advocate with conspicuous ability. He has achieved distinction as a pastor, presiding elder, scholar, teacher, and writer. His comments upon the Scriptures used for lessons in our Sunday schools—a service which he rendered for some years—showed him to be an able and sound expositor of the Word, and as a preacher he is regarded as one of the strongest in the Church. He was for some time the chief Biblical instructor at Trinity College (Durham, N. C.), and he is at present Professor of Systematic Theology in the Candler School of Theology, at Emory University. Dr. Parker is perhaps the most beloved member of the Louisiana Conference, having been chosen, in the absence of a Bishop much of the time, to preside at its last session; and he was elected to the General Conference by an unusually large vote.

DR. IVEY'S ANSWER.

A Respectful Request.

Dr. T. N. Ivey, Editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, continues to speak of the "large" number of colored Methodists in our Church, and of the possibility that we may soon be embarrassed by Negro delegates knocking at the door of our General Conference for seats therein. He stated in his paper last week that there are "large" numbers of such communicants in Cuba and Brazil and some in Africa.

His "Yearbook," 1917, shows that we have in Cuba, including whites and all others, 4066 members, and in Brazil 6603. The number in Africa did not appear to be large enough to be given a place in the Doctor's "Yearbook." In the light of these statistics, we would respectfully ask Dr. Ivey to give us the precise figures showing the number of colored members in our denomination, and to state where they are. We can then form some idea of what the Doctor means by his indefinite expression, "large numbers."

Is it not a bit strange that the possibility of our Church being soon embarrassed by these "large numbers" of colored members sending delegates to the General Conference was never mentioned in the public prints until the union agitation appeared to be in sore straits? But we will not argue the question of the seriousness of this situation until our worthy confrere has had an opportunity to give us the figures upon which he is basing his alarm. (Extract from an editorial in the New Orleans Christian Advocate of February 21, 1918.)

A Respectful Answer.

The Christian Advocate is publicly requested by the New Orleans Christian Advocate to give "the precise figures showing the number of colored members in our denomination and to state where they are." Of course it must be understood that if any one charges us with error in any statement we have made on this subject or any other, it is incumbent on him to prove his charge. The burdent of proof is on him, not upon us. We do not consider this question the fittest one for a controversy just at this time, and we hereby promise that there shall be none so far as we are concerned. We assume, however, that the New Orleans Christian Advocate is not denying any statement that we have made, but is asking for information. Its editorial in question is "A Respectful Request," and certainly we can do no less than make a respectful answer.

Twice, as we recall, we have made editorial reference to the fact of the presence of colored members in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In an early January issue such reference was made in a historical paper on the relation of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the colored people of the South. In the issue of February 15, in commenting on the action of the nineteen members of the Southern Commission on Unification in voting for the principle of colored representation in the General Conference until the colored people can have their own General Conference the reference was again made. Since the New Orleans Advocate did not see fit to quote our words, we here reproduce them: "These same commissioners were not heedless of a fact which so many seem to ignore: that in other white Southern Churches, and even in our own Church, the principle of colored representation in white bodies is no foreign thing. There is a colored representation in the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The doors in the Protestant Episcopal Triennial Assembly [Convention], which embraces the South, are open to colored representatives. There are colored members now in our own Church—a large number of them in Cuba, Brazil, and some in Africa. It may be only a question of time when colored delegates from these fields may be elected to our own General Conference. Under what law of our Church could we exclude them? These are plain, unvarnished facts to be considered."

It can be seen that in the two instances we were not debating the question one way or the other, but were only stating historical facts. In using the word "colored" we applied it to those having African blood in them.

WE'RE GROWING OLD.

The tallest lilies drop at eventide.
The sweetest roses fall from off the stem;
The rarest things on earth cannot abide.
And we are passing, too, away like them;
We're growing old!

We have our dreams, those rosy dreams of youth!
They faded and 'twas well. This after-prime
Hath brought us fuller hopes; and yet, forsooth,
We drop a tear now in this later time,
To think we're old!

We smile at those poor fancies of the past—
A saddened smile, also akin to pain;
Those high desires, those purposes so vast.
Ah, our poor heart! They cannot come again!
We're growing old!

Old? Well, the heavens are old; the earth is, too;
Old wine is best, maturest fruit most sweet!
Much have we lost, more gained, although 'tis true
We tread life's way with most uncertain feet,
We're growing old!

We move along and scatter as we pass
Soft graces, tender hopes on every hand;
At last, with gray-streaked hair and hollow face,
We step across the boundary of the land
Where none is old!

PRAYER.

By C. H. Spurgeon.

True prayer is a sure evidence of spiritual quickening.

Prayer is the autograph of the Holy Ghost upon the renewed heart.

We only begin to pray when we begin to live spiritual lives.

If the spirit does not commune with God there has not been true prayer.

Real prayer can not come from men whose characters are contrary to the mind of God.

God will hear us when we hear him; he will do our will when we do his will.

A STEP AT A TIME.

Some one was moving about in the hay-loft of an old barn, in the falling twilight. A little lad, standing at the foot of a ladder, called out: "Are you up there, grandpa? I want to come up."

"All right, little man, come on," replied grandpa.

The lad put his foot on the lowest rung, looked up into the dim loft, and said, "Grandpa, I can't see the top step."

"Put your foot on the round where you are, little man, and climb up. The last step is here, and you'll see it when you get to it."

"Believe and climb from where you are, O Christian. There is no other safe way. Step by step the way will be revealed. Therefore, believe and climb."—Central Christian Advocate.

SILENT SUFFERERS.

Preachers' wives in many parts of this country are suffering greatly these days. You did not know it? You have not heard your preacher's wife say anything to suggest that she is suffering? No, and you probably will not hear anything from her. But, you business man, whom the Lord has prospered greatly, and who for that reason can provide every needed comfort for your wife, try to think of your wife as placed in the position occupied by your pastor's wife. She is a woman of intelligence and refinement, and her needs are not very different from those of your wife. She must be careful to dress well enough to make a good appearance wherever she goes. She must see that her children are also well dressed. She must keep her house in good condition, ready to receive company at any time. If for any reason another minister or official visitor comes to the church, she is expected to entertain him. She is expected to attend church and Sabbath school regularly, to be an active member of the woman's societies and to take an active part in all church work. Now, Mr. Business Man, how is she going to do this on the salary that the church is paying her husband? She must see that her household is fed, and remember that she has to buy almost everything they eat, and prices are nearly double what they were. She must buy clothes, but here again prices are practically doubled. Now, what are you going to do about it? Let her go on in this way? No, don't give her a present. See to it that her husband is paid such a salary that his wife will not be made to suffer in many ways in which she is now suffering, while she is trying to help her husband do the work the church expects him to do, by making him a comfortable home.—Presbyterian of the South.

A MOUNTAIN-TOP MEETING.

"Over the top" has come into our language during the past few months as a very significant expression, and as I write these notes on my way home from the second annual meeting of the Louisiana Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation at beautiful Mansfield on March 13 and 14, this new war-time phrase comes to mind as properly descriptive of that meeting.

From the moment the president of the Federation, Judge H. H. White of Alexandria, called the meeting to order at two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon until the moment Dr. Bulla pronounced the final benediction Thursday night, we were not only on Louisiana's highest topographical point, but we were also at her highest point of spiritual fervor and Methodist fellowship.

The words of welcome from Presiding Elder Atkinson and Pastor Steel were whole-hearted and free, and the responses by Judge White and Dr. Bulla were happy and helpful.

In "The President's Message" Judge White gave us a splendid discussion of the place of the Bible Class in the social and political life of the day, and all through the meeting ran a thread of emphasis on the place and importance of the Word of God in the affairs of men.

The presence in the meeting of six of the presiding elders was a source of genuine interest and strength, though the genial face and princely spirit of Brother May were greatly missed by many of us. I hope he was not ill. Brothers Henry and Lutz in devotionals, and Brothers Carter and Holmes in splendid addresses, rendered Louisiana Methodism a distinct service and contributed not a little to the aggregate of fine influences and results going out from this meeting.

A feature of the Wednesday afternoon session was the group meetings, as follows: (1) For officers, led by Mr. Van Carter; (2) for teachers, led by the undersigned; (3) for Membership Committeemen, led by Mr. H. T. Liverman; (4) for Social Committeemen, led by Mr. R. T. Moore; (5) for Devotional Committeemen, led by Rev. Alonzo Early. In these, problems and methods were freely and helpfully discussed.

The most distinguished attendant at the meeting was Bishop McCoy, whose address on Wednesday evening was truly a masterpiece. The good Bishop is not in robust health, having but just recovered from a serious illness, but his message was delivered with force and power, and carried with it conviction. It was a scholarly exposition of the principle that civilization to be permanent must be based on morality and religion.

At the Thursday forenoon session Field Secretary Breithaupt made an impressive address that emphasized the responsibility of fathers and mothers for the religious nurture of sons and daughters; Rev. W. W. Drake delivered an address on "Teaching the Bible" that elicited many compliments for its deliverer; and "Dr." Turner, our strong Anti-Saloon League Superintendent, made an address that ought to put the ratification of the amendment through the Legislature without a "hitch" anywhere.

At this forenoon session a statement was made by Brother Brown, chairman of the Conference Sunday School Board, to the effect that the Board was carrying a deficit of $665 from last year's work, and intimated that he would like the help of the Wesley Classes in relieving the Board and Brother Breithaupt and Miss Richardson of the burden of carrying that deficit. Presiding Elder Carter came to the platform and announced that he was ready to receive subscriptions to wipe out that debt, and under his skillful management in a little while nearly the whole amount was promised, as member after member of the Federation—individuals and classes—enthusiastically underwrote different portions of the amount. This was a most commendable piece of work.

Thursday afternoon began with a meeting for women at the Baptist Church, where Mrs. J. P. Honaker, of Shreveport, spoke on the subject, "The Message of the Bible for Women," and a meeting for men at the Methodist Church where Dr. Bulla spoke on "The Business Man and the Bible." After these two addresses all parties assembled in the auditorium of the Methodist Church for a business session, at which the following resolutions were presented by Dr. Steel, chairman of the committee on resolutions, and unanimously adopted:

1. We respectfully urge upon our representatives in the Legislature to adopt the National Prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution.

2. That they make a law compelling police juries to call an election to determine whether the saloon shall be licensed when 33 1-3 per cent of the qualified voters demand it.

3. That they pass a zone law to protect our soldiers in the training camps from the liquor traffic, and a bone-dry shipping law to correspond with the Webb-Kenyon law, prohibiting the shipment of liquor into dry territory.

4. That we heartily commend the patriotic and timely address of the presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference as presented by Rev. C. B. Carter, and request the publication of the same in the "New Orleans Christian Advocate" and the secular papers of the State.

5. That we respectfully request our Governor to recommend in his message to the Legislature at their next regular session, ratification of the national prohibition amendment.

6. That we heartily endorse the eloquent and patriotic utterance of Bishop J. H. McCoy in his address to the Federation on the relation of Bible study to the solution of the problems of civilization.

7. That we appreciate the graceful and efficient presidency of Mr. H. H. White.

8. Our thanks are hereby tendered to Rev. C. D. Bulla, Superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class Department, and to our faithful Divisional Field Secretary, Mr. A. L. Dietrich.

9. That we thank the men's chorus for the delightful music they have given us.

10. That we appreciate the faithful service of Rev. J. D. Swaggerty, leader of our music.

11. That we appreciate the diligent and zealous work of Rev. C. V. Breithaupt in the interest of the Federation.

12. That we urge all of our preachers to do what they can to organize Bible classes in all our churches, because of the splendid results growing out of their formation.

13. That our thanks are hereby tendered to the Baptists for the use of the Baptist Church, and to the school authorities for the offer of the school building.

14. That we give our hearty thanks to the First Methodist Church and its pastor, Dr. S. A. Steel, and the good people of Mansfield for their most excellent entertainment of this Wesley Bible Class Federation; and that we express our appreciation of their generous hospitality by a rising vote.

Following the adoption of the resolutions, the committee on nominations reported and officers of the Federation for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Mr. R. T. Moore, of Mansfield; Vice President—Mr. T. W. Holloman, of Alexandria; Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. O. C. Bates, of Alexandria; Executive Committee—Alexandria District, Dr. R. L. Roberts, Cheneyville; Baton Rouge District, Rev. Alonzo Early, Amite; Lafayette District, Mr. S. A. Mayo, Lake Charles; Monroe District, Mr. R. O. Randle, Monroe; New Orleans District, Mr. W. H. Black, McDonoghville; Ruston District, Dr. Rob't Webb, Minden; Shreveport District, Mr. R. T. Douglas, Gilliam.

The last hour of the afternoon was spent in an open parliament, in which members of the Federation told what they were going to do when they got home—and from the expressions then made we conclude that the influence of the Federation meeting will be widely and lastingly felt.

Thursday night Dr. Bulla gave us the closing address of the meeting—delivered in his happy, impressive manner—in which he painted beautiful word-pictures of "Ourselves, Our Homes, Our Church, Our Country."

The Louisiana Male Chorus—Revs. Alonzo Early, C. V. Breithaupt, J. D. Swaggerty, F. J. McCoy, J. A. McCormack and J. L. Evans—furnished music of a very high order, and Brother Swaggerty, in his solo work and in leading the congregational singing, rendered a valuable service to the meeting, adding greatly to its helpfulness and interest.

The young ladies of the Mansfield Female College were faithful attendants upon all sessions and not only lent grace and beauty to them, but helped much by song and presence to make the meeting pleasant and profitable to all of us. Prof. Bobbitt is doing a splendid work at Mansfield and the Federation—as does all Louisiana Methodism—owes him much for what he has and is doing.

The "Address to Louisiana Methodists," prepared by the presiding elders of the Conference and read to the Federation by Rev. Briscoe Carter, brought forth many hearty expressions of approval and commendation, and we were delighted that the Federation was among the first to hear it and give it sympathy and support.

The Mansfield folks were truly loyal and royal hosts, and it would take all the columns of the "Advocate" to fittingly express our appreciation and tell all the merits of the good work of Dr. Steel, Superintendent Corbin, Brothers Moore, Sharp, Bobbitt, Liverman, and others, and of the good sisters—so many in number and so diligent in good works that I cannot trust myself to particularize or individualize. But God has them all on His record, whether they get into the "Advocate" or not. They were all unceasing in kindly attention and abundant in thoughtful provision for our every need. We will long remember March 13 and 14, 1918, and Mansfield.

The Methodist Sunday school workers of Louisiana have a prince in Clyde V. Breithaupt, and the Federation part of those workers appreciate greatly the fine work he did for this meeting, and applauded heartily when Dr. Bulla presented him with a solid gold "My Brother and I" stick pin. He deserves a diamond pin, and here's hoping he shall get one one of these days.

The Registration Committee reported that there were over two hundred delegates enrolled—and it is my opinion several "got by" without registering.

Dr. Meek, pardon me for writing at such length—but this was a meeting, with big folks in it, considering big things, and it takes space to tell about it. "And may God add his blessing."

A. L. DIETRICH.

AGAINST UNION.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

(The following article was sent to the Nashville Christian Advocate, which declined to publish it.)

Yes, I am against the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with the Methodist Episcopal Church. I still hope it may be averted; but be that as it may, I wish to go on record as opposing it with all my heart. To me it is like pulling the heart out of the body to contemplate it. I love the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and my love for it goes to the roots of my life. My devotion to it has not been like a garment that I could put off or on as occasion suggested; but like the life-blood that circulates in my veins. I was born under the shelter of its sacred roof-tree. It nurtured my childhood, guided my youth, inspired my manhood, and has buttressed my soul against the billows for fifty years. It has honored me with some of its highest places, borne with my imperfections, encouraged me when despondent, and kept me in the way of light, and led me upward toward the heights. The memories of the past, the associations of the present, and the hopes of the future all blend in the halo that encircles its name. All that is holy in life, its most sacred possessions, its tenderest ties, the cherished recollections of the sainted dead, the ideals, institutions, traditions, sentiments of religion, all the flame and passion and aspirations born of the experience gained in its service—all of this, and far more, is identified with my conception of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

I love it better than I love my life. I have given my life to it; the service, and sacrifice, and suffering of half a century have passed into its history. I knew it and loved it when, battered and bleeding, it staggered to its feet after the war, and "with brow bloody, but unbowed," stood at its post, and helped to save our land and redeem the ruin wrought by the madness of men. I saw the very Church to which it is now proposed that we surrender under the guise of union take possession of its pulpits by force of arms, press into its territory, and seek to disintegrate it. I saw it stand loyal to its past amid its poverty, and felt the thrill of its lofty attitude of fidelity to its God-given mission in the face of detraction, and the hostile rivalries of Northern Methodism pushing its way into its territory, regardless of the fraternal agreements of federation. I have rejoiced to see it grow strong in spite of all its foes, until now it spreads itself from sea to sea and flourishes like a cedar in Lebanon.

And now it is proposed to bow our head to our conqueror, give to oblivion the proud record of our past, lose ourselves in an alien body, and blot out our very name from under heaven. I know what the men say who are bent on uniting us about "terms of mutual respect;" but I read some of the ablest Northern Methodist papers and I do not see that they use these terms when they write about the past. According to some of the ablest Methodist writers in New England, as they have recently expressed themselves, the Southern movement to establish an independent government was a "rebellion," and they speak of Jefferson Davis as a "traitor" still. I see no change in the animus of the North toward the Old South; I see no indication of a change of mind in the Methodist Episcopal Church toward us in any of the proposals concerning union. All the plans proposed so far, if one has the courage to think them through to their issue, mean the surrender of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the Methodist Episcopal Church. They may possibly retain their name; we shall certainly have to give up ours. They continue to hold all their property; we surrender our titles. They laud their past; we must be silent on ours. Already they have crystallized the history of our great struggle in the term "Civil War," which can be justified only on Napoleon's maxim, that "History is a lie agreed upon."

And for what are we asked to make this great renunciation? What can justify our surrender of a past so sacred? Those who are steering us toward the goal of our extinction dwell on the advantage of a great united Methodist Church. This sort of massing and merging of all smaller bodies in one huge centralized body is precisely what Germany is striving after. Ignoring the fundamental ethnic differences and the local wishes of the various peoples she has overrun, she would absorb Belgium, and Holland, and Rumania, Serbia, and all the rest, and form her vast "Mittel-Europa" empire. But America stands for the integrity of little nations as well as big ones; and America is right. If we could have a Methodist union formed on the model of the Federal Government at Washington, leaving us free to control our local affairs and develop our individual character, it might work; but this is not what is offered us. A "United Methodism," according to the pending scheme, means that Southern Methodism is to be swallowed up by Northern Methodism. That is the aim of it, to obliterate the Southern type of life, extinguish its ideals, detach it from its historic past, and gradually blot out its memory.

I will not deny, Mr. Editor, that the proposal to dismiss the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, from the ranks of militant Christianity fills me with profound sorrow. I love my Church, and it matters little to me that I am accused of being "narrow" and "sectional" and dominated "by prejudice" and benighted like the heathen at whose ignorance God winked because I am opposed to her destruction. The very fact that such sentiments are expressed toward those who oppose the union shows how those who are loyal to our Southern ideas are likely to be treated when the union is effected. Our doom is already sealed if the proposed form of union is accomplished like that of those who were proscribed by the Triumvirs at Rome. Be it so, but let me be known as immovably opposed to the extinction of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by merging it into the Methodist Episcopal Church. It will be a crime to love the South better than any other part of the Union, and to love the Church that is identified with its history better than any other denomination, and to desire to see it continue on its shining way unhindered by the control of the North. I plead guilty to the charge. I love Mississippi more than I do Maine, and I do not care for the shallow sentiment that calls such patriotism provincial.

Regarding as I do the proposed union of the two Churches as the surrender of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the consummation of the conquest of the South by the North in the realm of ideas, and the authoritative and final break with our past, I can only view with deepest apprehension the meeting of the General Conference in May. I am too obscure a person to imagine my name will long survive my withdrawal into the unseen; but as long as it is remembered, let it be as one who opposed the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mansfield La.

A WARNING SOUNDED NONE TOO SOON.

By Bishop W. A. Candler.

In the Midland Methodist of March 6th Rev. S. A. Neblett, one of the wisest, strongest, and most faithful of our missionaries in Cuba, says:

"For many years now the mission fields have been the victims of a propaganda whose logical result must inevitably prove disastrous to the Church unless the Church shall recognize the poison and combat it. Under the guise of getting together—co-operating—we are called upon to ignore our differences and make mutual concessions, even to sacrifice our own Church in the interest of "the larger, broader movement." Committees responsible as such to no Church are financed by the Church and her agencies; and when such committees think it safe for them to do so, they openly assail the Church.

"A noted Christian leader visited Havana, and an opportunity was made for him to address a gathering at a large club. A year later the General Secretary of the Foreign Department of the World's Y. M. C. A. stated in a gathering of leaders of all the Churches, and the same was published broadcast, that the people were greatly pleased with the address, "for they said that he just talked about Christ and said nothing about the Church." The unescapeable inference is that the Church must be discarded eventually as the one and only means of making Christ known to all men.

"It should not be forgotten that the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and other great institutions, which are doing so nobly the work of mercy and uplift in this war, are manned and officered largely by Christian men and women, that the millions with which they do their work are either drawn from the Church or from men of means influenced by the Church, that scores and hundreds of ministers of the Churches are losing themselves and their identity as church men and wearing the livery of the "Y" or the Red Cross that they may serve. Will the Church be superseded after the war by some monster omnibus organization or some nebulous, unorganized sentiment, all-permeating and all-powerful? Will some organization emerge from this war cheered by the victors and proclaimed as the "evolution of the Church," which we must all accept as a substitute?

"After a few months in the service of my Church here at the home base and renewing my strength, I shall be going back to my frontier post to carry the battle with new vigor into the enemy's country. May I go in all confidence as a representative of Methodism, that the Church will not vanish and make my words and work a lie? May I still proclaim that the Church is of God and will be preserved to the end of time? Am I safe in preparing and presenting to the Bishop for ordination from year to year Cuban youths who feel called to preach and believe in the Church as possessing means of grace no other body possesses?

"Let the Midland and every other Church organ ring true on this issue. Let them be bulwarks of the Church. God's Church will survive; but Satan is offering wealth and a crossless plan of redemption, and men are falling for the offer. Listen for talk of salvation by manhood and character, the making light of blasphemy and sin as things God will overlook and the pooh-poohing of doctrinal statements of Christianity."

Brother Neblett is right. He is not shying at a shadow. There are those who would be overlords of the Churches in foreign fields, and if they can get control of all, or most, of the foreign missions, they will soon seek to dominate the Churches in the home-land. These would-be overlords are, as Brother Neblett points out, responsible to no one. They talk much of "unity" because they desire all the churches to be merged into an obese organization which they hope to make and control.

Of course, to accomplish this result all definite beliefs must be discarded, and we must bear "talk of salvation by manhood and character."

Already such talk has begun. In a recent article, published far and wide, "the religion of the inarticulate" is advocated, Christian ordinances are deprecated, and religion is identified with patriotism and war-sacrifice as being of the same essence. This article was published over the signature of a young financier in New York, who evidently knows more about commercial mergers than Christian truth. He is a man of many syndicates, and would have salvation by syndicate.

In an article published some months ago in the Baptist Record, over the signature of B. W. Spillman, D.D., appeared the following statement:

"The influences at work to bring about a union of the various denominations at home and abroad are very powerful and well organized. There is at the command of the propaganda a very large sum of money—millions of dollars. When this enormous sum of money was made available and the charter was sought from the Congress of the United States, Congress refused to incorporate the concern until the objects were more specifically stated. It is now operating under a charter granted by the State of New York. From one high up in the ranks of the authorities of missions I have it that when the European war broke out there were commissions then in both Japan and China making overtures to every educational institution in the mission fields to equip them and give an adequate amount for their maintenance on the one condition that they cease to become denominational in character and go into a United Federal Church arrangement."

It will not be overlooked that the Roman Catholic Church can not be handled by the mergers. Of that we may be sure.

What would become of a pulpy Protestantism, creedless and characterless, in a contest with a closely knit and powerful Romanism?

Romanism would run through it like a sharp blade through a jelly-fish.

For one, I believe Methodism has a mission which cannot be fulfilled in a merger, even though the merger be endowed with multiplied millions.

DR. IVEY'S ANSWER.

Now, as to the request of the New Orleans paper that we give it the "precise figures showing the number of colored members in our denomination and state where they are," we shall do the best we can in the direction of heeding such a request, especially since the New Orleans paper says: "But we will not argue the question of the seriousness of this situation until our worthy confrere has had an opportunity to give us the figures upon which he is basing his alarm [!]." We seize the opportunity to say that it is a matter of public knowledge, we presume, that none of our Conference journals, either at home or abroad, make any classification of the colored members. This was done in the homeland until 1897, when the enumeration of colored members ceased. When the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church was organized, in 1870, 13,263 remained with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In 1880 this number had dwindled to 1081; in 1890, to 534; in 1897, to 253. We have no doubt that if the search were made scores of colored people would be found throughout the South holding their membership with us. But at no time, so far as we know, have the journals of our work in Cuba and Brazil, lands where the whites are in such a minority, shown any classification. So we are no more able to tell precisely how many colored members of our Church are in those countries than to tell how many Parthians and Medes and Elamites were present on the day of Pentecost. Having no printed statistics to draw from and having never visited Brazil and Cuba, we could get our information as we did from men who had been there and knew the Church, and who thus constituted the very best authorities possible.

In the case of the colored members of our Church in Cuba and Brazil, we have no cause for changing the adjective "large," since we used the word in a relative sense and had an idea of a number that can be considered large in a Church in which the general impression seems to be that there are no colored members at all. Furthermore, we did not express our views on this point and did not use that adjective until we had heard, as we have said, the statements of missionaries and others who are acquainted with our Church life in those countries. If they are right, we are right; and we believe them to be right. Neither do we have cause to change our view that it would be well for Southern Methodism to know the fact that if it opposes Negro representation in the General Conference it cannot escape such a representation by refusing to accept unification, for it is a likelihood amounting almost to a certainty that in a few years Southern Methodism, if it remain such, will have colored delegates to our General Conference. We do not present this as a "bogyman," but as a fact arising out of the mere fact of the colored membership.

Just why the New Orleans Christian Advocate in the present case strains at the size of the colored membership of our Church and swallows the fact of that membership without a grimace, while in the case of colored representation in the General Conference he strains at the fact of representation and swallows the size of it, we cannot tell. That he does this may be seen from his present editorial and an extract from another entitled "Some Objections to the Rogers Scheme." The extract is as follows (italics in the second sentence ours): "(1) It would leave the Negroes in the white General Conference with both a voice and a vote for an indefinite period of time. True, that representation (upon the suggested basis) would not be large, but the principle involved would be the same." Now, as we have said, we cannot see why the New Orleans Christian Advocate in the matter of colored representation in the General Conference makes the fact of representation the serious thing and the size of the representation unimportant, but in the matter of general Church membership of the colored people in the General Conference reverses the whole thing and makes the size of that membership the important thing and the fact or principle the unimportant. But if the New Orleans Christian Advocate insists on gaining more light on the matter of the size of our colored membership in foreign fields, it certainly need not remain in darkness. It has only to apply for information to those who have been to those foreign countries and know our Church there. They are much better authorities than either the Christian Advocate or the New Orleans Christian Advocate, which papers have no time to waste in debating a question which may have an indefinite number of answers—when is a number large?—Nashville Christian Advocate.

BY THE ("NEW ORLEANS") EDITOR.

The foregoing is the full text of Dr. Ivey's reply to our brief editorial inquiry in our issue of February 21. Let it be noted that, while waiving controversy, our distinguished confrere wages it at some length and with considerable vehemence. He does not merely deal with the specific question addressed to him, but seeks to cover the whole of our short utterance (some of which he does not print), combating all of its suggestions—even ranging into another editorial of ours (which had no specific reference to him) and endeavoring to impale "the New Orleans editor" upon one or the other horns of what he conceives to be an inconsistent dilemma. Yet he abjures controversy, declaring that neither his paper nor ours has time for debating the main issue involved. (Why he should presume to speak for us on this point, we do not know, since we are well past our twenty-first birthday.) We are not complaining at all of the Doctor's foray into the realm polemic; for, though we do not love newspaper forensics, as some of our opponents (we will not say enemies) allege, we do not fear it, or shrink from it when we feel that the cause of truth and right is at stake and what we apprehend to be the voice of duty bids us not to be "a slacker." There are times when "silence is golden," but there also times when it is ignominious. Pacifism almost invariably opens the way to safety and "flowery beds of ease;" but it is by no means always noble and proper. It may sometimes be inspired by self-interest. The poet has sung:

"He who fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day."

Presumptive Editorial Infallibility Claimed.

Our distinguished brother says: "Of course, it must be understood that if any one charges us with error in any statement that we have made on this subject, OR ANY OTHER, it is incumbent upon him to prove the charge. The burden of proof is on him, not on us." We do not think that we have ever seen in any publication a more remarkable statement than this. Think of it: an editor claiming that he is not under obligation to sustain any of the affirmative asseverations made in his public utterances; that they should be accepted as infallibly correct, and that if any person should question the accuracy of any one of them, asking for the facts or authority upon which it is predicated, the said editor is wholly free from any responsibility to make good his statement, which is entitled to hold sway until some one disproves it! Is not this pretentious claim pretty nearly equal to that of the infallibility of the Pope? Let us see how the thing would work. Suppose "the New Orleans editor" were to affirm that John Wesley at one time sought to unite with the Roman Catholic Church, but was rejected, and some brother were to demand our authority for that statement, and we, in reply, were to say, "Our statement stands; the burden of proof is on you." How would the brother disprove it? He might read all the lives of Wesley and all the literature pertaining to him in the world, and then say, "I find no record of any such occurrence;" but we could easily answer, "The statement stands; you have not disproved it; things happen which do not get into biographies." We have in mind a noted controversy in which an instance very similar to this hypothetical case did occur. One distinguished disputant affirmed a certain thing of a famous temperance reformer. Another disputant, equally distinguished, declared that he had read all the lives of the said reformer, but could find no hint of anything of the kind; whereupon his opponent declared that it was true notwithstanding, but would adduce no authority. Some of the Christian scientists affirm that Mrs. Eddy brought back some dead persons to life—according to the rule which he has set up, how would Dr. Ivey meet this contention? Or is this presumptive editorial infallibility, which entitles all statements to stand at their face value until somebody disproves them, restricted to the Nashville Christian Advocate?

Dr. Ivey's Handling of the Question.

Our distinguished Connectional Editor tells us that "twice, as he remembers," he made reference to the presence of Negroes in the Church, South, and that in so doing he did "not debate the question one way or the other, but only stated historical facts." If there is any better way to argue in behalf of a cause than to state what one holds to be facts in a setting that will lead to certain conclusions, we do not know what it is. The truth is, the last time Dr. Ivey brought this matter forward he was trying to justify the course of the "liberals" on our Unification Commission (himself included) for their self-admitted breaking away from the Oklahoma City Plan for uniting the Churches. (Has he not advanced the view that our Church made a mistake in setting up the C. M. E. Church as a separate and independent body?) And the neglected-history editorial which appeared, as he states, early in January was seemingly so clearly intended as an apologetic for what was expected to take place at Savannah that we doubt whether there was any person possessing a reasonable amount of discernment who read it that did not plainly see its bearing. Will Dr. Ivey deny that it was designed to exercise a palliating influence in behalf of the effort to keep the Negro, with various rights and privileges, in the unified Church? He must know perfectly well that it was seized upon by his fellow ultra-unionists and paraded in the public prints for this purpose, and this without the least demurring upon his part.

The Doctor seems rather to complain because we did not quote his latest reference to this matter. The reason that we did not do so was because we were only making a very brief inquiry in quite a congested number of our paper and did not have the space for the quotation. Nothing would have pleased us more than for our readers to have seen his statement in its connection, since it would have shown clearly the use to which our confrere was trying to put his so-called facts about the "LARGE NUMBERS" of Negroes in our Church—thus making all the more evident the pertinence of the interrogation that we addressed to him.

As a matter of fact, the two instances mentioned are not the only times that our brother has touched upon this question of the Negroes in Southern Churches. He made quite an ado over it in his paper in the spring of last year, causing Zion's Herald to declare that the plan that the Nashville Advocate had represented the Southern Presbyterians as having adopted (a misrepresentation, however, of that denomination) was practically "the plan that Dr. Edgar Blake had advocated and which commended itself to many as a solution for the immediate problem confronting Methodism," etc.,

But we may as well go to what we conceive to be the root of this matter while we are at it, and this we shall now proceed to do. Just before the Joint Commission on Unification assembled in Baltimore, the Southern Commissioners met in that city and adopted as one of the "basic principles" for which they were to stand the following:

"That the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church and such colored Churches as may elect to take part in the reorganization of American Methodism are to be dealt with in such a manner as shall give full recognition to race consciousness, while at the same time offering to them the largest possible co-operation."

This resolution was unanimously adopted, but only so because it was not interpreted alike by all the Commissioners. Some of them (they so wrote us at the time) construed it as meaning that the Negro was to be placed in a separate Church, as our General Conference had expressly recommended; but it developed later that Dr. Ivey, Bishop Mouzon, and their fellow-liberals on the Commission (according to their own published construction—see the article, entitled "That Southern Methodist Ultimatum," in the Nashville Advocate of June 22, 1917, page 9) had in this action artfully laid the predicate for keeping the Negroes in the unified Church before the negotiations were even begun. Thus it will be seen that these gentlemen repudiated the recommendation of the General Conference of the Church, South, concerning the Negroes before they began their sittings with the Northern Commissioners. They did not open their mouths when the General Conference at Oklahoma City declared emphatically for having the Negroes placed in a separate Church, but they met and nullified that action of our great law-making body before the deliberations of the Joint Commission had so much as started. And herein, in our humble opinion, is to be found the explanation of all Dr. Ivey's carrying-on about the Negroes in other Churches operating in the South, and the "LARGE NUMBERS" that he has discovered to be in our own Church (though prior to this he had made no mention of them in any of his numerous Year-Books). All the indications are that he has been trying to lead the Church toward the fixed objective unveiled at Savannah—that of having the colored brethren left in the same organization with the whites, with a goodly measure of prerogatives, while trampling underfoot the specific recommendation of our last General Conference.

The Policies of Southern Churches.

But what about the Negroes in Southern Churches? As is well known, those related to our Church—240,000 strong—are in a separate and independent body.

The same is true of those that were related to the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. These number some eighteen or twenty thousand.

The Southern Baptist Church has pursued a like policy, the hundreds of thousands of Baptist Negroes being in a separate and wholly autonomous denomination.

But how about the Protestant Episcopal Church? As a matter of fact, that Church is not really a Southern denomination. In handling the phases of the Negro question which have lately been to the fore in its councils (causing considerable disturbance), Bishop Bratton, of Mississippi, championed the view of the Southerners, carrying the Committee having these matters in charge with him; but he and those standing with him were overruled in the General Convention largely by Northern votes. Hence it may be said that the status of the Negro in the Episcopal Church has been determined by Northern, rather than by Southern influence. There are, according to Bishop Guerry, of South Carolina, not more than 12,000 or 15,000 Negro Episcopalians in the Southern States, and "no one of these has ever been elected to represent a diocese in a General Convention." (See Nashville Christian Advocate of May 18, 1917, page 6.) The door to that body may be open, as our Connectional Editor very guardedly says; but it seems that no colored brother has yet entered it. Moreover, it should be remembered that the Episcopal Church is not connectional in the same sense that ours is, and that its government cannot be controlled to the same extent by a Northern majority that ours could. This is an important point that needs to be kept in mind.

We come now to the case of the Southern Presbyterian Church, which Dr. Ivey is very fond of parading. As to that, we will let Dr. James H. McNeilly (a Presbyterian) speak (see Nashville Advocate of May 4, 1917): "In 1865, after the abolition of slavery, the General Assembly recognized the claims of these people (the Negroes) as fellow-heirs with the whites of the grace of God and urged the churches not to relax their efforts in their behalf. But the Northern Presbyterian Board of Missions for Freedmen sent their missionaries through the South, and the large proportion of Negroes left the Southern Church. It became a question with the General Assembly as to the ecclesiastical relations of those who remained loyal to our Church or who should be gathered into its membership. Three courses were suggested: 1. To have still the mixed membership and give to the Negroes their share of officers (elders and deacons) and to ordain them as ministers of the Word when intellectually and spiritually qualified; (2) to organize them into separate churches, with their own officers and ministers, to be under the authority of white men's presbyteries; (3) to organize a separate Negro Church, autonomous, with its own elders, deacons, ministers, Presbyteries, Synods, and General Assembly, only receiving such help from the white Church as they might need from a Sister Church.

"The first plan was rejected, as the peculiar social conditions of the South rendered it practically impossible, as I believe every other denomination has found to be the case. The second plan is now in force, and 35 ministers and 75 churches are organized in separate Presbyteries. And the last General Assembly, 1916, authorized the organization of these ministers and churches into four Presbyteries under a General Synod, co-ordinate with the other Synods, to be under the authority of the General Assembly. But the ultimate aim is to realize the third plan and organize a separate and autonomous General Assembly made up of Negro Presbyterian Churches." (Black letters ours.)

Now let the reader look back at figure 3, and see what the third plan that is finally to be realized, according to Dr. McNeilly, is: "TO ORGANIZE A SEPARATE CHURCH, AUTONOMOUS, etc. So eminent an authority as Dr. George Summey, distinguished as a Presbyterian minister, editor, and Church legislator, has told us that this is the correct meaning of this action; that the goal of his denomination is to place their Negroes in a separate and autonomous CHURCH, just as we and the Cumberland Presbyterians did with ours.

Yet we have had the amazing spectacle of our Chief Editor, in his efforts to bolster such schemes as those of Dr. Blake, Dr. DuBose, and Judge Rogers, at times perverting the meaning of this projected movement of the Southern Presbyterians into something analogous to such proposed arrangements; and at other times, as he does in the present instance, parading the present temporary arrangement of the Southern Presbyterian Church (which they are already proceeding to change) as one that we might imitate to an advantage, or at least as an excuse for keeping the Negroes in the unified Church—a course that would lead to the reversal of our own tested and well vindicated policy, which has been concurred in by practically every distinctively Southern denomination.

Negroes in the M. E. Church, South.

Dr. Ivey says: "When the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church was organized, in 1870, 13,263 (Negroes) remained with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In 1880 this number had dwindled to 1081; in 1890, to 534, and in 1897, to 253." All these, we suppose, were in the homeland. As the reader will readily see, if this rate of decrease has kept up, we have long since ceased to have any such members. We were told at Savannah (presumably because the "liberals" were anxious to find some such communicants as a means of helping to justify the course they had in view) that this question was raised at one of the meetings of the Southern Commissioners, and that Bishops who have been traveling over the Church for many years stated that they had never known of any colored members in any of our congregations in the United States. Yet Dr. Ivey has been writing as if there were enough of them to be taken into consideration as a factor in the union negotiations.

As to the Negro members of our Church in Africa, Cuba, and Brazil, the total number of our communicants (whites and all others) is so small that it is quite evident that it embraces only a very few Negroes. Indeed, the Doctor says that he only meant that the number was "relatively" large, though he did not use that restrictive adjective in his former statement. We doubt whether our brother could muster as many as a thousand in the three fields; yet seemingly he would make these few colored members in mission lands, where Church government is necessarily in a formative stage, furnish the ground for a reconstructing of our entire polity as it relates to hundreds of thousands of Negro Methodists in the Southern States, where the racial problem is admittedly one of the most perplexing that ever confronted any people.

While we are on this subject, we desire to say that we have not the slightest objection to our Church working to Christianize the Negroes in any land, and, if necessary, holding them for a time in the same organization with her white membership—on the contrary, we are glad to have her do so. Nor are we afraid that trouble may come as a result of such a course. When the Church, South, leads Negroes to Christ and keeps them under her instruction, the teaching given them is such that they know what attitude to assume toward their white brethren in any assembly, and if at any time or anywhere such communicants have ever behaved themselves in an unseemly and offensive manner we have never heard of it. One of the most striking things during the present Unification agitation has been the difference in the spirit shown by the Northern Methodist Negroes and those in the C. M. E. Church. No specific law is needed for the handling of any colored communicants that we may have, because the public sentiment that prevails among Southern Methodists, and the atmosphere springing from it, are sufficiently potent to keep things within due bounds and to effect any proper ends that may be desired. Moreover, it seems to be the policy of Southern Methodism to give self-government to her spiritual children in other lands as soon as they become sufficiently strong to stand alone, as was done in the case of Japan. If our Church escapes the present threatened engulfment by the Northern Methodists, and her missions in Cuba, Brazil, and Africa prosper, as it is to be hoped they will, doubtless she will exercise her beneficent influence to see that there is in the coming years an autonomous Church in each of those countries, enjoying the priceless blessings of religious freedom, unfettered by any far-away foreign control.

That Fancied Inconsistency.

Our distinguished brother appears to think that he has caught "the New Orleans Editor" in statements which are absurdly irreconcilable; but a close scrutiny of the Doctor's dialectic effort will show that the contradiction that he seeks to point out is only a seeming one. He has, in trying to makes out his case, performed the misleading feat of substituting one term for another in his implied premises, thus reaching a conclusion that is unfair and wholly unwarranted. The few colored members in our general Church membership at whom we did not "grimace" were in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, while the few colored delegates (including likely some colored sisters) in the General Conference, at whom we are said to have "grimaced," were (prospectively) in the well-nigh supreme lawmaking assembly of the Unified Church, overwhelmingly dominated by the Northern Methodists (whose way of dealing with Negroes is well known), which is altogether another thing. (We raised the question as to the exact number of colored members in our Church, not because of its bearing on our position—we knew it was not large enough to affect that—but because we felt that Dr. Ivey, in trying to prop his cause, was making statements that were so indefinite and inaccurate that they were calculated to mislead the public. We knew that if the figures were given the bubble that he had been so persistently flaunting would be effectively punctured.)

Furthermore, our "grimacing" was in perfect accord with the "grimacing" of our General Conference. That body has never manifested the least objection to any Negroes remaining in the general membership of our Church, but, in view of what would be involved in the way of General Conference representation, etc., in the united Church, it did "grimace" out, at its last session in Oklahoma City, the following emphatic pronouncement: "We recommend that the colored membership of the various Methodist bodies be formed into an INDEPENDENT organization, holding fraternal relations with the reorganized and united Church."

Moreover, if we have an aversion to Northern Methodist Negro delegates in the General Conference of the unified Church, the Rev. Thomas N. Ivey, D. D., is in part responsible, for his utterances have tended to fasten upon us the conviction that such a thing was not to be thought of. In the Nashville Christian Advocate of September 22, 1916, he said: "It would naturally be possible to start a propaganda for creating the impression among Southern Methodists * * * THAT NEGROES WILL BECOME OUR LAWMAKERS, etc., all in the name of Unification. Such talk, while it might have an unfortunate influence upon the Northern Commissioners, fortunately could not influence that minority of our Church who read the Church papers and keep up with what is going on. They would not believe such stuff; they know better."

Again in the Nashville Advocate on March 16, 1917, Dr. Ivey thus delivered himself: "However strongly inclined the Commissioners might be to disregard the argument of racial feeling with respect to making THE NEGRO A LAWMAKER IN OUR HIGHEST TRIBUNALS, it seems to us that, moving on the high plane of true Christian brotherhood, they would be held to the view of a separate organization by the loving but iron hand of what must be to them a very obvious fact. That fact is that the largest material, moral, and ecclesiastical welfare of the nearly two million Negro Methodists and the millions of Negroes whom in the future we expect to march under Methodist banners demands, apart from any race feeling whatsoever, an INDEPENDENT organization for the Negro in unified Methodism. It was this principle that actuated the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when its colored contingent was set off as the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. In applying this principle, we are not victimizing the Negro. We are looking to his highest interests."

Such has been the teaching that our beloved Chief Editor has given us; yet he now finds fault with us for standing by it. And it grieves us to state to our readers that, notwithstanding these strong utterances, he supported at Savannah the Rogers plan to have Negroes sit in the General Conference of the united Church as "lawmakers" for an indefinite time; and that it is currently reported that he now seems to be willing to substitute "may" for "shall" in that part of the pending scheme of Unification, and thus place Negro legislators in that powerful assembly to aid in making laws for the white Southern Methodists, not simply for an indefinite period, but most probably as long as the unified Church (if brought into being) shall continue to exist.

"The right kind of goodness is sure to be good for something."

AMENDMENT PROHIBITING LIQUOR SHIPPING ENDORSED.

Representatives of Several Parishes Support Anti-Saloon League Proposal.

Literature in support of the proposed eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which would after one year from the ratification of the article prohibit the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes within the United States, including importation into or exportation from the nation, is being circulated by the Anti-Saloon League of Louisiana.

The League announces that its campaign is meetlng with the approval of prominent men throughout the State, who are urging their representatives to ratify the amendment without delay. Among those who have expressed themselves in the literature being sent out as being heartily in favor of the amendment are:

THE AWFUL DEATH OF A BOOTLEGGER.

Mr. Editor:

On Friday, March 15, there was executed within the walls of the Receiving Station at Baton Rouge, La., ——— of the Parish of ———.

Never mind his name. It is the facts of his life which I desire to impress upon your readers, in hopes that the warning may prove beneficial to some person who may be profited thereby.

This man was 33 years old. He was a plain, unassuming country boy grown to maturity. He told his story to me, as thousands have done before, and I really believe every word of it. He told it to another minister as well as to me, and every word can be proven, should anyone question it in the least.

His story was as follows:

He was born in the country 33 years ago. He grew up, as most boys do, going to church, and at the age of 18 united with the Church of his choice. (Again, never mind the church he joined—suffice it to say it was one of the leading denominations.)

For several years this man lived his religion, then he stated that he began dancing and fell away from the performance of his duty. He soon grew cold and indifferent, and presently was as bad as though he had never joined any church at all.

Several years passed by, and he was employed to look after some timber interests. It was his duty to keep timber thieves from depredating upon a tract of timber of several thousand acres until the mills could get to it. He stated that he armed himself and made the appearance of a desperate man to frighten off the timber thieves. About this time there was a terrible murder committed, and he was accused of it. He was tried, but he stated that as he was in a different section of the parish at the time of the murder, he had no difficulty in proving an alibi and was acquitted.

This brought him to his senses, he stated, and he then became religious for the second time; but unfortunately for him he sought a position at public work, and being thrown into bad associations, drifted off again, and was soon worse than ever before.

He then became a "bootlegger." He lived in a certain parish, 32 miles from a certain saloon in another parish. He stated that this saloonkeeper would supply him with liquor to "bootleg," whether he had the money to pay for it, cash, or not. His credit was good. How long he was engaged in this business he did not state, but it was for some time at least. The prisoner stated before his execution that it was his habit to go there twice a week, get his supply of liquor, ride all night to his home parish, and, after resting a few hours, he would then begin to sell his stock, and continue selling until it was exhausted. Then another trip, etc.

Finally one nlght after he had left the saloon of Mr. ———, he stated, some one went there presumably about midnight and killed the saloonkeeper. It was a plain case of murder and robbery. As he had been suspected of a previous murder, and had left the place at eight o'clock in the early evening, he was suspected, arrested, tried, condemned, and hanged by the neck till he was dead, and afterwards this writer buried him.

He affirmed his innocence, with tears till the very last, and, as has been stated, he protested his innocence with tears to a prominent minister of Baton Rouge who very kindly, at my invitation, went out to see him the day before he was hanged.

Whether innocent or not, God only knows. I verily believe the poor unfortunate boy was. He had just been entangled in the nets of sin, and paid the penalty. As he stated himself, had he not been in the way of sin, he would never have been called upon to pay the awful penalty. Poor fellow! he left a wife and three little boys. He said he was going home to heaven. He prayed hard, and walked without fear to his death.

Conclusion: If it had not been for whiskey both men might be living to-day — the saloonkeeper and the man who was hanged. Question? Will not the people of Louisiana arise in their might and say this whiskey business shall cease? I pray God that our Legislature may ratify the proposed National Constitutional Amendment, and aid in the destruction of the accursed traffic. Reader, aid in this work all you possibly can.

A PROTEST AGAINST THE PROPOSED UNIFICATION.

(The Board of Stewards of the M. E. Church, South, at Kosciusko, have sent us the following duplicate of resolutions recently sent to Bishop Candler, with a request for their publication.—Ed. Advocate.)

To Bishop Warren A. Candler,
Atlanta, Ga.

We, the members of the Board of Stewards, First Methodist Church, Kosciusko station, North Mississippi Conference, representing, we believe, the sentiments of the 400 members of our Church, desire to register our earnest protest against the oft-discussed unification of the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church, South, according to the scheme set forth in the tentative constitution of the Joint Commission.

We believe in all that the M. E. Church, South, stands for. We rejoice in its glorious past, and are hopeful as to the service which it may render the Kingdom of God in the future under its present system. We are grateful for the evidences of divine approval that have ever marked its progress. We vigorously protest against any plan whatsoever the purpose of which is to promote "unification," "federation," or alignment according to the principles embodied in the tentative constitution presented by the Joint Commission.

We desire to enjoy the continued privilege of serving our Church, our God, and all humanity separate and alone, in that path wherein we have had his approving smiles for more than a half-century, and we earnestly request that you exercise in our behalf all the diligence and power at your command to secure to us unbroken THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, as it now stands, without any Regional Conferences such as have been suggested, or a practically supreme General Conference, or any change in its organization whatsoever in keeping with the tentative constitution devised by the Joint Commission.

Very respectfully,

JUDGE WHITE'S ADDRESS ON THE NEGRO QUESTION IN UNIFICATION.

Judge H. H. White's address to the recent session of the Joint Unification Commission, as published and commended by the editor in the New Orleans Advocate of the 7th inst., is evidently a state paper on this subject, from his standpoint, since not only is he a lawyer of first grade, but also, according to his statement, because he has been a student of this subject for thirty years. Accordingly, we decide that the last word has been said by those who would allow the Negro question to hinder union, and that if the Churches fail to unite because of this question, it will be because of the facts and principles enunciated by Judge White in this address. And, furthermore, according to the last evidence given out, if we fail to unite, it will be because of the Negro question, and therefore because of the phases of the question set forth in Judge White's address.

Since this address had but little evangelistic warmth, and was almost entirely of the cold, legalistic type, its virtue lies in its logic, and in its loyalty to the policy that he thinks the South holds with reference to the Negro line in State, in Church, and in society, and on this basis we as one who believes differently offer the following criticisms on the questions raised in Judge White's address:

(1) Judge White is not altogether correct as to the South's "settled policy" on the Negro question. One from the North hearing this address might have decided that in our section of the United States the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments of the Constitution did not hold, and that we claimed the power to set aside the suffrage rights of the Negroes as the occasion might suit us, and that in the South no Negroes were allowed to exercise the rights of citizenship. But such is not the case. Those who own $300 worth of property, or are literate, can vote even in Louisiana, in spite of the famous "grandfather clause" in the State Constitution; and they have just the same legal right to sit on the jury, sit on the judge's bench, or in the presidential chair, as does Judge White himself. And if Louisiana should have distinguished herself among the galaxy of States in depriving the Negro of his constitutional right to vote, it was for temporary prudential reasons, and an act in the nature of the policy of the famous "kuklux klan" of reconstruction days, and the almost daily acts of mob violence perpetrated upon this same simple, inoffensive, and dependent people, by lawless brutes, and could hardly be taken as a model for organizing and conducting the Church of God! And besides this, it is only a matter of taking the case before the proper courts that constitutional law and democratic justice would demand its repeal, as we are sure Judge White himself believes, the matter being allowed to remain statu quo for the time as a policy for hindering political sharkers in making gain of the present ignorance of the Negro race.

At this time of the greatest of all wars to protect the democracy of the weaker races and nations, it is especially ill advised to make much ado about the cold-handed taking away of the political rights of one of the many American races that is giving of its sons to die for the cause of democracy. We wonder what answer Judge White would make to the justifiable possible taunts of Prussianism at this policy of the "solid South" in the matter of democracy?

Aside from the political phases of the question, there is no "solid South" in the matter of ostracising Negroes from the membership of the various churches, for most of them actually have large numbers of colored members, and if there is one that forbids them membership we are not aware of the fact. We are certain that the Catholic Church has them in large numbers, and they are exactly in the same relation as the white members, receiving the sacraments from the same priests as do the white members, and we personally know one priest who has an entire congregation of Negroes, just as Capers and other honored ministers of our Church used to have. And then there is the large membership of the M. E. Church that not only belongs to the same church with the whites, but, like the Catholics, has the same rights of church membership, from the service of the Bishops down—and the most of them in the "solid South." Now, will Judge White explain to us how such can be the case, in view of what he contends is "the settled and proper policy of the South?"

And if the "South" does not tolerate such a policy, why is it that the M. E. Church and the Catholic Church are each making such rapid gains in the South? (And at the same time he might drop in a word as to why the gains in the "stand pat" Southern church becomes almost yearly more few.) And again, in view of such a policy for the Southern Church how could we expect members of the M. E. Church, coming South, to feel welcomed into our Church; or if we should be so unfortunate as to migrate beyond the Mason and Dixon line, how could we think of joining "a nigger" church, according to Judge White's school of Methodists? It would seem to us that if as a pastor we held the same view of the question of Negro

FLUFF.

By Myrtle Sours.

O, little cat Fluff, how sweet you are—
All dressed in your tiger silk,
With your long black tail all marked in rings
And tipped as white as milk!

How bright are the eyes in the little cat head,
How soft is your rhythmic purr;
How sharp are the claws in the little cat paws,
And how warm is your coat of fur!

O, little cat Fluff, with his tinkling bell
Hung on a ribbon red,
Is fast asleep on the kitchen lounge
With his paws beneath his head.

DOING THE WORK OF AN ANGEL.

W. H. Engler.

Into a very elegant palace car entered a weary-faced, poorly-dressed woman with three children, one a baby in her arms. A look of joy crept into her face as she sat down in one of the luxurious chairs; but it was quickly dispelled as she was asked rudely to "go to another car." A smile of amusement was seen on several faces as the frightened group hurried out to one of the common cars. Upon one young face, however, there was a look which shamed the countenance of the others.

"Auntie," said the boy to the lady beside him, "I am going to carry my basket of fruit and this box of sandwiches to the poor woman in the next car. You are willing, of course?"

"Don't be foolish, dear. You may need them yourself; and perhaps the woman is an impostor."

"No, I'll not need them," he answered decidedly, but in a very low tone. "You know I had a hearty breakfast, and don't need a lunch. The woman looked hungry, auntie, and so tired, too, with three little babies clinging to her. I'll be back in a minute, auntie. I know mother wouldn't like it if I didn't speak a kind word to the least of these when I met them."

The worldly aunt brushed a tear from her eye after the boy left her, and said, audibly, "Just like his dear mother."

About five minutes later, as the lady passed the mother and three children, she saw a pretty sight—the family feasting as perhaps they had never done before. The dainty sandwiches were eagerly eaten; the fruit basket stood open. The eldest child, with his mouth filled with bread and butter, said: "Was the pretty boy an angel, mamma?"

"No," answered the mother; and a grateful look brightened her faded eyes; "but he is doing an angel's work, bless his dear heart!"

And we, too, said, "Bless his dear heart!"

EATING HIS WAY.

Freddie despised the multiplication table. It made you ache all over to say your tables, and you couldn't remember.

Mother went out of the room. When she came back, she had a glass jar of tiny colored candies. She opened it, and poured out a splendid heap on the tablecloth.

"Now," said she, brightly, "here are five little candy dots in a row. Here are eight rows. How many candy dots?"

"Forty," promptly.

"Yes. Now make seven times five and four times five and the rest. When you have made the whole table, learn it. When you have learned it, eat it!"

"Oh!"

It was the most splendid way to learn your tables. Freddie went to work with a will, and, when the teacher—his mother—said, "School's out," he had learned his five table. He didn't eat it till after school.

The next day they went back and reviewed the two tables, and the next day after the three, and the next day after that, the four.

One day the next-door twins' teacher was making their mother a call. Freddie was making one on the next-door twins.

"Don't you go to school, little boy?" the teacher asked him.

"Oh, yes'm," politely.

"Oh, you do? Well, I suppose you think the multiplication table is perfectly dreadful, too," she asked, smilingly.

"Oh, no'm," eagerly. "I'm very fond of mine."

"Indeed! How far along are you?"

"I've eaten only as far as seven times seven yet," said Freddie; and he went home wondering why the next-door twins' teacher had opened her eyes so wide.—Annie H. Donnell, in Youth's Companion.

HOW THE TELESCOPE WAS DISCOVERED.

"You think our new telescope is very wonderful, Hal, but I don't believe you can tell me how the first one was discovered," remarked the owner of the instrument through which the boy was gazing.

"Why, no!" cried he, turning toward his father, "I never even gave it a thought; but you tell me about it, please, daddy."

"Well, son, it was a mere accident," replied the father, "and it came about through the curiosity of a boy smaller than yourself. He was the son of an optician who lived in Holland. He loved to play about his father's work-bench, and often amused himself by looking at the sea through the little concave glasses which his father used in his work. Now one day it happened that the boy, while playing with two of these glasses, chanced to hold them before his eyes in such a way that the face of the cathedral clock seemed very near. This, of course, surprised the lad, for the clock was really so far away that he could scarcely distinguish the hands with his naked eyes. He stared at the clock and then at the glasses, each of which he tried in turn; but the clock was as far away as ever, and so it remained, turn them as he would, until by chance again he held them both up together when, lo! as if by magic, the clock stood almost beside him, and he exclaimed, 'Oh, I know! I know! It's the two together!'"

"I guess he told his father the next thing," observed Hal. "That's what I'd have done."

"Yes, he ran to his father at once and excitedly told him of his remarkable discovery, though the boy did not realize how great it was or how it would benefit the world. The father tried the glasses in the way the boy told him, and found that he could bring the great church clock nearer.

"And so, Hal, this was the way the people learned that putting a concave and a convex glass together in just the right position would make distant objects seem near. Without this knowledge we should never have had the telescope, and without it we should have known little of the sun, moon and stars."

"Lots of our wonderful things were found out in some such way, weren't they, daddy?" queried Hal.

"Yes, many of them were discovered by mere accident, and I'll tell you about some others later on."—Laura E. Hutchinson, in "Zion's Herald."

A LITTLE ERRAND GIRL.

Hester loved to do errands for her mother. One day she had been talking with her mother about God, when she quickly raised her head, with a bright look in her eyes, and said: "Why, mother, then God is sending us on errands all the time. I am his little errand girl, too."

"Yes, dear; he has given us errands to do, and plenty of time to do them, and a Book written full to show us how. Every day we can tell Him how we try to do them, and ask Him to help us; so when He calls us, we will run to meet Him and give Him our account."

"I like that," the child said, nestling back in her comfortable seat; "I like to be God's little errand girl."—Child's Gem.

SEVEN CANDLES TO PROVIDE ONLY LIGHT IN METHODIST CHURCH.

The light of seven candles, significant of the seven words of Christ spoken from the cross, will form the only illumination at solemn services in Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church, Louisiana Avenue and Magazine Street, at 7:45 p. m., Friday March 29. The seven words of Christ will be spoken by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, and at each word a candle will be extinguished, the services closing in darkness. "The Seven Candles" will be the subject of the sermon.—New Orleans Item.

ARMENIAN RELIEF FUND.

Brother James Hand, of Purvis, Miss., has forwarded to us the following contributions to the Armenian Relief Fund, which have been forwarded to Dr. E. B. Chappell, Nashville, Tenn., who is in charge of this relief movement in our Church: Mrs. M. O. Jordan, $2.50; Mrs. C. L. Spotswood, $5; Mr. James Hand, $12.50; Total, $20.

Bracing as a North Wind

AT the end of a hard day, just sit down to a cup of Luzianne Coffee. See how you pick up with every savory sip. Luzianne is far, far different from any other coffee. It's got something that all the others seem to lack. And it's packed in dust-proof, moisture-proof cans that bring Luzianne to your kitchen just the same as when it left the roaster. Buy a can and try it for yourself. An iron-clad, air-tight guarantee says that if you are not entirely satisfied with Luzianne, your grocer will give you back your money. And he will.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.

All copy submitted for publication should be legibly written on one side of the paper with pen and ink, or typewritten. Matter written with a lead pencil and rolled manuscripts are unacceptable. No copy will be returned unless postage is enclosed for that purpose. In no case will responsibility be assumed for the loss or non-return of articles—the writers should keep copies of them. We do not purchase matter of any kind.

KNOWLEDGE, NOT OPINIONS, NEEDED.

Touching upon the wavering and uncertain deliverances now heard from many pulpits, The Presbyterian pertinently says:

"These middle-of-the-road friends reduce the message of the Christian Church to an opinion, and finally to agnosticism. Now the Church is on the witness stand, and if she has only opinions and does not know, she ought frankly to say so, and to leave the stand and take her place squarely with the agnostic. If she believes that there may be salvation in another message, then she has no special message to give, and should keep silent."

ENCOURAGING.

We have been pleased to note that some accounts of successful revivals are beginning to find their way into our office. We trust that these will prove to be forerunners of a great many such reports this spring. The Church's best and most important work, though it may not attract as much attention as some other showy activities, is that of soul-winning. It is not written that the inhabitants of Heaven are specially happy over any material achievement that church people may accomplish; but it is declared in the Divine Revelation that "there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." This, we may be sure, is the work that lies closest to the Master's heart, and it is a work that will endure when marble and brass and the most majestic structures of earth shall have crumbled into dust.

PRESENT-DAY HEROISM.

True heroism does not by any means belong wholly to the bygone ages. On the contrary, there are doubtless more exhibitions of it in this day than in any former period of the world's history. Along with the many brutal deeds being perpetrated in the awful war now raging, are being witnessed many acts that deserve to be chronicled in letters of gold. The Outlook of March 20 describes two instances of this kind. The first is taken from Coningby Dawson's 'Carry On':

"During one fierce engagement a British officer saw a German officer impaled on the barbed wire, writhing in anguish. The fire was dreadful, yet he still hung there unscathed. At length the British officer could stand it no longer. He said, quietly: 'I can't bear to look at that poor chap any longer.' So he went out under the hail of shell, released him, took him on his shoulders, and carried him to the German trench. The firing ceased. Both sides watched the act with wonder. Then the commander in the German trench came forward, took from his own bosom the Iron Cross, and pinned it on the breast of the British officer. Such an episode is true to the holiest ideals of chivalry; and it is all the more welcome because the German record is stained by so many acts of barbarism which the world cannot forgive."

The other instance is as follows:

"Another magnanimous deed has just taken place on this side of the Atlantic. The other day, on the coast at the Cape May aviation station, Ensign Walker Weed, one of the first aviators to be graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and one of the best fliers in the corps, was driving a service hydro-airplane. When the plane was about fifty feet above level, the wire which controlled the steering apparatus broke. The plane plunged down. When it struck land, there was a back-fire, and the three gasoline tanks exploded, enveloping the machine and its occupants in a whirlwind of flame. Weed unstrapped himself and, with his clothes afire, ran towards the ocean, but before reaching it looked back to see if his companion, William Bennett, was following. Bennett was still bound to the plane. Weed ran back, and finally extricated Bennett. By this time both aviators were burning to death, the flames being so fierce that the crystal of Weed's wrist watch was melted off. They struggled towards the sea. Bennett fell, breaking his nose, and, though Weed stumbled too, he succeeded in dragging the still helpless Bennett into the water, where they were freed from fire, rescued by brother officers, and hurried to the base hospital. At first it was thought Bennett would recover, though his legs had been burned practically to the bone. He died, however, a week later. Weed died immediately, his death being due not so much to his fearful burns as to the result of inhaling flames."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. J. L. Carter has a meeting in progress at Howison, Miss., with Rev. W. T. Griffin doing the preaching. Prof. Harmon and his wife are assisting in the singing. Brother Carter is said to be in great favor with his people.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham is pleased with the progress of his work at Kosciusko, Miss. The various departments of the church are manifesting commendable activity, and the stewards have increased the assessment for the pastor $200.

In a communication bringing us 7 subscriptions, for which he has our thanks, Rev. Melville Johnson, of Hernando, Miss., says: "Our work is altogether pleasant these days. We are giving all our spare time to the Government in the great campaigns that are now on."

From a personal letter from Dr. E. B. Chappell, of Nashville, Tenn., we take the following item of interest: "I am glad to report that up to date (March 30) we have raised through our Sunday schools about $43,000 to help the victims of Turkish barbarity in Bible lands."

Texas Avenue Church, of Shreveport, La., of which Rev. F. R. Power is pastor, has just closed a successful revival meeting conducted by Dr. A. C. Holder, one of our general evangelists. The results in the addition of members and in the general uplift of the church were very gratifying.

Rev. P. F. Luter, of Tchula, Miss., says: "I have no complaints to make. The indications are that the Tchula church will go 'over the top' this year in unbroken formation." We are not surprised to learn that success is attending the labors of this gifted and diligent young pastor.

We have received from Friar's Point, Miss., a list of 7 subscriptions. Rev. Standifer Raper, our popular young pastor there, states that we are indebted to Miss Katie Robinson for this good work in behalf of our paper. He also reports that the outlook for a good year in his field is encouraging.

Rev. W. W. Drake, pastor of the Noel Memorial Church, of Shreveport, La., secured Rev. Thurston B. Price for a meeting which began on Easter Sunday. This church has made rapid progress during the last two or three years, and is now one of the leading appointments of the Louisiana Conference.

Rev. J. C. Price, our capable pastor at Belcher, La., began a revival meeting at that place on Sunday, March 24, with the assistance of Rev. Walt Holcomb, one of our general evangelists. A correspondent who attended the opening service writes that the indications pointed to a great meeting.

Rev. W. T. Griffin sends us 2 subscriptions from Summit, Miss., and in his business letter thus remarks: "Having taken the Summit work since Rev. W. N. Thomas left, I am at my old home and am happy to serve this people. We are hopeful of accomplishing good things for the Kingdom."

Rev. H. T. Carley, a member of the faculty of Centenary College, requests us to say that he will be glad to assist in a number of revival meetings during the summer vacation at any time that will not conflict with the date of the Seashore Divinity School. He may be reached by a letter addressed to Shreveport, La., in care of Centenary College.

Rev. R. P. Neblett, of Como, Miss., sends us a program of an "Efficiency Conference" scheduled to be held at Tyro, Miss., March 29-31, the following charges participating therein: Arkabutla, Coldwater, Wall Hill, Tyro, Senatobia, and Como. The announced order of exercises indicated that a pleasant and profitable meeting was in store for these workers.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

REV. T. J. BAILEY, D.D.,
Box 314 JACKSON, MISS.

We are informed that Bishop Hoss is cherishing the hope of being able to meet the Unification Commission in St. Louis on April 10. We feel sure that it will be fortunate for our Church if he can. There are few men of the caliber of this great Southerner in any land. And when he is away, it is a case of no one being able to bend the bow of Ulysses.

We received last week, after our paper was off the press, the following sad message from Rev. Robert H. Barr, of Foxworth, Miss., written on March 27: "Mrs. Barr left us this morning for the home above. Pray for us. A memoir will follow soon." Our heart goes out in tender sympathy to our bereaved brother. May divine grace comfort and sustain him and the other stricken loved ones!

Rev. R. V. Fulton, of Pineville, La., in a business letter to our office, says: "We have let the contract for a new church, to be located on the main street in Pineville. It is to be a frame structure, built on a modern plan. This has been made necessary by the need of a better equipped building in this growing town." We congratulate Brother Fulton and his flock upon this forward movement.

Centenary College has just closed the second term of the current session's work. The war has cut down somewhat the number of college students in attendance, but an increased number of high school students makes the total enrollment larger this year than last. The Commencement sermon will be preached on June 2 by Dr. Sam R. Hay, of Texas. Rev. W. W. Holmes, of this city, will preach the annual Y. M. C. A. sermon.

Rev. E. M. Shaw, of Houston, Miss., writes us as follows: "Our work is doing finely. We conducted an Every-Member Canvass recently which resulted in $110 in cash, and $140 in subscriptions. I believe that this charge is going to pay everything in full. The pastor's salary is paid up to date. We are hard at work preparing and praying for a revival. We expect our meeting to begin on April 28 and continue until May 12."

Rev. R. O. Brown, of Clarksdale, Miss., March 30, writes: "We are in the midst of a great revival campaign here, with Evangelists Andrews and Curry leading our forces. Large crowds are attending the services and the prospects are good for a great meeting. To-morrow is to be a great day with us. We will unveil a 'service flag,' on which there are 15 stars. I ask the prayers of the Advocate's readers that our meeting may be a great success."

Dr. T. H. Bailey, Superintendent of the Mississippi Anti-Saloon League, sends us the following: "At the recent meeting of the State Anti-Saloon League, Rev. J. M. Morse was unanimously elected President of the League to fill a vacancy caused by the death of the lamented Captain W. T. Ratliff; and Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., of Brookhaven, Miss., was unanimously elected a member of the Board of Directors of the League, succeeding Captain Ratliff (deceased) in that position. Dr. Cooper ranks with the foremost educators of Mississippi, and he and Mr. Morse are recognized as two of the State's foremost citizens, as well as able ministers."

The following note from Rev. D. W. Babb, March 27, reached us last week: "My precious wife ascended to her heavenly home at 12:20 o'clock p.m. to-day. Pray for your bereft brother." It was not our privilege to know Sister Babb personally, but we have heard others speak of her worth and how well she filled the trying place of an itinerant preacher's wife. We feel deeply for Brother Babb in his great sorrow, and we earnestly pray that the precious hopes of the Gospel, with which he has so often comforted others, may be his sufficient stay in this trying hour. We trust that some one will furnish the Advocate with a fitting memoir of the deceased in the near future.

Rev. J. A. Alford, our capable pastor at Mangham, La., thus writes the Editor: "Do all you can to prevent the consummation of the pending scheme of union. I fear that we are on the verge of a perilous moment in the history of our great Church." Our friend is, in our opinion, correct as to the seriousness of the situation. We think that the manner in which the negotiations have been conducted has been far from satisfactory, so far as the Church, South, is concerned. The Editor hopes that between now and the time of the meeting of the General Conference he may be able to review the whole procedure, including the developments at both Evanston, Ill., and Tate Springs, Tenn. There is much that has not yet been told to the public.

ALGIERS CHURCH ENTERPRISE.

Dear Brother Meek: Since I wrote you my last letter, in which I asked for $4,000 for our storm-wrecked church, I have received some subscriptions to that fund:

A. Donaldson, $50; T. J. Ferguson.$10; Rev. C. B. Carter, $25; Jas. Boyd, $10; C. O. Chalmers, $5; W. B. Thompson, $50; City Epworth League, $50; Carrollton Mis. Society, $10; Covington congregation, $10; Dr. Geo. S. Brown, $5; S. H. Meyer, $10; Mrs. J. H. Snyder, $10; Geo. Goodall, $10; I. N. Neibergall, $10; C. F. Neibergall, $10; Rev. W. A. Mangum, $5; Miss Gibson St. Mark's Hall, $5; Mrs. J. A. Alford, $5; Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., $5; Mrs. U. G. Foote, $10; St. Mark's Junior Missionary Society, $5; Rev. R. M. Brown, $5; Ladies' Aid, McDonoghville, $5; W. B. Summers, $5; Rev. W. H. Coleman, $10; C. H. Wasson, $10; J. H. Stafford, $1; Miss Lutz, $1. Total $352. We are suffering. Help us out with this $4,000.

GOOD FOR RUSTON.

Brother W. E. Upchurch, of Ruston, La., writing under date of April 1, says: "The Ruston Church went 'over the top' last Sunday for the Orphanage. The free-will offering in the Sunday school was $300, and in the church $117. Fourteen members were received into the Church." Rev. J. G. Snelling is the capable pastor of our church at Ruston.

CONCERNING UNIFICATION.

(Resolutions against Unification, passed by the Board of Stewards of the Ackerman, Miss., Church, March 28, 1918.)

Whereas, the question of Unification has been discussed from time to time, which discussion of said question, in our opinion, has resulted in nothing good for our beloved Church; and

Whereas, the question has now reached the point where all loyal Southern Methodists should express themselves, because of the tentative constitution agreed upon by the Joint Commission, and because of the approach of the session of the General Conference; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Board of Stewards of the Ackerman Methodist Church, South, That it is the sense of this body, and we hereby express our disapproval of the tentative constitution as set forth in the report of the Joint Commission, because said plan, if it should be ratified by the General Conference, would mean an absolute surrender of practically all the Southern Church has stood for throughout a long and glorious history; it would mean and amount to a turning over of our beloved Church into the hands of the North and the West, with practically no power to control our own affairs—with virtually no semblance of the right of self-government, and with no possible protection against an overwhelming Northern majority. The said plan not only leaves the Negro in the Church and gives him a vital hold upon the machinery of the new organization, but under this proposed system of united Methodism everything for which our forefathers have fought and stood for since 1844 must be relegated and scattered to the four winds. It is the sincere wish of this Board, and we believe it to be the fond hope of an overwhelming majority of the members of our Church throughout Dixie, that the General Conference will repudiate this plan outlined by the Joint Commission, and will not vote its approval to any of the schemes of unification that have been proposed; but that it will listen to the voice of reason and justice, and not ignore the true sentiments and feelings of the vast majority of the laymen throughout Southern Methodism, upon whom the financial burdens of our great Church rests.

Resolved further, That we unhestitatingly endorse the great fight waged against unification by the brilliant editor of our Conference organ, Dr. R. A. Meek; who in his discussion has been courageous, true to the teachings of the fathers; who has never allowed the flag of Southern Methodism to trail the dust, and who has the backing of the great masses of our Church.

MRS. W. H. BARR DEAD.

Dear Brother Meek: Sister Barr, the wife of Rev. R. H. Barr, of the Mississippi Conference, quietly fell asleep this morning at 2 o'clock. The last days of her life were most triumphant. A suitable memoir will be prepared later by some one.

A WORD OF EXHORTATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: Rev. R. P. Fikes holds the banner on the collections. He reported 46 per cent of all the collections ordered by the Conference. What he has done every preacher in the Jackson District could have done. Brethren, please push these claims and send the amounts to the Treasurers. Don't forget the Conference Claimants.

NOT RESTRICTED TO THE COLORED BRETHREN.

A recent issue of The Outlook contained the following:

"A colored minister of the Baptist Church, so runs a story told in the 'Christian Register,' in order to strengthen and confirm the faith of his congregation, took as his text: 'In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea.' 'Oh,' said he, 'how I like to read these precious words in the blessed Bible! You don't read anywhere about John the Presbyterian, or John the Methodist, or John the Episcopalian. No, brethren, it is John the Baptist.'"

This argument, which seems to have greatly amused our distinguished contemporary, has not by any means been restricted to use by our colored brethren.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed. Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

Our Advocate Campaign.

Our Advocate Campaign is keeping up well. Both the Publisher and the Editor greatly appreciate the interest which so many of the brethren are showing in this movement. March has been a good month—shall we not make April equally as good? May we not again express the earnest hope that our pastors will actively aid us in securing the renewal of the subscriptions now expiring in their charges? This is a matter of great importance.

FROM OUR WORKERS.

Rev. E. M. Shaw, of Houston, Miss., gives us 8 new and 5 renewal subscriptions. He says: "They say 13 is an unlucky number, but, as I am not closing my list, I hope to change it." This fine list comes from the wide-awake Aberdeen District.

Rev. W. R. Williams, our excellent pastor at Buena Vista, Miss., in a letter bringing us 9 additional subscriptions, thus comments: "This makes my full quota of new subscribers, but I do not intend to stop at this. There will be more to follow."

In giving us 7 names for our mailing files, Rev. C. B. Powell, of Blenville, La., says: "You may count on me for another list in the near future. May God bless you and be with you in your work. You are giving us a most excellent paper, and every Methodist in the State should read it."

Dr. Rolfe Hunt forwards us 6 subscriptions (3 of them new) from Bay Springs, Miss., for which we extend to him and his assistants our thanks. Dr. Hunt thus remarks: "I hope to send more soon. A committee is at work at Bay Springs, and I am appointing committees at other points, to follow up my personal appeals."

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been elsewhere made, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. W. D. Wendel, Sardis, Miss., 4; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison Station, Miss., 2; Rev. F. L. Applewhite, Sharon, Miss., 8; Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Pleasant Hill, La., 4; Rev. W. W. Nelson, Wesson, Miss., 2; Rev. D. C. Farmer, D'Lo, Miss., 3.

SHORTHAND IN THREE DAYS

is what we could advertise, and can back it up, for the principles of The Institute system, which consists of the alphabet, fifteen wordsigns, fourteen rules and seven double characters, may be learned by a bright boy or girl in less than three days, but six weeks or two months must be spent writing and reading, in order to become familiar with it, and to write without hesitation: Therefore, we only guarantee to teach you in three months, or refund the price—only ten dollars. Positions secured. THE INSTITUTE SYSTEM OF SHORTHAND, 3504 Magazine Street, New Orleans, La.

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

JAMES IRA CHANDLER was born on May 28, 1896, in Winston County, Miss. His parents moved to Copiah County when he was only three years old. The death angel visited their home, took his father, and left him an orphan boy; so he worked and managed to get to be a grown man. On July 26, 1915, he was married to Miss Beatrice Johnson, and one dear, sweet boy was born into their home. On Feb. 3, 1918, he was called to his home beyond. He suffered more than any one I ever saw, but he was so patient and kind and he did not complain. On Thursday before the Sunday on which he died he said that he was ready to die. Every one who knew him loved him. He leaves a mother, two brothers, four sisters, and a wife and baby to mourn the death of their loved one. But we must all remember that our loss is his eternal gain. "Good-by, Ira, but not forever. We expect to meet you some day in the sweet by-and-by."

His brother,
J. G. JOHNSON.

MRS. FRANCES LOUISE CAIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Henley, died on Feb. 2, 1918. She was born on Dec. 9, 1892, and was married to Mr. Haley H. Cain, of Prairie, Miss., on June 24, 1912. She had given her heart to Christ and had joined the Methodist Church when a girl, and had ever since been a devoted Christian, always ready to render service in the Master's cause. She leaves a husband, two little boys, a father and mother, three sisters, and three brothers, who are deeply grieved at her going. She will be greatly missed in her own home, and in her father's home too, for, being the oldest child and possessing such a bright, cheerful disposition, she was especially loved. She often led in the music at the church, and how it grieves us that we will not hear her dear, sweet voice again. All that skilled physicians and gentle nursing could do was done for her, but without avail. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. R. Williams at her father's home, where her death occurred, as she took sick while there on a visit. It was so sad to us who had seen her in the same room just a few short years before as a beautiful bride. The interment was at Soule's Chapel cemetery. May the hand of Him who rules the world help her loved ones and friends to prepare to meet her where there will be no sad partings!

HER FRIEND.

A LANDMARK GONE.

"In the burning of the old brick church at Redbone, Warren County lost one of its oldest landmarks.

"The old church had quite an interesting history. On March 8, 1836, Jessie Evans and wife deeded to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 2¾ acres of land for church purposes. A plank church was first erected on this land, but in 1857 this was torn down and the brick church, just destroyed by fire, was put in its place. To get the brick to build this church Ben and Joel Hullum, two brothers living at Redbone, took their slaves and built a brick kiln on the church grounds, and made and burned the brick there that built the church.

"During the Civil War the Federal soldiers took possession of the church, and for several years it was used by them for a hospital.

"Some of the oldest as well as the most prominent ministers in the Methodist Church have occupied the pulpit. Among others, Tobias Gibson, Bishop Charles B. Galloway, C. K. Marshall, Dr. Andrews, Dr. A. F. Watkins, and our own dear Dr. Holloman. One of the oldest, if not the oldest, cemeteries in Warren County lies just back of the church; graves a hundred years old, with their monuments still standing, are there. The first man buried there was David Greenleaf in the year 1812 and many a Federal soldier lies there in a forgotten grave.

"All bleak and bare, its walls stand there,
Like a corpse, when the soul has fled,
But 'tis only sleeping in our Father's keeping,
And in triumph 'twill rise again."

The above clipping, taken from a local paper, explains itself. The old Redbone Church was destroyed by fire in March, 1918. The brick walls are still good and can be used. It is the intention of the members to put the church back as near like the original as possible, and we are asking every minister who has ever occupied the pulpit in the old church to read this little clipping to his congregation and take up a collection to help replace the church. Send this collection by money order on Vicksburg postoffice. Address Mrs. Emma S. Fortner, Cedars, Warren County, Miss. (Route 1).

HELP IN REVIVALS.

Several young preachers, song evangelists, and pianists, attending Meridian College would like to be of assistance to pastors in holding revivals and camp-meetings during vacations. Occasionally one can spare ten days during the College session for a revival. Some of the young men have been pastors before coming to college and are experienced, successful preachers with a burning love for souls and a longing to be used in the Master's service. Quite a few were busy last summer and in other vacations, holding revivals or directing song services and helping in altar work, and hundreds were saved under their ministry. Two of our young men yoked together for the summer and did a great work. In one meeting there were 78 professions of salvation.

The college pastor, a strong preacher, a college graduate with post-graduate course, a fine singer and leader of song, very efficient and acceptable in city or country church, will be available for meetings during the summer vacations.

Any pastor or camp-meeting committee needing their services may write the College and we shall be glad to put them in communication with some one suitable, if available.

This has been the most prosperous and successful year the College has had in many years. It has the finest student body in its history, and is doing the best work of its existence.

The spring revival begins April 5, lasting ten days, conducted by Rev. C. H. Babcock of Los Angeles, Calf. We ask praying people to remember us at this time. We had a great revival in the fall, but still there are many unsaved that we long to see reached.

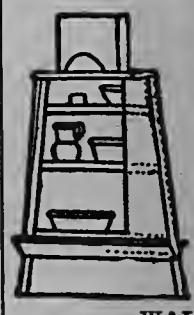
GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE



Make beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.—Adv.

Comb Sage Tea in Hair To Darken It

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy, and yothful with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Less Meat if Back And Kidneys Hurt

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Baked in old-fashioned pan Baked in Pyrex.

Bakes bread an inch higher

These loaves were made from the same amount of dough and baked in the same sized pans in the same oven at the same time.

Try this test yourself with any ordinary pan and Pyrex. You will be amazed at the difference!

When you cook in an ordinary pan, only one-third the oven heat reaches the food. All the oven heat floods through Pyrex. Every food baked in Pyrex is more evenly, thoroughly, deliciously cooked.

Dealers everywhere sell Pyrex. Each dish is guaranteed not to break in the oven. It lasts a lifetime. Try your first dish today. You will say it cooks so much better, is so much cleaner, so much more beautiful, that you will never again use an old-fashioned pan.

JUDGE WHITE'S ADDRESS.

membership as does Judge White, we would never be willing to give a church letter to be deposited in the M. E. Church, nor ask a member of the M. E. Church to unite with the Southern Church. And aside from the relations of the other Churches in the "solid" South, our own should either repudiate the doctrine set forth in Judge White's address, or else withdraw its missionaries from making and receiving members in Africa. And by the way, we wonder what attitude Bishop Lambuth who trudged through Africa on foot with Prof. J. W. Gilbert, his Negro friend and co-laborer, and the missionaries who are now caring for the missions that they established among the African Negroes, think of this paramount hindrance to the universally desired Methodist union?

2. Again, Judge White stands on quick-sandy ground in setting forth that the thing for which he contends involves only a matter of race, and not of caste or charactor. That seems to be his apology for justifying his type of democratic Americanism. But why pick out this one race among all the Americans, and the only one brought here under constraint by the force of the white man? As, for instance, why ostracise the Negroes politically, socially, and ecclesiastically, and not apply the same rule to Mexicans, or the Chinese? The same amount of money and effort spent in evangelizing and educating these yellow and brown races would have yielded tenfold more, we are persuaded, if the expenditure had been put forth in behalf of the Negroes. As it is these races are religiously progressing slowly, while the Negroes, in spite of all of their handicaps, are fast taking rank with the most religious and progressive of all the races of the earth. And if anywhere in the world, it would seem that being religious would give an individual or a race a right in the Church.

And, furthermore, what does Judge White mean when he repeats in his Methodist creed that he "believes in the holy catholic Church?" If he can exclude from this "catholic" membership an African, why not a Mexican, an Indian, a Chinese? Or how would it do to have our missionaries, in introducing the gospel to other races, first deliver a series of lectures on "Caucasian supremacy," as per Judge White's idea? And then as a matter of consistency, we think we should eliminate the article on the catholicity in the creed, and let the Roman Catholics, the Episcopalians, the Presbyterians and others who have all races in their membership take this glory from us.

3. Again, after asserting in the strongest terms the desirability of union, and that he "sees many powerful reasons for bringing it about," the case that he made out against it on the Negro question is entirely too weak for a legally-minded statesman like Judge White; it is the acknowledgment that the greatest possible advance in the Church of Jesus Christ should be hindered because of a most unaccountable prejudice, almost bordering on hatred, that has existed against any race of people since the Lord spoke the parable of the Good Samaritan. At the bar of reason, is this prejudice justifiable against the racially most loyal neighbor the white man of the South ever had, and who has patterned after him in matters religious more than has any other race on earth? Can the defeat of this almost realized union be justified at the bar of Almighty God on the sole ground of our Church taking the role of the conscienceless politician and defeating it to maintain "Caucasian supremacy?" We wonder what these religious "Caucasian supremists" will do when they get to heaven, where there is only one "supreme" One?

4. As to caring for the members of the other colored Churches that Judge White gave a good deal of attention to in his address, it strikes us that he is crossing the bridge before he gets to it, since the care of other church members than those of the two Methodisms negotiating is not yet up, though by the appointment of the recent Committee of Unification by the Bishops of the C. M. E., A. M. E., and A. M. E. Zion Churches, it may be before the General Conference meets in May. But could not the United Church handle this as well as the present Joint Commission? The fact is that when the General Conference of the United Church gets into session, it will take care of all such questions with the same ease that the present General Conferences do, and about all the present Commission can do will be to recommend some "restrictive rules," somewhat after those in our Discipline at present, and leave detailed organization to the General Conference. At any rate, it will be time enough to worry over these other Methodisms — Methodist Protestant, Congregational Methodist, and all — when they have knocked at the door, or have been invited into the united Methodist family.

In conclusion, Judge White accepted the honor and the responsibility of serving on a Joint Commission to unite, not to keep disunited, the two great Episcopal Methodisms. Did he, the Editor of the Advocate and others like-minded, go to Savannah to work out a plan of union, or to hinder the one that others were trying to work out? In reading his recent editorials on the results of the recent sitting of the Commission in the Advocate, we had the impression that the Editor's discussion indicated that he was there as a detective to hinder union, rather than a Commissioner to bring it about. And while Judge White's declarations are strongly in favor of union, in view of his seeming sympathy with the editorial management of the Advocate on unification, nothing being said of any program of constructive work that he had a part in making, it would now be in order, we think, for the Advocate to publish some sketches of constructive work done by this faction of the Commissioners, that they might thus give an account of the "stewardship" for which they were put on the Commission.

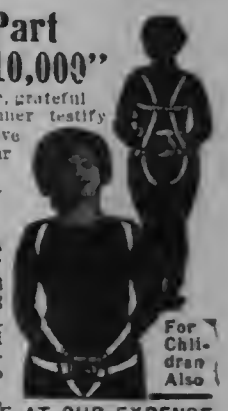
REAL FOOD NEEDED.



I know from experience the intellectual distinctions of scientific association and philosophic speculation and artistic pleasures, but am also aware that even when all are taken together and well sweetened to taste in respect to comfort, reputation, means, social justice, etc., the whole concoction is but as high confectionery to a starving man. He may cheat himself for a time with the belief that he is nourishing himself by denying his natural appetite, but soon finds he was made for some altogether different kind of food, even though of much less tastefulness as far as the palate is concerned. There is a vacuum in the soul of man which nothing can fill save faith in God.—G. T. Romanes.

FROM BROTHER NEBLETT.

Dear Dr. Meek: It was our pleasure to spend a day at Courtland last week. Our Conference evangelist, Rev. J. H. Bell, and his singer, Brother Templeton, are assisting the pastor, Rev. R. I. Collins, in a series of services there. A great work is being done, among the pupils of the Agricultural High School, especially. More than twenty of these choice young people presented themselves for prayer and a deeper consecration at the morning service I attended. Brother Bell not only has a message, but he has a tact for enlisting young people in prayer and testimony possessed by no other person with whom I have been associated.

Dr. John Matthews used to say, that "unless you could get a convert's mouth open during the first two weeks of his religious experience, he would be dumb the rest of his life." We have too many who can talk about everything else, but are dumb when it comes to prayer and testimony. Brother Bell puts his converts to work; to praying and testifying. He should be kept busy the rest of the year.

Rev. H. C. Morehead, who lives with his son on the campus of the High School, is still confined to his room, but seems to be getting along very well. He sends his love to the brethren.

The Sardis District Conference will meet with us, April 23-25. You have an urgent invitation to be present.

Yours in service,
R. P. NEBLETT.

Como, Miss., March 29, 1918.

FROM THE GREENVILLE (MISS.) DISTRICT.

Dear Dr. Meek: At the request of the presiding elder I will send you notes occasionally from the Greenville District. The preachers here seem to be determined to bring things to pass this year. The first quarter reports indicate that all of the pastors are preaching effectively, adding members to the roll, visiting in the homes of the people, and raising the assessments. The presiding elder asked that one-half of the assessments be raised before the district conference. Now he writes the preachers he "set the standard too low—nearly all have already raised half"—so he is asking that every dollar be raised at once. Clarksdale is in a meeting at present, with Brothers Anderson and Curry assisting the pastor. Brother Wyatt will begin at Shelby on the fourth Sunday in April, with Rev. Chas. D. McGehee assisting. Brother McGehee will assist me in a meeting at Leland next week. J. W. Robertson is happy in the work at Hollandale and having results. Every one, so far as I can learn, is hard at work and hopeful.

What a Pity!

Isn't it a pitiful sight to see a handsome face covered with pimples and other scaly patches? And it is still more pitiable that some people allow these cutaneous troubles to continue, growing worse each day, when the simple treatment of applying Tetterine salve will entirely eliminate skin troubles and will restore the skin to its normal health. 50c a box. Constipation

You are apt to think lightly of a slight case of constipation. Did you know that constipation is incipient auto-intoxication or self-poisoning? You cannot be too careful, for constipation without treatment is liable to become the source of far more serious ills. To be entirely healthy and have a clean body, it is necessary to keep the bowels clean and the liver active. When constipated, take Van Lax, for it is the ideal treatment for constipation. Contains no calomel and no habit-forming drugs. Does not gripe or nauseate. It is pleasant in taste and results. Sold everywhere by the best dealers. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

THE NEW CALOMEL A PERFECT SUCCESS

Calotabs, the newly perfected calomel, is absolutely purified from all of the unpleasant, sickening and dangerous qualities of the old-style calomel. The new Calotabs are rapidly taking the place of the old-style calomel tablets, as they are much more effective as a liver cleanser and system purifier, yet are entirely free from all objectionable qualities.

The new Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages; price, thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends and guarantees them.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

TAKE PEPTIRON NOW

Needed in the Spring by Pale, Weak, Nervous People.

Peptiron is in the form of pills, chocolate-coated, pleasant to take, easily assimilated, and is the most successful combination of iron of which its makers, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., have any knowledge.

You must have an abundance of iron in your blood if you are to be keen, quick and fit in the battle of life, overcome obstacles and know no such thing as failure. For several reasons lack of iron in the blood is more noticeable in the Spring than at any other time.

Besides iron, Peptiron includes pepsin, nux, celery and other tonics, nerve helps and digestives. It gives strength, color and body to the blood; reddens pale cheeks, steadies the nerves, improves the digestion, nourishes and gives stamina to the whole body.

It is the tonic Spring medicine for you and for your family.

Splendid Tonic for the Stomach and Liver.

If you suffer from a sluggish liver, chills and fever, jaundice, take that old-time, reliable remedy, Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator. It is a dependable tonic for the stomach and liver. It contains no Calomel or other injurious drugs. Purely a vegetable compound. Buy a bottle of Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator, price 50c, and watch your spirits pick up. It invigorates your sluggish liver and puts you on your feet again. Best general tonic to tone up the entire system. For sale by druggists or direct from Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

THE CURSE OF SELFISHNESS.

No one can be utterly selfish and hope to prosper permanently. Society, with all its faults, frowns down at length upon the man who never considers the general welfare. The moral constitution of the world runs athwart the man who worships self. In the very nature of things, selfishness cannot gain enduring satisfaction. We realize ourselves through seeking the happiness of others and so fulfilling the law of Christ. The Christian Intelligencer.

Restore that Beauty!

So many people have simply lost their beauty of face and hands because of some skin trouble which could have been so easily avoided by using Tetterine. This is a fragrant salve sold in 50c boxes. It is the best known remedy for skin diseases. Sold by druggists or by mail from

SHUPTRINE COMPANY, SAVANNAH, GA.

The Evening Line-Up

Both children and grown-ups, with coughs and colds, are all the better for a dose of Foley's Honey and Tar at bed time. It wards off croup, stops tickling throat, and hacking coughs, and makes an otherwise feverish, sleepless night of coughing and distress, a quiet and restful one.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS. Mr. Chas. Baker, writes: "My wife would not think of using any other cough medicine, as Foley's Honey and Tar is certain to bring quick relief. It is especially effective in cases of bad coughs, and we give it to our children and recommend it always as a safe remedy, for it contains no opiates."

DOCTOR SAYS NUXATED IRON WILL INCREASE STRENGTH of DELICATE PEOPLE in TWO WEEKS' TIME

In many instances says City Physician persons have suffered for years without knowing what made them feel tired, listless and run-down when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood—how to tell.

IF you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied a multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of condition. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to let stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your lagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old Iron to put color in your cheeks and good, solid, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and one of the best blood builders in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated at all for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron which is recommended [illegible] is sold by druggists everywhere, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund the money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NERVOUS DISEASES

We have reprinted from a leading Health Magazine a series of articles by Dr. Biggs, treating on Nervous Debility, Melancholia, all forms of Neurasthenia, Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nervous diseases. The articles explain the cause of these ailments and fully describe the treatment employed at the Biggs Sanitarium in such cases.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MISSISSIPPI W. M. S.

"A time of crisis is not a time to retrench" was the motto of the Annual Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Brookhaven, Miss., March 12-15, in the handsome and commodious church recently completed. Delegates and officers numbering nearly a hundred were present and were in session almost continuously from 9 o'clock a. m. to 10 o'clock p. m.

On Wednesday morning, Miss Bessie Kearney, secretary of the Brookhaven District, led the devotional service, and organization was effected. The meetings during the day were devoted largely to reports by the Conference officers of the work in the various departments, which are many, since it embraces all special work attempted by the women of the Church. The reports were interesting and inspiring, showing that even the absorbing activities of war relief work have not had the effect of lessening their earnest endeavors in the Master's vineyard. Advancement has been made in nearly every line. A familiar phrase in the reports was "Over the top." The report of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, showed the pledge had been paid in full; the ten per cent increase in membership more than realized; nine new adult auxiliaries have been organized, 364 adult members added; five new young people's auxiliaries, 132 new members; eleven new junior divisions, 133 new members; three new baby divisions, sixteen new members. In all four divisions the increase was larger than ten per cent. An increase of $1612.56 was sent to the Conference Treasurer. Mrs. Lewis's message to the Conference was optimistic. With the good work done during our country's first year in the world war, there should be no thought of slackening interest in the future. "The present world situation calls upon every Christian to double his or her interest, gifts and service; not to transfer them."

The report of the Conference Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Hemingway, gave as the total receipts $12,124.75.

Mrs. J. K. Dunn, Superintendent of Supplies, reported boxes sent to the Wesley Houses in our Conference, to the Orphans' Home, and one to China, valuel at $447.20.

Mrs. Wylie Ferguson, of Meridian, in the absence of the Superintendent of Social Service, spoke of conditions in the Wesley House at Meridian, of the good work done in the boys' and girls' clubs, and of tho need of a gymnasium and play grounds; also of the inconvenience suffered from the lack of a sewerage system, which, it was decided, could not be supplied this year, since the Home is situated too far from the main system.

Mrs. G. H. Thompson, Superintendent of Mission Study, in giving her report made a very excellent talk, urging upon the members that they "Pray, serve, pay." She dwelt upon the handicap under which she labored, the lack of reports sent in, and urged the use of the Bulletin. Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, Council Secretary of the Home Base, who was present throughout the entire meeting and added much to its interest, questioned the Superintendent as to the extent of Mission Study. It was very gratifying to note that nearly all of the auxiliaries represented had Study Circles. Mrs. Lipscomb recalled that it seemed but a few years since Natchez had been ranked far in the lead because it was the only auxiliary making a definite study of missions. It developed during the discussion that a very large majority are studying "An African Trail," and Mrs. Lipscomb spoke thrillingly of the glorious history of missionary work in the "Dark Continent," illustrating it with an outline map.

The reports of the District Secretaries were encouraging, showing increase in many lines. They were supplemented by individual reports from delegates stating briefly conditions existing and special features tried in their auxiliaries. These were all good, but the greatest interest in auxiliary work was manifested during Delegates' Hour, led by Mrs. Tippin, of Gulfport. Plans of work undertaken in different circles were suggestive and helpful. One society does quilting while listening to the reading of missionary literature and gives the proceeds to the Red Cross. Another has a thoroughly organized system of visiting the sick and strangers so that no one is neglected, and also reports to pastors. Societies near the cantonments are doing work in many ways for the soldiers and gave encouraging news that the presence of soldiers in their churches was a help and a blessing to them.

The Young Peoples' Auxiliaries had a large representation, and for the first time, held one session of their own, a business meeting, followed by a special program planned by their enthusiastic leader, Mrs. H. O. Middleton, in which "Loyalty" was the theme. The Juniors also held a separate session with their president, Miss Katie Drake. This innovation will doubtless give to the little sisters a decper interest in the Conference and an apprcciation of the importance of their work.

The presence of two deaconesses, Miss Womack, from Meridian, and Miss Tinsley, from Gulfport, with their earnest messages telling of the definite work done, was of great interest, as also was the address of Miss Nina Troy, from the Virginia School in China.

Mrs. Lipscomb's Bible talks were deeply spiritual and heart-searching, and unquestionably left an impress on many lives.

The special music given by the church choir Tuesday night and by Miss Shannon, of Whitworth College, and her pupils at the other sessions was much appreciated by the visitors.

A very unusúal service was held Thursday morning, the celebration of the one-hundredth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Amanda Boswell, who was made a life member of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church when she was a bride, about eighty years ago, and who has retaincd her interest in its activities ever since. Mrs. Lipscomb made a beautiful talk on this occasion, Mrs. Boswell's relatives and many friends being present.

A telegram was sent from the Conference to the Mississippi Legislature commending and endorsing the movement made by General Sage for the suppression of immorality near the cantonments.

The failure of the passage of the Compulsory Education law was regretted and an urgent appeal was made that every one present do her part in creating sentiment favorable to its success when again presented.

The urgent invitation from the Natchez auxiliary to meet with them in 1919 was accepted.

Officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows:

President, Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Gulfport; First Vice President, Mrs. H. O. Middleton, Mendenhall; Second Vice President, Miss Katie Drake, Port Gibson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. H. L. McCleskey, Hattiesburg; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, Jackson; Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Hemingway, Jackson; Superintendent Mission Study, Mrs. Geo. H. Thompson, Meridian; Superintendent Social Service, Mrs. C. S. Butterfield, Brookhaven; Superintendent Supplies, Mrs. J. K. Dunn, McComb.

District Secretaries:

Brookhaven District, Miss Bessie Kearney, Haziehurst; Hattiesburg District, Mrs. T. B. Cottrell, Mt. Olive; Jackson District, Mrs. Sam Ewing, Jackson; Meridian District, Mrs. C. R. McQueen, Meridian; Newton District, Mrs. J. H. Hill, Laurel; Port Gibson District, Miss Mabel Porter, Natchez; Seashore District, Mrs. T. T. Ford, Columbia; Mrs. H. Austin, Jackson, Representative Orphanage Board.

CHRISTIAN DISCIPLESHIP.

To be a disciple of Christ does not simply mean to accept His ideal, but to accept Christ Himself, to admit Him into our lives, to walk with Him, to trust Him, obey Him, to grow up in Him to fullness of life and character. No one need be long unaware of what is required of him. The Apostle tells us to put off the old things that have marred and obscured what was divine within us, to seek that which is above, "forbearing one another, and forgiving one another," and above all to "put on charity which is the bond of perfectness."—J. F. Newton.

Calomel To-Day, Sick To-Morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

TO RESIST THE ATTACK

of the germs of many diseases such as Grip, Malaria, means for all of us—fight or die. These germs are everywhere in the air we breathe. The odds are in favor of the germs, if the liver is inactive and the blood impure.

What is needed most is an increase in the germ-fighting strength. To do this successfully you need to put on healthy flesh, rouse the liver to vigorous action, so it will throw off these germs, and purify the blood so that there will be no "weak spots," or soil for germ-growth.

We claim for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery that it does all this in a way peculiar to itself.

It cures troubles caused by torpid liver or impure blood.

HAMPTON, GA.—"I have used Doctor Pierce's medicines in my home for over 40 years, and can say to those suffering with torpid liver, it will pay you to use Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. You will find it all he claims it to be."—THOMAS C. JONES.

WOODFORD, TENN.—"This is to certify that I have used Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for my two little boys. One had night sweats, poor appetite, sallow complexion, and had quit growing, but after giving him part of a bottle of the 'Discovery' he again started to grow. He dosen't have the night sweats and looks much better. My other little boy had scrofula and this medicine cured him after the doctor's medicine had failed. I do not hesitate to recommend the 'Discovery' at all times."—MRS. ROSA LEE HOGAN, Route 1.

From the Field

Hub, Miss.

Dear Advocate: We held our second quarterly conference at Baxterville on March 22. Brother Jones was with us, and preached a great sermon. We have held two of our meetings—began at Baxterville on Feb. 25, came to Hub the following Monday. We had with us Brother D. E. Kelly and Brother Duke, from whom we received splendid service. We are greatly blessed. Forty-seven members were received at Baxterville; 28 at Hub. The good people of Baxterville presented me with $146 for the purpose of buying a horse and buggy, which generosity I very much appreciated. I am getting ready for the district conference, and I am going to carry to it a good report. I am happy in my work.—E. M. Allen, P. C.

Mangham, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: Things are taking fine shape on the Mangham charge. We have organized a Woman's Missionary Society at Mangham. We already had a live Society at Union. We have traded the parsonage for a much better house more conveniently located, giving $1600 additional for the new property. Four members, contributing equal amounts, gave $1000 of this amount. The Stewards fixed the assessment for the pastor's support at $1500, which is a third more than was previously assessed. The whole country is enjoying an unusual degree of prosperity and our people are not willing for the interests of the Church to fall behind. There is nowhere in the Louisiana Conference a more loyal and wide-awake people than those of the Mangham charge. Will have more to say later.

Yours in Christ,
J. M. ALFORD.

Moorhead, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We held here in our new Methodist Church, on last Sunday, a special service, in which the unfurling and the pinning of service stars on the flag were prominent features of the service. Prof. J. W. Sargent, Superintendent of the Agricultural High School, made the acceptance address for the church. The flag was donated by the ladies of the church. The unfurling was done by two little girls, after which our pastor, Rev. R. G. Moore, called on each mother to pin a service star on the flag for her son who had gone to fight for his country. There were fifteen stars pinned on. The pastor then called upon Mrs. A. M. Pond to read a letter that is to be sent to each of the soldier boys from the pastor. It was a very encouraging and cheery letter indeed. We had an unusually large attendance. Our pastor then preached a very impressive patriotic sermon, which we enjoyed very much. There will be other stars added to the service flag from time to time, and we hope to keep in touch with the boys all the time.—U. S. Wasson, M. D.

March 26, 1918.

Harperville, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Allow me a little space if you please. First, we had a most wonderful year at West End, Laurel, last year. The Lord was with us in more power than ever he was in our life before. We will always be glad we were sent to that field just when we were. It was a blessing to us, from every standpoint almost.

We were sent here to Harperville last December. We came and found the work in a very good condition; but there was no parsonage for us. The people rented us a couple of rooms, and we are now very comfortably situated, doing light housekeeping. We have since then selected, bought, paid for, and have a deed to a house and lot for a parsonage. We are not going to forget the claims of the Advocate. We are sending a few subscriptions and think that there are more to follow. We have been cordially received throughout the charge, and are expecting a great year. The stewards raised our salary $150, for which we are humbly thankful. Our object of prayer on this charge is that we may have a revival throughout the work and that at the end of the year pastor and people may be able to say that we are more consecrated Christians. We ask all to join us in this special object of prayer.—R. H. Clegg, P. C.

Bolton, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: We have just closed a very great revival meeting at Bolton, Miss. The Rev. Dan E. Kelly did the preaching for 9 days. We began on Sunday morning, March 17, and closed the services on Monday night, March 25. There were 25 accessions to the Methodist Church on profession of faith, and also quite a number promised to join other Churches. The old settlers of this community say that it was the greatest revival this town has ever known. The town was moved as never before. One good feature of our meeting was that Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and Baptists all came and worked together as one great family. Perfect harmony prevailed, and there was co-operation on the part of all. Brother Kelly is a great preacher. I am glad, Doctor, that I can say that Brother Kelly has no set rule to go by, but that he simply depends on God and his Word. Any preacher is fortunate to secure his services. On two days during the meeting he preached five times. He preached at 10 a. m. at the church, to the men at the town hall at 3 p. m., to the ladies at 4 p. m., and again at the church at 7:30 p. m.

I have never known how to count converts, but I think I would be safe in saying that 50 people were converted during the meeting. A number of family altars have been erected. On the last night about 150 men and women rose to their feet and promised to join the Sunday school and attend the prayer meeting. To God we give all the praise! Pray for us, Doctor, that our revival may continue.

Yours in Christ,
J. H. FOREMAN, P. C.

FIELD SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Brother J. H. Sherard, President of the Board of Trustees of the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage, sends us for publication the following report, which is self-explanatory:

My Dear Mr. Sherard: I have not rendered to you a report of work done in December, January, and February, because of the fact that the holidays in December and very inclement weather in January prevented my being very active out in the field. I traveled during the quarter about 400 miles and presented the work at Corinth, Vicksburg, Clinton, Edwards, the District Stewards' meeting of Jackson District, Rankin Street Church and Capitol Street Church of Jackson, Canton, Crystal Springs, Hazlehurst, Wesson, Gallman, Gallman Tabernacle, Mendenhall, and D'Lo. My welcome has been warm and the response very pleasing. The people seem to enjoy hearing what we are doing up here.

I have investigated 57 applications for admission and have received 13 children into the Home. There have come 45 applications for adoption. Eleven children have been placed in good homes and 10 taken out by relatives, leaving in the Home now 186. I have under advisment and am investigating daily these applications for admission and adoption.

Everywhere I have gone I have pushed the placing of children and hope to see my efforts bear fruit more and more each month this year.

I am placing on file in the office here my itemized expenditures for the quarter. Hereafter I shall render a monthly report to you, beginning with March.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. S. F. RILEY,
Field Secretary.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Orders for Children's Day programs have been sent to the Publishing House for all the charges that have made a reply to my recent request. Should the number you receive be insufficient, let me know, and I will make an order for more.

The following charges failed to observe the day last year, or failed to report to the Treasurer, Rev. E. S. Lewis, Greenville, Miss.:

Aberdeen District—Algoma, Greenwood Springs, Shannon, Smithville, Tremont; Columbia District—Cochrane, Macon Circuit; Corinth District—Burnsville, Mooresville; Durant District—Noxapater, Sidon; Greenville District—Benoit, Clarksdale, Lula, Rosedale; Holly Springs District—Paris Circuit, Randolph, Taylor; Sardis District—Charleston; Winona District—Itta Bena, Sunflower, Swiftown, Valley Mission, Webb.

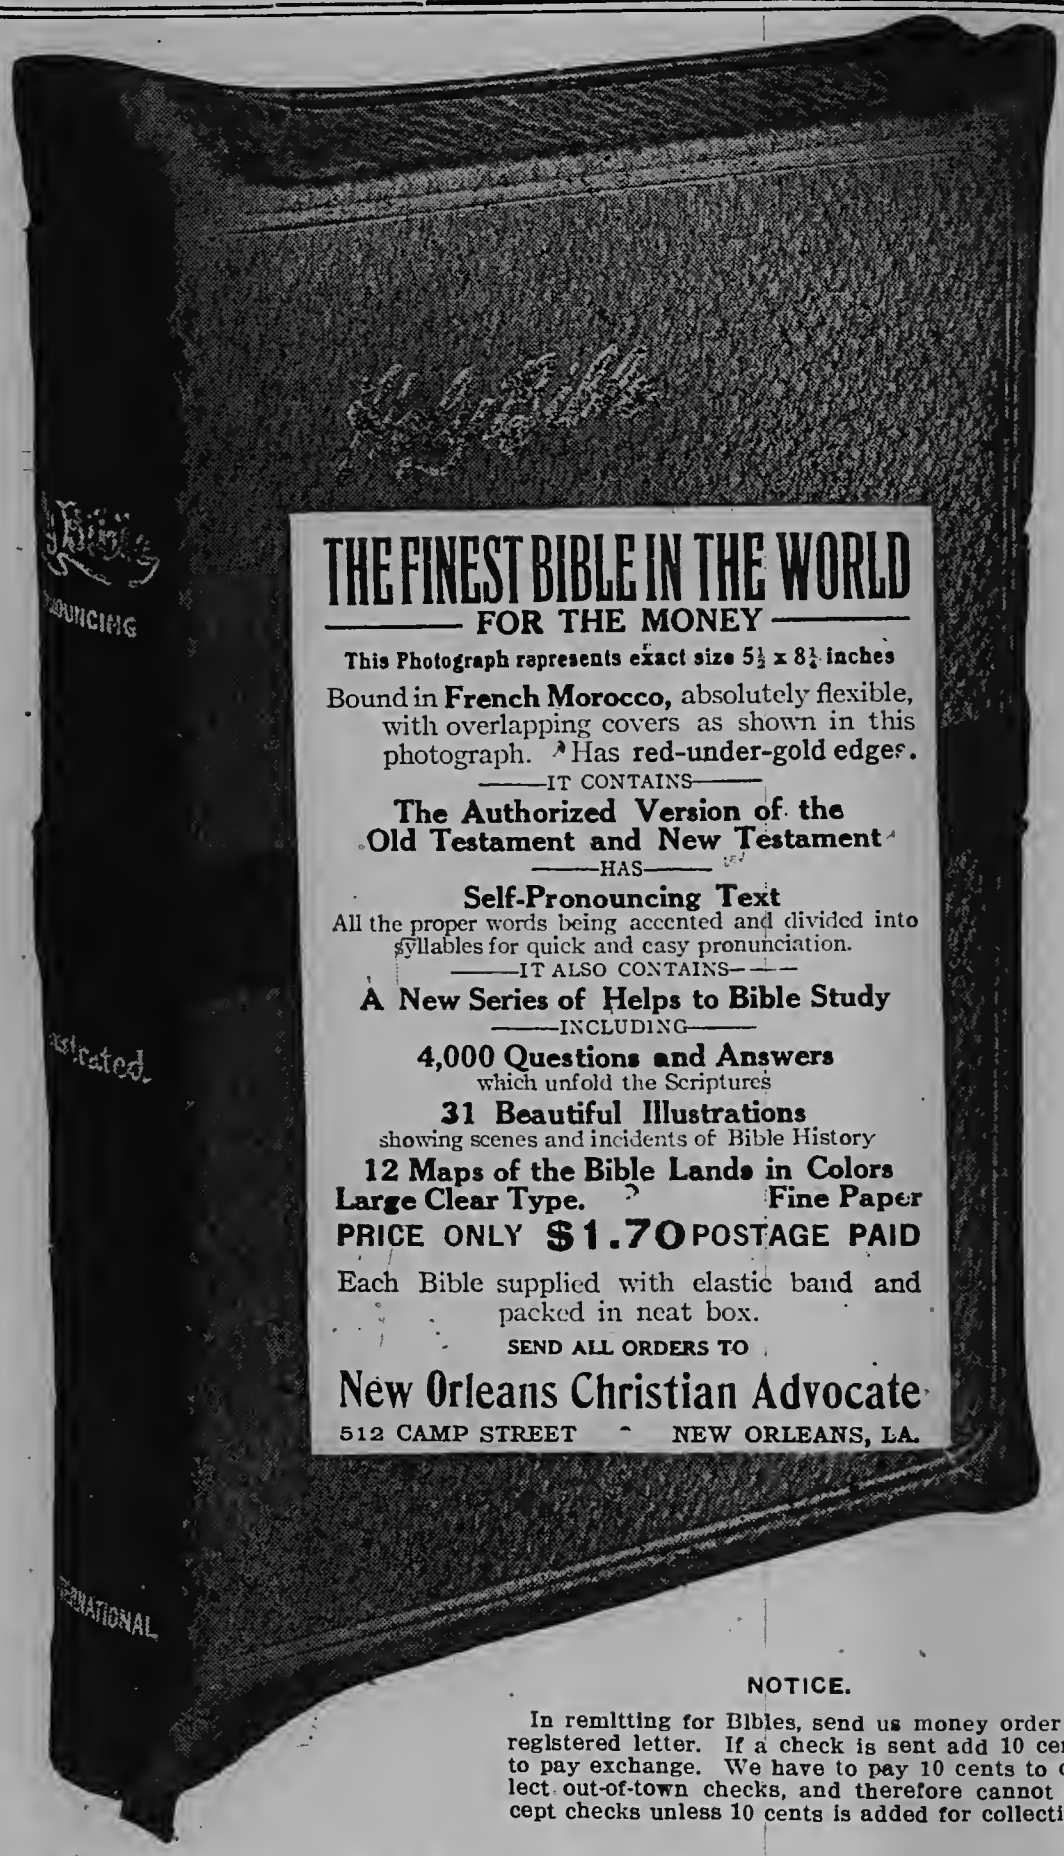
The following failed to report an assessment for work of the Sunday School Board:

Aberdeen District—Algoma, Buena Vista, Houston, Houston Mission, Okolona, Okolona Circuit, Smithville, Tremont, Vardaman; Columbus Dist.—Cedar Bluff, Columbus Cir., Mayhew; Corinth District—Booneville, Chalybeate, Corinth (South Side), Dumas, Kossuth, Mantachie, Mooresville, Silver Springs, Tishomingo; Durant District—Bellefontaine, Mathiston, McCool, Noxapater, Poplar Creek, Sallis, Sidon; Greenville District—Paid in full; Holly Springs District—Abbeville, Paris Circuit, Potts Camp, Randolph, Toccopola, Water Valley (Main Street); Sardis District—All paid something; Winona District—Minter City, Schlater.

The Sunday school at Ackerman ordered seven copies of "Life in the Making," our first book for teacher-training classes, and nine of the book "Heroes of Faith in Japan," the study in missions for intermediates. The school at Weir sent in an order for six copies of the former and one of the latter. Brother Parks is making good in every respect.

The school at McCool ordered four copies of "Life in the Making." Brother A. R. Beasley means to have a Home Department and a Cradle Roll in every church on his circuit. His purpose is to establish a family altar in every home that takes the Home Department Magazine. More home religion is our great need.

The school at Ethel ordered seven copies of "Life in the Making" and three of "Heroes of Faith in Japan," also graded lessons for the Beginners' Department. This little church is doing excellent work for the young people.



Only a few had time to attend the meeting at Kosciusko, but the school ordered fifteen copies of "Life in the Making," and Brother E. H. Cunningham and his splendid superintendents mean to train up a number of first-class teachers. The sure way to build up the Kingdom is to train teachers in the work of teaching religion to the little children.

The school at Sallis ordered four copies of "Life in the Making" and graded lessons for the Beginners' Department. A few excellent women have the care of the children on their hearts. Mrs. Shumaker, the teacher of the beginners, is doing excellent work.

The preacher, the superintendent, and the teachers of the Durant school gave hearty co-operation in every way. They ordered seven copies of "Life in the making." The work prospers in every place that has one man with a vision. God be praised for men.

SEVEN REASONS WHY I AM A METHODIST.

First—Because it is a broad field in which I can accept the whole Bible without a single dodge.

Second—Because I can fellowship all Christian people without abusing any.

Third—Because I can defend its doctrine without villifying other Christian believers, granting them that privilege on immaterials.

Fourth—Because I accept the preposition (into) where Christ and John went down into the water and came out. It does not mean "under" to me. Also, the preposition "with" means to use, to put on. As John said: "I baptize with water," and Christ baptizes with the Holy Ghost. And I know we are not baptized into, nor under the Holy Ghost, for it comes down from above.

Fifth—Because I can accept all modes of baptism, for the Bible teaches many modes; and all leading authorities give many definitions to the word baptism, which gives me the right of a name in one of Christ's organizations, and I do not have to stand in the door and kick people out after they have accepted Christ, because they do not see as I do on immaterials.

Sixth—Because I know that we are brought under the Abrahamic Covenant by conversion. And the mark of distinction is placed on us to show the world where we stand. And that is baptism which takes the place of circumcision; and that applies to all fit subjects for heaven.

Seventh—Because I do not have to shut the door of my Lord's supper table in the faces of my friends, loved ones and brethren; but like my Lord, not selfish, who ate with publicans and sinners, I can invite all who are worthy and we can all sit down and feast upon him and be happy and glad. (Who can be broader than this?)

A Clear Brain and healthy body are essential for success. Business men, teachers, students, housewives, and other workers say Hood's Sarsaparilla gives them appetite and strength, and makes their work seem easy. It overcomes that tired feeling.—Adv.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 15. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3242.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

"We crown our departed with laurels,
And whisper with quivering breath
How nobly they stood in the conflict,
How faithful they were unto death;
But if we had come in the heat of the strife
With a cup of cold water it might have been life."

You can as easily secure rich, ripe fruits without tree or vine, as you can Christian experience, character, or conduct without the doctrines of Christianity.

The teachings of Christ were from the viewpoint of eternity and man's relation to it, as well as to this present earthly life. He spoke as never man spake, because he saw as never man had seen.

Voltaire is represented as having said that Christianity could never be destroyed as long as the Christian Sabbath was respected and observed. What about this mighty prop? Is it standing firm, or giving way?

William J. Bryan is quoted as having made the following statement: "There is nothing in the Bible miracles half so wonderful as a fact that a red cow will eat green grass, and give white milk, which will churn into yellow butter—and yet we believe it all."

A church official thus wrote us a few days since: "The indications are that we are going to have a good year in our church work—not a spectacular one, but one of steady growth." This is the best kind of a year for a church. The passion for the spectacular, with the showy seeming success which it quickly brings, is barring true spiritual progress in many congregations.

Not all proposed changes are calculated to bring about improvement, though every innovator claims that his scheme will better things. Germany has marched to ruin under the flaunting banners of so-called progress, and she had most of the world following her when the moral crash came. Satan knows how to beat the tom-toms and lure people from the right course by presenting other appealing ways. 'Twas thus he wrecked the race in Paradise.

PULPIT PRAYERS.

We have often thought that one of the most neglected features of public worship is that of leading the congregation in prayer. Too often the minister does this in a way that indicates that he has made little or no preparation to meet rightly this important duty and privilege, his praying being lengthy, aimless, and repetitious. We should not like to see our preachers compose their prayers in advance and repeat them memoriter; but there can be no satisfactory praying that is not preceded by thought and earnest meditation. As a rule the greatest, the most effective preachers, have been men who knew the way to the throne of grace and who were mighty in supplication. One of the best brief statements that we have seen on this subject in some time is the following, which we take from The Christian Intelligencer (New York), an organ of the Dutch Reformed Church:

"One of the greatest responsibilities of the ministry and one of its most lasting influences is the 'leading in prayer' in public worship. Inasmuch as set forms of prayer are not enjoined in our denomination, the custom of extemporaneous prayer becomes the pastor's golden opportunity. We remember that the late Alexander Maclaren advised against writing out prayers in advance, but urged self-preparation as the spiritual prerequisite of effectiveness in this part of public worship. In order to lead the worshipers in prayer to the very throne of God, the minister must be truly 'in the Spirit on the Lord's Day.' One who makes true use of this precious opportunity will remember testimonies of the uplift and transformation experienced by members of his flock through this portion of his ministry. Lives are often permanently changed by the ministry of public prayer. To be carried in spirit right into the presence of the Father on the wings of prayer is an experience which alters life's future perspective and makes all things new. People are sometimes inclined to treat the early part of public worship as preliminary. When Dr. J. H. Jowett first came to the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in this city, he found people coming late to the services, apparently indifferent to what they regarded as the preliminary exercises. Dr. Jowett set about to change all that, and those who have heard him know that his prayers create a wonderful spiritual atmosphere and erect a ladder to heaven on which the angels ascend and descend. The possibilities attending the pulpit ministry in prayer are so bright that one who serves God in the ministry of His Son may well spend and be spent in being a true leader to his people in the matter of prayer."

PRESIDENT WILSON'S ANNIVERSARY ADDRESS.

The address of President Woodrow Wilson in Baltimore on April 6, the day that marked the anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the great world-war, was a notably strong and statesmanlike utterance. The distinguished speaker declared that Germany's unworthy aims now stand more clearly revealed than ever before, and that if they should be accomplished, "everything that America has lived for and loved and grown great to vindicate and bring to a glorious realization, will have fallen in ruins."

Touching upon the question of negotiations to end the conflict, the President said: "For myself, I am ready, ready still, ready even now, to discuss a fair, just, and honest peace at any time that it is sincerely proposed—a peace in which the strong and the weak shall fare alike." He affirmed that our Nation stands ready to do justice to the German people as well others, using in emphasizing this point the following impressive language:

"I call upon you to witness, my fellow countrymen, that at no stage of this terrible business have I judged the purposes of Germany intemperately. I should be ashamed in the presence of affairs so grave, so fraught with the destinies of mankind throughout the world, to speak with truculence, to use the weak language of hatred or vindictive purpose. We must judge as we would be judged. I have sought to learn the objects that Germany has in this war from the mouths of her own spokesmen, and to deal as frankly with them as I wished them to deal with me. I have laid bare our own ideals, our own purposes, without reserve or doubtful phrase, and have asked them to say as plainly what it is they seek. We have ourselves proposed no injustice, no aggression. We are ready, whenever the final reckoning is made, to be just to the German people, to deal justly with the German power, as with all others. There can be no difference between peoples in the final judgment, if it is indeed to be a righteous judgment. To propose anything but justice, even-handed, unpassionate justice to Germany at any time, whatever the outcome of the war, would be to renounce and dishonor our own cause."

This is truly taking high ground, assuming a position that is worthy of the best Christian statesmanship of this or any other age. But while voicing these noble sentiments, Mr. Wilson did not fail to show that he is resolved to fight the war through to the bitter end, if necessary to maintain the principles involved, and he declared that all that we have and are as a Nation should be unselfishly consecrated to this great task. The following concluding sentences are stated to have aroused the great audience who heard the President's address to a high pitch of enthusiasm: "Germany has once more said that force, and force alone, shall decide whether justice and peace shall reign in the affairs of men, whether right as America conceives it, or dominion as she conceives it, shall determine the destinies of mankind. There is, therefore, but one response possible from us: force, force to the utmost, force without stint or limit, the righteous and triumphant force which shall make right the law of the world and cast every selfish dominion down in the dust."

WORTH PONDERING.

As the United States presses forward in the performance of the stupendous task that now lies out before her, she is finding it necessary to center increased powers in the hands of a few persons, that the utmost efficiency may be secured. Is there no teaching in this war-time development for Methodists? Our Church government was built after the military pattern, looking to the spiritual conquest of the world for Christ; and herein in no small measure has lain the secret of the marvelous success of Methodism. The maintenance of such a government means, of course, that power and confidence must be reposed in those entrusted with the task of leadership, and that there must be self-sacrifice upon the part of those in the itinerant ministry, just as there must be upon the part of the soldiers enlisted in the Nation's Army; but is not the outcome in increased effectiveness such as to justify this system, with all the risks and hardships that it may necessitate? Can we democratize Methodism and maintain the wonderful standard of efficiency that has characterized it in the past? This is a question that we may well consider carefully before we consent to a reconstruction of our polity.

THE SON OF MAN.

He left the Father's bosom and his throne,
And took our life of mortal woe instead;
Home, love, dominion, all were his in heaven;
On earth he had not where to lay his head.

He saw the sun, whose torch of light and heat
His breath had kindled, in the west grow dim,
A thousand lamps flashed out for homeward feet—
Not one was trimmed, or candle set, for him.

And, while unseen, the keys of death and hell
And life and glory at his girdle hung,
No lowly latch for Master knew him well,
No door for his tired footsteps inward swung.

That never soul redeemed should vagrant go
Unhoused through the hereafter, rest denied,
That all who would the Father's house might know,
A stranger, pilgrim, Jesus lived and died.

Without the walls that spurned his love as dross,
'Mid faithless scorn and allen pity hurled,
He suffered, outcast, that his sheltering cross
Might be the roof-tree of a homeless world.

UNUSUAL POWER.

"When a man is born, God gives him power to be something for his fellow creatures and his God. That something may be like treasure 'hid in a field,' but never found. We know how certain great men have lived; how they become great by developing the inward energy. True enough, fortune favored some of them; but the rule of high achievement has been 'against the frowns of fortune' rather than 'favored by her smiles.' The world preserves the names of many great men on the roll of fame. But who can tell us how many have gone out of the world, dark and undiscovered, and unknown even to themselves; carrying back some special gift that lay enshrined in them, unformed, unused, into the presence of the Giver? Our habit is to think of sin as the breaking of law; and so it is. But there is another and a subtler sin, of which many will be found guilty at last—the neglect of life. 'Neglect not. Stir up the gift that is in thee."—A. Raleigh.

THE MOST DANGEROUS HERESY OF OUR DAY.

Putting what we do ahead of what we believe—that is the most dangerous heresy of our day. Men are cheating themselves and others out of eternal life, condemning themselves to hell, by believing and spreading the lie that a man's works are the most important thing in God's sight. Service as the condition of salvation—that is the death-dealing heresy of to-day as it has been through all preceding centuries. Satan says, and man believes: "Never mind about creed or belief; what you do, not what you believe, is the only thing God really cares about." Works instead of faith—and every man who believes this heresy goes down to eternal death. Man says: "I'll do the best I can, and that is all that is needed to make me acceptable to God." God says: "You are so hopelessly corrupt by sin that 'the best you can' will never bridge the gulf between your sinfulness and my holiness. Therefore, not the best you can do for me, but the best I can do for you; and I have done it all in the sacrifice and death of my Son Jesus Christ in your stead. By his shed blood he has finished the work of redeeming you. Will you accept this gift of salvation from me?" Man's answer determines his eternal life or eternal death.

Man says, as to the work of his redemption, "I'll do it for myself." That is the heresy of death.

God says, "you must let me do it for you." That is the Gospel of Life.

"What must we do, that we may work the works of God?" they asked Jesus.

"This is the work of God," was his reply, "that ye believe on him whom he hath sent" (John 6: 28, 29).

It is an interesting fact that most of the popular false religions of to-day break down at exactly this point. Christian Science, Unitarianism, New Thought, Spiritualism, the Higher Criticism, the New Theology, the "liberalizing" and "rationalizing" and "modernizing" of "old-fashioned" Christianity—all of these point to what man can do for himself, and deny or tend to deny man's desperate need of what God has done for him through the shed blood of Christ as man's Substitute and Savior. They are bloodless beliefs, and therefore hopeless unbeliefs. The "most dangerous heresy of our day" is the root-poison of them all.

For the most dangerous heresy of our day is man's making God a liar when God says, "To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is reckoned for righteousness" (Rom. 4:5).—Sunday School Times.

THE TENTATIVE SCHEME OF UNIFICATION.

Rev. Caspar S. Wright, D. D.

The advocates of unification of American Methodism have spoken early and often, so it is perhaps in order for me, as one who dissents, to at least express, in partial terms, my views on this great question.

The "tentative" scheme of unification of American Methodism has been given to the public at last. To bring it into the present shape has required three protracted and expensive meetings of the Joint Commission and a number of committee meetings. Nevertheless the most difficult matters, it appears, have not yet been determined, and the matters which have been "tentatively" agreed upon are presented in a form far from satisfactory.

The scheme, as it is outlined, is not in keeping with the action of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in its session of 1914 at Oklahoma City. The Commissioners have exceeded their authority at points of material importance.

Negroes are put into the General Conference, and as the Church, North, admits women to the General Conference, we may expect, if this scheme should be adopted, to see Negro women legislating for the united Church. Would our people ever consent to this? Is this in conformity to the action of the General Conference at Oklahoma City in 1914, or is it in line with the policy of our Church since 1870? Will we surrender at this vital point in order to secure a form of unification which more truly divides American Methodism than it unites it?

The scheme of multiplied "Regional Conferences" was never contemplated by the General Conference of 1914, and could not have passed that body. On the contrary, our Commissioners were instructed to arrange for three and only three Regional Conferences. The scheme proposed in the "tentative" plan just published "disintegrates" Southern Methodism, and opens the way for complete "absorption." So the old scheme of "disintegration and absorption" proclaimed by such men as Bishop Gilbert Haven and Bishop Ames, just after the war between the States, is brought forward under the guise of "unification." Can our people be induced to accept this plan of disintegration now, when it was rejected by our wise and heroic fathers in 1866? Is our case so desperate now that we must make an abject surrender in 1918, when we have above two million members, although we refused to surrender in 1866, when our membership did not number a half million souls and our people were poor and peeled by war?

This scheme will never be accepted by the rank and file of our preachers and people, and it is passing strange that a majority of the Southern Commissioners have accepted it even "tentatively."

The methods so far pursued with reference to unification can not be approved.

The scheme was put through the General Conference at Oklahoma City without debate, in a form far less objectionable than that which is now presented. In like manner a scheme was put through the Northern General Conference in rather vague form two years later, and again without discussion.

The results of the meetings of the Commission held in Baltimore, Maryland, in December, 1916, and in Traverse City, Michigan, in June, 1917, were not given to the Churches. Now, after the Savannah meeting, a partial scheme is put forth, and a meeting set for St. Louis, April 10, presumably to complete the same. If that meeting should sit as much as a week, its proceedings would not be published more than ten days before our General Conference meets in Atlanta, Ga., May, 1918.

Such haste can not be approved. The rank and file of the Church, both lay and clerical, should be given time to reflect upon and to discuss so momentous a question before it is presented to the General Conference. Not to give time for reflection and discussion would be both inexpedient and unjust.

If any form of unification could be of any value, it would have to be openly, fully and deliberately discussed, and calmly adopted with perfect understanding by our people.

Human beings can not be transferred in bulk without their consent from one organization to another.

As things are going, many thousands of Methodists, both North and South, may seek other communions. Would any form of unification compensate for the loss of many Methodists?

Moreover, litigation might follow. The attempt to rush and force the Cumberland Presbyterians into the Northern Presbyterian Church has filled the Courts of the land with suits and counter-suits. What would be the result in the case of a Church as large as ours?

I am deeply impressed with the feeling that it is now time to go slow in this matter of unification. Otherwise the most grievous injury may be done American Methodism. If unification is ever to be accomplished it will not be done by methods of undue haste.

RACE SUICIDE PROBLEMS.

The recent report of the Census Bureau on the birth rate of the country—it is the first time it has ever been published—developed many disagreeble facts. It was shown, for instance, the birth rate in the United States is lower than we thought, and it is decreasing, being not only under that of all Slav countries, but below Germany and Austria; and that the decrease is greatest among families of American origin, rendering it certain that the American element will play a smaller part in the interests and activities of the country than heretofore. Because of our rapid growth of population during the past century, we have imagined to the contrary, but we now see that the growth was largely due to immigration, to a reduction in the mortality and to the heavy birth rate among the immigrants and other recent arrivals. The American element is now in a minority in New England and many other portions of the East. We are laboring energetically and patriotically to Americanize the people of foreign birth and parentage—and doing fairly well with them—but it will not do to overlook the fact that the American stock is running very low, and that this must in time materially affect the American population, ideals and character of the country. In fine, we are facing the problem of race suicide, as Roosevelt calls it, as France is doing. The tendency is almost universal and marches alongside of civilization and luxury. It has been most marked in France, where the birth rate has fallen so low, that the population is decreasing. The government has therefore given a great deal of attention to the matter, seeking for the causes of this decrease and how it can be best met and cured. This evil, which has commanded attention in France for some years, has become very acute with the war now going on there, and the consequent large death rate. It has given Germany a great advantage in man-power—for the birth rate of that empire is high, not only higher than that of France, but higher than in the United States. The population of France, which has until lately been stationary, must show a visible if not serious decline unless a remedy for existing conditions can be found and put in operation.

We scarcely expected this problem to become an American one in the light of our big families recorded of old; but our own statistics now show that it is rapidly assuming importance with us; and that we will do well to consider the remedies being applied elsewhere before the situation grows too serious and difficult to handle.

France has given it the closest attention. It has conducted several thorough investigations, of which the most important is that just completed by a committee of the French Academy of Medicine, which has just reported through its chairman, Professor Charles Richet. This report is now being discussed throughout France, and it is worthy of consideration and discussion in America as well. It merely presents the facts and conclusions and does not, as yet, make any recommendations; but it is generally understood that it will urge, in some form or other, a plan of endowment for motherhood; that the State undertake to help with large families, so that the parents be relieved of some of the burden and expense of bringing up their children.

The Richet committee does not accept many of the explanations previously given of the race suicide and the decline in the birth rate in France. It doesn't think that the provision of the Civil Code, which distributes the estate among all the children, has worked in favor of keeping families small, so that each child will have enough; nor does it believe that religion has had much influence in checking race suicide, for it finds conditions unfavorable in this respect in many portions of France, where the religious sentiment is strongest, nor does it believe that the birth rate is unfavorably affected by the large migration from the rural districts to the cities, which has characterized France of recent years, for it finds the birth rate as high in urban as in rural communities.

After dismissing these various theories which have been advanced by many, the committee reaches the conclusion that the decline in the number of children is due to voluntary and deliberate birth control brought about by higher standards of living prevailing, by the social comfort demanded, and by disinclination, on the part of many women, to devote the best part of their lives to rearing children. This opposition to child-bearing and rearing has been intensified, the Richet committee finds, by the fact that women are taking a far larger part and activity in lines formerly monopolized by men and who regard children as a handicap in their efforts and their work. But the most important argument and influence against large families is declared to be the greater expense today in rearing children. A child will cost the father one-sixth of his average income up to its fifteenth year; so that with three children, half the income of the family must go to their bringing up. At the same time, under the new child labor laws in this and most other countries, the child is shut out from many industries and cannot contribute to the support of himself and his brothers and sisters. It is argued that if the security and welfare of a country depend upon keeping up its population and preventing a decline, the nation must assist the man of large family with the burdens placed on him. We fortunately have not reached that stage yet in America, but we are drifting rapidly in that direction, especially since immigration has been shut off.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

UNIFICATION.

The writer spent one year in Warren County, Ohio, and during that time had some opportunity to know something of Northern Methodists. There are a few Northern Methodist churches in this county, and from what I know of that Church, and their sentiment towards a true Southern man. I will not be led into any Unified Church that retains the Negro.

The people in the rural districts are protesting loudly and earnestly against the scheme of unification promulgated at Savannah by the Joint Commission, and if adopted I expect to see thousands sever their connection with the Methodist Church, South.

It is amazing, that men with superb intelligence and undoubted piety cannot see that the Northern Methodist Church on any scheme yet suggested will literally swallow us. Talk about doing away with your "conflicting altars," unification will establish that more strongly, for there are from 500,000 to a million Methodists in the South that won't be led into a Unified Church.

Permit me to suggest that if these unionists are dissatisfied with the Church, South, with its "conflicting altars"—made so by the Church, North—let them get out and go to the Northern Church; I, for one, would be heartily glad if the schemers and trouble-makers would move out, and give the contented Southern Methodists a much needed rest from agitation.

The people in the rural districts heartily and emphatically endorse the position of Drs. Meek, Steel, Mitchell, and others, and can't see why Rev. J. W. Ramsey did not do a good work in sounding a word of warning to the delegates to the General Conference.

The Lord knows some of them needed it. This union crowd—these agitators—are nothing more or less than trouble-breeders among Southern Methodists.

Let no one mistake the temper of the people. They are opposed to this unification business in toto. Go slow, union men; watch how you place us in the hands of the North, and thus have in the South a Church dominated by men whose ideas, ideals and sentiments are entirely dissimilar to ours—a religio-political Church.

Men of the South, who love your section and the Southern Methodist Church, who are satisfied with your church, save our Church from union or unification!

May good sense and sane judgment prevail and the whole unification business be knocked into smithereens; and may the Church, South, under God, go on spreading scriptural holiness over the land!

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The following is the Treasurer's report of Children's Day receipts of the Mississippi Conference for the year 1917. This total shows an increase over Journal report since the books necessarily had to be closed after all reports were in at Conference.

We are thankful for the interest and the increased contributions for 1917 and we do not feel we are setting our aim too high in expressing our needs for 1918. We have faith in the brethren and the Sunday schools to make this the best year in our history so far.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE S. S. BOARD.

HUSTLING FOR THE ORPHANAGE.

Already, just four days after Easter Sunday, the returns from our Easter collections indicate that we will receive the largest donations from this effort ever received in the history of our work. If all the Sunday schools and churches have observed the day, as the Conference resolutions required, we will easily receive from six to eight thousand dollars. In four days we have received nearly $3000, and but comparatively few of the churches and Sunday schools have been heard from.

A most encouraging feature of the effort this year is the very active interest shown by so many of our preachers. While they have always been friendly and cordial towards this great work, I have never known them to get out and hustle with such enthusiasm for it before. Such service deserves especial mention. Our own pastor, Rev. J. G. Snelling, saw to it that every member of his congregation had an opportunity to contribute to the Orphanage. He made personal visits, distributing prepared envelopes, making as many as sixty personal visits in one day. The result was most gratifying. Over $400 was received. Another preacher, Rev. George P. White, of the Plaquemine charge, preached in his home church at Plaquemine at the morning hour, drove twenty-three miles, preaching at Rosedale at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, then drove another twenty-three miles, preaching at Cottonwood at 8 o'clock p.m. In all he raised the neat sum of $100 and received four members into the Church and baptized one infant. This was "going some," and his work contributed nearly double the amount to the Orphanage ever given by his charge in any one previous effort. At one of his churches, that always loyal friend of our Orphanage, Rev. J. F. Foster, secured $160 and will follow with special efforts at the other points on his work. We are sure that if our preachers all over the Conference would make like efforts the contributions to our work would be such that the question of maintenance would never be raised.

We are profoundly grateful to these brethren, and to all our good friends who have recognized the serious conditions that confronted us, and have done what they could to help us meet the demands. We are sure God will abundantly reward them.

Gratefully,
ROBT. W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent, Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.
Ruston, La., April 4, 1918.

TWO NOTABLE FEATURES.

There were several things worthy of mention connected with our district conference which met with us here the past week. Everybody seemed hopeful and the preachers had "above the average report." The assessment for ministerial support in the district has been increased $2300, with two or three places to hear from, and this increase has largely been on the circuits. Brother Lipscomb has put his full strength into the job, and hard work always pays, even in the business of the Church. Another thing worthy of mention was the address of Mr. T. B. King of Memphis. It was up to his usual high mark.

But the notable features of the Conference were the sermons by Bishop Murrah and the generous gift by Brother Gilmore of Amory. The three sermons by Bishop Murrah were greatly enjoyed by every one. Mississippi still has a "preaching Bishop." It is rarely one's privilege to hear three sermons of such high grade in three days by the same man. On Friday he used as his text, "He that hath not the Spirit of Christ is none of his;" on Saturday his theme was "The Choice of Moses," and on Sunday he brought us an Easter message from 1 Corinthians 15:58. The only trouble that we have had since is to decide which discourse was the best of the three. The great majority of us will vote for "The Choice of Moses." That is indeed a great sermon. I have had the pleasure of hearing some of the great preachers of two continents, but as he preached on Saturday on "The Choice of Moses," I concluded I had not heard it excelled from any viewpoint of a sermon. It is refreshing to hear good preaching.

The other feature was the generous gift of Brother Gilmore. He has built a sanitarium at Amory costing $25,000, and has provided through a Board of Trustees from the Board of Stewards of the Methodist Church at Amory, that the income from this institution shall go to the Methodist Church. He has also put out at interest $75,000, and this is to be managed by the same Board of Trustees. The income from these two sources shall be used as follows: $600 to go annually to the local church at Amory—$450 to the pastor's salary, and $150 to the Conference collections. It is further provided that the salaries of circuit preachers of Ittawamba and Monroe Counties shall be supplemented annually from this fund, and provision is made to employ a Sunday school agent to have oversight of the Sunday schools of this territory; and still another feature of the donation is that every member of the Conference Brotherhood shall receive a death membership fee from this fund. Such large gifts are few. It is hopeful for the Church when our laymen believe in its mission to the world. Brother Gilmore is to-day an honored servant of God in our church at Amory, whose labors already have borne abundant fruit, and when he is gone he shall still serve and live by his worthy life and generous gift. May God bless him for his unselfish philanthropy!

ALGIERS CHURCH FUND (NEW ORLEANS.)

Dr. McMurry, Secretary of the General Board of Church Extension, has agreed to give us $5000 and to lend us $5000 more, if we will raise $10,000 for the erection of an urgently needed new church in Algiers. Of this amount we have $5000, and are trying to raise the other $5000. We are suffering greatly for the want of this new building. Help us!

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Your Endowment Board through its appointed Committee have issued Memorial Calendars with an earnest request that the Endowment for Superannuated Preachers be presented on the second Sunday in April. The Galloway Memorial Fund now amounts to $4889.57, and with your hearty co-operation it should be increased this year to $10,000. Although our Conference was among the first to inaugurate this important fund, news from other Conferences indicates that they are advancing beyond us in this matter. Let all donations be sent to Rev. T. J. O'Neil, Treasurer, Port Gibson, Miss.

OUR WAY VERSUS GOD'S WAY.

(A parable in rhyme, which shows the unwisdom of praying for what we want, without regard to what may be God's will. Needless to say, it teaches a lesson that some unificationists might do well to learn.)

A worthy monk, as ancient legends say,
Planted, with care, a tender tree one day,
Thinking with joy how it would grow anon,
And yield him profit from the fruit thereon.
Pleased with his task, upon the spot he bowed,
And to himself with pious pride he vowed:
"Now, I will pray each day, and God will give Whate'er I ask to make the sapling live."

And to his credit, be it written now,
Not even once did he forget his vow;
But morn and eve he came to view the tree,
And prayed for what he saw its needs to be.
He prayed for rain, and gentle showers fell;
He prayed for sun, and sunshine came as well;
And, when he asked for dew, there came the dew.
For winds to blow, then grateful breezes blew.
For storm to strengthen, or for heat or cold,
Whate'er he craved not once did God withhold;
And yet in vain the selfish plan he tried—
For all his prayers, the sapling drooped and died.

Another monk his tree had planted, too,
And day by day its spreading branches grew
Above the way, to shelter as they pass
God's weary children going up to mass;
And travelers oft, aside their burdens laid,
Sat there and rested in its peaceful shade.
One day they met among the shadows there,
Just as the convent bell had called to prayer.
"Now, tell me, Brother John," the first monk said,
"Why your tree thrives, while mine, alas! is dead?
I pruned it well and tended it with care,
And twice each day I told its needs in prayer."

The other monk in meekness bowed his head,
While with a sweet humility he said:
"My simple mind could not presume to know
Just what was best to make a sapling grow,
And so I put it in God's care, and left the rest
To Him who made the tree, and knows the best;
I never asked for sun or rain or frost,
I only prayed: 'Give what it needeth most.'"

Y. M. C. A. WORK AT CAMP JACKSON.

By Rev. J. Howard Brooks.

The observance of Easter Sunday in Camp Jackson Y. M. C. A. buildings resulted in 31 conversions. All of the buildings were decorated appropriately and we had special Easter music. The sermons were preached by the Y. M. C. A. religious work secretaries. In our building we planned for a sacred concert in the morning by the band of the 321st Infantry, and for two male quartet numbers at night.

One week ago it was my privilege to preach to the new men in the Depot Brigade. About half of them had not received uniforms. Some had only been in Camp one day. They crowded into the building until all the standing room was taken. Something like one thousand were present. They gave perfect attention, and when the opportunity to accept Christ was given between fifty and one hundred responded. They signed war roll cards and the camp pastors will help to look after 20 who are not church members.

The Company Bible Classes continue to do good work. About 50 per cent of the men in camp have been enrolled in these classes. The attendance ranges from 3000 to 10,000 a week.

The Y. M. C. A. is also putting mothers who want to cheer up homeless soldiers in touch with the right men. I have found two such lately. One of the boys was thrown from a horse a few days after his name had been sent. All through the two months in the hospital the letters from his "godmother" cheered him and when he was discharged she invited him to spend a few weeks with her until he could regain his strength.

The Camp is being rapidly filled with new men, and we are looking for even greater opportunities in the future. Pray that we may be able to save and strengthen the boys before they get away from us.

REV. H. C. MOREHEAD.

I saw Brother H. C. Morehead a few days ago. He is confined to his bed at his son's home in Courtland, Miss. He was stricken with a hemorrhage the next day after he returned from the Annual Conference at Oxford. He has suffered long and much, and was very weak. He asked me to pray with him, and upon my leaving he held on to my hand in his warm, cordial way, and said: "I am just lying here, suffering the Lord's will. He is precious to me as never before. I am living on the First Psalm, and the 19th and the 23d and the 46th and the 103d, and on the 14th, 15th, and 16th chapters of the Gospel according to St. John. Oh, how sweet and precious are these divine revelations, and how comforting to my soul! Give my love to all the brethren, and ask them to pray for me."

It was a holy treat to see and hear him give expression to the peace and calm of his triumphant faith and loving soul. I now hear that he is much better, which will be glad news to his friends and brethren. May the good Father restore this esteemed servant of the Master!

DOES NOT WANT UNION.

Dear Mr. Editor: It certainly was a surprise to me to see such an article as recently appeared in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, entitled "New Orleans Preachers Unanimously in Favor of Union"—especially as some of the preachers had expressed themselves as opposed to it in my presence. And I know that quite a number of the laymen are opposed to being swallowed up, and if the consolidation goes through, I should not be surprised at the falling away of a considerable number and the organization of a new Church.

I, for one, am not classed as a preacher, being in that peculiar class, neither preacher nor layman—a local preacher—and have not much influence in councils of the Church, but I am not in favor of union, seeing no more reason for union now than there was in 1844 when the separation took place. Fraternally yours,

JOHN H. STAFFORD, Local Preacher.

New Orleans, La.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS.

The situation, in the light of the great war, is extraordinary as it affects the nations of the earth from a political, economic and social standpoint. Readjustment and reconstruction following this war are inevitable. The forces at work are world-wide in their sweep and significance, and are potential for evil or for good as they are ignored and neglected on the one hand, or measured and mastered on the other. If supreme and heroic effort be not put forth at this juncture, the powers of darkness will be organized and intrenched as never before. We cannot afford to wait. It is the Church's supreme opportunity. She must rise to the emergency, shape events with a master hand, reintorce her missionary workers in every field and in every department of Christian activity, adequately equip her institutions, at home and abroad, and plant her standards in every field, until she shall have fulfilled the imperial command to preach the gospel to every creature.

All power is with God, and the timing of events is also with Him. We are profoundly convinced that the hour has struck when the evangelization of the world should be undertaken with renewed zeal, enlarged faith, and a substantial prospect of its being carried to an early and complete consummation. It is this world-wide enterprise for which the Church stands, upon its faithful prosecution the very existence of the Church depends, and to such a task the Church must give her strength and her very life or fail in her allegiance to her Lord. To Him, therefore, and to this enterprise we hereby pledge our time, our energies, our gifts, and our prayers.

The call to advance rings down the line and by a remarkable providence comes at the very time when the Board of Missions has thrown off its indebtedness and when this Board and the Board of Church Extension have added largely to their available assets.

We would fully endorse and give emphasis to the action of the Board of Missions in constituting a Centenary Commission, and would recommend that the Commission, under the approval of the Board, lay the missionary situation, its claims, and its urgent demands before the approaching General Conference and request of that body special action to give emphasis to this great world program of missions which is due the great commission of our Lord under which the Church has received her marching orders.

By every token the Church must go forward, press the battle, occupy the field so providentially prepared, and carry home the message until every creature shall know that Jesus Christ is able to save to the uttermost. To hesitate is to fail in the supreme hour of opportunity. To stand still is to imperil every step already taken. The Church must follow her Lord and go forward.

In order that the purpose of the Centenary Celebration may be carried out, we recommend without attempting to prescribe details, that the following lines of endeavor be undertaken:

I. Intercession.

The world crisis and our tremendous resources of men and money create an unprecedented responsibility; but to depend upon more human resources would, in this spiritual enterprise, be presumption. Spiritual resources infinitely outweigh the material. Christ Himself has indicated the order of procedure, when He commanded His disciples to pray for laborers. Through prayer we come into harmony with God's will and have His co-operation in finding laborers and in bringing ourselves under the enlightening and strengthening guidance of His Holy Spirit. Realizing our past shortcomings, we should first seek pardon for failures and lack of faith, and then daily and hourly call upon God for help in this crisis of Christianity. We desire to enlist the prayers of all our people for greater zeal and consecration for a large increase in the number of missionaries, for larger liberality in offerings, and for the dedication of the so-called secular activities of our people to spiritual ends. We commend the plans already in use by the Commission's Department of Spiritual Resources and Intercession for prayer covenants and the formation of prayer leagues in our Annual, District, Quarterly, and Church Conferences, and the creation and circulation of adequate literature setting forth the place of prayer in Christ's plan for saving the world. Let us advance on our knees.

II. Publicity.

The power of the press to-day is almost incalculable. Movements, great and small, depend on the co-operation of the press. This movement expects and undoubtedly will have the full support of our Church press.

Never was the secular press so eager for Church news. This, the most potential movement of Methodism, is such a heroic challenge that the press will doubtless clamor for its thrilling narratives. We, therefore, urge our pastors and other leaders to utilize all possible aid of the secular press.

We believe that our Board of Missions is justified in employing publicity experts; and we suggest, in view of the valuable and necessary service

The Great Battle

NOTES.

Prohibition has taken effect in Indiana, thus putting out of business about 3400 dram-shops.

Hon. R. P. Hobson will deliver several addresses in Louisiana in the interest of the prohibition cause this month, and Hon. W. J. Bryan will speak in Baton Rouge in behalf of the ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment soon after the assembling of the State Legislature in that city.

Massachusetts has ratified the National Prohibition Amendment. This makes 11 States that have taken this action. The anti-prohibitionists have not been able to secure adverse action in a single State, nor even to succeed in the effort to set the precedent of having the people to vote on the question of ratification. After a hard fight, they succeeded only in postponing action in New York, the strongest liquor State in the Union.

TIME TO GET BUSY.

Don't take it for granted, but get down to real work. The liquor men are not idle now by any means. They never sleep on the job when their business is in danger. Now that national prohibition is moving along with such strides towards victory the liquor men are very busy to defeat it. The prohibitionists need to be awake—keep awake and keep at work. The good chance they now have to rout liquor out of this nation should stir their energies to the last limit. Let no prohibitionist take it for granted that national prohibition will win whether he does anything to help it or not. The full force of all prohibitionists is now needed. Get to work and keep at it till the job is done.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To the Pastors and Sunday School Workers in Louisiana:

The Baptist State Convention and the Methodist Annual Conference passed resolutions at their last annual sessions setting aside the month of April, 1918, as the time for each Sunday school in the State to observe a special temperance day and make an offering for the work of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League.

We are making a fight to ratify the National Prohibition Amendment and to pass a "bone dry" shipping bill when our Legislature meets next month, and we need your help.

I will ask the Baptist Chronicle and the New Orleans Christian Advocate to print a list of those Sunday schools that report to this office showing the amount contributed by each school. Please do not neglect this matter. It has never been so important as now. A. W. TURNER,

Superintendent La. Anti-Saloon League.

Shreveport, La., April 2, 1918.

EMERGENCY WAR WORK.

The Committee on Emergency War Work was called by the Chairman, Dr. S. H. Werlein, to meet in the church in Alexandria on March 28. To this call the following members responded: Dr. Werlein, W. S. Holmes, and H. H. White. The following presiding elders were present in conference with them: Briscoe Carter, H. W. Bowman, A. S. Lutz, W. W. Holmes and J. M. Henry. T. W. Holloman was present by invitation. The following members of the Committee were absent, each having mailed regrets for necessary absence: Dr. R. D. Webb, O. A. Wright, D. B. Carre, and Dr. Geo. S. Sexton.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Werlein. Brother Lutz led in prayer, and Bricoe Carter was requested to act as secretary. Dr. Werlein made a statement of what had been done by him on the written approval of the Committee. He was requested to furnish the presiding elders a printed statement of the plan being prosecuted at the Alexandria cantonment, for general distribution. The employment of an assistant so as to enable him to devote as much time to the soldiers as possible, was endorsed. It was decided to distribute the $3000 to be raised by the churches as follows: $1200 for Alexandria; $1200 for New Orleans, and $600 for Lake Charles, and that every pastor be called upon to take the collection at once, and send the money to S. H. Meyer, 123 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La., who is the treasurer for this fund.

It was the opinion of those present that ordinarily the best men to operate in the cantonments in connection with the Y. M. C. A. workers and army chaplains are local pastors, where such men are available. The Committee were of the opinion that such pastors should be provided a pastor's assistant, whose salary should be paid out of the funds to be appropriated to the several cantonments, and that none of this money should be applied to the salary of the pastors engaged in this work. BRISCOE CARTER,

Acting Secretary.

GRATIFYING NEWS.

Dear Doctor Meek: The latest in the Emory University campaign is that I have secured about $3000 in the past ten days. This is very gratifying to me, as I know it will be to thousands of our people in Mississippi.

One of the most cheering contributions was from a grandson of one of the ascended preachers of the North Mississippi Conference—Jim Gray Luter, of Minter City. The afternoon of the Sunday I was at Minter City, Jim sent me a note, with a contribution, as follows: "Perhaps this will help polish a block of marble in Emory University." The beauty about the marble is that it is already polished before it leaves the quarry. However, Jim's part will always live as a vital share in the building of the university. What possibilities there are in such sentiments as Jim (thirteen years of age) has expressed in these words which will go down in the history of this great institution!

Would that there were ten thousand boys in Mississippi who might be moved by this same impulse to put an amount of money into Emory. In this "age on ages telling" we should be in a hurry to prepare for a greater age in the very near future.

I have other notes of progress which I will give you for my brethren in the very near future. Read what I have to say and you will be gratified with the progress being made in Mississippi for the BIGGEST ENTERPRISE OF OUR CHURCH at this time. Yours very sincerely,

ROBT. SELBY.

A LAYMEN'S VIEW.

By Mr. J. B. Streater, a Delegate to the General Conference.

The General Conference of 1914 declared that unification by reorganization was feasible and desirable. I have never given public expression of my views on this subject, and, in the face of this action of the General Conference, it may be considered very presumptuous in me to say that I have never endorsed this view, and do not now think that it is feasible, or even desirable; and the more I see or hear the subject discussed the further I am from changing my mind. I believe in improvement and progress, but I have seen this attempted in some ways a great many times and have in many instances seen matters made worse. Therefore, my policy has always been, "when you are doing well, let well enough alone." For many years I have associated with Northern people a great deal, and, upon the whole, my associations with them have been very pleasant. There are a great many things about them that I admire very much, and some things which I dislike—especially their attitude towards the Negroes. I yield to no man, North or South, when it comes to entertaining a Christian feeling for the Negroes, especially for those of the South; but I am sure that our people did the wisest thing possible when, in 1870, they organized their colored members into the C. M. E. Church in America, which was done at their request, and with the result of which they seem to be perfectly satisfied.

But why should those among us who favor union continue to press this question so urgently, thus forcing the wasting of so much precious time, and sometimes the engendering of bitter feelings, in the discussion of a thing that will never happen? I shall never believe, until the conclusion is forced upon me, that the Commission will ever agree on a plan that will be adopted by a two-thirds vote of the General Conference, and ratified by three-fourths of the members of the Annual Conferences. If the question could be decided, as it should be, by submitting it to the votes of the membership of our Church, it would be an easy-going thing; for I believe that 90 per cent of the membership would oppose it. Really, I have never talked with a single man from the rank and file of the Church who favors it.

Black Hawk, Miss., March 30, 1918.

TCHULA METHODISTS SPEAK.

At a meeting of the members of the quarterly conference of the Tchula (Miss.) Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held on the 18th day of March, 1918, the following preamble and resolutions were introduced and after full discussion unanimously adopted. It was further ordered that a copy of this proceeding be forwarded to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Resolutions.

Whereas a Commission was appointed to represent the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the formation of a plan looking to the organic union of the two great branches of Methodism; and

Whereas the plan as agreed upon by the Joint Commission would not, in the judgment of the members of this conference, best subserve the cause of Southern Methodism; therefore, be it

Resolved, That as loyal members of the Southern Church, we respectfully protest against the introduction of the aforesaid plan, and herewith submit, from among many others, the following grounds of protest:

1. The representation of the Southern Church in the General Conference will be too small. We favor a Conference after the order of the Congress and in the upper body "Delaware equal representation with Texas" given.

2. Changing conditions do indeed bring about new issues, but principles do not change. We believe that if the government of these United States is not to-day engaged in war for humanity's sake, then George Washington was not one of the world's great patriots; and we protest against a surrender of the principles for which our Church stood in 1844. Right then, right to-day.

3. We believe that organic union is among the probabilities of the future, but to its advocates we would say NOT NOW. Any unification plan to which the Northern Church could, or rather would, give unqualified endorsement now, would, if enacted into law, cause the Southern Church to lose fifty per cent of its membership, and a now virgorous, progressive Church would become an all but impotent one.

4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is doing a great work in the world. Why run any risk? Why not "let well enough alone."

5. We desire to go on record as giving endorsement to the position taken by the New Orleans Christian Advocate in relation to this momentous question. As a "watchman on the walls," Dr. Meek has made a fight for our Church and for Southern ideals which challenges the admiration of all.

J. E. GWIN, Secretary.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

The Home Circle

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.

By Mrs. L. M. Lipscomb.

"Somewhere in France" our soldier boys
Are learning to be brave and true;
They are fighting for the cause of right,
'Neath the dear old Red, White, and Blue.

"Somewhere in France" our precious lads
Are dreaming of "home, sweet home";
Their thoughts are with their loved ones
Far across the ocean's foam.

"Somewhere in France" the North and the South
Are united hand and heart;
The "blue and the gray" march side by side,
And each bravely does his part.

"Somewhere in France" our loyal men
Are calling to me and to you;
And bidding us help to win this war
For the sake of the Red, White, and Blue.

"Somewhere in France" there are lonely graves,
Where some of our heroes rest;
They gave up their lives for liberty,
And for all that is noblest and best.

God speed the day when a righteous peace
Shall prevail throughout the world—
When the sword shall be forever sheathed,
And God's banner of love be unfurled!

THE LOST PURSE.

By Hilda Richmond.

"Why, here's somebody's purse!" said Amy Race aloud, as she stumbled over something among the loose wrappings and empty boxes on the floor. "And it's full of money!" she said almost in a whisper as she peeped inside and saw shining silver pieces and crisp bills. "I wish it was mine; I'd get a whole lot of things for Ethel on my way home."

Amy was a little cash girl in a big city store and at home she had a little sick sister. Their mother worked very hard at her sewing to keep her children happy and comfortable, and Amy took home her money to help along, but they had very hard times, indeed, since Ethel was sick and there were medicines to buy.

"I wonder if it would be wrong to take just one piece," thought Amy. "The purse was open and whoever lost it might think it dropped out." Then at once she said, "Amy Race, I'm ashamed of you! What would your mamma think? You go to Sunday school every Sunday and then you want to take money that doesn't belong to you."

At once Amy started to the desk to report what she had found, but on the way she met a lady who seemed to be searching all about. "Little girl, have you seen a pocket-book?" she asked. "I lost it in here, I think, and it was full of money for the Children's Hospital. I am so worried about it, for it means help to so many poor little boys and girls."

You may be sure Amy was glad she could return the purse with all the money safe, and when the lady heard of poor little Ethel she said she should be the first patient taken to the hospital to be cared for with the gift money.

"Mamma, was it wrong to be tempted?" she asked when she told Mrs. Race all about it.

"No, darling, but it is wrong to yield to temptation, and I am glad my little girl did not yield. If you always trust God, Amy, as you did this time, temptations can not harm you."—Sunshine.

IT TAKES TWO TO DO IT.

An exchange tells the story of James Rank, a lad of eigteen years, who, on coming home from work, met a friend. He related his experience of that day.

As the apprentice of a carpenter he had been sent to a saloon to take the measurements for a new counter. It was very cold weather, and he arrived with his teeth fairly chattering in his head. The saloonkeeper immediately mixed a hot drink, and pushed it over the counter to him. "It will cost you nothing," he said. "Drink it down, and you'll soon stop shivering, my boy." "He meant it so kindly, and didn't think any harm," said the apprentice, as he told the story. "That's what made it harder to refuse, but I didn't want it."

"It must have been a big temptation," said the friend. "That saloonkeeper might have started you on the road to ruin."

"Well," replied the lad, "it takes two to make a temptation. There is no saloonkeeper and no cold weather can make me drink when I don't want to. The temptation I'm afraid of is the one that I'm ready for before it comes, by hankering after it. I don't take much credit to myself for refusing that drink, and, if I had taken it, why, I wouldn't have put all the blame on the saloonkeeper, as some folks do. It takes two, every time, to make a successful temptation."—The Presbyterian.

GENERAL WASHINGTON'S COURTESY.

Martha Littlefield Phillips gives "Recollections of Washington and His Friends." The author is a granddaughter of the youngest daughter of General Nathaniel Greene, and she tells the following story, in the words of her grandmother, concerning a visit of the latter to Washington at Philadelphia: "One incident which occurred during that visit was so comical in itself, and so characteristic of Washington, that I recall it for your entertainment. Early on a bright winter morning a droll-looking old countryman called to see the President. In the midst of their interview breakfast was announced, and the President invited the visitor, as was his hospitable wont on such occasions, to a seat beside him at the table. The visitor drank his coffee from his saucer; but, lest any grief should come to the snowy damask, he laboriously scraped the bottom of his cup on the saucer's edge before setting it down on the tablecloth. He did it with such audible vigor that it attracted my attention and that of several young people present, always on the alert for occasions of laughter. We were so indiscreet as to allow our amusement to become obvious. General Washington took in the situation, and immediately adopted his visitor's method of drinking his coffee, making the scrape even more pronounced than the one he reproduced. Our disposition to laugh was quenched at once."—N. W. Christian Advocate.

"Again and again Jesus urged upon those who listened to Him to 'follow' Him. This was to be a sure mark of true discipleship. And it is so still. The men who follow Christ have a right to the name Christian—and they alone."

WANTS TO BE RECORDED AGAINST IT.

Dear Mr. Editor: I want to go on record through your columns as being opposed to the scheme for uniting the M. E. Church, South, with the Northern Methodist Church. I believe that it is best for both denominations to remain as they are, each developing its own individuality. In my opinion, they will thus do a greater work toward extending the Kingdom of Christ. I was born and reared in the Southern Methodist Church, and am a member (in good standing) of the Second Methodist Church of New Orleans. Yours respectfully,

ARMSTRONG DONALDSON.

ARDENTLY FOR UNIFICATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: In the light of the present times, when the hearts of the people are being cemented into the closest bonds of union by sacrifice and suffering in the great "World War," I, for one, feel and see the importance of a united Methodism to carry on the work of the Kingdom of God. If the two great Methodist denominations fail to find a satisfactory basis for union, we will suffer for years to come from the stigma of that failure. Are we praying that a way for union may be found, or rather are we seeking to block every plan suggested by our Commissioners? I have been impressed that the weight of your editorials have been far more destructive of the proposed plans worked out by our Commissioners than constructive.

AN EMPHATIC PROTEST.

(This paper was adopted at a recent session of the quarterly conference of the Pickens, Miss., charge.)

Believing as we do, for reasons we think should be obvious to every loyal, liberty-loving, Southern Methodist, that the Tentative Plan of Unification, now proposed by a majority of the members of the Joint Commission, would prove not only hurtful, but absolutely ruinous, to the Southern Church, and to Methodism in the South;

We want here and now to enter our respectful, but most solemn and serious, protest against its formal recommendation to the approaching General Conference.

We commend and heartily endorse, Mr. Editor, the brave and manly defense you have, and are making, of our beloved Church, in this her trying experience.

We cannot afford to be landed, bag and baggage," in the lap of the Northern Church, with the flimsy and inadequate provisions which this instrument offers for self-government and protection.

Signed: W. W. MITCHELL,
Presiding Elder.

SOME UNIFICATION HAPPENINGS.

The Washington (D. C.) Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church (colored), representing a membership of 36,000, which met at the National Capital a few days ago, made an extended protest against the pending scheme of Unification on various grounds.

Bishop J. W. Hamilton, a member of the Unification Commission of the Church, North, in a recent article in the Southwestern Christian Advocate, says: "But the whole plan, misnamed Unification, has another impossible gauntlet to run. * * * The Methodist Episcopal Church, in the Conferences and local socleties, will no more adopt it than the skies will be turned upside down and the inscription be found on the top of them, 'Made in Prejudice.'"

The Bishop further says: "I have protests coming to me from tbe Continent of Africa, Korea, Japan, China, North, South, East, and West in this country, and the Islands of Hawaii and Porto Rico. Here is a quotation from a letter received from one of tbe strongest and most representative men in Cbina: 'On the part of the foreign missionaries and of our Methodists in foreign lands, I protest most earnestly against the unjust treatment proposed for them in the terms of the proposed union. If we are to hold these members, we simply must treat them as Christian brothers, giving them the same representation in our Generai Conference as we give to white members."

This is just about as we expected. Some of our readers will doubtless remember that we predicted that the proposed arrangement for governing the work in foreign mission fields would produce great dissatisfactlon.

SOME SUGGESTIVE FIGURES.

For the benefit of brethren who speak as if never before did any great Church have so small a gain as 22,000 members, the net gain of our Church in the year 1917, we submit the following figures as to the growth of the Northern Methodist Church, given by Mr. J. W. Marshall, of tbat denomination, at the last Ecumenical Conference in Toronto in 1911:

"In 1900, no growth; in 1901, 23,051; in 1902, 49,061; in 1903, 31,623; in 1904, 38,203." In considering these figures it should be remembered that the Nortbern Church is practically twice the size of ours, which of course bears pertinently upon the question of gain in percentage.

At this same gathering, Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, of Georgia, in an address made these statements: "While the growth of Methodism in the Western Section (the whole of North and South America) for the last ten years has marked a gain of about 15 per cent, there has been an advance of 35 per cent in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; * * * 490,000 has been our growth during this ten-year period, while in tbe entire Western Section there has been an increase of but about 900,000 souls."

In 1866, a little over fifty years ago, our Church had 429,233 communicants (see McTyeire's "History of Methodism," page 664); and now its membership is well past the 2,000,000 mark. It is not surpassed in influence in the Southern States by any other denomination, and during the last half-century it has not been outstripped in growth by any otber branch of Methodism in the world.

A recent writer in the Advocate spoke of the rapid growth of the Roman Catholic and Northern Methodist Churches in the South. This was an erroneous notion. The Catholic Church is making very little headway among the native white people of the Southern States, and the same is true as to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Tbe 1917 Year-Book of the latter denomination, the latest that we have at hand, shows that after many decades of persistent effort, the Northern Methodist Church has in the Gulf Conference, embracing, if we mistake not, the great States of Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, only 5154 members (not including the German churches), and that there was a decrease in the year 1916 of 842 communicants. We had thought that everybody knew that, except where it has been aided by immigration from the North, the Methodist Episcopal Church has made very slow progress among the white population of this section, as our Church also has when operating in territory where Northern influences are predominant. This fact goes to show that in order to achieve a large measure of success among any people a religious denomination must be in right relation to them—must be in general harmony with their social and political ideals and sentiments. Thus it has often been said, that no heathen country can ever be made Christian until a native Church has been developed that is strong enough to evangelize it and accomplish that result.

THINKS THEY WOULD NOT LAST LONG.

Some writers in our Southern Methodist papers have advanced the view that as they now stand in the pending Plan of Unification, being mere appendages of the General Conference, meeting at the same time and place, the Regional Conferences would prove a sort of fifth wheel in the machinery and would not last long. The Northwestern Christian Advocate, of Chicago, one of the official organs of the Northern Methodist Church, concurs in this view, as the following extract from its issue of March 27 shows:

"The Regional Conference plan need not bar union. At best it is only a temporary expedient. It is probable the Church would tire of this cumbersome operation and soon abolish it altogether. At any rate, the new Church will start out blocked into regional groups, quite confident that time, the great adjuster, will do his work well and satisfactorily. If other and more serious questions can be adjusted satisfactorily, Regional Conferences will shape themselves to tbe wish of all after their impracticability has been established."

Yet practically all the protection that has been provided for the minority body, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the proposed new ecclesiasticism is vested in these unstable bodies, the demise of which is so confidently predicted by our distinguished contemporary.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Number 2 of the Millsaps College Bulletin is on our desk. It contains several articles of interest, along with a good deal of information in the way of College news notes.

Rev. L. N. Hoffpauir, of Franklinton, La., was in New Orleans last Monday and paid the Advocate office a visit. The Editor regrets having missed him, not being in at the time.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, was some days ago called to tbe bedside of his father in Mississippi, wbo was reported to be seriously ill. We hope that the stricken one is better ere this, and that he may soon recover.

Our esteemed brother, Rev. T. J. Hopper, of Abbeville, Miss., gives us 6 additional subscriptions from his charge, remarking as follows: "This makes the 10 new subscribers allotted to me; but I think that others will follow. Everything is moving on well with us."

A correspondent informs us that Rev. E. S. Lewis is giving great satisfaction in the pastorate at Greenville, Miss., having already won his way into the hearts of the people of that progressive city. It is nothing unusual for Brother Lewis to be highly esteemed where he labors.

The Louisiana Avenue M. E. Church, South, of this city, was struck by lightning during a rain storm one day last week and sustained some damage. However, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, the industrious pastor, had tbings in shape for the services last Sunday.

Rev. W. A. Terry, the popular pastor of our Broad Street Church at Hattiesburg Miss., writes optimistically of his work, which is making good headway. His letter brought a check to send the Advoeate into 6 homes which it has heretofore not been reaeblng. Thank you, Brother Terry.

Rev. H. W. May, the presidlng elder, requests us to announce that the District Conference of the Baton Rouge District will meet at Hammond, La., at 8 p. m. on May 28 and continue its session until the work is done. We pray that this occasion may in every respect be a profitable one.

From Jena, La., Rev. H. T. Young, our efficient Conference evangelist in Louisiana, sent us, on March 25, the followlng note: "I closed a meeting at Pleasant Hill, La., with Brother P. O. Lowrey, last night. Brother Lowrey is doing a good work there and has the confidence and esteem of the people."

Sister S. D. Dove, who for many years has been one of the best known and most active Methodists at Shelby, Miss., will henceforth reside in Memphis, Tenn., with her brother, Mr. J. H. Stafford. She wants the Advocate to follow her to her new home, having long been one of its appreciative readers.

Rev. G. A. Morgan, of Jonesboro, La., under date of April 2, writes: "We are in the midst of a revival meeting at Hodge. Rev. H. T. Young, the Louisiana Conference evangelist, is leading our forces." We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Brother Morgan for two subscriptions to the Advocate.

Rev. Jasper L. Smith is pleased with the progress of the work in the Saucier and Lyman charge, Mississippi Conference. As he always does in his field, he has been looking for the interests of the Advocate, and his communication brought to the office a list of 8 subscribers, for which he has our thanks.

Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., thus reports concerning his work at Homer, La.: "Things are going along very well at this place. The Board of Stewards are taking good care of the finances, and we have been having some excellent prayer meetings." Good! We like to see a pastor appraising his prayer meeting as a thing of value.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosciusko, Miss., says: "We have just finished repairing and painting the parsonage here, and it is now one of the prettiest homes in town. Our congregations are large, and the work generally is moving on well. We will begin our meeting here on April 14, and will have with us Rev. R. A. Clark, of the Memphis Conference.

Speaking of Coldwater, Miss., Rev. N. G. Augustus, our pastor there, says: "This is a pleasant place to live. I like it." The Editor knows this statement to be true, having once served the Coldwater church. Brother Augustus has given us a notably strong article for the Advocate which we have in type and which we hope to give to our readers in our next issue.

Rev. E. C. Driskell, of Greenwood Springs, Miss., thus reports concerning his work: "The prospects are bright in this field. We are serving a fine people who know how to take care of their pastor. Our Friendship Church remembered us on Easter with many good things for our pantry." Brother Driskell's letter brought us 2 names for the Advocate's mailing file.

"Our work is progressing finely. At the first quarterly conference the board of stewards advanced the pastor's salary $100. Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, our presiding elder, is a worker, his whole heart being in the service." So writes Rev. L. H. Floyd, pastor of the Okolona (Miss.) Circuit. Brother Floyd's letter brought us 4 subscriptions and he says that more will follow.

Conservatism prevailed at the session of the Baltimore Conference, just held. Resolutions endorsing the tentative plan of unification that has been published were shelved, and others expressing sympathy with the general idea of unification and commending the earnest endeavors of our Commissioners were adopted. Dr. F. J. Prettyman will head the delegation to the General Conference.

Mrs. N. E. Cunningham, of Wilson, La., in forwarding us 2 subscriptions, adds in her letter the following note: "I have been taking the Advocate for 30 years, and do not see how I could do without it. I fully endorse Dr. S. A. Steel's article, 'The Way It Looks to Me,' which appeared in your issue of March 14. If union with the Church, North, in the proposed form is forced upon us, I fear that it will divide Southern Methodism."

Rev. N. S. Loftus, our pastor on the Woodville (Miss.) Circuit, forwards us 4 subscriptions, and in his business letter adds the following note: "The outlook is good for a prosperous year in this charge along all lines. Brother Sharbrough is a wide-awake and efficient presiding elder, and is highly esteemed by our people. I am working earnestly in the interest of the Advocate, and I hope to send you some new subscribers soon."

Rev. W. C. Harris, of Uvalde, Texas, who is a beloved superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference, in a personal letter to the Editor, says: "I am glad to report that, taking the winter through, my health has been unusually good. A complication of slight troubles threw me back a little in February, but I have about recovered from this." Brother Harris' many friends in his home State will be pleased to see this message from him.

In a business communication making provision for having the Advocate to visit several homes in his charge, Rev. J. E. Stephens, of Coahoma, Miss., gives us the following items from his fine field: "My work is progressing nicely. The assessment for my salary was increased $300, and 75 per cent of my Conference collections have already been paid. My charge made an Easter offering to our Orphanage at Jackson of something over $500." This is, indeed, an excellent report.

A mass meeting in the interest of the prohibition cause was held in the Methodist Church at South Mansfield, La., March 28. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Leland Clegg, the pastor, and Dr. S. A. Steel delivered a stirring address. We are informed that Brother Clegg will deliver the annual Alumni oration at the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, taking the place of the orator-elect, who cannot be present on that occasion.

From Camp Shelby (Hattiesburg, Miss.), March 26, Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Bogalusa, La., writes us as follows: "Rev. W. R. Hendrix, D.D., pastor of St. Mark's Church of Atlanta, Ga., after conducting a most successful meeting at First Church, Bogalusa, is now preaching with great power to our soldiers at Camp Shelby. I am assisting in the work in a small way." We trust that much good was accomplished by these services held for our soldier boys.

Rev. A. J. Davis, of Daleville, Miss., finds much to encourage him in his labors. He says: "Our second quarterly conference was held at Soule's Chapel, March 16 and 17. The presiding elder preached ably, and the ladies served an excellent dinner on the ground. The business session of the Conference was gratifying. The pastor's salary was increased $160, and the stewards made a good financial report. We took an offering for the Orphanage on Easter Sunday and secured $21."

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Cockrum, Miss., has favored us with an additional list of 7 subscriptions to the Advocate, which brings the total number that he has given us up to 22, of which 17 were new. We highly appreciate this work in behalf of the Conference organ. Brother Bowlin thus comments upon conditions in his field: "My work is in fine shape and the outlook promises a great year. Our old parsonage is now being removed, and we hope ere long to have a new and modern house in its place."

Rev. Walter J. Johnson, pastor of Grace Church, Dallas, Texas, who is a transplanted Mississippian, is making a great record in his present field. In the two years and five months of his incumbency, he has received into the Church 585 members, and his flock now numbers 1200. The pastor's salary, in the meantime, has grown from $2500 to $1000. On the Easter Sunday just passed 38 members were taken into the Church, 15 children were baptized, and a cash subscription of $1200.35 was made to the Conference collections."

Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, of Tupelo, Miss., sends us, April 8, a post-card from Knoxville, Tenn., which reads as follows: "I am here in attendance upon the Woman's Missionary Council by request of Miss Bennett. We had a delightful trip up through the woods, aglow with dogwood blossoms. I never saw the pink dogwood in the woods before. We are having a great meeting, and are making plans for the Centenary Celebration in 1919. Dr. Durham, by his addresses, is giving us a great spiritual uplift. Miss Bennett is presiding with her usual grace and charm."

From a letter from Rev. T. H. Mills, of Pickens, Miss., we take the following: "I am glad to say that everything in this charge points to a better future. Our second quarterly conference was one of the best (if not the best) that it has ever been my pleasure to attend. The finances are in advance of previous years and every one seems to be in fine spirits. Our people are loyal and true, and our presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, is making full proof of his ministry. What would you think of a Methodist preacher who would not be pleased with such a situation?"

We are informed that Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss., who is one of the authorized evangelists of the North Mississippi Conference, has lately closed a fine revival at Courtland, Miss., where Rev. R. I. Collins is the popular pastor. The singing was led by Mr. Paul Templeton. Brother Bell is one of the growing young evangelists of the Church, and he and Brother Templeton make an excellent team in a meeting. We hope that the brethren will keep these workers busy. Never was there a more urgent need for genuine revivals in our charges than now. Write Brother Bell and see if he can give you a date.

Brother D. W. McLean, of Longville, La., writes: "As you have been printing in the Advocate the names of preachers' sons who are in the Army, I send you the name of Private Charles E. McLean, my youngest son, who is a local preacher, and who was a student at Centenary College. He is with the Coast Artillery, and is in training at Fort McKinley, Portland, Me. I have recently had a letter from him announcing his arrival there; and, among other things, he said: 'Do not worry about me; I am in good hands. God is mightier than discase or the German army, and I have put my future in his hands.'" Brother McLean adds: "We are very much pleased with our pastor, Rev. J. H. Hoffpauir."

Rev. Ben P. Jaco is happy in the work at Lexington, Miss., as the following statement from him will attest: "At our second quarterly conference the salary was reported in full for half the year; we have raised more than the amount of the assessment for the Conference benevolences, but part of it went to specials. One of our members is providing for the full support of a native preacher in China, and for half the support of a preacher in Japan. Our congregation proposes to do all that is necessary for the war, and for the regular Conference collections, and, besides, will maintain still another preacher on a mission in the Conference, and myself." This is truly a capital showing. We congratulate Brother Jaco and his worthy flock upon this record.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, who is distinguished for his ardent and unselfish devotion to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, sends us the following message: "As the day for the next meeting of the Joint Commission on Unification approaches, my thoughts turn to you, and I pray that God may bless the good work that you have done in trying to give light to our people concerning this most important matter. I fully endorse your course, and I am persuaded that your work will be a blessing to future generations." In this, as in most other things, both the sweet and the bitter come to the Editor. While some, like Brother May, commend him, there are others who abuse him. But always the proper course for one to pursue is to do what one conceives to be one's duty, come what may.

We have been pleased to learn that our Rayne Memorial Church of New Orleans, of which Dr. U. G. Foote is pastor, has decided to appropriate $1500 annually to the work of the Mary Werlein Mission, in this city. This pledge was made by the Board of Stewards at their April meeting. The Rev. W. E. Thomas, pastor of the Mission, was present with two little children who had been abandoned by their mother and left in the care of the Mission, and the scene touched all present. This pledge of $1500 by the Rayne officials does not preclude other contributions, and the work will need more than that for its proper equipment and maintenance. Indeed, it should be so supported as to make it possible for it to grow into a great institution, such as Methodism ought to have in this great center of population. (Since the above note was sent to us, information has reached us that the Rayne Memorial congregation, finding upon investigation that the present needs of Mary Werlein Mission are very great, decided to raise $1500 additional for special purposes connected with this important work. Most of this amount has already been secured.)

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS TO CAMP SHELBY PASTOR'S SALARY.

The subscriptions to the fund to support our pastor at Camp Shelby made at the last session of our Annual Conference are all due and should be paid within the next few days or weeks.

Considerably less than one-fourth of the amount subscribed to support Rev. Roy H. Kleiser in this work had been paid, and, with heavy office expenses, he is very much in need of funds to meet outstanding obligations.

Please look after collecting these amounts at once and forward them to me at my address in Jackson. It has become necessary for me to borrow money to prevent the Camp pastor from suffering. This, of course, cannot go on much longer without embarrassing myself.

Let me have a remittance from every subscriber as soon as he reads this notice, please.

Yours fraternally,

CHAS. W. CRISLER,

Treasurer, Miss. Conf. Board of Missions.

FROM OUR WORKERS.

Rev. B. E. Meigs, of Monticello, Miss., favors us with an order to send the Advocate to 5 persons, with the cash to correspond. He also says: "You may expect more later."

Names are still coming from Rev. W. R. Williams, our excellent pastor at Buena Vista, Miss. This time he gives us 5, and adds his usual welcome message, "More to follow."

Rev. D. R. McDougal, of Calhoun City, Miss., has brought a smile to the Publisher's face by sending in a fine list of 12 subscriptions, with a check to correspond. He is one of the live wires in the Aberdeen District.

Rev. J. W. York, Golden, Miss., says: "I am sending you 11 subscriptions, and will send others soon." The work of his charge is flourishing, and he thinks that no better people can be found in the world than his.

Rev. Jesse F. Watson, pastor of the Bellefontaine (Miss.) Circuit, gives us 5 names for our mailing files, and writes as follows: "I am, if I can, going to give our Church paper more subscriptions in this charge than it has ever had before. I think it is a preacher's most effective fellow-worker. You may count upon me to keep this matter before my people."

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. A. Biffle, Eureka, Miss., 3; Mrs. H. J. Morris, Oak Ridge, La., 4; Rev. J. L. Greenway, Lucedale, Miss., 2; Rev. W. T. Woodward, Sicily Island, 2; Rev. G. D. Anders, Indian Bayou, La., 2; Rev. Thomas Mills, Pickens, Miss., 3; Rev. T. M. Bradley, Cleveland, Miss., 2; Rev. W. G. Burks, Blue Mountain, Miss., 4; Rev. J. W. Price, Perth, Miss., 5; Rev. W. W. Hopper, Lorman, Miss., 3; Rev. J. W. Campbell, Benton, Miss., 2; Rev. G. C. Gregory, Ashland, Miss., 3; Rev. B. P. Fullilove, Walnut, Miss., 3; Rev. J. R. Murff, Iuka Circuit, N. Miss. Conf., 8.

CHRIST NEEDED IN YOUTH.

One of the saddest thoughts about youth is that it may so easily be shipwrecked. The fairest life may be blighted in a short time. This is the dread possibility which confronts every young soul. But Christ is safety to youth. They who are His enjoy a protection that is a sufficient reason for yielding the life to Him.—The Way of Faith.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The little pink or yellow address label on the copy of the Advocate which you receive weekly shows your name and address, and the date of expiration of your subscription. Dec1917 indicates that your subscription expired Dec. 1, 1917, and that it is past due, and should be renewed. Subscribers will please examine the labels on their papers, and if it is found that the subscriptions are past due, they should remit at once. Conditions are such that we cannot afford to continue sending the paper to those who are in arrears. If a subscriber does not want the subscription to continue, we expect him or her to pay that which is due us, and notify us to stop sending the paper. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated by the management of this Advocate, and it will be the means of helping us to avoid losses by discontinuing the paper to those who do not desire it.

The Blood is the Life.

The blood is the life because it is the nutritive fluid. If the blood becomes very impure, the bones, the muscles and other parts of the body are impaired and finally become diseased. Slighter variations in the quality of the blood, such as are often brought about by breathing the bad air of unventilated rooms, have equally sure though less plain ill effects on the nervous system.

Persons that have any reason to believe that their blood is not pure should begin to take Hood's Sarsaparilla at once. This medicine has done more than any other in cleansing, enriching and revitalizing the blood and giving strength and tone to all the organs and functions.

If you want to be entirely satisfied, insist on having Hood's. Accept no substitute.—Adv.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair to Any Shade

Don't stay gray! Here's a simple recipe that anybody can apply with a hair brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Sister ELIZABETH ANN McKAY was born near Port Gibson, Claiborne County, Miss., on April 5, 1833, and passed from this life on Jan. 27, 1918. Sister McKay (nee Jones) was married to Daniel A. McKay in 1853. Five children blessed this union, and all are left to mourn their loss, except one son. Sister McKay united with the Methodist Church early in life and lived a consistent member until her death. In her home-going the community has lost a helpful neighbor, the church a faithful member, and her children a loving, devoted mother. May God the Father bless and comfort the bereaved loved ones and friends! J. W. THOMPSON.

L. S. TOLBERT, son of Perkins Tolbert, was born on Oct. 31, 1854, and died on March 5, 1918. He joined the Ebenezer (Baptist) Church early in life. A few years later he became a member of the church at Hepzebah, La. In 1866 he was married to Miss Margaret E. Brown. He then withdrew from the Baptist Church and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, becoming a member of the Clear Creek congregation, where his membership was at the time of his death. He leaves a wife, seven sons, one daughter, six grandchildren, two brothers, and one sister to mourn their loss. He was a devoted husband and father and a good citizen. He was interested in all the movements which had as their object the betterment of conditions in his community and in the State. May all who were associated with him during his life cultivate his noble traits of honesty and uprightness!

His pastor,
J. L. CADY.

ASBURY GREEN BARKSDALE was born in Holmes County, Miss., on Oct. 30, 1845. He passed out of this life at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed. Bradshaw, at Dover, Miss., on the night of March 11, 1918, being in his 74th year. He served four years in the Confederate Army. He was twice married, the second wife having died about 8 years ago. Brother Barksdale is survived by four children, two sons and two daughters. Both sons have entered the service of their country. They came home for a few days during their father's last illness. The deceased united with the Methodist Church in middle life and remained loyal to it to the end. During the writer's pastorate he was ever faithful, when not prevented by illness, in attending the worship of God. He expressed no fear in meeting his Master and passed into his rest calmly and peacefully. A familiar figure in the neighborhood, he will be missed by all, not only by the loved ones of the home, but by all who knew him.

M. F. ADAMS.

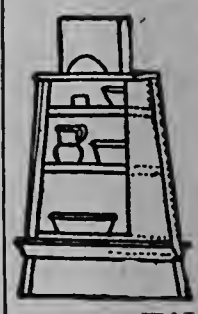
WILLIAM G. COOPER was born in Marshall, Texas, Dec. 3, 1850, and peacefully "fell on sleep" at his home, near Florence, Rankin County, Miss., on Nov. 25, 1917. He was twice married, first to Mariah Jane Smith on Jan. 11, 1872, who died on July 29, 1900. On Oct. 19, 1903, he was married to Miss Katherine Brewer, of Wesson, Miss. Of the first union there were born eleven children, and of the second, two. The last wife and all of the thirteen children are left to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and father. Brother Cooper was soundly converted in early life and joined the Methodist Church at Wesleyana in 1869. He loved the Church and was always faithful to its interests and active in its work. For many years he served in the capacity of a steward, and none were more faithful in the discharge of the duties of that important office. He was never too busy to attend the quarterly conferences, and for many years he made it a rule to see that his church met its financial obligations in full, often paying much more than his own share. His home was always the preacher's home, and he was ever the friend of the preachers, sometimes aiding them even to his own financial hurt. A good man, husband, father, and neighbor, and a truly consecrated Christian has gone to his reward, and "his works do follow him." After appropriate services conducted by his pastor, the body was laid to rest in the Briar Hill Cemetery, to await the glorious resurrection morn.

J. B. KING, P. C.

Brother S. D. ROBERTS was born in Amite County, Miss., on Oct. 10, 1858, and died on March 3, 1918, in Oberlin, La., at the home of his son, Rev. S. D. Roberts, Jr. His parents, T. G. and Amanda Roberts, were devoted Christians, doing all they could for every good cause. Brother Roberts was first married to Miss Sheddie Anders on Jan. 18, 1883, who was a sister of Brother Geo. D. Anders of the Louisiana Conference. On June 27, 1886, she and her infant babe, fifteen days old, died, leaving a little girl two years old, who died at about three years of age. On Feb. 5, 1888, Brother Roberts was married the second time to Miss Ella Tucker. Of this union were born two children, Rev. S. D. and Miss Lorena Roberts. His devoted wife writes: "I lived with him thirty years, and his was a life of virtue, truthfulness and honesty." He had filled faithfully the office of a steward and Bible class teacher, and during the last two years of his life he was the charge lay leader of the Zachary charge. He has left four brothers and a sister to mourn his departure. Three of the brothers are Methodist ministers. In a letter to the writer, sister Roberts says: "A few hours before he left us, he sang—

"'I'd rather be the least of those
Who are the Lord's alone.
Than to wear a royal diadem
And sit upon a throne.'"

Brother Roberts was converted at the age of twenty-one. He never afterward doubted that he was a child of God. He testified on all suitable occasions to the saving power of the blood of Jesus. He was loyal to his Church, accepting heartily and defending zealously her doctrines, and he showed by a stainless life that he walked and talked with the King.



His pastor,
J. J. KELLY.

JOHN REED WILSON, son of W. R. and E. M. Wilson, was born on Oct. 13, 1889. He was happily married to Miss Eula Vashti Vick on Nov. 8, 1914. Reed, as he was familiarly known, was converted at eleven years of age, and, joining the M. E. Church, South, he lived a consistent Christian life, as is shown by his record. When he was called to serve his country in this great war, he was serving as superintendent of the Sunday school and as recording steward for the Eureka charge. On Sept. 26, 1917, he left his home and loved ones for Camp Pike, and, after a little more than three weeks in camp, he took sick and was sent to the camp hospital, where he remained until Feb. 24 of this year, when God called him home. So just five months, to a day, after he was drafted into the Army service, we laid his body to rest in the cemetery. In order to show the love and esteem in which he was held, one of the largest crowds that ever assembled in this church attended his funeral. Reed leaves his beloved wife, who so faithfully attended him during his illness; one little daughter, two years old, whom he loved dearly; his father and mother, and the following brothers and sisters: J. G. Wilson, who is superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school at Clyde, Miss.; Richard Wilson, Mattie Wilson, Edward Wilson, and Georgia Wilson. His brothers and sisters are all members of the Methodist Church. Reed is missed in the home, in the church, and in the community, chiefly because he was a leader. While it seems that we need him here, God had a better place for him and called him forth. He gave his life for his country, to save his home and to preserve freedom and liberty. May God, out of his heart of love, speak abiding peace and comfort to the grief-stricken loved ones!

His pastor,
J. A. BIFFLE.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS GET COMFORT
That makes them fit for the hard work in camp and trenches, at sea or on marches, by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to shake into the shoes. It takes the friction from the shoes and freshens the feet. Allen's Foot-Ease has been the standard remedy for 25 years for relief of callouses, tired, aching, sweating, swollen feet, and makes tight shoes feel easy. The Plattsburg Manuel advises the use of Foot-Ease each morning. Try it to-day.

Don't Cough Until Weak

Foley's Honey and Tar
HELPS COUGHS QUICKLY
FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR takes right hold of an obstinate cough and gives quick relief.
It puts a healing coating on the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages. It stops the tickling, loosens and raises phlegm easily. It is just splendid for bronchial and la grippe coughs, and tight, wheezy breathing.
Mrs. W. S. Bailey, Lancaster, Ky., coughed almost continuously day and night, until she took Foley's Honey and Tar. After taking half a bottle, her cough began to slow up, and seven bottles entirely cured her cough.

Salts if Backachy and Kidneys Hurt

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney reglou it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SELF DEFENSE

DEFEAT BACKACHE AND KIDNEY TROUBLE WITH ANURIC.

Many people in this section, as elsewhere, have suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble and have found Anuric to be the most successful remedy to overcome these painful and dangerous ailments.

The lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded Nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's called "Anuric." You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, backache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as Bright's disease, diabetes or stone in the bladder.

To overcome these distressing conditions you should take plenty of exercise in the open air, avoid a heavy meat diet, drink freely of water and at each meal take Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets (double strength). You will, in a short time, find that you are one of the firm indorsers of An-u-ric, as are many of your neighbors.

Send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10 cents for trial package.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"I have used the Anuric Tablets for the kidneys and they surely did give good results. I have also used the 'Pleasant Pellets' for the liver and they have done me a great deal of good. I can recommend Doctor Pierce's medicine as mighty fine." —G. A. RAGSDALE.

ATHENS, GA.—"I had been complaining with my back for 10 years and had tried a great many remedies. Of course, I was not completely down but it was very painful through my spine. I tried Anuric and found complete relief. Now I can lift 100 lbs. and over, where before I could scarcely get up when I stooped to tie my shoe."—J. W. ANDERSON, 347 Augusta Ave.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS.

rendered to all our enterprises by the Church press, that the General Conference be urged to devise plans for the more adequate support and larger circulation of our Church papers. It is assumed that every pulpit and every organization in the Church will become a medium of publicity and that every member, from the chief pastors to the humblest members, will become heralds of this mighty missionary movement.

III. Stewardship and Finance.

Recognizing that we hold our property, not as absolute owners, but as stewards, and believing that our marvelous financial prosperty, without precedent in all history, is a definite challenge to our faithfulness, and appreciating the opportunity to transmute material and perishable things into spiritual and eternal values, we direct the attention of our people to the world's inviting field and ask for investment commensurate with our means and adequate to the needs of our missionary enterprise.

We appreciate the splendid surveys prepared by our Secretaries with the co-operation of our missionaries; and having carefully considered the askings of our several mission fields as presented through officers of our Board of Missions and Board of Church Extension, we are convinced that the aggregate of estimates is conservative and will barely meet our immediate necessities. We, therefore, recommend that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, under the auspices of its Centenary Commission, raise as a Centenary Fund four million dollars a year for five years, making a total of twenty millions.

We further recommend that the present regular income of approximately $2,000,000 a year, $10,000,000 for the five years, be added to the $20,000,000, making a grand total of $30,000,000 as the goal for five years.

The titanic struggle for liberty and democracy into which our country has been precipitated, has brought with it new and enlarged responsibilities in America and across the sea—in France, Belgium, Italy, Serbia, and Russia. The heroic spirit of our soldiers and of our people fires our patriotism afresh and inspires us to a renewed sense of obligation to sacrificial service.

We heartily endorse the action of our College of Bishops in authorizing war work, at home and abroad. In view of the rapidly growing demand for chaplains, camp workers and their equipment, hospitals, trained nurses, and a personal ministry in camp and in field; and in view of the possibilities growing out of new and inviting fields for evangelistic effort in Europe and the Near East, we would recommend the additional sum of one million dollars a year for five years, making a grand total of $35,000,000 as a minimum, and that no maximum limit be fixed.

We recommend that all our plans for the raising of these additional funds be so laid and operated as not to hinder but to help in elevating the Church's normal yearly income to at least double the present amount, so that we shall be in position at the end of five years to take care of the increased yearly demand on our Board, growing out of the five years' extraordinary expansion.

These recommendations are made with the full understanding that the most thorough and business-like financial organization be created by the proper Church authorities, and that the raising of the money is to be utilized in the development of the spiritual life of our people, so that they shall be prepared for greater undertakings in every department of Church activity.

IV. Enlisting Workers.

The need of men and women of capacity, courage, high purpose and deep consecration is even greater than the need of money. With the unparalleled demands of the changing order and a world undergoing reconstruction, we are convinced that steps should be taken to enlist for Christian service, at home and abroad, our best equipped young men, either now exempt from military duty, or hereafter returning from Europe, and many heroic women who are even now ready to serve their Church and their country.

V. A Program for American Methodism.

We heartily concur in the recommendation of the Niagara Conference of the Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, that a joint meeting be held at some early date for the formulation of a world program for American Methodism, and we suggest that an appropriate occasion for such meeting be the Conference of the One Thousand to be held at Junaluska, June 26-30.

VI. Deputation Work.

It is the sense of this meeting that as high strategy, for the clearer understanding and more effective promotion of the world program of American Methodism, strong deputations of our laymen, together with pastors and Bishops, be secured for immediate, special visitation of our work in other lands, and that so far as possible these visitations be conducted jointly with the Methodist Episcopal Church. To that end, we hereby request the Joint Centenary Commission of the two Churches to make adequate provision for the enlistment of such deputation.

VII. Personal Preparation.

In view of the supernatural element in all this work of the world-wide missions in which the aim is to present Jesus Christ, we would recommend that the greatest possible emphasis be placed upon devotional Bible study, the deepening of the spiritual life, and that intercession which releases the power of God, without which we cannot do the work of God.

Signed: W. R. Lambuth, Chairman; A. C. Millar, Secretary; R. E. Turnipseed, O. E. Goddard, Belle Bennett, L. G. Glyde, J. S. Carr, Thos. S. Southgate, J. J. Gray, P. H. Enochs, W. R. Stockham.

THE GOSPEL KEY.

God locks up his best blessings, but gives to every man a key wherewith to open the lock. One man tries the key of pride, but it will not fit the lock. Another tries the key of selfishness, and he also fails. His key is three times as big as the keyhole, and he can't get it in. They all fail to unlock the door, and go away. Finally, another man comes. He puts his key to the lock and it slides in; there is not a ward that it does not touch; the bolt slides back without a sound ,and the door swings open. He knows the secret. He comes in the spirit of love, obedience and resignation, and to him God's will is revealed.—Beecher.

Whenever you attempt a good work you will find other men doing the same kind of work, and probably doing it better. Envy them not.—Drummond.

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE IS A SKIN WHITENER

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.—Adv.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Calotabs

The purified calomel tablets that are entirely free of all sickening and salivating effects.

Medicinal virtues vastly improved. Guaranteed by your druggist. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

Freckles—

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Sunday School

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Mississippi Conference.

At Bay Springs I found that Dr. Hunt was in great favor with his people, and the work promises well. It is hoped that their Workers' Council will do a good work, and that they will be enabled to make a good grade at the District Institute.

At Raleigh I found (for the community, etc.,) the nicest, prettiest church I have seen in a long time. I think we owe that splendid people and pastor a vote of thanks. Two individual teacher-training students were secured and two classes were organized as a result of the visit there. Brother Jones is a man of God and his people love him very much.

At Lake we had a delightful time with Brother Corley. Rev. W. L. Linfield, the presiding elder, was with us at the last service. They have a beautiful church building, and they are going to use it, too. They agreed to separate the Elementary Department from the rest of the Sunday school. This will mean much to those children. Two classes were organized.

Brooklyn reports another class organized, and that the class is to support a Sunday school in Japan this year. This makes two Sunday schools for Brooklyn in Japan. Hurrah for Brooklyn!

The officers' reports are coming in right along, and they all speak a hopeful note. I find that many of the officers are on the job and are doing good work—more, really, than I thought they could do. This gives me fresh courage and a great hope.

The "Children's Day" programs are off the press and have been ordered sent to each pastor. I hope that they will arrive soon enough for the day to be observed on time; but if they do not, observe the day later.

Pray for your Field Secretary.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Stirring Up and Stimulating in the Spring.

Its sluggish lack of vigor is a large factor in causing the dullness, depression and weakness that hang on to you like lead in your shoes from morning till night.

Hood's Pills are the best liver stimulant and family cathartic,—best because they do their work well and do not deplete the blood like purgative salts and waters, which often leave a woful train of catarrhal discharges that are unnatural and weakening.

Then you may get the splendid blood-enriching qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the iron-building effects of Peptiron into the combination, and the three medicines working together give the grandest health-uplift it is possible to have from medicine.

Any one of the three medicines will do you good—the use of all three will accomplish wonderful results for you. Try this treatment this Spring.

GOD A NECESSITY.

There is no work that has ever been accomplished, that proved of lasting worth, which has not been built on the foundation of certainty in the existence of and trust in God. All work, if it is to be of worth, must come from and be built on this foundation of certainty in God. THE FEASIBILITY OF ESTABLISHING A CHRISTIAN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS IN HOUMA, LA., CONSIDERED.

On Thursday evening, Mar. 21, on the invitation of a committee composed of the pastor and several members of the Board of Stewards, a number of the representative citizens of Houma met at the Methodist Mission Hall to discuss the plans as presented by our Council workers for the establishment of a Christian Industrial School for Girls in Houma.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. H. Pullen, who called the gathering to order promptly at 8 o'clock, after the singing of several hymns.

Rev. F. J. McCoy, the pastor, offered prayer, and the chairman stated the purpose for which our friends were invited together.

The Rev. Mr. McCoy followed with a brief talk upon the advantages in general to any community where an educational institution of this nature is located, and also spoke of the great need in this section of such a school.

Rev. G. L. Tucker, Rector of the Episcopal Church, then spoke in well-chosen words of the situation in the French Mission Field as seen from his many years of service here and of his conviction that Houma should become the "spiritual capital" of the Southland. He stated that he felt that such a school as outlined in our posters would indeed be a long step toward the realization of his hope.

Mrs. White, one of the Council workers, followed with a statement of the work now being done by the Council in this field and of the careful and prayerful survey that had been made of conditions and needs, and of the evolving of the plans for a Christian Industrial School for Girls as the sanest and quickest method of evangelization and educational uplift.

Miss Hooper, the Council's headworker, then gave a definite outline of the proposed plan of work in the school, as developed to this point, and showed how great an educational need would be filled by taking girls who have never had any advantages and are still in the primary grades, though in their 'teens, and giving them the all-round academic, industrial, and spiritual training possible under our plans.

The Rev. Mr. Blackburn, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, next spoke, opening his remarks by saying that, though a Presbyterian, he had caught the Methodist enthusiasm at this meeting. He stressed the importance, especially in this locality, of the spiritual training promised and the teaching of the girls about life and its duties through the open Word of God, saying that he felt that nothing of greater moment could be carried out than the development of character that would come to our girls from such training.

At the request of the Chairman for an expression of the attitude of the meeting, Rev. Mr. Blackburn offered the resolution that a Christian Industrial School for Girls, such as proposed, will meet a very urgent need of this community; and that, if it be established by the Council here in Houma, it will meet a hearty welcome and co-operation on the part of her citizens. This resolution was unanimously carried.

The closing talk of the evening was made by Mr. Robert Martin, of Bayou Blue Church, a Frenchman who has lived in this section all his life, who has been converted to Methodism out of Catholic heritage, and one who is thoughtful and knows conditions as no outsider can possibly do. He referred with appreciation to the work that has been done by the public school system of Louisiana, but showed the limitations necessarily inherent in public school training, in that it is confined to purely moral and ethical teaching and is not permitted to deal with the spiritual side of a child's development. He also noted the fact that, from the very nature of things, the public schools could not adequately reach the need of a country community as they do in a town or city. He feelingly spoke of his own limitations in education on account of the lack of school advantages and told of more than one instance right now of girls who are well in their 'teens and who can barely read or write. He told of how he had been forced to send his boys away as far as Ohio to school because there is no school nearer home that could give them the training that he desired; and he said that he had long been praying to see such a school opened here. He stated that it is his intention to send his daughters to our school, if the Council opens it as we hope for; and he announced his purpose to present to the school a large bell on the day that a deed is signed that will put us in possession of the property for its location.

All were deeply impressed by Mr. Martin's words as to the crying need and the power for good in the work of such a school.

In a few fitting remarks, Mr. Pullen entertained a motion for adjournment and closed the meeting.

POVERTY.

Men shun poverty; they toil, and moil, and lie, and cheat, and weary themselves in the very fire for money; yet poverty may be a perfect blessing. Christ chose the lot of poverty. There has hardly been a great saint or benefactor of mankind who has not been poor; and often to be a millionaire has proved to be an utter curse, and to die a millionaire has been to die disgraced. There is a poverty, honest and noble, like that of Christ, which is transcendently preferable to riches; a poverty which has "its sweet, complete, untainted happiness like the intermittent notes of birds before the daybreak, or the first gleams of heaven's amber in the eastern gray."—Canon Farrar.

"Man's perversity may delay, but it cannot frustrate God's purposes."

"WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!"

Have you ever heard that remark made as some one passed by who had carefully kept hair? Did it not make you envious and did it not make you ashamed of every coarse, stiff or gray hair in your head? Did it not make you wish that you, too, had kept your hair carefully and could hear similar compliments passed on on? Don't envy a beautiful head of hair. It is your privilege to have one. The beauty of the hair depends entirely on its care; and its luster depends on the food on which it subsists. Hair must be fed. Every single hair is a distinctly individual living thing and it demands food. Unless you feed it, it is going to be stiff and coarse and void of beauty. Follow the example of the Creoles of Louisiana, who pride themselves on their hair. Get their recipe. It was kept as a race secret for many years but you can get it now by asking our dealer for "La Creole," the natural hair dressing, or by sending one dollar to the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slighest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

Iuka Circuit (North Miss. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: We had our first "Every-Member Canvass" yesterday at a small church. The results were encouraging. Everything bids fair for a prosperous year on the Iuka Circuit. We hope to bring up all the assessments in full. We are sending in today's mail a liberal contribution from one church to Rev. W. B. Hogg, Chaplain 312th Engineers, Camp Pike, Ark., to assist him in buying literature and Victrolas for the Base Hospital. Not many of our members are able to buy Liberty Bonds, but all who are able are buying Thrift and War Saving Stamps, eating cornbread and conserving daylight to help Uncle Sam get the Kaiser. We will send more subscriptions to the Advocate soon.

—J. R. Murff, P. C.

Oak Ridge, Miss.

Dear Advocate: Dr. Meek, I hope you will pardon my "continual coming," but I feel constrained to say a few words about a Sunday school day we had at Oak Ridge on Easter Sunday.

Rev. J. B. Cain, of Washington, Superintendent of Teacher-training of the Port Gibson District, preached in the forenoon on Christian Education. He also preached Sunday evening and spent Monday evening with our teacher-training class, preparatory to the examination on "The Pupil, the Teacher, and the School," which they took Tuesday following. I was glad indeed to have Brother Cain with us. He is, undoubtedly, the right man in the right place. His visits among us gave the church, Sunday school, and High School (where he conducted chapel exercises on Monday, April 1) an impetus that will be felt for some time to come. In the afternoon Mr. J. R. Bryan, Superintendent of the Christian Sunday school in Vicksburg and President of the Warren County Sunday School Association, spoke on "The Task of the Age," and it was as good a speech from a layman as I think I have ever heard. We intended to have Rev. J. M. Metts, a Baptist minister from Vicksburg, to speak on the "Why, What, and How" of the Sunday school, but his car was out of commission and he failed to get there. A Mr. Leighman, from Edwards, Miss., gave a fine talk on the stages of child life. The occasion of us having a Christian (Campbellite) and Baptist was, first, because of the meeting being interdenominational, and, second, because we knew the speakers to be specialists in Sunday school work, and, third, because we have several Christians (Campbellites) and Baptists in the community and we wanted to foster the spirit of co-operation; and it proved a success, especially in bringing before the people the great work of the Sunday school and in helping to bring about genuine brotherly love among the different communions. I mention one other feature. For the first time since I have been on the work we had a meeting where there were representatives from every one of the six churches on the charge. That was a forward movement, for the work is greatly scattered, two of the churches being 35 miles apart. We feel grateful and joyful, and press on! When he can spare the time, get Brother Cain to come to your work, preachers of the Port Gibson District.

Cordially,
J. A. WELLS, P. C.

CONCERNING FAITH.

Selected by the
Rev. John H. de Vries, D. D.

Faith is God's gift. He who gives thanks to God for faith, confesses that it comes from Him. Rom. 1:8.

Faith alone is that which secures the perpetuity of life. We are justified by faith through the mercy of God alone. 1:17.

God is propitious to us as soon as we have our trust resting on the blood of Christ; for by faith we come to the possession of this benefit.

Faith can not be truly preached without wholly depriving man of all praise by ascribing all to God's mercy.

Faith receives all from God and brings nothing except an humble confession of want.

When we come to the rule of faith the whole glorying in work is laid prostrate. 3:27.

Faith adorns us with the righteousness of another, which it seeks as a gift from God. 4:5.

Faith perishes except the soul rests on the goodness of God. Faith is not a naked knowledge either of God or of His truth; nor is it a simple persuasion that God is, and that His word is the truth; but a sure knowledge of God's mercy, which is received from the gospel, and brings peace of conscience with regard to God, and rest to the mind. 4:14.

If grace be everything that we obtain by faith, then every regard for works is laid in the dust. 4:16.

There is nothing more injurious to faith than to fasten our minds to our eyes, that we may from what we see, seek a reason for our hope.

Except faith flies upward on celestial wings, so as to look down on all the perceptions of the flesh as on things far below, it will stick fast in the mud of the world. 4:18.

There is a two-fold weakness of faith—one is that which, by succumbing to trying circumstances, occasions a falling away from the supporting power of God—the other rises from imperfection, but does not extinguish faith itself; for the mind is never so illuminated, but that many relics of ignorance remain; the heart is never so strengthened, but that much doubting cleaves to it. Hence with these vices of the flesh, ignorance and doubt, the faithful have a continual conflict, and in this conflict their faith is often dreadfully shaken and distressed, but at length it comes forth victorious so that they may be said to be strong even in weakness. 4:19.

Paul . . . "thought it sufficient reason for hoping, that the Lord had promised, however incredible the thing was in itself." 4:18.

Faith ought not to regard our weakness, but to pin wholly its attention on the power of God alone.

The numbers are those of chapter and verse from Epistle to the Romans.

You Can Tell the People Who Have Iron in Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks!

City Physician Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Nervous, Run-down People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

ONE glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood. They are the ones that do and dare. The others are in the weakling class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, constant dosing with habit forming drugs and narcotics, and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and, therefore, nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. When iron is supplied it enriches the impoverished blood and gives the body greater resistance to ward off disease. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. There is nothing like good old iron to help put color in your cheeks and sound, healthy flesh on your bones. But you must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above is one of the new organic iron compounds. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make you constipated, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers have such confidence in its success and entirely satisfactory results that they offer to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied purchaser if they will return the empty package. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

THE STORY OF A GREAT DISCOVERY.

The hardships of a traveling salesman's life had wrecked my health. My family physician diagnosed my case as chronic gastritis, brought on by a congested liver and complicated by kidney trouble. I consulted specialists in New York and other cities where my travels called me. They confirmed his diagnosis and approved his treatment. Months passed, I grew worse and was finally compelled to give up my work.

By chance I heard of some wonderful recoveries which had resulted from drinking the water of a little spring in the Mineral Belt of South Carolina, a picture of which spring appears on this page. In desperation I tried it. On the second day I imagined that I could notice some improvement; at the end of the first week my appetite and digestion had returned, and I was much stronger; at the end of the third week I felt that I was completely restored. That was nine years ago and I still enjoy perfect health.

Knowing that it had restored my health and believing that it had saved my life, I bought the Spring.

I then determined to see whether the water would restore others as it had me. During the first year I shipped ten gallons free of charge to each of one thousand sufferers from chronic diseases. Only four reported no benefit from the use of the ten gallons. The others reported decided benefit or complete restoration. Many claimed that the water had saved their lives.

I realized that I had discovered one of the world's greatest mineral springs, and I decided to devote my life to it. But how could I make the world listen; how could I make them believe my story? The precious water was running to waste while thousands were suffering. I said, I will make them believe me by showing my faith in them and in the restorative power of the Spring. I will tell them that the water shall cost them nothing if it fails to benefit them.

The world listened.

Some wrote for proof and I sent them the letters which I had received from their fellow sufferers. Others accepted my offer without question. Thousands have written me reporting relief and permanent restoration from a great variety of chronic diseases.

But some of the water still ran to waste for lack of belief. I determined that every drop should be used to relieve the sufferings of humanity. To this end I requested a physician friend of mine to come to see me. At my desk I spened my mail and showed him the letters from men and women from all parts of the country who had suffered and who had found relief. I gave him my letter files and induced him to spend several hours reading my past correspondence with those who were using the water. I showed him the chemical analysis and letters from physicians and chemists explaining the medicinal properties of the water. He believed, and as a result he has written this announcement for me.

WILL YOU BELIEVE?

I do not ask your implicit faith; only enough to try the water for three weeks as I did. I estimate that I drank about ten gallons and I, therefore, offer gladly to give you the equivalent of a three weeks visit to the Spring by by shipping you two five-gallon demijohns on my agreement that if you find that it does not benefit you I will promptly refund the price, which is only $2.00. You must promise to drink the water in accordance with the instructions which I will send you and return the empty demijohns. I make you the sole judge as to whether the water has benefitted you or not and hope you will feel perfectly free to accept my offer.

This offer is extended to all who suffer with any curable disease, but I especially recommend the water for the treatment of stomach, liver, kidney and bladder diseases and conditions resulting therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, gout, uric acid poisoning, nervous headache and general debility resulting from impure or impoverished blood. These are the diseases most frequently mentioned in the letters which I have received, but my offer is open to any one who suffers from any curable ailment.

Yours sincerely,

N. F. Shivar

EVERY MAIL BRINGS ME LETTERS LIKE THESE:

Savannah, Georgia.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—As you are well aware I was suffering with indigestion, stomach und liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phonomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered 10 gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months from date I began drinking it gained 29 lbs., was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportions that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely nature's remedy.

A. L. R. AVANT, M. D.

Blaney, S. C.

Shivar Spring, Shelton, S. C.: Gentlemen—I suffered for many years from gastric troubles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.

W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D.

Chancellor, Ala.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I have been for many years affected with uric acid and kidney trouble, and the mineral water has helped me more than anything I have ever done for them, and therefore heartily recommend same to all who need a speedy relief. Very truly, W. F. MATHENY, M. D.

DuPont, Georgia.

Shivar Spring, Shelton, S. C.: Gentlemen—I have suffered for years with nervous indigestion and kidney troubles. Derived more benefit from the Shivar Spring Water than from months at Hot Springs, Ark., and numerous other springs. I consider it the very best water extant. AGUSTUS DUPONT.

Scranton, S. C.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—My wife has been a sufferer of rheumatism and, after drinking twenty gallons of your mineral water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease. Yours Respectfully, J. D. McCLAM.

Lexington, Va.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I suffered with intestinal indigestion and the Shivar Spring Water has restored me. I would gladly recommend it to all suffering with indigestion, kidney and liver trouble. My father had kidney trouble last fall and he thought Shivar Spring Water saved his life. Respectfully, MRS. HARVEY DIXON.

Roper, N. C.

I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism. MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Warrenton, Va.

It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones. MRS. JAMES R. CARTER.

Atlanta, Georgia.

In the interest of the afflicted, I cheerfully state, seeing your advertisement in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate I decided to try Shivar Spring Water in the case of my daughter, who had been a sufferer from a malicious type of sciatica, and could get no permanent relief from medicine. After using the Water a few weeks she has almost entirely gotten relief from pain. In this case it has been a great blessing.

M. L. UNDERWOOD,
Pastor Oakland City M. E. Church So.

Columbia, S. C.

I suffered for 8 years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever. J. P. D.

Newberry, S. C.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I suffered with indigestion, but after using Shivar Spring Water I can enjoy eating the food I want without any unpleasant feeling afterwards. I take great pleasure in recommending this splendid water to all sufferers of indigestion. Very truly, L. B. WHITE, Pastor West End Baptist Church.

Guyton, Georgia.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—Water came and I went right to drinking it, was in bed with indigestion, heart cutting up all kinds of pranks, was under the doctor's treatment. The first case of your water relieved me. I thought I had drunk the water of all the springs in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee, but this beats them all. Am eating anything I want, even sweet potatoes, something I have not eaten before in twenty years.

Yours very truly, H. W. ORVIN,
Manager Effingham Mer. Co. Guyton, Ga.

Editorial

AS A SPIRITUALLY-MINDED WORKER SEES IT.

In speaking of a discourse recently delivered by one of our Bishops, one of the most spiritual presiding elders that we know writes us as follows: "He preached a regular evangelistic sermon on Sunday evening. If all of us do not stop laying so much stress on the dollar and go back to preaching repentance, faith, and regeneration, I do not know what will become of the Church. A man's piety is now largely measured by the number of dollars that he gives, and not by the life that he lives. In our efforts to do great things in a financial way, we are falling to stress spirituality and to keep the home fires burning."

In our opinion, these are wise and timely words. If one were to accept many public declarations from Church leaders as they are given out, one would conclude that all that is necessary to evangelize the multitudes of the human race is millions of money. In some instances the same men who are shouting loudest about "world programs" are standing for the "liberal theology," for letting down the bars as to the questionable amusements, and for a secularized Church. No amount of financial resources can compensate in Church work for a weakened faith in Christ, for a waning loyalty to the Holy Scriptures, and for the absence of the convicting, regenerating, and sanctifying power of the Divine Spirit. If Methodism is to be true to her original mission, she must spread abroad Scriptural holiness, not merely a nominal, superficial Christianity. It was this type of Christianity that failed in Germany and permitted the world to be set on fire. And it will fail anywhere, and everywhere.

It is because we believe that the deeper, spiritual truths of the Gospel must be taught if Christianity is to succeed in the highest and best sense that we are unwilling to have Methodism, with its grand doctrines of a universal atonement, of a conscious new birth, of the witness of the Spirit, and of Christian perfection, swallowed up in a cold and nebulous interdenominationalism, either in the homeland or in foreign fields. It is our profound conviction that the unadulterated Scriptural teachings of Methodism never needed to be proclaimed and emphasized at any time since the day of Wesley more than they do in the present perplexing period. The preachment that one Church is substantially as good as another is one that we cannot accept, especially when we look at the differences in their achievements in the past.

Gathering dollars is not the chief business of the Church of Christ. Her glory does not consist in any sort of material accomplishments. These are valuable only as she turns them to account in the winning and perfecting of souls, and if there be no converts about the altars and no holy men and women in the pews of a congregation, the greater its equipment and the fuller its treasury, the more shameful is its failure in the Master's sight. May God help us all, from Bishops down to the most obscure workers in Southern Methodism, to place the emphasis in all our endeavors on spiritual things, where it rightly belongs! Thus only may we hope to make our Church a source of life-giving power in the future, as she has been in the past.

HOW TO KEEP UP WITH THE GREAT WAR.

The greatest battle in the world's history is now being fought in France, and Americans should have a desire to keep up with its progress, especially since our country is a participant in the stupendous conflict. Our papers are giving the news concerning the mighty struggle as fast as they can secure it, but in merely reading the printed pages of a publication one obtains a very imperfect conception of the shifting operations. One needs to procure well-made and accurate maps of the several battle fronts and trace out upon them the advances and retreats in order to secure an enlightening knowledge of what is taking place. The best maps for this purpose that we have seen are the "War-Maps" of Rand, McNally & Company, which give excellent representations of the sections of Europe where the fighting is going on, which are of convenient size, and which can easily be folded up in the form a booklet. One of these maps shows the British front, another the Italian front, and two others show the entire French front (one of them the northern portion, and the other the Southern portion). These maps cost 25 cents each, and may be had of almost any book-store or by writing Rand, McNally & Company, 436 South Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois. We should think that schools and clubs, in particular, would find it interesting and profitable to procure these maps and tack them up in some advantageous place, where the fluctuating tides of the battles that are being fought may be noted. The person who doesn't know something of what is occurring over the seas these days is pretty much of an ignoramus.

A MISLEADING AND DISCREDITABLE PAMPHLET.

"Who Queered Unification?" is the subject of a pamphlet of some 22 pages which has lately emanated from the Eleazer-Fritts combination, the headquarters of which are Nashville, Tenn. A copy of it mailed from that city, accompanied by a brief note from Mr. J. H. Smith, of Nashville, requesting its publication, came to our desk a few days since. We do not feel that we are under the least obligation to reproduce in the Advocate printed pamphlets which have already been scattered over the country, and if we ever do reprint such a publication it is because we regard it as possessing such unusual merit as to justify us in departing from the rule of our office respecting matter of this kind. In the present instance, both the character of the document sent us and the length of it disincline us to take up our space with a re-publication of it. We are moved, however, in the interest of fairness and justice to the distinguished Church leaders whom it misrepresents to comment upon some phases of this discreditable rigmarole.

Falls Below the Standard.

It begins by quoting a brief editorial from the New Orleans Christian Advocate, entitled "The Question of Personalities," every syllable of which we stand by without the least reservation. The core of this editorial is embraced in the following words: "There seems to be an idea abroad that to discuss with disapproval the public utterances or records of persons in the Church, calling their names in doing so, without abuse or an impeachment of their motives, is indulging in improper personalities. In our opinion this notion is without justification," etc. We feel sure that no one of the Church leaders arraigned in this pamphlet —Bishop Hoss, Bishop Candler, Bishop Denny, Bishop Kilgo, or Bishop Murrah—would have the slightest objection to having any action or utterance of his placed fairly before the public, and respectfully dissented from if one should feel that there was occasion for doing this. So far as the present pamphlet is concerned, however, it falls short of the standard set up in our brief editorial, which obviously was re-published as a kind of palliation for the attack that was about to be made upon the faithful servants of the Church whose names we have just called, in that it does impugn the motives of some of these brethren. Thus in referring to the opposition of Bishops Hoss, Candler, and Kilgo to a supreme General Conference for the proposed unified Church, the writer says: "Why should the suggestion of a supreme General Conference have been so utterly repugnant to the three Southern Bishops whom we have just quoted? The answer we believe is to be found without doubt in the fact that the Southern Episcopacy, instead of admitting the supremacy of the General Conference, claims for itself a position as a distinct and co-ordinate branch of the Church government. * * * Not only so, but in our Church the judicial function is vested in the College of Bishops, etc. * * * In the light of the above facts it does not seem unfair to assume that it was not so much the power of the proposed 'supreme' General Conference to which objection was made, as its corollary, the limitation of the power of the episcopacy. This will account for the fact that the opposition centered in certain members of the Episcopal College, quite naturally desiring the preservation of the rights and prerogatives of their office," etc.

What is this but stripping these honored and trusted leaders of the Church of any true concern for its highest welfare and charging them with being governed by self-interest? Aye, more. They are virtually charged with duplicity, since it is claimed that they put forward one reason for their position, when the real reason was something else. Surely the self-sacrificing lives and labors of these noble men, than whom we have none greater or more worthy, should lift them above so base an aspersion as this. Is there no good and sound reason for not wanting a "supreme General Conference?" If not, why is it so earnestly opposed by thousands of the best and most intelligent preachers and laymen in Southern Methodism, who have no connection with the episcopacy? Let Mr. Eleazer, Mr. Fritts, and Mr. Smith tell us

MARY AND MARTHA.

I cannot choose: I should have liked so much
To sit at Jesus' feet—to feel the touch
Of His kind, gentle hand upon my head
While drinking in the gracious words He said.

And yet to serve Him! Oh, divine employ,
To minister and give the Master joy,
To bathe in coolest springs His weary feet,
And wait upon Him while He sat at meat!

Worship or service—which? Ah, that is best
To which He calls us, be it toil or rest—
To labor for Him in life's busy stir,
Or seek His feet, a silent worshiper.

—Caroline Atherton Mason.

GOD'S BEST GIFTS.

I used to think that God's gifts were on shelves one above the other, and that the taller we grew in Christian character the easier we should reach them. I find now that God's gifts are on shelves one beneath the other, and that it is not a question of growing taller, but of stooping lower, and that we have to go down, always down, to get His best gifts.—F. B. Meyer.

THE TIME FOR PRAYER.

"It seems to me that this is a proper time for prayer," the father of the family said as the clergyman rose to go. "Will you be good enough to lead us, sir?"

It was the last request the young minister had expected, and he was so much surprised that he faltered and stammered over the opening petitions. The home upon which this great sorrow had fallen was counted as an utterly godless home. The head of the house had the reputation of being an infidel, and the untimely death of the eldest son was the tragic close of a life of wild dissipation. The minister had not gone to offer spiritual consolation—that, he fancied, would be useless—but merely because his sympathies were stirred by the sad occurrence. As he left the house he said to himself that the request for prayer was probably a polite concession to his office; when later advances of his were met somewhat coldly the conviction grew.

Be that as it may, the fact seems to be incontestable that the basic ideas of religion are deep-rooted in the human heart, and are likely to come to the surface under the strong pressure of a critical experience. The tales of godless men praying fervently on the deck of a sinking ship are true to human nature. When desperate circumstances force us back upon our own weakness and helplessness, a natural instinct prompts us to appeal to a Power that is outside ourselves.

Such emotional appeals to God are always pathetic but never logical. If God's help is valuable in a great emergency of life, it follows that his aid and guidance would be a real asset in the multitude of minor emergencies that occur daily.

If God has no active concern with the details of our lives, there is no good ground for calling upon Him in a crisis; but if the contrary is true, God's help all along the way promises us far more in results than a single interference can do. The best time for prayer in that godless household had passed when the son had run his profligate course. An earlier resort to God might have helped to avoid the unhappy experience that must have embittered the life of even the careless and worldly-minded father.

There is a suspicion of insincerity and unmanliness, too, in habitually neglecting God until we find ourselves helpless to turn elsewhere. We would not put any earthly friendship to so severe a test. It is an unconscious tribute to the patience and long-suffering of our Heavenly Father that we have the faintest expectation that our infrequent emergency prayers will reach his ear and command the blessing we seek.

If prayer is a mere pious delusion, there is no proper time for it. If, on the contrary, it is a dependable resource, we cannot consistently exclude it from any day of our lives. Too much that intimately concerns us is obscure and doubtful to admit of our picking and choosing the times when we need God's help, and the other times when we can get along very well without it.—The Youth's Companion.

CHURCH ABSORPTION.

By Rev. N. G. Augustus.

To the quiet observer some current movements in Church circles suggest a significant degradation of a once reputable word. The word apology first meant "a defense" (a manly taking back); then "an excuse for a fault, with an expression of regret;" then, "a makeshift or pretense."

Criticism of the Church.

So-called Christian apologetics furnish a striking and painful illustration of this word-degradation. How often our so-called defenses are turned into cowardly excuse-making, if not into an absolute surrender to the basest attack and criticism! Churchmen need to learn that in a cause as worthy as theirs the only suitable defensive is a vigorous offensive.

It is patent to the most casual observation that the Church has apologized too much to the world. What institution has undertaken so much for the world? What institution has succeeded so well with the working material in hand as the Church? Yet in spite of its marvelous success, what institution is so sensitive to criticism as the Church?

But notwithstanding its great and successful past, we have fallen upon times of most unfriendly criticism of the Church—a criticism verging upon, if not actually reaching, a denial of its right to exist at all. A great cry has gone up for the Church to take more interest in so-called social questions, as if the Church has not through the ages unceasingly preached its own great doctrine of brotherhood. If our Lord had not committed this doctrine to the Church, and if the Church had not proclaimed this doctrine, could this criticism ever have been brought? What does this mean? Shall we again seek union with the State after all the painful process of separation from such union? Shall the Church take this backward step? Where is the boundary line between social action upon men in the mass, and political action? Did not our Lord found his great movement upon the appeal of truth to the individual conscience?

And then the Church is charged with indifference to material conditions. A due regard to the rights and well-being of other men is laid upon the consciences of Christian men; but the kingdom of heaven is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. The Church's mission is, first of all, a spiritual one. This fulfilled, "all these things shall be added unto her."

A Pseudo-Reform.

But this by way of incident to lead up to the consideration of the pseudo-reform of to-day, viz.: the call for unity so-called—the outcry against denominationalism in our Church life. As I understand the programme of Jesus, he purposed building a kingdom through the effect of the truth upon the individual conscience, and the necessary implicates of such a programme are the free will and the free thought of men. Such a programme can find the best place for development in a field described by the Italian statesman, Cavour, as "a free Church in a free State." Such a field is this free land of ours, and here we have the fullest and freest development of Church life in all history; and here we have in living action the highest and best types of Christian thought and work and life. Here, as nowhere else, men are free politically and ecclesiastically.

But how has such a condition been brought about? In the realm of politics, by the balance powers in our complex State and Federal government; ecclesiastically, by the setting up of the various groups of our Church life against each other. The father of political science declares that "freedom is maintained by the balance of interests." Can not ecclesiastical reformers learn this lesson from the sage of heathen antiquity? We do not want any portion of our political system to be too powerful; neither is it best that any particular type of our Church life should overshadow the rest.

Upon what ground is this proposed unity demanded? First, upon the prayer of our Lord that his followers should be "one." But "one" in what? In opinions or full credal agreement? The diversity of men's minds forbids. God's truth is one, but our apprehension of that truth is a matter of individual temperament and capacity.

Are they to be "one" in outward organization? Where is the plan of Church government laid down in the New Testament? Endless varieties of outward forms have prevailed in Church history, and the "end is not yet." Congregationalism, Presbyterianism, Episcopacy, and Papacy have come, and are with us still.

The various sections of Christendom have never been able to agree in statements of doctrine. How many variations are there in that simple statement of doctrine known as the Apostles' Creed?

Shall the Church be "one" in ritual? The New Testament recognizes four elements of public worship: prayer, song, the reading of the Scriptures, and expounding the Scriptures. As to detail, nothing is given. The truth is, our Lord encumbered the future Church as little as possible. He trusted the ages to come to recognize and be guided by his truth and to use their common sense in adapting the outward forms of the Church to the varying ages through which it should live.

Is the throbbing intellectual world of to-day ready for a dead uniformity of religious thought and belief? And if such uniformity of thought were brought about, where would the man of independent mind find his religious home? Under such a religious Pax Romana he would be an outcast in the religious world. As things are, he can, if unwelcome in one fold, find a home in another. If that resource fails, he can, if he will, make himself a congenial home.

Or, are our groups of Christians recognizing each other as brethren and living together upon a plane of mutual respect, to be replaced by a universal outward Church, hurling anathemas at those differing in their interpretations of God's Word and branding with heresy all who dare differ from the majority? This last is a picture of many ages of Church history. Our Church has spoken strongly on this subject. At the General Conference of 1890 the following language occurs in a part of a report adopted by that body:

"Your Committee reports that it would deplore the organic union of all Protestant Churches, which would intensify the differences sought to be removed and clog for centuries the whels of progress in Christian thought and work."

Christians have always in the past grouped themselves upon various lines. Sometimes one thing has been the bond of union, and sometimes another. Race, language, nationality, temperament, etc., have entered into the making up of such groups. Countless are the objections to this uniform ideal of Church life. Many of earth's deepest tragedies have come from efforts to enforce uniformity of faith. While the day of bodily persecution is past, the day of freedom from social and moral persecution has not fully dawned, and would never dawn in the time of one universal, all-embracing Church.

The Lust for Power.

The world shudders in the presence of the bloodiest of all wars, and as I write the greatest of all battles is being waged to enlarge the power and force upon others the opinions (Kultur) of the instigators of this cruel strife. History is largely the record of such attempts. Not only the actual possessors and users of power, but the whole nation, dominated by this power-loving regime, seems wholly given to the attainment of these unworthy ends, for the love of power descends from the controlling force to its lowest members, as if man feels that the enlargement of that to which he belongs is an enlargement of himself. Rulers and leaders in the Church have too often yielded to this worldly lust for power, as if to enlarge their power was to enlarge the kingdom of God, and their subordinates but too often share in the same unrighteous delusion.

Another enemy to the peace and success of the Church is that size is a matter of special importance in things moral and spiritual. If the President of the United States is a competent witness, we are in the war to see that small nations be guaranteed the right to exist. The contributions of Athens and Jerusalem to the mental and spiritual wealth of mankind are the everlasting answer to the obsession that bigness is the measure of success. Small denominations are relatively more efficient than large ones. The ideal republic of Aristotle was a small city.

Bears on the Question of Methodist Union.

All this bears strongly on the proposed absorption of our Church by the M. E. Church, which now absorbs so much of our interest. For the M. E. Church, South, is a denomination, and not simply a fragment torn from a large body. It is a denomination doctrinally. It stands for conservatism in these radical times. In this regard it is far apart from the body that proposes to absorb it.

We read in the Sunday School Times of June 24, 1916, under the caption, "Can Methodists Believe This?" the following: "There was, of course, no such Tabernacle (referring to the Tabernacle described in Exodus) ever built." This was what an astonished teacher read in his lesson paper a few months ago. This quotation was from the November, 1915, issue of the Adult Bible Class Monthly published by the Methodist (Northern) Book Concern.

The M. E. Church, South, is a denomination by virtue of an independent and separate existence of seventy-odd years, by virtue of its success, by virtue of its peculiar access and adaptation to a great and important part of this great land; by virtue of its splendid history, its great constituency, and of a membership different in temperament and ideals from the Church proposing its absorption.

Denominationalism an Advantage.

Christianity is a religion of dogma or it is nothing. The life of the Church is based upon the preservation of its faith in the great fundamental doctrines of the Scriptures. Between the latitudinarian dry-rot of a large religious body and a multitude of sects jealously alive to the truth as it appears to them, the choice is emphatically with the latter. Denominational life fosters the development of individuality in men. The educational tendencies of to-day are towards standardization. Rigid uniformity of training, the passion for equality, fostering an unsafe suspicion and jealousy of that which is different from us, particularly if that difference squints in the direction of superiority, a spirit demanding equality in all things and uniformity in all, with the mad jealousy of socialism thrown in for good measure—these are some of the tendencies against which the Church should stand by fostering to the utmost that unlikeness to all other men in which God has created us. Great mass movements are against the first principles of education. Therefore, let us respect the unlikeness in which God has made all men and all peoples. I oppose all standardization, whether of dress or education or creed or government or ritual. Let us stand fast in the liberty wherein God made us, in making us different. The pressure of great masses squeezes individuality out of men.

The Proposed Merger Not Needed.

The proposed merger is useless. The chief work of the Church is accomplished in and through its congregational life, and is little, if at all, affected by the largeness or remoteness or number of affiliated churches. Just the one important work of the ministry is done by pastoral contact with the people. The phase of Church life here referred to is uninviting to the ecclesiastical reformer. The field is too laborious and too unnoticed to invite his efforts.

While I live a very quiet life and know comparatively few people, I have never yet heard a layman express his approval of this proposed merger. I am persuaded that it would produce much unrest among our people and furnish a great harvest for other Churches in the South.

Union Would Not Give Better Legislation.

There is at least some sentiment in the Church for legislative reconstructive change. The difficulties of legislation increase with largeness of territory, diversities of interests, and varieties in character of the elements to be affected by the proposed legislation, which is but to say that legislation suitable to our people is more apt to be reached when we are the sole subjects of that legislation than when legislation is attempted affecting us and many others diverse from us. This principle justified our setting up the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church and is an everlasting bar to all mixed Churches, where there is any kind or degree of representative government.

Would Hinder Liberality.

This merger is a breach of trust as to every dollar contributed to our Church. If a man wishes to dedicate his property to the furtherance of what he esteems a preferable form of Church life and a preferred type of Christian faith, what encouragement does this afford him to make the attempt? This is a matter affecting not only present, but also future giving.

The Proper Course.

Rather than make this dangerous experiment, let us agree to live as brethren, each agreeing as far as possible to abstain from trespassing upon the fields of labor occupied by the other and refraining from a waste of money in mere denominational aggression. If we can not live peaceably in separate homes, how shall we agree in one home? Let us accord to all the right in peace to choose his personal Church affiliation. Why not accord this privilege without bitterness to individuals, congregations, or Conferences? Who desires anyway the unwilling fellowship of brethren?

Agitation Harmful.

In conclusion, I protest against this agitation as useless and uncalled for by the people within the range of my acquaintance. Who will object to the brethren leading this agitation following personal preferences and going to any Christian body they may prefer to their present Church home—thus leaving those satisfied as they are in peace, and ceasing to waste their own energies in useless externals instead of giving out those energies in really extending the kingdom of God.

I protest against this agitation as hurtful. He is a blind reader of history who has not seen that we of the South have never gained in any particular in any bargain we have ever made with our Northern brethren.

I protest against the merger, in conclusion, as a useless and cruel attack upon those tender ties and hallowed associations which bind every true and loyal churchman to the Church of his choice.

THE WAR AND CHURCH FINANCES.

Rev. W. F. McMurry, D. D.

The Rev. Arthur Page Grubbs, of British Methodism, writing in the Christian Advocate of New York, March 21, 1918, under the heading, "New Movements in British Methodism," speaks as follows concerning the effect of the war upon church finance:

"Except in the case of sea-side resorts, which have been the targets of the enemy's air raids, our churches everywhere are in better financial condition than before the war. Little can be done in the way of erecting new church premises, but a great reduction in church debts has been effected. The Chapel Committee reports that the debts discharged during 1917 amounted to 101,967 pounds ($509,835), but the most striking example of the liberality of our people is seen in the income of the Foreign Missionary Society of 1917, which has been announced this week. In 1916 the home income was 171,000 pounds ($855,000), a large advance over the previous year. Last year the Committee appealed for an income of 178,800 pounds ($894,000); the amount actually received is 184,500 pounds ($922,500). When the weight of the war taxation and the high cost of food are taken into consideration, these figures are eloquent of the vitality of the Church and its devotion to the cause of world evangelization."

This record made by our Wesleyan brethren is a rebuke to every one of us who has given the war as an excuse for a failure to do as much for the Church as before the beginning of the war. There is no place in such times as these either in Church or State for a slacker. The Church that fails to measure up to its responsibilities and opportunities in these days of testing forfeits its right to live after the War for Freedom has been won.

My hat is off to these noble English Methodists who, notwithstanding their depleted, exhausted, broken condition, are doing more for the evangelization of the world than they did before the beginning of the great conflict. God will have them in mind!

THE PESSIMIST FIREFLY.

The Pessimist Firefly sat on a weed
  In the dark of a moonless night;
With folded wings drooped over his breast
  He moped and he moaned for light.
"There is nothing but weeds on the earth," said he,
  "And there isn't a star in the sky;
And the best I can do in a world like this
  Is to sit on this weed and die."

"Then be your own star! then be your own star!"
  An Optimist Firefly said:
"If you'll leap from your weed and will open your wings
  And bravely fly afar,
You will find you will shine like a star yourself,
  You will be yourself a star;
    Yes, the thing you need
    Is to leap from your weed,
  And be yourself a star."

—Sam Walter Foss.

GENERAL FOCH.

The Outlook, in a late issue, thus refers to the commander-in-chief of the armies of the Allies in France:

"Among the French commanders none, unless perhaps it be Petain, could be regarded as General Foch's equal for this supreme office. Ferdinand Foch (the name is, we understand, pronounced with the soft ch—Fosh—as a French word, rather than with the guttural ch as in German) was born in the south of France, and is said to be of mingled Basque and Alsatian blood and to derive his name from the latter source—many of the Alsatians who have been ardent French patriots for generations have names which are German in form.

"General Foch has been called by his former chief, General Joffre, "the first strategist in Europe." His training was gained in the French artillery. He is sixty-six years old; so that we have facing one another in supreme command of the two armies on the western front two men each above sixty-five years of age. General Foch has in the highest degree the confidence of his officers and men. By the latter, indeed, he is regarded as having almost miraculous powers of quick determination and infallible judgment. His prime military dogma is said to be, "First find out your enemy's weak point, and then concentrate your blows there." It was this axiom which he applied in his famous attack at the battle of the Marne. Neither Foch nor Manoury nor Joffre singly won the Battle of the Marne, but the deep and wise planning of Joffre and the quick eyes, rapid brains, and lightning-like action of the other two commanders saved Paris and France and Europe.

"Equally brilliant was General Foch's attack when the Germans were endeavoring to head-off the Allies near Ypres and both armies were rushed northward in a race to reach the seacoast first. It was General Foch who at this time stopped the German drive toward Calais and won the race to the sea.

"Many are the stories of Foch's brilliant retorts and orders. To an officer who declared that his men were exhausted Foch exclaimed: 'So are the Germans. Attack!' Every one has heard of Foch's despatch to Marshal Joffre when the balance of victory was hanging even at the Marne: 'My right wing has been driven back; my left wing is crushed; I shall attack with my center.'"

THE SOUTHERN METHODIST TIME LIMIT.

It seems to be the opinion in some sections that the time limit is obsolete in the various branches of Methodism except in the Southern Methodist Church. Upon investigation I find that this view is without foundation.

The Methodist Church of Canada (see Discipline of 1914, page 81, paragraph 5) works under the following law: "The Stationing Committee shall not allow any minister or probationer for the ministry to remain more than four years successively on the same circuit or mission except the General Conference officers, superannuated or supernumerary ministers, and missionaries to the French, the Indians, the Japanese and Chinese in Canada, and in the foreign fields, and such ministers as may be appointed to our educational institutions, and to such churches and institutions as any Annual Conference on the recommendation of a two-thirds majority vote of the Stationing Committee may set apart for special mission work, which shall be clearly defined in the recommendations of the Stationing Committee; and missionaries working under local City Mission Boards upon the request of the Board concerned; nor shall a minister after removal be appointed to a circuit or mission within a less interval than four years."

The Australasian Church has only one General Conference, but the various Conferences under the larger body have privileges of legislation of their own. Consequently, the time limit is different in some sections from that of other portions of the Church. Generally speaking, the whole organization has a time limit of five years. In the Queensland Conference, this special law prevails: "Ministers may be appointed to the same circuit for five years in succession, provided they are invited to remain after the third year by two-thirds of those present at the September Quarterly Meeting." I am also informed that "under exceptional conditions ministers may remain longer than five years on mission appointments. The same is true in New Zealand."

A reliable authority states that "the three year limit prevails in the Mother Church, the Wesleyan Methodist of Great Britain." It is my impression that the Methodist Protestant Church in this country has a time limit for its ministers; and the same may be said of the United Brethren Church, which is closely akin to the Methodist Episcopal organizations. Practically all the Negro Methodist denominations work under a strict time limit. It appears, therefore, that instead of the Southern Methodist Church being lonesome in retaining the time limit, it is in company with most of the Methodist organizations upon the globe, the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, being the notable exception.

Time Limit Not a Hindrance in Cities.

The charge has been made that Southern Methodism is not maintaining itself in the cities of the South, chiefly on account of the fact that it still retains the time limit. I have taken occasion to address several of our preachers in various Southern cities, asking each one please to tell me the number of Southern Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians in his respective city. I did not inform these brethren of my purpose in obtaining these figures, therefore, there was no bias in the answers given, at least in this respect. Most of them replied immediately, and I give below the result of my inquiries. It may readily be seen that Southern Methodism, with a few exceptions, is the leading denomination in these cities. The reader should note that the other denominations do not operate under a time limit.

Birmingham: 13,132 Southern Methodists; 8,293 Baptists; 4,300 Presbyterians; 4,000 Episcopalians.

Memphis: 7,878 Southern Methodists; 6,984 Baptists; 3,756 Presbyterians. Failed to ascertain the number of Episcoplians.

St. Louis: 10,577 Southern Methodists; 6,275 Northern Methodists; 9,723 Northern Presbyterians; 1,277 Southern Presbyterians; 9,594 Northern and Southern Baptists; 7,376 Episcopalians.

Dallas: 7,562 Southern Methodists; 5,000 (approximate) Baptists; 3,500 (approximate) Presbyterians; 1,100 (approximate) Episcopalians.

Louisville: 8,135 Southern Methodists; 1,000 Northern Methodists; 14,500 Baptists; 4,300 Northern Presbyterians; 5,149 Southern Presbyterians; 4,178 Episcopalians.

Savannah: 3,500 Southern Methodists; 3,000 Baptists; 1,600 Presbyterians; 2,000 Episcopalans.

Richmond: 12,000 Southern Methodists; 17,000 Baptists (though Southern Methodism predominates in Virginia according to the statement of R. B. Eleazer); 4,000 Presbyterians; 4,500 Episcopalians.

Atlanta: 20,000 Southern Methodists; 18,000 Baptists; 6,608 Presbyterians; 2,820 Episcopalians.

The cities represented in the above figures were selected indiscriminately. It is very probable that another list of Southern cities might furnish quite as favorable a report for the Southern Methodist Church. The charge, therefore, that we are not holding our own in the cities seems to be without adequate foundation of fact.

The city of New Orleans, it must be admitted, is an exceptional problem with which Churches must deal. The statistics for the denominations represented therein are about as follows: 3,500 Southern Methodists; 500 Northern Methodists; 4,600 Presbyterians; 1,300 Baptists; 6,000 Episcopalians; 6,000 Evangelicals; 7,500 Lutherans; 175,000 Roman Catholics; 350 Disciples of Christ. The total population of this city is about 400,000 people. Just how those who ardently favor the removal of the time limit would argue from these statistics that an unlimited pastorate is more successful is scarcely to be seen. Southern Methodism is twice as strong as the Baptist Church in New Orleans, in spite of the latter operating under no time limit. The Presbyterians have about 1,100 members more than the Southern Methodists; but in a city of 400,000 in population one could hardly say the Presbyterians have made the greatest success. The truth of the matter is, Southern Methodism operates under a system better adapted to its own needs than any other Church, and the comparative failure of Protestantism in this great city is due more to the lack of a concentrated effort of a living evangelism than anything else. Embracing Catholics and Protestants, New Orleans has the distinction of being a city of larger Church membership in proportion to its population than that of most any other in the United States, yet it is known far and wide for its open and flagrant wickedness. To show further that the Southern Methodist time limit has certainly not hindered the growth of the Church in New Orleans, I will state that for perhaps a decade and a half or two decades it was removed from operation in this city and that during that time Southern Methodism did not increase faster than it has since. According to Rev. W. W. Holmes, the presiding elder of the New Orleans District, the following figures indicate the progress of our Church in this city: 1,391 members in 1876; 2,311 members in 1890; 2,481 members in 1895; 1,967 members in 1900; 3,094 members in 1905; 3,518 in 1916 (from an article appearing in the New Orleans Advocate in 1917). In latter years it is evident the Church in New Orleans has made greater progress than during a few decades back. Indeed, Brother Holmes states: "The above figures (some not quoted in this article) show that we have twice as many churches as we had forty years ago, and that the average membership has increased from 231 to 293. He further remarks: "Our own Methodist Church is a more potent force, perhaps, in the life of the city than it has ever been."

Some have remarked that because Southern Methodism draws largely from the country, where it is strong, to supply the membership of its city churches, that it ought to lead more extensively in the centers than it does. I may answer that the Baptists, according to their claims, are more numerous in the country than is our Church, and if any denomination should be strengthened in the cities by the influx of country people it should be the Baptists; yet Southern Methodism perhaps, in the aggregate, outnumbers the Baptists in the cities of the South. The claim that the time limit works better in the country than in the city, therefore, is controverted by these facts and the reverse is established as the truth of the matter.

However, I would advocate a lengthening of the time limit to six years. This would still preserve the military organization and action, reserving to our Chief Pastors the privilege of sending the soldiers of the Cross wherever it was deemed they were most needed, which plan includes often the breaking up of old ties and the making of great sacrifices; and at the same time it would answer the objection so often heard that the four-year limit does not give a preacher the opportunity of staying in a place long enough to exert his full strength in the community. Six years on an average is about as long as the ministers of any denomination remain at the same place.

A MISLEADING PAMPHLET.

whether or not they desire the suggested new Church to have a "Supreme Conference." If they do, we dare say that they will find very little support for their view among the 2,000,000 Methodists of the South.

A Tissue of Misrepresentations.

Furthermore, the pamphlet under discussion is very largely a tissue of misrepresentations. It is very easy to detach quotations from their settings and twist them into a significance that does not properly belong to them. Thus, as has been said, even Satan can quote Scripture to justify his purposes. Bishop Hoss, for instance, is glaringly misrepresented in this publication. The brief, impromptu utterance that he made in Oklahoma City had reference to the carrying forward and perfecting of the plan of unification that had been formulated by the original Joint Commission, and which he himself had largely written. The plan that he later warned the Church against was the plan outlined by the Northern General Conference, which clashed with the one that he had advocated in numerous fundamental particulars. This latter plan was substantially such a scheme as he had told the first Joint Commission, some three years before, he would never accept, stating that he "would camp under God's kindly stars" before he would do so. One needs only to refer to the masterly address that he delivered at Cincinnati, in 1911, in reply to Bishop Cranston to see that this is true. Yet we see the writer of this pamphlet trying to make it appear that Bishop Hoss was talking about the same proposals concerning union in the first and later utterances that he quotes, completely somersaulting on the question for some inexplicable reason. We challenge this writer and his associate agitators to adduce any statement that Bishop Hoss has ever made in which he showed the least disposition to favor a united Church with a "supreme General Conference," or with a half dozen emasculated Regional Conferences, such as was foreshadowed by the Saratoga enactment, and such as now hold the stage.

Did Bishop Hoss Misrepresent Bishop Hendrix?

Not less misleading is this pamphlet in the effort that is made to show that Bishop Hoss misrepresented Bishop Hendrix, doing him an injustice. The writer quotes Bishop Hoss, in his pamphlet, as having said: "I do not think any considerable number of influential Southern Methodists would be willing to admit that for the past forty years 'we have been wandering in the wilderness' or 'playing the fool.' If any man chooses to make such a confession on his own account I shall not seriously object, but I shall not give him a commission to make it for me, and I seriously protest against his making it for the great and wise men who have been our leaders and guides since the Civil War."

The pamphleter then declares that what Bishop Hendrix did say was as follows:

"Do you know that since the Cape May Commission we have been wandering in the wilderness for forty years? What fools we mortals be; and now I am confessing your sins as well as my own. God be merciful to us miserable sinners and miserable fools!"

As a matter of fact, this was not the only time that Bishop Hendrix used this strenuous figure (this is taken from one of his public addresses at Saratoga), though it was stated in the Nashville Christian Advocate in June, 1916, that it was, and that this utterance was made ex tempore. The Bishop also gave out a published interview, a typewritten copy of which Dr. W. D. Bradfield stated Bishop Hendrix sent to him (see Texas Christian Advocate, June 16, 1916, Page 16), in which was used the following language: "We have both played the fool for forty years like the Israelites in the wilderness."

There is no evidence, as this phamphlet charges, that Bishop Hoss represented Bishop Hendrix as having said that the Southerners ALONE had played the fool. Scrutinize his language and you will see that he did nothing of the kind. Bishop Hendrix's utterance was in effect an indictment of the leaders of our Church as having played the fool for forty years, in that they had permitted our Church to continue as a separate denomination (he was discussing organic union). The fact that he also similarly indicted the leadership of the Church, North, did not make his statement any less an impeachment of the history of our Church; and, being one of the General Superintendents of the Southern Church, Bishop Hoss demurred to this reflection upon her leadership in the past, as he had a right to do. The Church, North, was not without able men of her own to speak for her if they wished to do so. It should also be remembered that Bishop Hendrix's interview, in which his own words had appeared, had lately been published in nearly all of the Church papers and was fresh in the minds of the public, who presumably knew what he had said, when Bishop Hoss made reference to this statement.

Let It Be Proven.

The author of this pamphlet accuses Bishop Hoss of having made an utterance substantially equivalent to that of Bishop Hendrix at the Ecumenical Conference in 1900, as follows: "I do not for one moment think that the Church of which I am a member has been utterly faultless in this matter, nor would I dare say that other Methodist denominations have been utterly faultless. We have all been wrong. We ought to stop our nonsense and unchristian conduct."

We wonder where this "Ecumenical Conference in 1900" met. We have never heard of any such gathering. The first Ecumenical Conference was held in London in 1881; the second in Washington, D. C., in 1891; the third was held in London in 1901; and the fourth in Toronto, Canada, in 1911.

Not enough of Bishop Hoss's (unlocated) utterance is quoted to show definitely what he was talking about; but all the indications are that he was speaking of the unwisdom and wrong of needless overlapping and an unnecessary waste of men and money—a thing which every good Methodist must deplore, and for the remedying of which we now have the Federal Council of Methodism, duly constituted and fully endorsed by the General Conferences of the two Episcopal Methodisms. If we are correct in this assumption of the meaning of this quotation, and we do not doubt that we are, it will be seen that there was a wide difference between the nature of the utterance of Bishop Hoss and that of Bishop Hendrix. The one was an affirmation of the unwisdom of a single policy of the two Churches—that of permitting unnecessary competition; the other was in effect an indictment of the entire history of the two Churches for nearly a half century in maintaining a separate existence, and so seemingly a complete impeachment of the leadership (in its chief features) of some of the most majestic men who have adorned the annals of American Methodism. And necessarily this severe charge lay chiefly against our Church, because it was she that had not been willing to enter into organic union with the Church, North, after the pattern to which Bishop Hendrix was giving his sweeping and enthusiastic endorsement. (It is due Bishop Hendrix, however, to say that at the meeting of the College of Bishops in Atlanta in 1916 he disclaimed any intention of reflecting upon the past course of our Church and her leaders; but this disclaimer, though we think it should be accepted, did not do away with the unfortunate effect of his words, which at the time of their utterance were scattered all over the country by both the secular and the Church press. We have no disposition to pursue the Bishop because of this regrettable statement and would not have adverted to it now but for the fact that an effort is being made to use it to the detriment of Bishop Hoss, who is in feeble health and perhaps not able to speak for himself, and who, in our opinion, has done and suffered more for the Church within the last decade than any other man among us.) We venture the assertion that these agitators cannot produce any statement from the lips or pen of Bishop Hoss at the time mentioned or at any other time which was in any sense a declaration that the separate existence of our Church as a denomination for the past forty years was either unchristian or foolish.

The Charges Against Other Bishops.

The space is not at our disposal to take up and discuss the references that are made in this pamphlet to Bishop Kilgo, Bishop Denny, and Bishop Candler; but the reader may infer from the foregoing statements to what extent its representations may be relied upon. We advise any and all persons into whose hands this publication may come to look carefully into its accusations before accepting them at their face value. We will, furthermore, say that we think the warnings of Bishop Hoss, Bishops Candler, and others against rushing into organic union with the Northern Church, after the Saratoga enactment, were urgently needed and most timely. It should be remembered that after our General Conference had officially sent the Oklahoma plan of unification to the Northern General Conference, Dr. John M. Moore and others of our Commissioners and prominent men had attended a meeting at Evanston, Ill., and had there dissented from that plan as to nearly every essential feature, in the presence of the very men who subsequently were to shape the Saratoga action. (We stand ready to prove this beyond the shadow of a doubt at any time, for the printed record shows clearly that this allegation is true.) Moreover, the Saratoga General Conference had adopted a paper that crossed the action of our General Conference at nearly every fundamental point, and steps had been taken to call a special session of the Northern General Conference and sweep us into the proposed merger in a jiffy, the movement having been largely taken out of the hands of those to whom it had been officially committed, with others presuming to direct it. What was more natural, under such circumstances, than that the ablest and most far-seeing of our General Superintendents, the men to whom our Church was accustomed to look for leadership, should point out the dangers and urge caution. Bishop Hoss was one of the leaders among the nine men to whom our Church had entrusted this important matter- why then did he not have a right to speak? If he and others had not done so, there is no telling what might have happened to our beloved Church in the face of the impending peril. Surely, it would have been a mistake to have tried to settle so grave an issue with a whoop and hurrah, plunging into the task inconsiderately "before the June roses were in bloom."

The Responsible Parties.

We agree with what seems to be the implied opinion of these agitators, that the unification movement is in sore straits; but it is folly to charge the responsibility for this up to Bishops Hoss, Candler, Denny, and Murrah. Bishop Hoss was not physically able to attend the last two meetings of the Commission (the one in Traverse City and the one in Savannah), and practically nothing was done at the first one in Baltimore. It is well known that the other three of these Bishops have had little to do with the making of the pending plan of unification, which, since its publication, has been steadily falling of its own weight. The ultra-unionists on our Commission, who are largely in the majority, are the fathers of the thing, so far as the Church, South, is concerned, and should not be robbed of their proud paternity. In view of the almost complete breaking away from the Oklahoma plan and the fact that a large surrender has been made to the Northern Methodists on nearly every important point, the statement that concessions to the views of the conservatives on our Commission has been the main stumbling block in the way of union is as about amusing as it is untruthful. We should like to know much more in the way of a surrender these Nashville agitators think should be made in order to unite the Churches?

Of a piece with the foregoing misrepresentation is the statement that nobody has been casting discredit upon Southern Methodism and that there has been no need for our Bishops or any one else to come to its defense. To go no further back than a few months, did not these very agitators themselves draw up against Southern Methodism one of the most severe indictments that was ever written, repudiating some of its most distinctive features in favor of those of the Church, North, and did not they in the pamphlet immediately preceding this one—the one entitled, "Why the Revision Movement?" virtually declare our Church to be in a moribund condition? Yet seemingly they would put padlocks upon the lips of Southern Methodists who are proud of the past history of their Church and believe in its present efficiency, counting it an offense for them to speak out in her behalf.

A Thing To Be Noted.

It should be noted that this unworthy assault upon the Chief Pastors mentioned, impeaching their sincerity and their motives, has come from the organization that Mr. R. B. Eleazer, Editor of the Missionary Voice and an employee of the General Board of Mission, was so largely instrumental in effecting, capitalizing in doing so his connection with the official missionary organ of our Church. This is a fact which it would be well for delegates to our approaching General Conference to keep in mind.

EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE.

The third annual meeting of the Efficiency Conference for North Mississippi will be held at Grenada College, June 4-7, 1918. Bishop Wm. A. Quayle of the Methodist Episcopal Church has consented to deliver three lectures. A rare treat awaits those who hear this scholarly platform master. He is a poet and preacher, an orator and thinker. Dr. John A. Rice, pastor of St. John's, St. Louis, Mo., one of the strongest and most thoughtful men in the South, will deliver three addresses. That gifted lecturer and popular and successful pastor, H. D. Knickerbocker of Houston, Texas, will be present throughout the Conference. Rev. J. A. J. Brock, a presiding elder of the North Alabama Conference, who has had remarkable success in dealing with country church problems, will deliver three addresses. The General Boards of the Church will have representatives and the program will be filled with good things for pastors and laymen. The College classrooms will be open for the Examining Committees to meet with the undergraduates for any work they may desire to give.

Board will be provided in the College dormitories as usual at a nominal cost. I believe it is well worth the time and money of all the preachers and many of the laymen of the North Mississippi Conference to attend this meeting and have a few days of inspiration, recreation and good-fellowship. Let them prepare to attend. Fraternally,

The Great Battle

THE MISSISSIPPI ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

The League is planning for one of its hardest year's work. Instead of its work heing over, it intends to put the finishing touch on the long series of years of work against the liquor business by cleaning up the fragmentary remains of the illicit liquor business, and to lend a helping hand to other sister States, and especially to our nearest neighbor, Louisiana; for as long as there is one wet State all may he wet, or at least very damp.

Beginning in June the National Anti-Saloon League will put on a State-wide campaign of speakers of national reputation in the interest of the ratification measure and of national prohibition generally. Captain R. P. Hobson will fire an advance gun in this campaign in the First Baptist Church, Jackson, on April 15, at 8 p. m., on the subject, "America in War."

NATIONAL PROHIBITION NOW A MORAL CERTAINTY.

Ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment by Massachusetts makes its adoption morally certain. When Maryland, Delaware and the Bay State swing into line, and New York holds out only after the utmost efforts of her anti-prohibition leaders, the end is in sight. The numher of States that have ratified—Massachusetts is the eleventh—is unimportant. The signiñcance of the action at Boston would have been as great, perhaps greater, if it had been taken before any other State had acted. Massachusetts was counted upon by the "wets" as one of the "last ditchers," yet she gives way at the first assault. The result will be to encourage the prohibition forces everywhere, and especially in other Legislatures meeting this year. It will mean also that the decisive fight will come next year, when most of the Legislatures assemble. With States won in the initial battle that they could not reasonably have hoped for, the prohibitionists will press their advantage all along the line. The surprise now would he for the amendment to be lacking ratification with only half of the seven years allowed for that action gone. The pressure upon the States needed to make up the thirty-six will he cumulative.—New York Evening Post.

THE MEMPHIS METHODIST HOSPITAL.

Whatever might have been the reasons for the misgivings on the part of the Methodists and friends within the bounds of the Memphis, Mississippi, North Arkansas, and North Mississippi Conferences as to the certainty or even the wisdom of building a Methodist hospital in Memphis, they should now he gotten rid of and the note of optimism sounded hy everyone. To stop to find out who were right and who were wrong in their contention for delays or in their insistence upon going ahead with the constructive work in the face of the strain and uncertainties of war times can do no good now, but instead would seriously hinder the progress of the enterprise. The Methodist Hospital has heen an assured fact from the beginning, but slow progress was natural and wise because of the magnitude of the undertaking. It should ever be kept in mind that we are not building for a day nor even for this generation, hut for ages to come. It should also be remembered that to erect a little thing and that to be thrown together as a makeshift would belittle the spirit and underrate the bigness of Methodism and her friends.

The accompanying cut will show what the trustees and building committee have tentatively agreed upon as a working basis for the great and creditable as well as representative hospital building. This gives a completed design, which means, when all units have been huilt, 600 beds. Specifications are being written now and bids will he asked for in June of this year for the erection of one unit, which will contain 150 beds and all other appliances necessary for a perfect hospital. The first unit will cost $300,000, including the furnishing.

The design seems to be as near perfect as art, science and skill can make it. Sanitation, economy of administration and the latest surgical and medical appliances have been looked after and provided from top to bottom. The building committee is composed of L. M. Stratton, G. T. Fitzhugh, R. W. Bailey, R. R. Ellis and F. N. Fisher. No more honest, capahle, and representative men could have been chosen than these gentlemen. Every interest and the well-heing of the Church and humanity will be carefully looked after and thoroughly safeguarded by this committee. The Church should feel herself fortunate in that these men are willing to give their time and talent freely and devotedly toward the success of this splendid undertaking.

Many who are in arrears on their subscriptions to the hospital fund have assigned as a reason that they were waiting for something definite to be done on the building itself. Of these we have no complaint to make nor even a suggestion of censure, but we now insist that the time has come for all such things to be put away with the things of the past, and that all turn their faces to the future and pull and push until success crowns their efforts.

The demand for hospital rooms in Memphis is growing each day. The conditions that will exist as the war continues and when it has closed will greatly increase the requirements of humanity in the realm of applied Christianity upon the Church, and the question is, will she be ready with the needed equipment? We who are in touch with the work not ouly believe, but have every assurance that she will, and that the hospital now being planned will make every Methodist have a right to be proud of the fhings that are heing accomplished.

UNIFICATION—HOW TO SOLVE THE NEGRO PHASE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am glad you favor thoroughly thrashing out the unification prohlem before going into it, and I think we have a big majority who want the thing done right or not at all. There is one solution of the Negro question that I wish the brethren of the commission would discuss. I think it would satisfy the colored brethren who love the white brethren so much that they can't bear to lose the social relations the mixed Church gives them, and also the white brethren who seem to love the brother in black so much more than they do their white hrethren south of Mason and Dixon's Line. The suggestion I would like to have made to these brethren is to organize a mixed Church for the benefit of the whites who feel so tenderly toward the poor colored brother, and let those who see the white side of the proposition go on with the negotiations with us, if thought best. There would be more discussion as to the division of property so as to give the mixed Church their part, but perhaps that could be arranged without great difficulty. At any rate, that would be an easier task than to get the South to go into a mixed Church. If the Commission should finally agree to retain Sambo in the uuited Church, I prophesy that there will be a new white Church organized in less than six months. Doctor, I haven't worded this just as I would like, but you can see what I am driving at: let the people who love the opposite color better than their own organize themselves together in a Church, and let the whites do the same.

TRY IT.

A famous English gardener once heard a nobleman say complainingly, "I cannot have a rose garden, though I have often tried, because the soil around my castle is too poor for roses."

"That is no reason at all," replied the gardener. "You must go to work and make it better. Any ground can be made fit for roses if pains are taken to prepare it. The poorest soil can be made rich."

It was a wise saying, and it is true in other places than rose gardens. Some young people say, "I can't be cheerful," or "I can't be sweet-tempered," or "I can't be forgiving," as if they were not responsible for the growths in their soul garden because the soil is poor. But "any ground can he made fit for roses," and any heart can he made fit for the loveliest blossoms of character.—Young People.

The only cure for grief is action.—George Henry Lewes.

"Get people to believe that it is indeed more blessed to give than to receive, and the church entertainment will die a sudden death."

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has lmposed upon us ls the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

THE GEESE.

My grandpa has a great big farm,
A lot of miles away.
With cows and colts and pigs and things,
And barns just full of hay,
And two great long-tailed pussy-cats
With kittens four apiece—
But, oh, the funniest of all
Are grandpa's silly geese!

There's five of them, and, oh, they strut
With such a foolish air;
And where one goes the others go,
Together, everywhere!
One day I heard somebody say,
"Six geese, as I'm alive!"
'Twas grandpa's voice, and I called back,
"No, grandpa, only five!"

I thought that grandpa couldn't count,
I knew there weren't six;
But when I looked at him, I saw
'Twas just one of his tricks.
"No, six," he said, and held me tight.
"You see, I chnose the winner.
I'll take the biggest goose of all.
Jone Jane, to dress for dinner!"

HOW TERRY USED HIS CHANCES.

Terry Dempster and a good many of the other boys were on their way to school. They passed the first fruit-stall at the corner. Terry said good-morning to the woman who kept it. He was glad Will Mace stopped to buy bananas, because he liked to look at her. Her eyes and her hair were so black and her cheeks so red, and she wore such big gold hoops in her ears.

She gave Will the bananas, and while he was putting them into his book-bag she held out his change. Terry took it for him. One of the pennies he shoved back across the counter.

"She was giving you a cent too much," he exclaimed to Will, as he handed him the others.

"You are good at arithmetic, sonny," said Will. "A penny isn't very much of a mistake."

"Not if you are an Italian, anyway," agreed Terry, "and aren't used to changing money in English."

A big red apple had rolled off the stall and along the street until it had turned the corner. Terry picked it up and ran back with it.

"You might have taken that with you," said Will. "Nobody would have seen."

Terry laughed. He did not seem to think that Will expected any other answer.

Two or three days later Terry was playing croquet at recess. The game was getting very exciting. Terry's ball was in a bad position.

"You can move it out from the hedge, Terry," said one of the boys who was looking on. "Wait. Let me show you."

"Not so far as that I cannot," cried Terry. "That is very far!"

"Oh, yes, you can," said the big boy, easily. "You're all right now. Go ahead."

"It's more than a mallet's length," said Terry, measuring. "I was sure it was."

He moved the ball back six inches, and tried for his wicket. He missed it. He lost the game.

"Isn't it a pity," said the big boy, "that you can't cheat a little at croquet just for sport?"

"I don't think it is," said Terry. "It wouldn't be any fun if it wasn't fair."

"Don't you like to win?"

"Yes, when it's real," said Terry.

One day when school was out, Terry had got almost to the corner where the fruit-stand was. Suddenly he stopped short in dismay.

"Oh, dear! I'll have to go back! I left my copy-book. Miss Stone said I was to copy over at home the page I blotted so much."

"Tell her you forgot it," said Bobby Price.

"But only for half a block," said Terry. "That wouldn't satisfy her, I guess."

"I guess not," said Bobby. And he didn't say another word.

The weeks and the months went by until the first school term was over and the second had begun. One Saturday afternoon Mrs. Dempster came home from down-town and hunted through the house for Terry.

"What do you think Miss Stone told me?"

"What?" asked Terry, who regarded Miss Stone as the most beautiful and delightful young lady in all the town.

"She said she liked to have my boy for a pupil. She thought the other boys were learning from him to be more honorable."

"I guess Miss Stone didn't mean me," he said. "I don't see how she could have meant me, because I can't remember ever being honorable before the other boys. I haven't had any chance."—The Sunday School Times.

HOW A SEAL GETS AIR THROUGH THE ICE.

When the Arctic Ocean is entirely covered with many feet of ice the seal has to find some way of obtaining air to breathe. So he selects a spot and begins to drill a hole to the surface by pressing his warm nose against the ice. No one knows how many hours it takes him to accomplish his task, but he manages it; and although he is obliged to work most of the time, because the surface of the hole is continually freezing, he keeps it open all winter and obtains air.

Seals have been known to drill in this manner through fifty feet of solid ice. Whether or not they take turns in the slow drilling is not positively known.

It is at these "seal holes" that the polar bear seeks food in the winter, and there the Eskimo waits, spear in hand, for his weekly supply of meat.—Apples of Gold.

DOG RESCUERS.

A setter dog ventured too far on the ice of Williams Lake, and, falling in a hole, was unable to get out of the water. Among those who saw the dog struggling in this dangerous place was a large Newfoundland dog, who rushed to the spot, planted himself firmly on the further side of the hole in which the setter was struggling more and more feebly to escape, and made several efforts to grasp the drowning dog. He persevered until he caught the dog's neck in his teeth, then he pulled him up to a place of safety. After he could stand, the setter wagged his tail and rubbed himself against the Newfoundland gratefully, and the rescuer and rescued trotted off together.—Our Four-footed Friends.

"It will be found that some of the very best-known people in heaven filled very obscure places while on earth."

A VOICE FROM THE MASSES.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am strongly opposed to the "Union," and am glad of a chance to say so. I was much interested in a recent copy of the Advocate which contained so much on the subject. The column, "Voices from the People," reminded one of a testimony meeting, and now if the Spirit moves an individual to speak or write on this important subject, I trust such an one will yield to these impressions, for it is a dangerous thing to resist or grieve the Spirit of God. The good Book says, "Avoid contentions and strivings about the law, for they are unprofitable and vain." How can anything be right which produces so much wrangling and dissatisfaction. If union is effected, I fear it will be at the loss of many valuable members. In my limited sphere I've heard quite a number (loyal Methodists, too) express themselves about thus: "No, I will not belong to the united Church. I will join some other denomination first." What about such members as Dr. S. A. Steel? How we love to read his articles which voice the sentiments of so many Southern Methodists when he refers to the "sacred memories" of the Church, etc.! Some years ago I had the privilege of hearing Dr. Steel. It was on a Commencement occasion at the "L. S. U." The old pavilion was packed. His subject was the "Bible and Its Adaptation to Humanity." He entertained and inspired his audience for an hour and a half, and a man with such ability is too good an asset to lose. If it is the Master's will, may we hold on to the "Methodist Episcopal Church, South" and the King James version of the Bible while life shall last.

ORPHANAGE RECEIPTS.

Dear Brother Meek: It is not ordinarily customary to make a financial statement through the New Orleans Christian Advocate of receipts by the Mississippi Orphans' Home, but the report from Rev. J. E. Stephens, Coahoma, Miss., who is District Agent of the Home for the Greenville District, reached us too late for the last issue of our little paper, and I would like to ask you to give credit through your columns to the following churches for the following contributions made during the month of March:

597—Shipman Chapel	$ 2.95
598—Merigold Church	6.80
599—Alligator Church	21.00
600—Shaw Church	4.70
601—Leland Church	32.00
602—Friar's Point	15.00
603—Cleveland	10.00
604—Glen Allan Church	20.00
605—Avon	5.00
606—Robinsonville	4.50
607—Coahoma and Lyon	12.00

These Items will be published in the May issue of Our Home, but a month is a long time to wait for public acknowledgment.

Very sincerely yours.

NO AGREEMENT PERFECTED.

The following dispatch concerning the recent meeting of the Joint Commission on Unification was sent out from St. Louis on April 14:

"The Joint Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which has been in session here for four days discussing measures for the reunion of the two branches of Methodism, adjourned to-night with the announcement that a partial agreement had been reached. According to a statement by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Thomas, of Louisviiie, Secretary of the Commission, 'two of the three crucial probiems involved in unification have been approved.' The principles and framework of the Regional Conferences—the Episcopacy, the General Conference and the Judicial Councii—have been agreed upon, he said, but no agreement was reached on the status of the Negro membership. The suggestion of both Commissions on this subject wiil be transmitted to the General Conference of both Churches for their information and action.

"The Southern Methodist Generai Conference will meet in Atlanta on May 2. The Methodist Episcopal General Conference is not to convene until 1920."

One of the leading Commissioners after the adjournment of the Commission wired us as foilows: "Favorable action was taken on the principles of the report of the Committees on Conferences and the Judicial Councii, but not as to details. The Commission disagreed on the status of the Negro. The Southern Commissioners adhered to the report of the Committee of Eight at Savannah. The Northern Commissioners demanded a pro rata representation in the General Conference for the Negroes with full rights."

We give these statements to our readers without comment, except to say that since the report of the original Joint Commission was formulated in 1911 the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has invariabiy been made to act first upon all matters pertaining to the proposed Unification—this though the original report first went to the General Conference of the Northern Church in 1912. which side-stepped the issue, not so much as even mentioning it. We think it is regrettabie that our Church has always been forced to take the iead in the handiing of this momentous issue.

THE DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO A DISTURBED AND DISTRACTED WORLD.

The world is disturbed and distressed as never before in its history. Disquietude and confusion reign everywhere, and men's hearts are failing them for fear. War and rumors of war absorb attention, and people can scarcely give careful consideration to any other subject. Radicalism and revolutionary proposals threaten the very stability of society.

At such a time the Church of the living God owes it to mankind to be caim and conservative. The present is no time for ecclesiastical experiments and radicai things in the Church.

We heard a wise and good man, who is devoted to the Church and to the God of the Church, say the other day, "I regret that our General Conference comes at a time of so much excitement and disquietude. I pray God that it may attempt as littie legislation as possible, elect the connectional officers, and adjourn. This is a time when the Church must help a restless and fearful world to be calm and conservative." His words are wise and weighty.

Some wild things are being done in the political world, which wiil have to be undone when the war is over, and the undoing of them will be difficult. If the Church ioses its head, and does likewise, much harm will come to both Church and State.

Let us wait for a calmer time when men can think more sereneiy and carefully, to undertake extensive legislation. We wiii know better what to do iater than we can possibly know now.

Let the Church offer now a place in which troubled men can find a place of rest and comfort, free from feverish excitement and distracting radicalism.

REV. S. M. THAMES DEAD.

Rev. S. M. Thames, an honored superannuate and for many years one of the ieading preachers of the North Mississippi Conference, died at his home on North West Street, Jackson, Miss., Thursday morning, a little after 5 o'clock, from the effects of a partial stroke of apoplexy which he suffered more than a year ago, and from which he never fuiiy recovered. After fifty-nine years in the ministry of his Church, and in the 81st year of his age, he fell asleep as quietly as one retiring to rest at the evening hour after a full day's hard, honest work.

During his iast hours Brother Thames was surrounded by his devoted wife, his loving daughter, Mrs. Loyd; his only son, Hon. James D. Thames, District Attorney of Vicksburg, and his sorrowing grandchildren. Possibiy no head of a home ever had a more ideal home life or ever went to heaven from among those who ioved him more tenderly.

The funerai services were conducted from Galloway Memorial Methodist Church at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. W. Woollard, of Oxford; Rev. John R. Countiss, President of Grenada College; Rev. B. F. Lewis, manager of the Orphans' Home, and Rev. W. H. Lewis pastor of Capitol Street Church. Brothers Woollard and Countiss, intimate friends of the deceased, paid beautiful tributes to his memory. The remains were taken to Vicksburg, the home of his son, for interment. Dr. T. B. Holloman officiated at the cemetery.

Few preachers have had more to do with shaping the North Mississippi Conference poiicies for the last thirty-two years than has Brother Thames. He was presiding elder there for twenty years, besides holding many of the most important appointments. He heiped to organize and establish Grenada College for Young Women, had something to do with helping aiong the Orphans' Home, and was a charter member of the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College, being one of the men to propose the estabiishment of the same in his Conference.

He had a sunny, cheerful disposition, which won for him friends wherever he was known. His preaching was of a high order, being instructive and strong. He loved his books, and was a close, sympathetic student of men. He has ieft his impress upon many a young preacher and strong, useful iayman. We shali miss him, but we know where to find him.

May the Christ whom he preached and in whose strength he lived and wrought keep, sustain and make more useful those of his devoted family who are left behind! CHAS. W. CRISLER.

Jackson, Miss.

This notice will touch with sadness many hearts in North Mississippi, where Brother Thames labored as a minister for more than half a century, and where he was known and highly esteemed by thousands of people. The Editor himself is deepiy grieved by the passing away of this honored and beloved minister, and it was a matter of profound regret that he was in such a condition physicaily as to be unable to be present at his obsequies. We shali have more to say concerning his iife and iabors in an eariy issue of the Advocate. We pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain the stricken loved ones in their sore bereavement!

A revivai meeting is in progress at Lexington, Miss. The preaching is being done by Evangelist W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

We regret to learn that the mother of Rev. J. R. Countiss, who is now over 80 years of age, is seriousiy ill at her home in Calhoun City, Miss. Let this afflicted mother in Israel, who has for so long been a faithful servant of the Master, be remembered at the throne of grace.

Rev. S. S. Holladay, of Pelican, La., thus reports: "Things are moving along nicely with us. We have lately had a revivai at Pelican. The Rev. Mr. Crimen, a Baptist evangelist, held a joint meeting, which resulted in a number of conversions and 22 accessions to our Church."

In a ietter bringing us 5 new subscriptions and 1 renewal, Rev. H. A. Gatlin, of Tyiertown, Miss., says: "We are moving on nicely in this charge. Progress is being made along all lines. We will have our $18,000 brick church completed by July 1. We have nearly finished the brick work."

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon, Miss., Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference, sends us the following item: "I have just received a check from Rev. J. E. Thomas, our pastor at Amory and Nettieton, to cover the educational assessment on his charge." Who next?

Brother E. M. Allen, of Hub, Miss., writes as foiiows: "Our work is stiii progressing favorably. Mrs. Rebecca Rawls was buried on April 11. She was a woman of fine Christian character." We regret to be informed of the demise of this faithful servant of the Master, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Our hat is off to Rev. W. S. Seiman, who gives us a fine list of 9 renewal subscriptions from the Olive Branch (Miss.) charge. In his business letter is appended the following note: "Our work is doing nicely. Our people are aiso assisting the Government nobly, having already let Uncle Sam have over $60,000."

Hon. R. P. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac, wiii spend next Sunday in New Orieans. He will speak at the Rayne Memoriai M. E. Church, South, at 11 o'clock a. m., and at the Athenaeum at 3 p. m. The pubiic is cordially invited to hear this distinguished speaker, who wiii discuss phases of the prohibition question.

Rev. I. F. Holland, of Gunnison, Miss., thus reports concerning his work: "Everything points to a fine year. We wiii have aii our Conference coiiections secured by the time of the meeting of the district conference—April 23." Brother Holland has given us from his field 19 subscriptions to the Advocate, 11 of whicn were new.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church of New Orleans, has been named as one of the Vice-Presidents of the Liberty Loan Committee of this city, representing the churches. Brother Gearheard has been quite active in promoting the various movements connected with the great war now raging.

Mrs. L. B. Freeman, of Buntyn, Tenn., widow of the late Rev. R. N. Freeman, in renewing her subscription to our paper, thus remarks: "The Advocate is a live religious paper. I think that Dr. S. A. Steei expresses the sentiments of a majority of Southern Methodists in his articie which the Nashville Christian Advocate turned down."

From a personai note from Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College, we take the following: "Mr. J. L. Haley, of Itta Bena, Miss., has recently given $5000 to the College. We have some prospect for an endowment if transportation facilities wiii permit the erection of our new building. Brother Brownlee has done a truly great work for the school."

Brother T. Q. Ellis, a leading layman of the Sidon (Miss.) charge, sends us a communication on unification, which we hope to be able to publish in our next issue. There seems to be no doubt that the rank and file of the Church are waking up on this question. Brother Ellis, among other things, says: "We are weii pieased with our new pastor, Rev. J. J. Garner."

We take the following from the Aiabama Advocate of April 11: "Friends of Bishop McCoy will regret to iearn that he has found it necessary to go to Rochester, Minn., to consult the famous surgeon, Dr. William Mayo. An operation may be necessary. The prayers of the Church will be for the speedy restoration of this brilliant and consecrated servant of God."

In renewing the famiiy's subscription to the Advocate, Mrs. H. Sinclair, of Longstreet, La., says: "My husband, Mr. H. Sinciair, who recentiy died here, was 93 years old. He had been a subscriber to the Advocate for over 40 years." We regret to be informed of the decease of this long-time friend of our paper, and we pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort the sorrowing ioved ones.

Mr. T. E. Steel, of Acona, Miss., and Mr. J. A. Steel, Jr., of Vicksburg, Miss., were in New Orieans iast week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated visit. They had come to the Crescent City with Mrs. T. E. Steel and Miss Mary Steel, who were unwell and came to secure medical treatment. They both underwent operations at the Touro Infirmary and are thought to be making good progress toward recovery at this time.

Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of our First Church at Baton Rouge, La., began a revival meeting last Sunday. The preaching is being done by Evangelist D. L. Coale, of Dallas, Texas.

Rev. C. W. Crisler is having a great pastorate at the Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss. He has received up to date 94 members, more than 20 of these being on profession of faith.

Rev. A. C. McCorkle, our popular pastor at Byhalia, Miss., thus sums up the situation in his charge: "Things are moving on well with us. Sixty per cent of our Conference collections are in hand. We are having a large attendance at the preaching services, and good prayer meetings."

Rev. W. A. Hays, of Newton, Miss., was an appreciated caller at the Advocate office last Monday morning. He had come to New Orleans with his wife, who is ill, seeking medical advice. A physician had not been conferred with when we saw Brother Hays. Sister Hays is at the Touro Infirmary.

In a business letter, bringing us two subscriptions, Rev. W. F. Henderson, of Mooringsport, La., says: "I am just recovering from a persistent case of la grippe, which has disqualified me in a large measure for work of any kind. However, things are now looking well for the entire charge." We trust that Brother Henderson will soon be quite himself again.

Rev. Thomas Cameron, of New Albany, Miss., in renewing his subscription, adds the following kindly message: "Thanks for our good paper—the New Orleans Christian Advocate." Brother Cameron, who is now on the retired list, has behind him a record of service of which any man might justly be proud. What a treat it was to hear him preach when he was in the active harness!

Rev. W. L. Linfield, presiding elder of the Newton (Miss.) District, writes: "The friends of Rev. H. R. McKee, pastor at Rose Hill, Miss., will regret to hear of the death of his wife yesterday, April 10. She died of pneumonia at their parsonage home. She was a devout Christian and will be sorely missed. Dr. H. F. Tolle, pastor of our First Church at Laurel, Miss., underwent a serious operation last week. The last news I had concerning his condition was favorable."

We take the following from the Wesleyan Christian Advocate of April 12: Bishop and Mrs. Murrah were in Atlanta last week, coming to be present at the marriage of their son, Captain W. F. Murrah. The Bishop officiated at the ceremony, which was performed in First Church. The Bishop and Mrs. Murrah returned to Memphis immediately after the ceremony." The New Orleans Advocate extends congratulations to Captain Murrah and his accomplished bride.

The program of the Greenville District Conference, which is to be held at Merigold, Miss., April 23-26, is on our table, through the courtesy of the presiding elder, Rev. V. C. Curtis. The outlined plan of the meeting indicates an occasion of much interest. This is the Editor's own district conference, which he sincerely wishes he might attend; but, with three weeks in Atlanta immediately ahead, he dares not indulge the hope of doing so. Moreover, to-day his physician warned him that he urgently needs a season of rest.

From a recent issue of the St. Helena Echo, published at Greensburg, La., we take the following: "Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, after holding quarterly conference at Days last Saturday and Sunday, preached here on Sunday night, March 31, to a full house. While his theme was suited to the occasion, that of Easter, he very appropriately connected it with the world-war now raging and delivered Prussianism and militarism some very heavy blows. He is most optimistic as to the final outcome of the great issues involved."

We clip the following from a recent issue of the West Carroll Gazette, published at Oak Grove, La., the new Parish-seat of West Carroll Parish: "The Building Committee of the M. E. Church, South, met yesterday afternoon and accepted the plans drawn by Max Charles Price, of Atlantic Highland, N. J. The structure will be of brick and will cost about $6000. About $2000 of this amount has already been secured, and a committee will soon start to soliciting donations." The pastor of this congregation is Rev. R. H. Bamburg. Brother Bamburg has sent us a brief report concerning his work, which we hope to publish next week.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, Professor of Chemistry and Geology at Millsaps, thus comments upon the work at that institution in a letter to the Editor: "Things are moving on with great satisfaction at the College, though a number of fine men have had to leave since Christmas to enter the Army and Navy. These are trying times, and they may be worse before the great war is over. Our educational work must go on, and I think that we should make the usual canvass between now and the beginning of the next session. If our Methodist people will be loyal to their own, Millsaps College will not lack for a splendid student body next fall."

From a personal letter from that prince of Christian gentlemen, Dr. I. W. Cooper, we take the liberty of extracting the following items: "Our attendance at Whitworth this year will reach 235. Our sophomores will be permitted to teach two years in Mississippi without examinations, and our graduates will be given unlimited license without being examined. Forty-two years ago I graduated at Hiwassee College in a class with the late Senator Clay, of Georgia. On May 11, I will preach the Commencement sermon of that institution. It will be a great time for me. I shall be a boy again, walking over the hills of East Tennessee."

Rev. C. A. Parks, of Ackerman, Miss., writes us as follows: "We had our second quarterly conference on Monday, April 8. It was an all-round success—at least that is what the presiding elder called it. All three of our churches were well represented, and the report for the support of the ministry was most gratifying. As to our Sunday schools, we have organized two Teacher-training classes, have adopted the monthly offering plan for our Orphans' Home, and will have the monthly missionary program. The prescribed 'Standard of Efficiency' is our goal. Over one-half of our Conference collections is in the hands of the proper treasurers, and most of the remainder has been provided for in subscriptions. We are not trying to get 'ahead of the hounds,' and I am sure that we will not; but we are trying to keep in the front ranks."

THE GROWTH OF OUR CHURCH EXTENSION LOAN FUND.

At the session of our last General Conference a strong endorsement was given to the purpose of our Board of Church Extension to increase its Loan Fund capital to $1,000,000. A note just received from Dr. McMurry, Corresponding Secretary of the Board, brings the announcement that the goal has been reached with a considerable surplus beyond the million dollar mark. In 1914 the report showed a Loan Fund capital of $560,582.63. The books of the present quadrennium closed April 1, and showed an increase of $546,807.18, which brings the total capital to $1,106,389.81, thus going beyond the $1,000,000 goal by the amount of $106,389.81.

MARRIED.

At the parsonage in Pontotoc, Miss., on April 10, 1918, by the pastor, Rev. W. M. Young, Rev. W. B. Baker, our pastor at Sherman (North Mississippi Conference), and Miss Carrie Naugher, of Ebenezer, Pontotoc County, Miss. Brother Baker has won the heart and hand of one of Pontotoc County's fairest young women teachers. She will make a helpful wife for a preacher. The Advocate wishes the happy couple great success in the Master's service.

NOTICE.

Ministers' Relief Association, North Mississippi Conference.

Dear Brethren: When the Ministers' Relief Association was organized, at Water Valley in December, 1879, with Dr. J. D. Cameron, President, and Dr. Sam A. Steel, Sec'y, the Rev. S. M. Thames enrolled as a charter member. He was a member in good standing at his death. After forty-seven years, during which time forty-one assessments were levied, his family will receive more from the Association than he has paid into it.

On account of his decease, Assessment Number 19 is now due.

THE WINONA DISTRICT.

Dear Doctor Meek: Everything is moving some in the Winona District. No presiding elder ever worked with a bigger, broader and finer set of men—preachers and laymen. There is a deeper and finer grip on the great essentials. It seems, than ever, incident, I suppose, to the shaking up the world is going through at this time which is trying the very ship and pilot. All channels are stormy and all seas are seething. We now need to awake and enquire, "What of the night?" This is no time for easy-going, half-awake men in Zion. We must now have a vision, convictions, stamina, and a message, or we had better be dead—in reality are dead.

The preachers are becoming more vital, more intense over the situation, and there is a note of seriousness and earnestness among our laymen. God can only save us by awakening us to the needs of the hour. The preachers are planning their revivals with more care and seriousness than usual. It takes a near-prophet now to know just what lines of truth to move on, but we are set to learn and do the best thing.

There is a fine disposition all over the district on the part of our big-minded laymen to appreciate the real preacher and leader now as never before and provide for his living in view of the war-time advance prices. So they have raised the salaries in nearly every charge. Some of the advances made as follows: Swiftown, $275; Indianola, $300; Belzoni, $200; Minter City and Philipp, $800; Tutwiler, $200; Dublin, $350; Webb, $100; Ruleville, $150; Drew, $400; Winona Circuit, raised to $980; Duck Hill to $1000; Carrollton to $1000, etc. Some of the charges did not fix the pastor's salary at the first quarterly conference, but I am quite sure there will not be a charge in the district that will not make some advancement willingly. The aggregate raise in the district, so far is $2875, with "several boxes to hear from."

Now is the time, too, to put our Church papers and literature into the hands of our people, for they must know the program of Christianity and the part it must play in the maintenance of sound ideals and principles in the reconstruction of society and world conditions after this war is over.

The man is blind who does not know that Christianity and Christianity alone understood and applied in all social, intellectual, political and commercial life is the determining factor in our world relations.

Our Advocate Campaign.

Many of our friends have done finely in the way of securing new subscriptions, and have thereby greatly helped the Advocate. But we are very anxious that the important matter of securing renewals shall not be overlooked in any charge. A great many subscriptions are now expiring, and we earnestly request the brethren to lend us a helping hand at this point, since otherwise we shall likely soon lose as many names from our mailing files as they have so kindly enabled us recently to add thereto.

FROM OUR WORKERS.

Rev. J. D. Simpson, of Guntown, Miss., forwards us 5 names for our mailing files, adding: "Others will follow."

Rev. John D. Ellis, of Canton, Miss., sends us 4 subscriptions, and thus remarks: "This is not my final report, but only the beginning of effort." We always feel that we can count on Brother Ellis.

Rev. A. F. Moore, of Fulton, Miss., gives us three additional subscriptions. He says: "These make up my quota, but we will continue to press the claims of the Conference organ. Epidemics still exist among us, but we are planning to move forward."

Rev. A. A. Sims, of Carthage, Miss., writes: "I am sending you 5 subscriptions. These, with the ten already forwarded, make up the number allotted to me by the district stewards. However, I expect to send others yet. My work continues to make progress."

Rev. A. S. Oliver, of Eden, Miss., brings us under obligations to him for 11 subscribers, 6 of them new, and he thinks that he will be able to send more yet. Brother Oliver writes interestingly of his work, and what he says we shall let our readers see next week.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: "Rev. J. H. Moore, Gloster, Miss., 11; Rev. R. T. Pickett, Collins, Miss., 2; Rev. A. M. Bennett, Tyro, Miss., 6; Rev. S. S. Holladay, Pelican, La., 2; Mrs. W. L. Hamilton, Sarah, Miss., 3; Rev. J. G. Johnson, Myrtle, Miss., 2; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Meadville, Miss., 2; Rev. C. W. Russell, Paris, Miss., 2.

Dr. John W. Lewis, a well known minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, died at his home in Louisville, Ky., after a long illness on April 11. He was 73 years of age.

Comb Sage Tea in Faded or Gray Hair

Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express prepaid for $1.

ELIJAH MOON was born in the State of New York and spent the larger part of his life in the States of Iowa and South Dakota. To regain his failing health, he moved to Mississippi in 1895, settling near Sharon, where he continued to reside until his death (February, 1918). Brother Moon had been a member of the Disciples of Christ Church, but joined the Methodist Church at Lottville some years ago. He was a good citizen, a good husband, and a devoted father. He was faithful to his Church and died trusting Christ for salvation. He will be missed. F. L. APPLEWHITE.

Miss MARY GOFF was born near Sharon in 1878, and at the old home passed her useful life, death bringing her release, after a brief illness, on March 1, 1918. She joined the Sharon Methodist Church in girlhood and her life was consistent and faithful. She was notably quiet, cheerful, and industrious. Her ministry to an aged and afflicted mother was beautiful indeed. Besides her mother, two brothers, Charles and Will, and two sisters, Miss Bertie and Miss Gussie, are left to mourn her departure. "She is not dead but sleepeth." Yes, doubtless her eyes have already beheld the beautiful dawn of an eternal day. Glorious hope that we may see her glorified face again and have fellowship in the beautiful city of God!

F. L. APPLEWHITE.

LARKIN RANDOLPH LAY was born near Atlanta, Ga., on June 23, 1836, and died at his home, near Homer, La., on Dec. 6, 1917. When eleven years old he came with a brother to Claiborne Parish and was reared near Summerfield. On Nov. 21, 1866, he married Miss Margaret Garrett, who survives him. Of this union were born six sons and four daughters. All of these, with a number of grandchildren, survive to mourn their loss. In early life he became a member of the Methodist Church and remained an upright member of that Church until death. He loved his Church and often was a member of the district and Annual Conferences. Brother Lay lived most of his married life in the same house where he was married, and then died in the same room where he had been married fifty-one years before. His influence for good was strong among all who knew him. Quiet and unassuming, his life had a strength that comes from uprightness and integrity. He spent four years in the Confederate Army, and there are now two grandsons of his at Camp Beauregard. A good man has gone. He awaits the coming of loved ones.

His pastor, W. L. DOSS, Jr.

ANDREW BRITAIN WEBB, son of P. C. and Louisa S. Webb, was born in Amite County, Miss., in 1864. In youth he united with the Methodist Church and remained a faithful member until his death at Glading, Miss., on Feb. 16, 1918. Seized with a painful and lingering illness a few years since, he lived thenceforth in closer relations with his God and Savior. It would be hard, however, to name a time when he was not religious, for he was gentle, guileless, and good from his very birth. His disposition was friendly in an exceptional degree; and so he formed and permanently kept friendships wherever he was known. During his disability he was much in prayer; but, as he said to a devoted sister, his supplications were on behalf of others. His own path to heaven was clear and there was no need to pray mainly for himself. Happy is the one who, always sure of his calling, can thus have much spiritual energy to release for the salvation of his fellows! If Britain Webb felt the attraction of distant localities, he resisted it, preferring the quietude of his country home and the companionship of loved ones to the hustling world at large, wherein personal adaptations and sympathies cannot always be safely reckoned on. He, therefore, concentrated the wealth and warmth of his affections upon the family circle and the neighbors. His loss is keenly felt; his memory will be precious; and the record of his almost sinless life will afford great comfort and consolation to his sorrowing brothers and sisters.

A KINSMAN.

Fort Worth, Texas.

Mrs. MARY WATSON was born on August 1, 1850, and died on January 2, 1918. She was the daughter of Robert M. and Elizabeth B. Harris. She grew from childhood to womanhood in the family home, at old Multona Springs, in Attala County, Mississippi. In March, 1878, she was married to David R. Proctor, who just seventeen months afterward died, leaving her with an infant daughter. In her great grief she found much comfort in this little one, whom she fondly called "Davie" for the father. Davie lived to be eleven years old, when she, too, was taken by death, leaving the mother all alone. In 1893 she was again married. This time to Harvey D. Watson, with whom she lived happily for seven years, when another great sorrow came in her husband's death. Again she was left with one daughter, who grew up as her mother's constant companion. In early womanhood this daughter married and then, in just a few months, suddenly took sick and died. Thus the mother was left again, heartbroken and alone. Fortunately for her, she had become a Christian in youth, and through all these sorrows she was wonderfully sustained by her faith in God. In January, 1917, she came from her home in Mississippi on a visit to relatives in Texas. During the year her health gave way. For several weeks prior to her death, her suffering was severe indeed. In it all she was patient and uncomplaining. In death she was gloriously triumphant. She died at Merkel, Tex., in the home of her sister, Mrs. Joe L. Harris, through whom she gave out this message to her friends and loved ones: "Do not grieve at my departure, but rather rejoice with me, that I am freed from suffering and sorrow. I have had much trouble here, but over there I will be happy. Oh, so happy with Jesus and my loved ones." This is the brief record of a strangely sad life. Under the strain of sorrow her character strengthened and sweetened. She was ever thoughtful of the sick and sorrowing. She was devoted to the Church and will be missed by the Methodist Church and in the community of her little home town, Stewart, Miss. That all who knew and loved her may be as well prepared as she was when the last summons comes, is the prayer of her brother. W. C. HARRIS.

IN MEMORIAM.

Another light has been extinguished, and we are again called upon to mourn the loss of a departed sister in the death of Mrs. ALICE DAVIDSON HICKMAN, who was born on August 7, 1863, and died on March 13, 1918.

Whereas, Sister Hickman was an earnest and zealous member of the Methodist Church, a teacher in the Sunday school, and a charter member of the Ladies' Aid Society; therefore, be it

Resolved (1), That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, and, that while we deplore her loss and deeply sympathize with her devoted husband and her affectionate son and daughter, yet we would commend them to the Giver of all good, that they may bow in humble submission to His will, trusting that their loss is her eternal gain.

Resolved (2), That a page of our minute book be set apart to the memory of our departed sister, and that a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family and a copy be sent the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

Signed: Mrs. M. N. James, Mrs. A. M. Dean, Miss Beulah Grissom.

Eat Less and Take Salts for Kidneys

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Notes in Passing.

Spring is in the air—birds singing, mating and nesting; gardeners busy planting, pruning, plowing and all the other things that go with that most important avocation. The air is always balmy, the trees and grass green, in these beautiful islands; but now it has the spring feel to the air, and everything calls to us that the annual miracle is about to begin again. The Chinese gardeners are planting a large crop of foodstuffs, and the reports from the other islands, and the country, seem to indicate that a much larger acreage will be devoted to the production of food this year. Our daily papers are constantly urging this course, and in every way the press out here sets an example of loyalty that is fine.

One of the birds that is most in evidence here is about the size of a robin. Called the "minah bird," he is protected by law, and is as impudent as any bird I have ever seen. Nesting in the vines that overhang the porches, his loud and not unmusical voice is the first sound of the new day. They do not sing as sweetly as our own mocking-bird, or thrush, but often they imitate them so well that we feel homesick for the old South and the bright springtime, with the field hands singing as they turn over the fields, and all the things that make our homeland the dearest place on earth to us. I do hope that the farmer boys know that they are doing great things for their country when they get intimately acquainted with a mule and a plow. On their shoulders will rest a great responsibility this year—and I feel sure they will loyally and faithfully meet it.

I often wonder how many of the illusions of our youth we will retain to old age? When a boy and young man, I often read books of Oriental life, magazine articles dealing with the dark peoples, and letters of travel. They frequently referred to "dark oriental beauties" and many went into ecstacies over the women of the Eastern countries. Naturally, I imbibed an idea that maybe our own girls were not so beautiful as we thought. I have seen many women of many lands. Chinese—who are far and away the most pleasant and refined in appearance—Japanese, Korean, Filipinos, Javanese, Moros, and a few of the mixed races. I have been to both China and Japan, and this city is almost wholly foreign, with a large percentage of the Eastern races. So far I am yet to see the very first beauty. When you see the English, Scotch, Irish, and, best of all, American women in the same street car, store or church alongside other peoples, then you lose all your illusions about other women. Some of the Portugese women are attractive, and Spain has ever been noted for her women. But the best of them look out-classed when placed with our own people. Nothing makes one so content with his homeland, as to see other lands and peoples.

When I was in the Army before this war came, I did not say much about the plain soldiers. People were not interested then in the little army that was so bravely trying to train a few men for this awful day, which every one knew must one day come. Now with every village and township represented, people are wondering what they can expect of this little Army, and of what sort of men is it composed. I know nothing at all about the National Army, or the National Guard, as a body of men. But I do know something about the Regular Army. I have served five years with infantry, artillery, and cavalry, in "the States" and the Philippines, so I ought to know a little about this organization. I look at the men carefully, and each one is examined twice a month, physically. I am often directed by the commanding officer to lecture to the men on subjects of a hygienic and moral nature. This throws me into close personal touch with the 500 men of this post, and I will not hestitate to say what my impressions are. Soldiers to-day are what they were in 1863, in 1848, in 1812, and at all times when they are soldiers. A famous Confederate General once said that soldiers were like a lot of big schoolboys. That is as good a definition as any one could give. The immense majority are nice, clean young men. They are men with high ideals, a strong sense of loyalty, and a desire to serve their country. Some are not so good, though all seem to be loyal and true to the flag. There are fifty-two stars on the service flag of the Methodist Church and eighty-five on the flag at the Campbellite (Christian) Church. Their pastor is a very excellent man, and is much admired by the men. There is a large number of men at the Methodist Church at each service—many are not members—and I notice what an exceptionally clean-faced lot they are. Three young men seemed a bit more attractive in their appearance, and I was not surprised to learn that they were the sons of itinerant preachers—a fine trio of lads indeed; who is now ready to say that "preachers' sons are the worst in the world?" I find them everywhere, and they represent the best class of the new army. (Preachers, I am not a candidate for anything at all.) Last Sunday night several—two sons of preachers among them—men of the big post came down on the train 27 miles to attend church. Their barracks are fully one mile from the station; so you see that after church there was a ride of more than an hour and a long walk before they went to bed. I wonder how many of my readers ever took that much time and trouble for the sake of attending church? This has happened almost every Sabbath night since I came here. I live a mile from the car line, and then it is five miles on the electric cars to the church. So it is not easy for me, especially as it is now the rainy season. I am glad to tell you that I find the Methodist boys to be as good as the best—and preachers' sons are right with them.

I read the appointments with great interest. I am hoping that Dr. La Prade will not forget to send me the Journal this year. He will send it, I am sure. When I was reading the various stations to which preachers were sent, I wondered if they all realized what a glorious privilege they have. I have a larger salary that any minister in the Mississippi Conference, yet I positively envy the men who have the wonderful opportunity of telling the "old, old story."

In my next letter, I shall tell you about the conference of this district which is now in session, with Bishop Leonard presiding. I was with the Bishop at a dinner on Tuesday, and found him to be a most charming gentleman.

I know that some friends wonder why I did not stay at home and let the younger men do the work. In the first place, I was one of less than a thousand doctors trained for army work, when 15,000 were imperatively needed. It seemed to me that it would be an act of cowardice to hold back when the need was so urgent, so when asked to accept a commission I could not refuse. I did not ask for this or any place—just took what was offered, and tried to do my part. My little son says he would be ashamed of his Daddy, if he had kept out of this great war—and justly so. How long I will be here, I do not know. But I will close.

Freckles

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

By Robbie Lucille Woods.

The Sunday school is the school of the church; its teachers are teachers of the Church.

The Church should give public recognition to the Sunday school at frequent intervals in order that it may be identified with the Church in the public mind, and that it may be understood as the one institution in our American life giving itself unqualifiedly to the religious education of the child. The Sunday school has a duty to the whole of society. It bears a responsibility at least equal to that of the public school, and its possible service to the State is not less. The only way this responsibility may be met and this service rendered is through the enrollment of all children and young people in the Sunday school. The Sunday school is not for the few; it is for all, and every possible means must be used to bring all to it. Although a remarkable increase in enrollment has been made in recent years, there are yet millions of children and young people in our country that do not know what the Sunday school is.

There has been no such general recognition of the importance of the Sunday school as there should be. It has too often been lightly esteemed and slightingly spoken of by those who should hold it in highest esteem, recognizing both the inestimable service of the Sunday school to the Church and the kingdom, and that it is only through this school that the Church can fulfill the teaching ministry committed to it by its divine Lord. There should be such constant emphasis upon the importance and value of the school as will give it what it deserves in the estimation of the general public.

No real Sunday school just happens. Its organization and its administration must be planned. The really efficient Sunday schools that we have, without exception, have been built up by busy men and women who have taken time from other duties to counsel, study, visit, labor and pray in order to do an important work well.

The successful Sunday school is not a one-man institution—it is built up and maintained by the co-operation of pastor, superintendent, teachers, and pupils. It is not made in a week nor in a single twelvemonth; it is the result of a process of growth extending through years.

No other public institution has the possibility of so great service as has the Sunday school at its best. Such significance and such value attaches to its work, its possible service is so unique and so transcendent, that it should command, without reserve, the sympathy, the prayer, the investment in time and effort of the most gifted, the most influential, and the best trained people of the Church, both young and old.

In the new day—not far ahead—this it shall do, and in that day the vineyard of the Lord shall be planted—"the planting of Jehovah that he may be glorified."

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel; just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

The pastor and official members of the Satartia charge, realizing with profound sorrow the great loss sustained in the death of their friend and colaborer, T. M. BUTTS, desire to make formal record of appreciation of his labors and exalted character. He, with his consecrated wife, were regular attendants upon public worship and especially on quarterly conference occasions. He was thoroughly interested in the finances of the Church and ever ready to do his duty. He is greatly missed because of his consecrated life and his real worth to the church. He was known by all his acquaintances as a good man. His life was consistent and above reproach. He was a man who was loved by the children and respected by all who knew him; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we tender to his wife our sympathy in her great loss, and pray that she may meet her loved one again in the better world.

2. That we will strive to live closer to God, as Brother Butts lived, and that the inspiration of his excellent example shall be cherished by us till memory holds its own.

3. That these expressions of sincere and heartfelt appreciation be spread upon the minutes of our quarterly conference, a copy sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy to his bereaved wife.

Signed: S. N. Young, A. B. Kling, J. D. Setzler.

Cleanliness.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness." We are too prone to think that "cleanliness" refers only to the exterior of our bodies. But unless your bowels are kept open and your liver active, you cannot expect to keep your body clean. The perspiration through skin pores is forced to carry off more than its share of the body's impurities. Do not allow constipation to poison you. Cleanse your entire system with Van Lax, which contains no calomel and no habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant to the taste and produces pleasant results. For sale by the best dealers everywhere. In bottles—price 50c. Manufactured by the Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

"There are many who at least profess that they have no confidence whatever in human nature. They are making an unconscious but awful self-revelation in this profession. The healthy-minded man looks for that which is good and rejoices to welcome and to applaud it wherever it is found."

Scientific Treatment for the Skin

Science and doctors endorse Tetterine as the rational treatment for the skin. This salve will kill all skin parasites and will restore the skin to its normal healthy condition. "CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets to-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

BEING MADE OVER.

French women think no longer of styles but wear any plain and useful garments they can afford. The big work apron is most in evidence everywhere. When peace comes again the womanhood of France will be a new blessing in the world, a womanhood reborn and new grown amid the cleansing trials of these sad years.

A SOUTHERN PRODUCT.

Originated in North Carolina, manufactured in Tennessee, by Southern men, from Southern products, sold to the nation and soothing and healing the cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and sores of the world, is the record of the well known Family Salve, Gray's Ointment. Its instantaneous healing effect and its soothing relief to skin infections make it almost indispensable in the home. It is antiseptic as well as healing. Telephone your druggist. The New Calomel Is Harmless and Delightful

All Sickening and Dangerous Qualities Removed—Medicinal Virtues Vastly Improved. New Variety Called Calotabs."

Science has given us smokeless powder, colorless iodine and tasteless quinine—now comes nauseless calomel, a new variety known as Calotabs, that is wholly delightful in effect, yet more effective than the old-style calomel as a system-purifier and liver-cleanser.

Your doctor prefers calomel above all other medicines, as it is the best and only sure remedy for biliousness, indigestion and constipation. Now that calomel is delightful to take, everybody is asking for the new variety, Calotabs. One tablet at bedtime, a swallow of water—that's all. No nausea, no griping, no danger. Next morning you wake up feeling fine, your liver cleansed, your system purified. Eat what you please—no restriction of habit or diet.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends and guarantees Calotabs.

HUMORS IN SPRING

Such as Pimples, Boils, Eruptions—and Weakness, Languor, Debility

Afflict thousands of people and seem to demand the use of a Spring course of treatment without delay.

The very best medicine to take now is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which thoroughly cleanses the blood and effects radical and permanent relief by perfecting the processes of absorption and elimination—giving healthy activity to the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and skin.

This good medicine purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood in its own peculiar and unequalled way. It promptly relieves rheumatism, scrofulous troubles and eczema, regulates the kidneys and liver. It originated in a Boston physician's successful prescription, and enjoys high reputation as a satisfactory all-round family medicine. Accept no substitute, but insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla, and get it today. It will do you good.

RICHES IN CHRIST JESUS.

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.—Rev. 25:7. Perhaps you didn't know that I was a millionaire. I don't know how many millions I own. They say the Rothschilds can't tell within millions how much they are worth. That is just my condition. MEDICAL WORK IN CHINA.

The following extracts are from the Knoxville Sentinel of April 8, and give some vital facts brought out during the session of the Woman's Missionary Council which convened in Knoxville, on April 3-11, 1918.

"Miss Belle Bennett gave a very interesting and instructive report of the medical missionary work in China, she having spent several months in visiting the missionaries and institutions in China, Japan, and Korea during 1916 and 1917.

"Dr. Bennett told of the great Ginling institution in Nanking where the Woman's Missionary Council is doing its greatest missionary work in that country. 'This institution is not maintained by the women of the Council exclusively,' said Dr. Bennett, 'but is an institution maintained by several denominations. It is an educational institution. Each board during the past year was scheduled to spend $10,000 on the institution. A beautiful tract of land has been purchased near the institution, which will be used in the future.'"

Need of Teachers.

"'The greatest need of the institution at this time, from the viewpoint of the Council, is a medical teacher. The Council has been preparing itself to get one during the past few months.'

"Dr. Bennett spoke further of the working and of the work of the medical school at Soochow, which is maintained exclusively by the Woman's Missionary Council. This institution has been maintained by the M. E. Church, South, during the past twenty years.

"One of the most striking characteristics of the work of the medical missionaries in China is the fact that the women nurses are compelled to do all the medical work among the women, as it is the medical men who are not allowed to minister to Chinese women, according to Dr. Bennett's report. 'This is an old custom which the Chinese are not breaking away from,' said Dr. Bennett. 'This makes the work of the women very distressing.

"Dr. Bennett then told of the requirements of the Rockefeller medical institutions, which includes fifteen resident faculty members at each. This standard must be maintained by the institutions maintained by the missionary boards in China, she pointed out. She stated, also, that women students in these institutions in China were soon to be admitted on the same basis as men, and in this way the women of China will have the opportunity of securing a medical education and will be given practice. Dr. Bennett impressed upon the Council the especial need of educating the Chinese women as physicians so that they could minister to their sex, as the time when the Chinese will allow men to practice is very far off."

Proposed Shanghai School.

"Dr. Bennett spoke for some time on the proposed medical school which all denominations are hoping to establish at Shanghai. She stated that the Woman's Missionary Council was now ready to take up this work, but she was not sure whether all the other denominations in the country were prepared to give money toward this end during the coming year. She said that it would take a long time to establish this institution, as it would require considerable time to secure the entire co-operation of the other denominations. She stated that a meeting of the denominations would soon be held in some city in the east when the proposition would be more definitely settled.

"In conclusion, Dr. Bennett pointed out that China was not ready for co-education, but that plans were being made to build the classrooms in such a way that the two sexes would be separated by partings."

CHINA PRUSSIANIZED.

"'China is to-day being Prussianized by education which will constitute a greater menace in the future than any we now see before us,' said Rev. J. W. Hawk, D. D., missionary to China, who was called upon by Dr. Bennett to tell of conditions in the great republic.

"'China is receiving the principles of her educational system from Japan and Japan is using the same system as employed by the Germans. I am not speaking in criticisms of the Japanese, for I would just as soon lay down my life for them as I am now offering myself to the Chinese, but I think that we should know the truth about these things. I can see a greater battle in the future than any that now confronts us if we do not interfere in the educational systems of China. The time has not yet come for co-educational work in China, but we must work in some way to educate the Chinese women in medical colleges. This is the only way in which we can bring about conditions. We are glad to know that denominations are taking the work into their hands.'"

SEVEN WOMEN READY.

"At the conclusion of Dr. Hawks' remarks, Dr. Bennett ascertained from the delegates from the several States just how many women were ready to enter medical work in China and it was reported that seven young women had volunteered for the work and were preparing themselves and would enter medical work soon.

"Mrs. H. A. Rawlings, a member of the Council, stated that she and a friend would support a medical missionary in China. Dr. Bennett stated that she hoped a number of other women would do the same thing."

HOME MISSION FUND.

Report of the estimates for missions of the home department of the Council for the year 1919, as read by Mrs. Luke Johnson, showed a total of $181,436.29 available for appropriation. For mountain work estimated appropriations available amount to $23,809.89; recommended, $24,110.

Estimated appropriations available for Mexican work are $23,060, recommended, $23,240. For gulf coast work, available, $10,980; recommended, $11,080.

For Florida coast, available, $15,715; recommended, $14,465.

For dependent girls, available, $13,000; recommended, $14,000.

For delinquent girls, available, $11,083; recommended, $19,083.

For work among miners, available, $6280; recommended, $6280.

For Negro work, available, $12,026; recommended, $12,026.

Pacific coast work, available, $16,000; recommended, $16,500; value of property at Alameda, Cal., $11,900. This work is largely among the orientals on the Pacific Coast.

The Scarritt Bible and Training school available, $7000; recommended, $7000. Miscellaneous, available, $15,745; recommended, $15,745. Administration expenses, available, $16,424; recommended, $18,500. Recommended for city missions, $7586.34. All recommendations in both foreign and home estimates for mission work were endorsed by the Council.—Knoxville Sentinel.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH.

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidneys, bladder, and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably benefited, or permanently relieved.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered, and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurabe, and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win, you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose, I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-E, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Allen's Foot-Ease Does It.

When your shoes pinch or your corns and bunions ache so that you are tired all over, get Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. It will take the sting out of corns and bunions and give instant relief to Smarting, Aching, Swollen, Tender feet. Over 100,000 packages are being used by the American, British and French troops. Sold everywhere, 25c. Don't accept any substitute.

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women Prepare!

Thousands of women in the South have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This temperance medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells most widely to-day. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's. It is prepared from nature's roots and herbs and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Send 10c. for trial package to Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ATLANTA, GA.—"It is indeed a pleasure to tell what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me during the state of gestation. I was so nervous I would shake almost like anyone with a chill and could not eat anything without being nauseated. My husband got me one bottle of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and I began to take it. The nausea ceased after the first dose. I took only two bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and was surprised and gratified at the marked improvement in my condition. I have also used this medicine for other troubles with good results."—Mrs. DORA E. DONEHOO, R. F. D. 5.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"We have used Dr. Pierce's Remedies and found them to be of great value.

"My mother has used the 'Favorite Prescription,' and thinks she could not do without it. I highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Medicines."—N. HAMMETT.

THE POWER OF PRAISE.

To show the power of praise as an incentive to nobler effort, the reader need but recall the familiar story of Benjamin West. Left alone in the house with his baby brother, who was sleeping in a crib, the little fellow, taking pencil and paper, made a crude sketch of the sleeping babe. On his mother's return he showed her the picture. Delighted with the effort, imperfect as it was, she implanted a kiss of appreciation on the little boy's lips. That little act proved an inspiration in the boy's life. From step to step he pursued the art, until at last he became a master painter. And on one occasion, when asked by friends the secret of his success, West gave as his simple reply: "My mother's kiss made me a painter."—Sunday School Times.

ANIMALS' EARS.

If you ever see a rabbit running, notice its ears, and you will see that they are laid back flat on its neck. That is not a chance position, nor is it due to the weight of the ears; it is a provision of nature for the little animal's protection. It is one of the hunted, you see, and not one of the hunters.

It is different with the fox and the wolf; their ears as they run are thrust sharply forward, for they are of the hunters. As the rabbit must run away to escape danger, its enemies are always behind it, and therefore nature has given it large ears to catch every sound and the habit of throwing them back, because its danger comes from that direction. As the fox and the wolf must run after their prey, nature has given them the habit of thrusting their ears forward.

Just how careful nature is in these matters and how she suits conditions to surroundings may be seen in the jack rabbit of the western prairies. It is the natural prey of the wolf, and, as it is in more danger than our rabbits are, its ears have been made a good deal larger and longer, the better to hear the sounds made by its enemy.

You have seen a horse thrust his ears forward quickly when anything startles him; that is his instinctive movement to catch every sound of a threatening nature. A dog raises his ears in a similar way.—Congregationalist.

THE DUTY OF CONFESSING CHRIST.

Christ's love shed abroad in the heart, will constrain men openly to confess him. As with the heart we believe in Christ, so with the lips we are to confess Christ. We are not to play fast and loose with Christ and the world. Men who are ashamed to own him now, he will be ashamed to own in the presence of his Father and the holy angels. We must remember that he is a princely priest, and a priestly prince, and that God hath highly exalted Christ to be not only a Savior, but to be also a King. All who cordially receive him will wish promptly to confess him. Our faith in the heart is not complete until confession is made with the mouth. It is utterly humiliating that men and women should strive to secure salvation without performing the duties that its possession implies and necessitates. Thrice shame on the cowards who would secretly secure pardon and cravenly refuse to acknowledge Jesus as their Savior and Lord!—The Watchman-Examiner.

I am well past my three-score years and ten, and I believe that my own great [illegible] largely today to my personal use of Nuxated Iron. [illegible] my endorsement shall induce some [illegible] men and women to take Nuxated Iron, and reap the wonderful tonic benefits which I have received. I am also greatly gratified that I made an exception in my own rule in recommending it. From my experience with Nuxated Iron, I feel that it is such a remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Wm. R. Kerr

(Former Health Commissioner, City of Chicago.)

Former Health Commissioner Kerr has given years of his life fighting for public health in his own and other cities. It was he who introduced Anti-toxin for Diphtheria in Chicago's Health Department. He purified the milk for the Consumers and thereby helped to save the lives of thousands of babies. He introduced the anti-spitting ordinance which has been copied all over the country and also took care of the sewers and garbage in the interest of public health. He is positive that the widespread use of Nuxated Iron would greatly lessen the worries and troubles of Health Commissioners in keeping up a high standard of public health.

Manufacturer's Note—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Former Health Commissioner Kerr with such surprising results, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the other inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee a successful and entirely satisfactory result to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all druggists.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The Brooklyn Sunday school has organized an Adult Class, and the class has assumed the support of an afternoon Sunday school in Japan. This makes two Japanese Sunday schools for the Brooklyn Sunday school.

Many of the Sunday schools are arranging for Children's Day on time. The programs have been sent out, and it seems to me that it is an easy program to give. It is hoped that every charge in the Conference will observe Children's Day this year and report a larger offering than ever before.

The Carthage Sunday school is supporting an afternoon Sunday school in Japan. They take their offering each Sunday and they have paid up, and a little over, so far. One class was organized, a Cradle Roll was started, and two individual Teacher-training students were enrolled. Seven copies each of "Japan, the Key to the East," and "Heroes of Faith in Japan," were sold.

The Harperville charge is starting off mighty well this year. They have already bought and paid for a parsonage, the most desirable place for a parsonage in the community. They have organized a Cradle Roll and a Teacher-training class. They are going to separate their Beginners and Primaries from the rest of the Sunday school, and, if they carry out their plans in full, will have a most useful Sunday school.

The Sunday school at Conway, on the Carthage charge, is run by Brother and Sister Gee. God will bless these faithful servants of His. A Cradle Roll was organized and started. The Sunday school was made a missionary school, agreeing to give one Sunday to missions and give a missionary program. They are going to have Children's Day, too. This is one of the most needy Sunday schools I have visited in some respects, but the faithfulness of the loyal workers is a challenge to others.

Pray for your field worker.

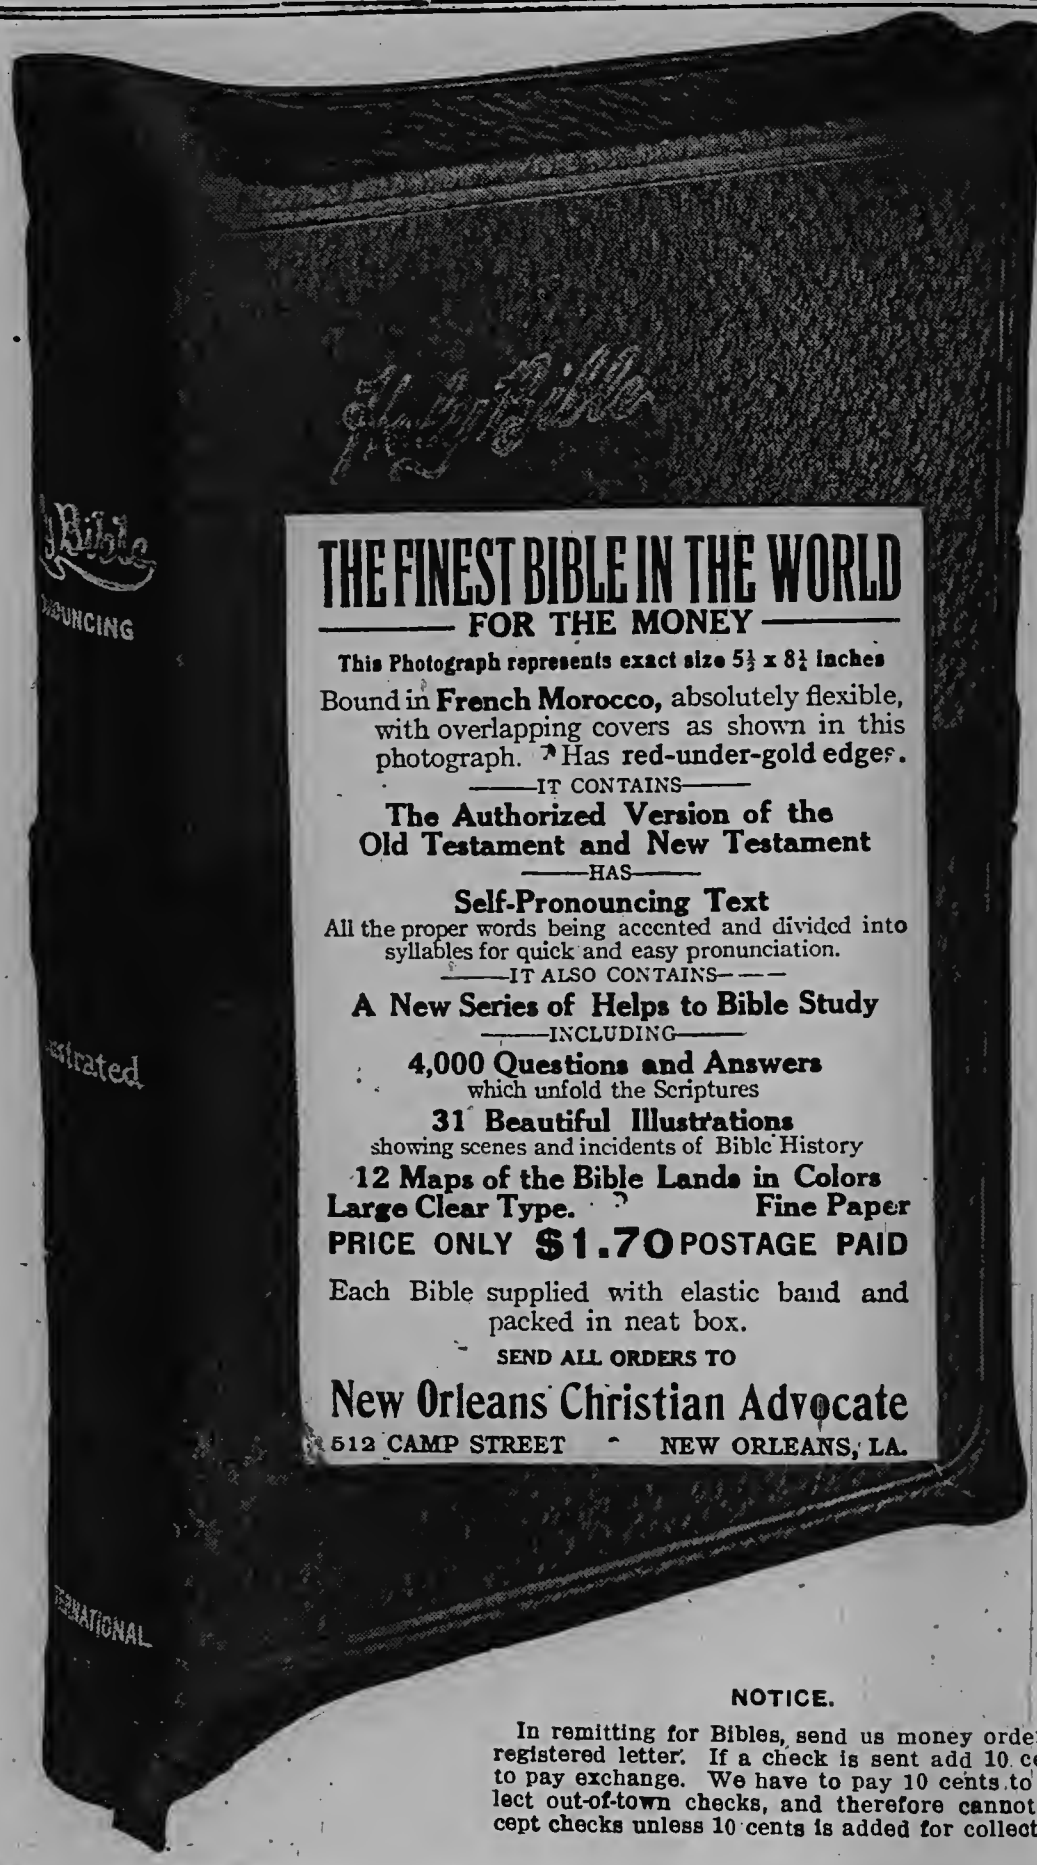
Watch the Baby!

If he is fretful, restless and out of sorts, you can trace the cause to his stomach and liver. If the bowels do not act regularly there is a possible danger of serious illness. Constipation, if allowed to continue, may produce self-poisoning or auto-intoxication, and this condition should be promptly rectified. The best general tonic for the baby or for the older folks is Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator, a purely vegetable compound. It contains no Calomel or other injurious drugs. Highly recommended for babies and growing children. It excites and invigorates sluggish livers and puts you on your feet again. Buy a bottle and keep it handy. Price 50c. For sale by the best druggists. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

We take the following from the Southwestern Christian Advocate, the Negro organ of the Northern Methodist Church, published in New Orleans and edited by Dr. R. E. Jones (colored), who is a member of the Commission on Methodist Unification:

"A Negro Headed for Congress.



"Dr. R. C. Ransom, editor of the Quarterly Review of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, has been nominated for Congress on an independent ticket representing one of the districts in the city of New York which has a large Negro population. It is to be expected that a Negro will appear soon in Congress from one of the districts in New York or Chicago. Dr. Ransom's race for Congress has attracted considerable attention and is bringing to him unexpected support. Among those who are supporting Dr. Ransom is Mrs. Howard Gould. In giving her reasons for supporting Dr. Ransom, Mrs. Gould says:

"'I am afraid I can hardly explain in terms that will carry my conviction. Frankly, I merely acted in accordance with the deepest and most sincere promptings of my conscience. I want to see the Negro in America get simple justice and an opportunity to develop all his possibilities for good and useful citizenship. To my mind, the blackest page in our national history is our treatment of our citizens of African descent. It sickens me to the soul to read frightful accounts of Negro lynchings in this country for supposed offenses which a white man might commit with impunity. It is worth remembering that the bogy of racial equality has two sides to it. In my study of the problem, and I have lived in the South, and know it as only a Southerner can, I have found that there are more white men ready to break down race lines and co-habit with black women than there are black women desirous of living with white men. That is so elementary there can be no excuse for overlooking it.' Mrs. Gould said that she did not know Mr. Ransom so well, and added: 'From my conversation with Mr. Ransom, I have come to respect highly his intellectual integrity. I know he would be the last man to stand for disruptive theories of racial equality, but I believe that, in Congress, Mr. Ransom would give expression to a protest against injustice to his race in which the best of the white race join with the 10,000,000 Negroes of the country. It would be a splendid achievement to break down the solidarity of the 'Solid South' based on racial discrimination.'"

The only comment that we will make upon this utterance is this: Had not Southern Methodists better go slow in uniting with a Church, one of whose official organs is scattering such teachings as this abroad in the land, with obvious approval?

"I want you to make your ideals higher and higher. Then, when you have gained one height, you will find that what you took for the summit from the plain was not really so: there were further peaks beyond."

To the Christian, death is but the fulfillment of a promise: "I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am there ye may be also."

Editorial

TIME TO STOP THE AGITATION.

It now develops that, though their protracted labors have failed to yield any definite results toward uniting the two Episcopal Methodisms, the extreme unionists on our Commission will endeavor to project the agitation over into the next quadrennium. In our opinion, this should not be done, for the following reasons:

1. Because an earnest and persistent effort to reach an agreement, under circumstances most favorable to the unionists, has been signally unsuccessful. It is well known that the ultra-unionists controlled a majority of the nine men on the Federal Council of Methodism who named our Unification Commission, and that they made it up overwhelmingly of men of their way of thinking. (Judge M. L. Walton, who was one of the nine men referred to, stated in the Baltimore Southern Methodist of March 21, page 4, that the views of many of the men selected were known to him and the men acting with him.) Yet, with things overwhelmingly in their hands, the extreme unionists on our Commission, after four meetings and two years of work, have been unable to mature a plan for the consideration of our General Conference. There was a distinct disagreement between the two Commissions as to the status of the Negroes in the proposed united Church, and there is little reason to believe that the General and Regional Conference arrangements that have been proposed would be acceptable to our people, to say nothing of the latest scheme to scatter the Bishops for presidential purposes indiscriminately throughout the Regional areas. Is there any reason to think, when the negotiations that have been carried on at great length by men passionately bent upon achieving union at almost any cost have failed, that better results could be accomplished in the immediate future by continuing to thresh over matters? We can see no sound reason for reaching such a conclusion.

2. These negotiations have been quite expensive to our Church. We do not know definitely what they have cost, but we should not be surprised if the expense has gone as high as $20,000 or $25,000. We are not particularly complaining of this—it was perhaps well enough to have this effort to mature a plan of union made to try to satisfy those among us who have been clamoring for a merging of the Churches—but to keep it up now, when it has been demonstrated that there is no reasonable hope of any such consummation, would, we think, be an unjustifiable waste of money.

3. This agitation has been productive of much harm. In the very nature of the case it has developed a discussion in the public prints of the differences between the two denominations and of the delicate race problem, which is much better let alone—especially is this true for the people of the South, who chiefly have the Negroes about their doors. And if this controversy is still further prolonged, it will work increasing injury. Within the past two or three days, a prominent pastor within the Advocate's patronizing territory has written us as follows:

"I do hope that this question will be dropped at the General Conference. If it is not, we shall have a distressing state of things in the Southern Church. Our people will not accept the proposed arrangement, and if the matter should be sent to the Annual Conferences, there will be great unrest and excitement. It will put things in a bad state of confusion, and it is to be feared that we will do but little next year. It will, in my opinion, greatly injure our connectional interests. We have among us men who are strong financially who are talking about not giving a dollar to any of our general causes and enterprises, if this agitation is not stopped by the General Conference."

It seems to us that any man who can see anything at all ought to see that no form of union is possible now that could carry anything like a united Southern Methodism with it, and, this being the case, surely there is neither common sense nor religion in keeping up a hurtful wrangling about "Unification."

But it may be said, "The Northern Commissioners want the negotiations kept up." To be sure, they do. They have wanted to have them going on ever since the end of the War between the States. They wanted to keep them up when they sidetracked, without even mentioning it, the plan of the original Joint Commission at Minneapolis in 1912—a plan that their representatives had agreed to lay before their General Conference. At Savannah, they wanted another meeting, after they had defeated the recommendations of the Committee of Eight, four of whom were their men. And now they want to keep up the deliberations after they have backed away from their own proposals, and are demanding a proportionate representation for the Negroes in the General Conference of the suggested new Church, along with all other full rights therein.

The truth is, as we heard an able Southern Methodist Bishop say at Savannah, it does not hurt the Church, North, to have this issue agitated. They have their churches scattered through many portions of the South, and the more the question is stirred up the more the Northern Methodists who have cast their lots with our people are likely to become disaffected with our Church. It was since the present union negotiations have been under way that a General Conference of the Church, North (at Minneapolis in 1912), adopted and scattered abroad among the members of that denomination the following resolution:

"Whereas it is evident that many thousands of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church emigrate from the East and North and West to the Southland unadvised as to where they may find our churches in the cities and country of the South; and

"Whereas it is an incontrovertible fact that a very great percentage of such members, emigrating from the East, North, and West to the South, drift into other Churches, to the great loss and detriment of our own beloved Church; and

"Whereas our Church in the Southland is able and anxious to minister to their spiritual wants, in the English, German, and Swedish tongues; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That our pastors are most earnestly admonished to take due cognizance of the aforesaid facts, and to advise and direct such members, when they reach the South, to be loyal to the Methodist Episcopal Church, to the honor of the Church and the glory of God."

Surely the time has fully come for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to exhibit some self-respect.

MISREPRESENTING SOUTHERN METHODISM.

Last week we touched upon a pamphlet issued by the Nashville Revisionists, entitled "Who Queered Unification?" pointing out some of its glaring misrepresentations and unfairness. A short time before the appearance of that publication, another was sent out under the caption, "Why the Movement for Revision?" which was of much the same character—abounding in fragmentary quotations and special pleadings to show that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is fearfully misgoverned and in a bad way generally. The space is not at our command to review fully these criticisms of our Bishops and certain aspects of our Church polity; but we are moved to comment upon some of the representations and deductions of this brochure, which is being scattered over the country by these professedly devoted Methodist diagnosticians. We take the following from the pamphlet in question:

"Facts to Give Us Pause.

"But strangely enough we find that to-day, and for the past quarter of a century, our Southern branch of Methodism has been steadily falling behind—outstripped to a distressing degree by denominations that in some respects make a far weaker appeal and carry far heavier handicaps. Its three great associate denominations, the Southern Baptists, Southern Presbyterians, and Disciples (or Christians), in late years have been gaining much more rapidly than Southern Methodism. Here are the startling figures:

"Membership gain for twenty-six years, ending 1916:

Southern Methodists	75 per cent
Southern Presbyterians	94 per cent
Disciples	109 per cent
Southern Baptists	114 per cent

"Membership gain for ten years, ending, 1916:

Southern Methodists	30 per cent
Southern Presbyterians	37 per cent
Southern Baptists	43 per cent

"Membership gain, 1916:

Southern Methodists	2.5 per cent
Southern Baptists	2.2 per cent
Disciples	3.4 per cent
Southern Presbyterians	4.7 per cent

"In 1890 the membership of the Southern Baptist and Southern Methodist Churches were almost the same, being 1,209,976 and 1,280,066, respectively. (These figures are reversed; the larger number should be credited to the Baptists.—Ed. Ad.) By 1916 the Methodists had increased to 2,123,785 and the Baptists to 2,744,098, a gain over us of nearly seven hundred thousand. (The true gain, according to these figures, was 550,223.—Ed. Ad.) During the same period the Episcopalians gained 100 per cent, against our 75 per cent. The Southern Methodist gain for the year ending 1917 is scant 1 per cent; that of the Southern Presbyterians 3.2 per cent. The figures

"LA FAYETTE, WE HAVE COME!"

(The above quoted words were spoken by General Pershing, head of the American forces in France, while recently visiting the tomb of La Fayette.)

And they are there, O valiant France,
Our bravest and our best,
To hold their unstained shields before
Your torn and bleeding breast.
They went to you, as long ago
You came, a bannered host,
To help us guard the swinging gates
Of our own Freedom-post.

And now the Hun is at your door
In furious, serried mass,
They spied your splendid challenge on
And cry: "You shall not pass!"
They'll keep with you the trails of death
Till foemen's guns are dumb;
Their blood shall stain your lilied-sod—
"La Fayette, they have come!"

BETTER THAN BURDEN-LIFTING.

What helpless creatures we should all make of ourselves if we could persuade God to do for us as we ask! Our first cry, when a heavy burden strikes us, and our continued cry while the burden remains, is that God will take it away. Fortunately God is not so cruel as to do us the harm that we ask for. When our children beg us to let them omit certain school lessons, or give up school entirely, we love them too much to yield to their entreaty. How much better was this petition in a pastor's public prayer: "If any are here with special burdens, if Thou dost not lift the load, give them strength to bear it." The power to bear burdens makes richer life than a weakening freedom from burdens.—Sunday School Times.

ARE THERE MANY SUCH?

A minister was praying at the bedside of a dying woman. "Wait a moment," she said, as he started to rise from his knees. "I want to pray for you." And very tenderly she prayed, with her hand upon his head. "For ten years, ever since you became my pastor, I have offered up that prayer for you every morning and every night," she told him.

The minister went away with tears in his eyes and a strange warmth in his heart. He had known that this woman was sweet-spirited and true, but he had never guessed that he had a place in her prayers. "I wonder how many of my six hundred church members pray for me?" he asked himself. Not all of them, certainly; yet, doubtless, more of them prayed for him than he had dreamed. The thought was sweet and helpful to him.—Youth's Companion.

HELP IN TEMPTATION.

An English naval officer told a grateful story of the way he was helped and saved from dishonor in his first experience in battle. He was a midshipman, fourteen years old. The volleys of the enemy's musketry so terrified him that he almost fainted. The officer over him saw his state and came close beside him, keeping his own face toward the enemy, and held the midshipman's hand, saying in a calm, quiet, affectionate way: "Courage, my boy. You will recover in a minute or two. I was just so when I went into my first battle." The young man said afterwards that it was as if an angel had come to him and put new strength into him. The whole burden of his agony of fear was gone, and from that moment he was as brave as the oldest of the men. If the officer had dealt sternly with the midshipman, he might have driven him to cowardly failure. His kindly sympathy with him dispelled all fear, put courage into his heart, and made him brave for battle.

It was thus that Christ is touched with a feeling of our infirmity when, assailed by sudden temptation, we quail and are afraid. He comes up close beside us and says: "I understand. I met a temptation just like yours that tried me very sorely. I felt the same dread you feel. I suffered bitterly that day. I remember it. Be brave and strong, and your fear will vanish and you will be victorious." Then he takes our hand, and the thrill of his sympathy and of his strength comes into our heart, dispelling all fear.—J. R. Miller.

A LOUISIANA LAYMAN PROTESTS.

Dear Doctor Meek: Somewhere in my rambles I have read that an ancient poet and philosopher said, "While I mused the fire burned." Whether it was the burning of his soul in gratitude and love as he considered the manifold mercies and providences to him and his people, or as a consuming grief at the great sorrows inflicted upon his nation, I know not; but the contemplation of those things stirred the fires within and he gave forth utterance to feelings that could not be suppressed. In like manner a burning resentment and protest wells up in my heart as I contemplate the great wrong of dismemberment and disintegration that is sought to be inflicted upon the people of the Southern Methodist Church. There is now no reason to doubt the design and determination to dominate by division and absorption under an ill-disguised pretense of unity. The whole idea and plan is there, writ right down in black and white in the proffered constitution and marked on the map with lines and boundaries. The ecclesiastical government is prescribed and attempted to be set up; but no amount of specious talk and blarneying will convince the great mass of Southern Methodists that such a government is either fair or honorable, nor will any effort at beautiful and optical illusion blind their eyes to its real hideousness.

Dr. Meek, I just want to know how a person, even with one eye and half sense, can read that constitution and look at the regional markings and yet be uncertain or deceived as to their meaning to the Southern Methodist Church. He just can not, and that is all there is to it. Why sir, the thing is so patent, and so much pains have been taken to turn on the light that even we old Methodist clod-hopping farmers can understand what they want to do to us. As I drive my big team afield, turn the glebe, and smell the sweet earth, inhale the mild aroma of flowers, hear hundreds of birds just splitting their little throats in joyous song, drink in the beauty of the forest in its wondrous robings of spring, slake my thrist and lave my brow with the cool waters of the crystal streams, when all these things come crowding on me at once—why sir, I just feel like turning a double hand-spring for the very joy of living! Then, all at once and without warning, comes this bird of evil, priest or devil! I cry avaunt! You raven of discord and night! Take your beak from out my heart, your shadow from o'er my joy! But the thing don't go and it won't go until our Methodist people pull its claws and wring its neck.

There is another thing, Doctor, that I do not understand. Time and again you and others have declared, charged, and shown how and why the proposed plans for unification would be disastrous to the Southern Methodist Church; but not one word or line have I seen in denial of those statements and charges—not one effort to prove to us proletariat that our property, our rights, our Church autonomy, our sacred ideals and traditions would be secured to us in the arrangement for the so-called unified Church. No, I do not understand this. If you and these others are wrong in your showings and deductions, why do not the unification enthusiasts disabuse our minds and allay our fears? For one, I do not like any gum-shoe propaganda. Plain reasoning and good sound horse sense appeal to me, but I run little after fads, do less in chasing myths, and positively decline to join in the destruction of my Church. We can but conclude their silence is an acknowledment that your statements are correct, and that they are both willing and determined to bring about unification on a basis that they know or can not deny would be ruin to the Southern Church. Is this Church loyalty and Church patriotism? The people of Southern Methodism do not want and will never see it in that light.

The other day, the stewards of the First Church of Baton Rouge issued a dignified, clean cut, and manly protest against unification on the proposed basis. This was at once their privilege and duty as representatives of the thought and feeling of themselves and the membership of that Church. But it was more; it was the thought and feeling of the great mass of Southern Methodists. This week, set up in rebuttal comes a "Be it resolved by the Methodist Preachers' meeting of Shreveport," etc. Now, Doctor, for the life of me, I can not see how these brethren can harmonize the submitted constitution with "a basis fair and honorable for all concerned," and with the phrase "upon a proper basis." If these brethren think "a basis fair and honorable for all concerned" has been reached and offered, why did they not come right out and say so? If they think "a proper basis" is offered, why do not they say so in plain words? Why this "hit him if its a bear, and miss him if its a calf?" If I guess right in the rebuttal idea, I would just like to ask if, in publishing this resolution, the preachers of Shreveport, and all the preachers in sympathy with it, wish by this to lay down a guage of battle to the millions of Southern Methodists who are not preachers and who most emphatically do not consider that a proper basis has been offered. Do these brethren desire the preachers and the mass of the membership to be arrayed in antagonism? Surely not. Then why did they not arrange to say, We the preachers and members of the Methodist Church of Shreveport? Oh! how we would hate antagonism! But if it must be, we will just say, "Lay on, McDuff!" Now, Doctor Meek, we, the common members know that you preachers have a large majority in the Conferences, and that you can vote away our rights, property, and everything else, but you can't deliver us over to any autocratic farce of union. Suppose you do vote all away from us, then what? Think you that all will just settle down nice, snug, and quiet; that you preachers who have put this great wrong on us will just go right smoothly along preaching to the folks you have betrayed and ruined? No, sir! Not on your life! If the preachers do this thing to us, they could be but the priests of Baal at the altars of the living God.

Pray for it? Not any, I thank you. Our prayers don't run along that line. Doctor, we must earnestly protest. In the sacred memory of our sainted fathers and mothers whose lives were spent in building God's kingdom in this Southern Church, we protest against this thing; in the name of those noble men and women, both living and dead, who have built God's altars in Southern Methodism, and have laid their lives thereon, we protest against this crime; in the name of our children and of our children's children, we protest against their being robbed of the noble heritage bequeathed to them by their forefathers; in the name of right and justice and honor, we bitterly protest against an action that would breed heartburnings and strife, embitter our people, and wreck our Church.

Yours for Southern Methodism,

L. L. UPTON.

CONCERNING CHURCH ASSESSMENTS.

Report of the General Conference Commission on Finance.

The Commission at a recent meeting in Nashville took up the matter committed to it in the form of the referred report of the Committee on Boundaries and Finance, which was thoroughly discussed item by item. In the following amended form the financial plan therein set forth is submitted; with the recommendation of the Commission that it be enacted into law by the coming General Conference.

Provision for Incomes from the assessments of the various Church Boards, General and Conference, for the support of Bishops, superannuated preachers, the widows and orphan children of preachers, the expense of the General Conference, and for meeting the needs of other interests calling for financial support, shall be made according to the following plan:

"Article 1. There shall be a Commission on Finance constituted as follows: The General Secretary of each of the boards having charge of the interests for which assessments are made, one publishing agent, six ministers, and six laymen, none of whom shall be a member of any connectional board, to be elected by the General Conference upon nomination of the Committee on Finance. Each board shall be entitled to only one vote in the Commission. Vacancies occuring during the quadrennium shall be filled by the Commission. The expenses of the Commission shall be levied upon the several boards in proportion to the receipts from the general assessment.

"Article 2. The assessments upon the Church for all the various general interests, including foreign missions, home missions, church extension, education, American Bible Society, Bishops, General Conference expenses, Sunday schools, Epworth Leagues, and any other benevolent interests which may be indorsed by the General Conference, shall be aggregated and assessed in a single sum.

Article 3. The Commission on Finance, after making diligent effort to secure full information regarding all the general interests of the Church, that none may be neglected or jeopardized, shall recommend to the General Conference, for its action and determination, the total amount to be assessed for all these connectional interests. This amount shall be apportioned to the several Conferences by the Commission on Finance according to such plan as the General Conference shall adopt, or, in case the General Conference fails to act, as the Commission may adopt. The apportionment to an Annual Conference or a mission shall be distributed to the several districts as that Conference or mission may decide, and the district stewards shall distribute the amounts asked of their respective districts to the pastoral charges.

"Article 4. The Commission on Finance shall determine what percentage of the total sum assessed and of the receipts therefrom shall be allotted to each of the interests included in the assessment. All amounts collected on the total assessment shall be sent to the Conference Treasurer, who shall distribute the same monthly, according to the allotment adopted by the Commission on Finance, to the treasurers of the various boards and for the various causes. The Conference Treasurer shall be secured by a competent bond.

"Article 5. There shall be a Conference Commission on Finance in each Annual Conference, composed of the presidents of the Conference boards and five laymen and five ministers, none of whom shall be a member of any other Conference board, to be elected at the first session following the General Conference and to serve for the quadrennium.

"Article 6. The Conference Commission on Finance, after making diligent effort to secure full information regarding all the Conference interests that none may be neglected or jeopardized, shall recommend to the Annual Conference, for its action and determination, the total amount to be assessed for all these Conference interests. This amount shall be apportioned to the several districts according to such plan as the Conference may adopt, or, in case the Conference fails to act, as the Commission may adopt. The district stewards shall distribute the amounts asked of their several districts to the pastoral charges.

"Article 7. The Conference Commission on Finance shall determine what percentage of the total sum assessed and of the receipts therefrom shall be allotted to each of the interests represented, subject to the approval of the Conference. All amounts collected on the total assessment shall be sent to the Conference Treasurer, who shall distribute the same monthly, according to the allotment made by the Conference Commission on Finance, to the treasurers of the several Conference boards and for the several causes. The treasurers of the several Conference Boards, as well as the Conference Treasurer, shall be secured by a competent bond."

The Commission adjourned to reconvene at the seat of the General Conference. In the meantime the members of the Commission will be glad to receive suggestions from the Church.

FITZGERALD S. PARKER, Secretary.

A BRIEF CHAPTER FROM THE RECORD.

Some have doubted whether or not the pending plan of unification contemplates having Northern Bishops to administer affairs in the South. The following extract from the stenographic proceedings of the meeting of the Joint Commission at Traverse City (pages 61 and 62) bears pertinently on this point. It also shows incidentally how some of our Southern Commissioners desired to effect as complete a merger of the two Churches as they considered possible, seeking to go at once as far toward an absolute amalgamation as they felt the Southern people would stand for and holding out to the Northerners the hope that anything distinctive that might remain would also be swept away in the near future (Bishop Mouzon was not alone in his position).

The Extract.

Bishop Mouzon: I am not a high churchman. Some brothers are high churchmen and believe in two orders and one office. Let the General Conference provide for the ordination and then let the General Conference distribute the Bishops throughout the whole connections, as the General Conference may see fit to distribute the Bishops throughout the whole connections. Do you get my point? I am in entire sympathy myself—and now I speak for myself—personally I am in entire sympathy with the idea of Episcopal areas, not as presented to us the other day—I do not mean that—but something like the plan now being worked by our brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of letting the General Conference distribute the Bishops throughout the connections.

Alexander Simpson, Jr.: I am entirely in sympathy with your plan, but I would like to know if it would not likely create controversy if there should be an assignment of an ultra-Northern Bishop to the far South.

Bishop Mouzon: To begin with, I do not think it would be done for several years.

Henry Wade Rogers: Neither do I.

Bishop Mouzon: I would be entirely willing to risk the General Conference so far as I am concerned myself, and so far as I am concerned if you were to locate me in New England, while I would not enjoy the codfish, and while I could hardly stand the climate, I would enjoy the people and be entirely at home in New England.

Alexander Simpson, Jr.: If you come to Pennsylvania we will give you shad.

Bishop Mouzon: Personally, I am entirely willing to trust the General Conference, and until we love one another enough to trust one another, we don't love one another enough to get together at all. Now, let the General Conference distribute the Bishops throughout these connections. For the first one or two Conferences it would not be done. Then pretty soon we would begin to do it just as soon as possible and that would contribute toward unity.

(The plan of the original Joint Commission, which was endorsed by our General Conference, contemplated that there should be three or four Regional Conferences, each served by its own Bishops. Bishop Hoss, who largely wrote the original plan, is our authority as to its intent in this respect.—Editor of Advocate.)

HISTORY OF THE SOUTH TOLD TRUTHFULLY.

Historian General of Confederacy Places Seventy Volumes in Museum.

Members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy are interested in the recent visit to Richmond, Va., of Miss Mildred Lewis Rutherford, historian general of the organization for five years, to place the volumes of history she has prepared in the Confederate Museum there.

There are seventy volumes in the collection, composed of scrapbooks averaging 400 pages each. They embrace many subjects pertaining to the history of the South, and right the wrongs of history for the future historians who really wish to know the truth concerning the South.

Miss Rutherford is president of Lucy Cobb College, the noted Georgia institution, and is historian for the State of Georgia for life.

The volumes deposited in the Confederate Museum by her are as follows:

"The Origin of the Daughters of the Confederacy," "Prominent Daughters of the Confederacy," "The Work of State Divisions," "Historical Work of the Daughters of the Confederacy, Part 1;" "The Historical Work of State Divisions, Part 2;" "The Educational Work of the Daughters of the Confederacy," "Monumental Work of the Daughters of the Confederacy," "Monuments to Confederate Dead, Part II;" "The History of the Confederate Flag and Seal," "The History of State Flags and Seals," "Jefferson Davis and His Cabinet," "Jefferson Davis and His Family," "Jefferson Davis, Soldier, Statesman, Scholar, President."

"Our Leaders: "Robert E. Lee, Part I;" "Stonewall Jackson, Parts I, II, III, IV;" "The Navy, Part V;" "Surgeons and Chaplains, Part VI;" "Scientists and Inventors, Part VII."

"The Battles of 1861-1863, 1863-1865;" "History of the Peace Conference," "Reconstruction and the Ku Klux Klan." "Disputed Points in Confederate History, Parts I and II."

"The South in the Making of the Nation. Parts I and II;" "The South in Colonial Days," "The South in the American Revolution."

"George Washington, the Father of Our Country;" "Men and Women of the American Revolution." "The Origin of the United States Flag and Seal." "Declaration of Independence and Articles of Confederation."

CHURCH NEWS.

Bishop A. M. Randolph, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, died at his home in Norfolk, on April 6.

Columbia University has recently conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York, who is now visiting in the United States.

Dr. J. E. Harrison has resigned the presidency of the San Antonio Female College, with which he has been connected for many years. Dr. Harrison is stated not to be in good health.

The Woman's Missionary Council of the M. E. Church, South, adjourned in Knoxville, Tenn., after a ten day's session, on April 10. Miss Belle H. Bennett was re-elected president, and Huntington, West Va., was chosen as the next place of meeting.

The Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate announced the arrival of Dr. James Cannon, Jr., in France some three weeks ago. We take it that Dr. Cannon will return to the United States in time to sit in the General Conference in Atlanta. He is perhaps the readiest debater in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Dr. Sam Hay, the presiding elder of the Dallas (Texas) District, is said to be one of the most attractive preachers in the Lone Star State and an inspirational leader of men. He has made an excellent record in the itinerancy. Governor G. D. Shands, who in the late years of his life frequently visited Houston, Texas, where Dr. Hay was then serving one of our churches as pastor, often spoke of his unusual pulpits gifts.

Take care that the mind does not become too fastidious and refined. It is not a blessing, but a hindrance to the work of life.—Robertson.

SOUTHERN METHODISM MISREPRESENTED

for the other denominations are not yet available. In only one of the Southern States, Virginia, is Southern Methodism still in the lead. It has been outdistanced by the Baptists in every other.

"If these comparisons covered only a year, or two years, they would perhaps justify no conclusion. But such a record covering a quarter of a century cannot be brushed aside. Its implications are too unmistakable and too ominous."

Some Further Light on the Subject.

These figures, taken at their face value and considered entirely alone, do look somewhat ominous; but, as is well known, figures may be so marshalled as to make plausible almost any contention. The truth is, we have before us a skillful piece of special pleading to discredit the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as compared with the other religious denominations of the country, in the interest of certain desired ends. To show that our Church has not in reality made such a bad showing in comparison with the other Churches in the United States during the past quarter of a century, we reproduce here a table taken from the Federal Council Year-Book, which certainly, in giving these statistics, had no bias in favor of any particular organization.

The following are the net gains in communicants of religious bodies in the United States in the twenty-five years from 1890 to 1915:

Religious Bodies of Upward of 300,000 Communicants—	Returns for 1915	Returns for 1890	Net Gains in 25 Yrs.	Per Ct. of Gain
Roman Catholic	14,049,063	6,231,417	7,817,646	125
Methodist Episcopal	3,657,594	2,240,354	1,417,240	63
Southern Baptist	2,705,121	1,280,066	1,425,055	111

An examination of this table will show that in the percentage of growth, our Church outstripped 9 of the 19 organizations represented in it, standing tenth in the column, and that of the 5 Churches having over 2,000,000 members, only the Roman Catholics and Southern Baptists, according to these figures, went ahead of her. It is well to keep in mind the fact that a small Church is apt to have a larger percentage of gain than a body with a more numerous membership. For instance, if a Church has 500 members and gains 500, it has a gain of 100 per cent, whereas if it has 5000 members, and gains 500, it has an increase of only 10 per cent. If we are to figure on the percentage basis, it is well to note that of all the branches of American Methodism represented in this statistical exhibit, our Church leads the procession. It even stands ahead of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which these Nashville agitators are so fond of holding up as a paragon of excellence, to the disparagement of Southern Methodism. For the benefit of these lamenters over conditions in the Church, South, we submit the following figures as to the relative growth of the two Episcopal Methodisms, compiled by Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, La., from Methodist histories and the Year-Books of the Churches, North and South:

Gains of Churches, North, and South—

In 1860 Northern Methodism had	988,523
In 1846 Northern Methodism had	644,229
Gain (53 per cent)	344,294
In 1860 Southern Methodism had	749,068
In 1846 Southern Methodism had	455,217
Gain (64 per cent)	293,851
In 1883 Northern Methodism had	1,769,534
In 1860 Northern Methodism had	988,523
Gain (79 per cent)	781,011
In 1883 Southern Methodism had	894,132
In 1860 Southern Methodism had	749,068
Gain (19 per cent)	145,064

This was the Civil War and Reconstruction period, and during this time our Church had lost its colored membership, setting up nearly 80,000 of them in the C. M. E. Church.

In 1916 Northern Methodism had	3,743,031
In 1883 Northern Methodism had	1,769,534
Gain (111 per cent)	1,973,497
In 1916 Southern Methodism had	2,123,785
In 1883 Southern Methodism had	894,132
Gain (137 per cent)	1,229,653
In 1916 Northern Methodism had	3,743,031
In 1890 Northern Methodism had	2,240,354
Gain (40 per cent)	1,502,677
In 1916 Southern Methodism had	2,123,785
In 1890 Southern Methodism had	1,209,976
Gain (75 per cent)	913,809
In 1916 Northern Methodism had	3,743,031
In 1900 Northern Methodism had	2,909,931
Gain (29 per cent)	833,100
In 1916 Southern Methodism had	2,123,785
In 1900 Southern Methodism had	1,468,390
Gain (44 per cent)	655,395

The Specific Cases Cited.

But how about the comparison with the Southern Presbyterians, the Campbellites, and the Southern Baptists, the denominations paraded by these agitators? The Southern Presbyterians are a very small denomination, numbering in 1915 only 332,339; and their aggregate gain in membership for the preceding 25 years was only 152,618, against an aggregate increase by our Church during the same period of 862,059. But, as we have stated, when a denomination is small, a small total gain figures out a large percentage.

The Campbellite Church is in no proper sense a Southern denomination, existing as it does all over the country; hence it has not worked amid the same conditions as has the Southern Methodist Church. Moreover, its statistics seem to be quite carelessly gathered, as is shown by the following statement taken from the Federal Council Year-Book for 1916, page 193: "There is reason to believe that the Disciples of Christ (Campbellites) had a good year in 1915, but, unfortunately, they were not able to report any figures for the past year, up to January 22, and those of 1914 are used."

The Baptist statistics also are very generally regarded as very uncertain and undependable. Dr. George Summey, a distinguished Presbyterian editor and minister of New Orleans, had occasion three or four years ago to gather Church statistics in some of the Southern States, and, after completing his work, he publicly stated that he was convinced that Baptist statistics amounted to very little more than estimates. They have many vacant churches; attendance upon their Conventions is optional, as is also the matter of sending in reports as to membership, etc. On the other hand, the statistics in our Church are carefully revised annually, and no pastor is allowed to go without making a definite report at the Annual Conference. The Baptists, according to their reports, have long led in most of the distinctively Southern States—this was true in 1890—but we doubt very much whether, with correct figures, they would prove to be stronger than the Southern Methodists in Tennessee or Texas, and possibly Florida. It is a well-known fact that in a number of the Southern States the Methodist students are more numerous than the Baptist students at the State colleges. This ought to be some indication of the relative numerical strength of the two denominations. It may possibly be said by some that some of the figures used are Government figures, and that therefore they should be accepted as equally correct for all the Churches; but as a matter of fact there is nothing in such a contention, for in taking a religious census the Government merely accepts the data furnished by each denomination. And this is true, so far as our knowledge extends, as to all gatherers of Church statistics, none having gone to the trouble and expense to make a special enumeration of the various religious bodies, conducted upon the same basis, and with equal care. Hence, getting at the comparative strength of the different religious organizations is, at best, a very difficult and uncertain procedure.

A word as to the Episcopalians. That denomination is not by any means a Southern one. Moreover, it is throughout the entire Nation only about half as large as our Church, which gives it the advantage as to percentage that we have shown the smaller bodies have.

There is another point to which we desire to call attention in this connection. The last 25 or 26 years, the period that these revolutionists have used as the basis for their calculation, include at least 10 or 12 years during which the Southern Methodist Church has been disturbed by strife over the Vanderbilt issue and other matters, the conditions thus being made abnormal. The other Churches operating in the South have had during this period a goodly degree of peace and harmony. It may be asked if contention really militates against the growth of a denomination. Of this we do not think there is any doubt. To illustrate, in the year 1914—the year that the Vanderbilt controversy was at its height—our Church had a gain in membership of only 8830, about .5 of one per cent; and this year with the Nashville Bolsheviki in operation and the union agitation on, our gain amounted to but little over 22,000. To stir up a racket that has perhaps contributed largely to such a result of late, and then to knock our Church for not having secured more communicants, is a beautiful exhibition of consistency upon the part of these self-styled lay reformers, led by Mr. Eleazer.

Reasoning of Agitators Utterly Fallacious.

The argument of these agitators that the growth of Churches in this country has been in proportion to the measure of their democracy finds little to sustain it in Dr. Carroll's figures which we have reprinted from the Federal Council Year-Book. Let the reader scrutinize them and see for himself. For instance, the Roman Catholic Church, which certainly is not a democracy, has outgrown the Southern Baptist Church, the Southern Presbyterian Church, and all the other Churches that he has held up to us as exemplars. The Southern Methodist Church, which these Southern Methodist patriots have pronounced the most autocratic of all the Wesleyan bodies, has outgrown them all. According to Bishop McTyeire (see his "History of Methodism," page 664), in 1866 our Church had 429,232 communicants; now, 51 years afterwards, it has a membership of 2,145,785—an increase of approximately 500 per cent. Can these fault-finders point to any record that surpasses this?

The Salvation Army is not democratic—like our Church, its organization is military in type—but it has probably been the most phenomenal Christian movement that has sprung up within the last 30 or 40 years, its drum-beat now being heard in nearly the great lands of the earth.

The talk about the Protestant Episcopal Church, which has made a good percentage of growth, being more democratic than ours, will not at all bear analysis. Why, the Bishops of that denomination constitute one of the two houses of the legislative branch of its government, and all legislation must have their sanction. If our Bishops had such power as that, we feel sure that it would so distress these liberty-loving Methodist reformers that they would be in danger of dying with broken hearts.

Criticising Our Chief Pastors.

These ardent advocates of Church freedom have bestirred themselves in their pamphlet to show that the Southern Methodist Bishops since 1844 have been opponents of all movements to secure more liberty and promote progress, exhibiting a censurable jealousy as to their own power and prerogatives. And this disposition is attributed to the large powers of the Episcopal office as it exists in the Church, South. Quotations are given from numerous Episcopal Addresses made since the establishment of our Church, in which admonitions were uttered against too many changes in the governmental system. Who are the men that are thus arraigned by Messrs. Eleazer, Fritts, and their associate agitators? Included among them are such men as Pierce, Doggett, Kavanaugh, Marvin, McTyeire, Keener, Galloway, and Wilson. Does any one who knew these men, or who has read the story of their lives and service, believe that they were oppressors of their brethren, and hinderers of the progress of Southern Methodism? To be sure, they may have been conservative in some instances in their attitude toward some proposed changes; but is conservatism always a bad thing? England has been ranked as perhaps the most conservative of the first-class powers of the globe, and yet she has been the mightiest and most influential of them all.

It is not unusual for men charged with great responsibilities to be steadied and rendered cautious by them. Executors of great trusts need to be careful, and not too swift to discard agencies that have been tested and which have proven efficient, for others that are untried experiments. We have heard it said that no man has ever become Secretary of the Treasury of the United States Government who was not made a more conservative financier by the weighty obligations of that great office. Nothing could be more unfounded than the intimation that it is because they are not subject to removal by the General Conference that our Bishops have been led to sound forth such warnings to the Church, from time to time. It would be easy to take the Episcopal Addresses of the Northern Methodist Church and parallel these injunctions to caution. Indeed, it was the Southern Church that first introduced lay representation in both the General Conference and the Annual Conferences. (The Northern Church is yet without representation in the last-named bodies.)

This effort to poison the minds of our laymen by trying to make it appear that lay representation was obtained against the persistent opposition of our Bishops has no real foundation in fact, and is a most unworthy piece of demagogy. It was Bishop McTyeire who championed the movement and carried it forward to success at the same General Conference at which he was elected to the Episcopacy. That tho Bishops were proportionately more opposed to it than the other ministers of the Church cannot be shown. Certainly they exerted no opposition to it in 1866. This needed change came slowly as a result of new developments. Bishop McTyeire says in his admirable "History of Methodism" that lay representation was little needed in the earlier years of American Methodism. Are our Bishops to be lampooned for not having had such a sweep of vision as to anticipate in advance of all others, and before the beckoning hand of providence had made it clear, this need of a larger use of the laity in the councils of the Church?

Nothing could be more unfair and unjust than the charge that the question as to having Lay Leaders made ex officio members of the Annual Conferences was not properly submitted by the Bishops. We have seen a number of constitutional questions submitted, and the method pursued in this instance was identically the same as in all the other cases. It would be easy to secure thousands of certified statements from our best preachers and laymen to this effect.

The animus of the writer of this pamphlet toward the Southern Methodist Bishops is shown in his intimation that their behavior respecting the unification issue has been censurable, though they have ben notably discreet. Is a Bishop of the Church South, to be denied the right to have his convictions concerning a question involving the very existence of the Church of which he is a General Superintendent, and judiciously to stand for them? We wonder what these agitators would have said if the Southern Methodist Bishops had met and considered the question of Unification adversely, as the Northern Methodist Bishops did in New York soon after the Savannah meeting, and had arranged, as they did, to confer again after the St. Louis meeting, with a view to safeguarding the interests of the Church against the wrong kind of unification if necessary. We suspect that they would have become positively "fitified." Yet these men are given to extolling the Episcopacy of the Church, North, and the manner in which it is administered, while berating ours and demanding that our Bishops shall play the part of dummies and seek to exert no influence in shaping the affairs of the Church.

THE DEMOCRACY OF OUR EPISCOPACY.

The Rev. George A. Cooke, D.D., in the Western Christian Advocate.

There are two systems of government: the autocratic and the democratic. Autocratic government places the maximum of power in the hands of the ruling class and allows the exercise of that power in an arbitrary manner and for selfish ends. Democratic government places the maximum of power in the hands of the people, who choose their own rulers and then hold them responsible for the exercise of power.

Monarchies, whose rulers are called kings, czars, kaisers, emperors, and shahs, are based on the principle of autocracy, the rule of might without the consent of the people who are governed. When America was discovered all the countries of the world were ruled by monarchs, who ruled as autocrats. There was no such thing as a democracy. When America was discovered a vast continent was revealed to the gaze of the world, and to the misgoverned and oppressed of Europe that continent was another name for opportunity. The early colonists came to this continent as the subjects of monarchs and established governments under the control of monarchs. When the Revolution came it broke and threw off the yoke of foreign monarchical domination. It also established a representative democracy on the ruins of autocratic government. Together with the birth of the greatest, freest republican democracy that was ever instituted among men was the birth of the greatest, purest, most efficient Christian Church that was ever known since apostolic days.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was born and nurtured amid the throes of political and eccleslastical revolution. Those who laid the foundations of our Church polity were men who despised tyranny, loved righteousness, and had the prophetic vision of ecclesiatical statesmen. They knew the blight of autocracy in the government of the Church, and they resolved to build a church that would be free, that would be democratic, and that would evangelize the people by spreading Scriptural holiness over their lands. John Wesley was more than an evangelist. He was a great social leader and a great ecclesiastical statesman. He was a born ruler of men, and the glorious movement of which he was the founder never could have been the success it was in other hands. He was the center of power within the circle of his United Societies; but he did not inherit the power, nor was it conferred upon him, nor did he ever abuse it. He created the power he used and had a right to it as a free citizen. He was a democrat in principle and was a constant illustration of protest against autocracy and tyranny. The influence he attained in the civic and religious world was an instance of a free private citizen rising to power by the legitimate exercise of his own faculties. That is democracy. It is also efficiency under democracy.

Francis Asbury was to America what Wesley was to England. This was not because he was appointed by Wesley to represent him in America. His authority was in his commission, but his leadership was in himself. He did not rule as an autocrat. The preachers and the people believed in his sincerity and in his wisdom. He ruled as a democrat who exercised the power of a free man. He was the first among equals. He held his place because of the confidence and the affection of the preachers. He administered his office with vigor and demonstrated the efficiency of centralized power in a democratic church. When the Church was formally organized at the famous "Christmas Conference," Asbury was unanimously elected to the office of general superintendent. In the year 1808, after the Church had the experience of twenty-four years with Asbury as Bishop, the General Conference formulated a constitution which provided for a delegated representative General Conference. It imbedded in the fundamental law that the General Conference should never have the right to change the principles of episcopacy as then known and practiced in the Church. The men of that day were not trammeled by superstition nor held in bondage by tradition. They were true Americans. They did not believe in the arbitrary rule of kings or Bishops. They believed in constitutional democracy for Church as well as for State. They believed in a democratic episcopacy. They established also an efficient episcopacy, at once centralizing its vast power and making it answerable to the General Conference for the abuse of power. Without these features it would soon become inefficient and arbitrary. Our system of church government may be described as a constitutional democracy with restricted powers of administration lodged in a responsible episcopacy whose duties are chiefly of superintendency. In its working it manifests itself according to the various caharacters that are in the office. Perfection in government is humanly impossible. There have always been injustice and abuse of power, and there always will be. After a century and more of expansion our Church still holds to the episcopacy without constitutional change. Our Bishops are still accessible to preachers and people. They are brotherly, democratic, and responsive to the sentiment of the Church.

Just now there is an unusual stirring of the nation and of the world over age-long issues involved in theories of autocratic and of democratic government. Our republic has thrown her mighty influence into the conflict that henceforth the world may be made safe for democracy. Our Methodism must not fail the republic in this hour of testing. The principles of autocracy must not prevail in the republic, nor in the Church that has been the Church of the common people since the birth of the nation. We are face to face with a large movement whose purpose seems to be to establish a diocesan episcopacy on the ruins of our once glorious general superintendency. That it is in violation of the third restrictive rule is admitted by all who understand. Those who know the lessons of history and the tendencies of human nature can see plainly whither we are tending. Our safety and our wisdom consists in leaving the episcopacy where the founders of the Church established it. The next General Conference should undo what has been done by evasive resolutions introduced into the legislation of the Church through the appendix of the Discipline. The tendency toward districted episcopacy is a retrograde movement and will ultimately split up the church into sections and factions. It will destroy the solidarity of the denomination, weaken its centralized power, and prevent all advance through the leadership of our Bishops. All our Bishops belong to the whole Church, and they should all travel throughout the connection so as to secure first-hand information and impart first-hand inspiration everywhere.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. LITTLE CHANCE FOR METHODISTS TO UNITE.

Bishop Mouzon and Dr. Hyer Find Differences Greater Than Expected.

The two Methodist Churches are just about as far apart as ever, according to Dr. Robert S. Hyer, President of Southern Methodist University, and Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, who returned yesterday from the meeting of the Commission on Unification, which was held in St. Louis and attended by twenty-five representatives from each Church.

"Our differences were greater than we had expected," Dr. Hyer said. "We thought at the meeting in Savannah that we would be much more successful than we were. As to the prospects for future unification, I can only say that I am hopeful, but I can see no chance in the immediate future. No further move will be made until two years from now, when the General Conference of the Northern Church is held. We are still far apart."

Bishop Mouzon was equally as emphatic in saying that it would be some time before the two Churches could come to an agreement. "Very little was accomplished at the meeting of the Commission on Unification. Our differences are still great. I can only hope that something may yet be done, but there is no chance of doing anything soon."

IN ACCORD WITH BISHOP CANDLER.

(Col. Wall, the writer of this paper, is a grandson of the renowned Dr. William Winans.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Dear Dr. Meek: I have read with pleasure your reproduction of Bishop Candler's article on "The Plan and Prospect of Unification;" particularly, the three concluding paragraphs:

"In view of all these facts judicious people will perceive the difficulties of the case, and will counsel that we make haste slowly. There has been quite enough of action without discussion. Haste and high-pressure may easily make more division than unity.

"Our General Conference in 1914 said 'unification by reorganization' was to be regarded as 'feasible and desirable,' and one does not dissent from this judgment when he insists that unity and harmony within both these great Churches are even more desirable than their 'unification by reorganization.' Peace and harmony in one's own household is more important than the formation of the best possible partnership with one's neighbor.

"It was never more important than now that our people be united and harmonious."

"Judicious people" do see "many difficulties" and are strongly of the opinion that these "difficulties" are not removed by so complicated a scheme of "unification by reorganization" as the tentative plan proposed by the Joint Commission. In fact, some of us laymen see as many sources of disorganization as there are Regional Conferences; we see (perhaps, ghosts—we think not) many dangers to the rights of the minority, or to the protection of these rights, or supposed rights, those combinations and schemes resorted to that minorities always use, whether in conventions of political or ecclesiastical bodies. We see the repudiation of well tried and successful methods, the destruction of what we believe to be the safe and sacred principles embodied in the regulation, conduct and the very institution of our itinerancy from the episcopacy down—or up.

The mystery to me is this: Upon what ground can the ardent unificators, who wish to rush things through so confidently, claim that unification will produce spiritual unity? This is, or ought to be, the object sought. Will a mechanical union—one big ecclesiastical body—produce this? The Teuton Empire has a splendid unity without freedom; the British Empire has a glorious unity, each constituent part true and loyal because autonomous and free, bound in loyalty by the spirit of love.

Was Wesley a contemner of the spirit of unity—"that they may be one"—when he selected and ordained a Bishop who should organize the Church in America? For the sake of better administration of the functions of the Church, for the sake of a high spirituality which he saw could be better attained out of the great Church to which he belonged, and of which I think he never ceased to be a member, this man of God did that which he knew would result in separation. Was he, therefore, of a divisive spirit? Or did his great mind see that unity in Christ is not dependent on union in any eclesiastical body?

I did not, dear Doctor, intend this letter to be this long. I simply started to write my approval of Bishop Candler's views in which I heartily concur; and, especially, in his declaration, "Haste and high pressure may easily make more division than unity." Again the Bishop says, "Peace and harmony in one's own household is more important than the formation of the best possible partnership with one's neighbor."

This last expression appeals to me because I am a lawyer, and because of my experiences in partnerships. To get a union of minds in partnership affairs—I speak from sad experience—is very, very difficult. Again, in a commercial partnership each one is bound for the other, in solido. Any good business man, before he enters into such union, "goes slow," very slow; he wants to know with whom, and how, and how long, and under what safeguards. Let us go slow.

Yours truly.

OUR REVIVAL EFFORT IN OKOLONA.

One-to-win-one Campaign.

The writer was so deeply impressed with an article in one of our Advocates written by Dr. J. W. Lee, of St. Louis, on "What One Church and Pastor Did?" that he decided to try the plan with his own church and people. He sought and obtained more information about the one-to-win-one campaign held in St. Louis. This he obtained from Dr. L. E. Todd, presiding elder of the St. Louis District. His book of some 267 pages, "Evangelism Exemplified," gives a full account and directions.

The plan was brought by the pastor before his official board and their approval was secured. The Woman's Missionary Societies and Sunday school officers and teachers were next enlisted. Personal worker covenant cards were signed by every member of the official board, all officers and teachers of the Sunday school and every member of the two missionary societies present on the day of their meeting; and, after a sermon on "Consecration" by the pastor, a number of other members in the congregation signed these cards pledging themselves to do personal work—more than 100 in all. The regular services of the church were utilized during the first month of the Lenten season, and the last two weeks before Easter Sunday daily services were held. "Decision Day" was held in the Sunday school, and special services were held for the children. The converts were carefully instructed in the matter of Church membership and the vows and rules explained fully.

As a result of our campaign, we found that we had developed a number of good personal workers. Some fine young people brought others of their friends to Christ and into membership in his Church. A great number of children and quite a few grown people were converted and joined the Church. Up to and including Easter Sunday 38 were received into membership. One man was received who had been a railroad conductor for years, another a leading merchant—both on profession of faith. One woman joined by profession of faith, with her two children, as also did another woman who had been reared a Catholic.

There are yet others to come in who have already signed cards. We have written for 10 other church certificates, and have about the same additional number to be received on profession. The total will give us about 60 members as a result of this campaign; in which the pastor and his people, by the help of the Lord, held all the services.

The faithful organist and all the members of the choir not only signed the covenant cards, but also rendered invaluable service in the gospel of song and music. The pastor and people have been revived and have received a great spiritual uplift. We are taking courage and moving forward at Okolona. Yours fraternally,

JOSEPH B. RANDOLPH.

JEWISH INTOLERANCE IN AMERICA.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

When our forefathers settled in that territory now known as the United States of America they purposed to establish for themselves freedom to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience. When our government was formed this privilege was embedded in the Constitution, and since that day all efforts to abridge this privilege have been met with stout resistance. The result is that all religions have flourished and none have been crushed.

In late years the most persecuted people in the world has been the Jewish people. In many countries they have despaired even of existence as a people, and their privileges to worship have been curtailed until with fear they even named the name of Jehovah. The result of this persecution all of us know. To America came the Jew until to-day New York is a city of Jews, and in every city of any consequence the Jew is a figure in business and social life. It seems that the Jew should love America and her broad spirit of liberality as he loves no other nation.

But by some strange nature, perhaps born of the years of his ascendency, the Jew is not given to the spirit of tolerance. He would dominate if he could. By his record we know him. In business he will plod along until able to strike, and then he will crush competition and grab everything in sight. His religion is not different from his business. I am reminded of the religious intolerance of the Jew by an editorial that lies before me, in The Jewish Ledger, published in New Orleans and dated April 5, 1918. Dr. Mendel Silber is the editor, and the caption over his editorial is "Capitol Bigotry."

He quotes verbatim the proclamation issued by Governor T. C. Rye of Tennessee naming Friday, March 29, a day of prayer. Tennesseeans no doubt are familiar with this proclamation, which in words well chosen state that what is so commonly known as Good Friday commemorates the day of the greatest sacrifice ever made.

The Jewish Ledger offers the following comment on this proclamation:

"It hardly requires any argument to show that the action of Governor Rye is unjust and un-American. It is an insult to the law-abiding and loyal Jewish citizens, not only of Tennessee, but of the whole country. It is an attempt to make a political office subserve a sectarian cause. It is playing and pandering to the superstitions and prejudices of the ignorant. If prayers are to be offered for the victory of our arms, there is little patriotism and less wisdom and justice in the selection of a day on which the uneducated and uninformed alone, those who are held in the thrall of myth and superstition, have been in the habit of commemorating an event which never occurred. Apparently Governor Rye does not know, or pretends not to know, that the reasons he cites for selecting Good Friday as a day of prayer are regarded by intelligent Christians themselves as wholly and purely mythical. He apparently does not know, or pretends not to know, also, that it is lack of humanity and justice back of the Christian prayers in the Christian country of Germany which has brought on the present war. If men like Tom C. Rye were less prayerful and more just, the nation and all mankind would be very much better off and victory would come to the democratic forces championing the cause of humanity far more surely and more speedily."

The paragraph just quoted is enough to argue the point that I feel, but hesitate to, consign to paper. It is becoming more apparent that the men who are molding Jewish thought in America are paving the way to stifle every public act that in any way does honor to the name of Jesus Christ. Not content with the memory of the awful persecutions they have suffered in countries where toleration is unknown, they come to free America and lift their shining steel to fell any Christian who dares to exercise his own Christian conscience in the discharge of a public duty. Not satisfied with the privilege of living in a great country like ours, and worshiping God in peace and contentment, they would take a free press to hurl into the face of Christian America the accusation that "Christian prayer in the Christian country of Germany" is the cause of this terrible war.

Sometimes revolutions take place. With the capture of Palestine by Great Britain the Jew has become bold with hopes of returning to his native soil. Much sentiment favors making it possible for him to possess his time-honored "promised land." It seems evident that a world organization is in the making, the object of which is to bring the power of the Jew of the world to bear upon nation after nation until the Jew dominates the world. The day he comes into the ascendency, that day freedom of worship is at an end, and the Christians might as well cry for the "rocks and the mountains" to fall on him.

Yes, I have said that sometimes revolutions take place. I am now ready to say that just such tirades against Christianity as this organ of the Jews gives vent to might get on the nerves of the ninety million people in the United States who have somewhat of faith in the divinity of Jesus. If American institutions must yield every semblance of the faith we profess and love; if our public schools must banish every reference to the Christ; if the rulers of our country and separate political commonwealths must be abused, and all but persecuted, for giving voice to the faith that is in them, all for the sake of the Jew, then such a thing could happen that Christianity might rebel and, by the overwhelming majority of numbers, amend the constitution of our nation so that men in whatever position of state they may occupy may have the freedom of exercising their religious rights without fear of abuse.

THE BLUE JAY.

By Jennie Lind Allen.

Dressed in his best, with quaint little cap
Jauntily set on his head;
He perches on limb of an apple-tree—
And coaxes away to be fed.

He very well knows that his notes can be heard,
And some one will hasten to throw
Peanuts or crumbs in the well-beaten path,
Just under the tree on the snow.

He's a cute little fellow with appetite keen,
And peanuts are chosen instead
Of the crumbs that are plentifully sprinkled about,
He much prefers peanuts to bread.

His voice is discordant at times, we allow,
But sometimes he takes on a tone
That vibrates with music as sweet as can be
(Although this may not be well known).

We welcome you, Blue Jay, in spite of your greed,
And gladly we'll feed you each day;
There's food and to spare from our table; we know
Your visits all efforts repay.

A NURSERY ECHO.

"Mother," said George, "we had a nice time yesterday afternoon at Uncle John's. Do you know that there is an echo behind the barn? I wish we had one here."

"Well so have we," said mother. "This house is full of echoes."

"Is it?" said George. "Where must I stand to make my voice come back to me?"

"Anywhere you choose; but I think the nursery is the best place."

Off ran George, delighted; but as he entered the room he saw that Baby Ned had possession of his new kite and was proceeding to fly it.

"Put that kite down," he cried, angrily; "you will break it to pieces, you bad boy!"

"Bad boy! bad boy!" shouted the baby, and mother entered the nursery just in time to prevent a serious difficulty.

"I think you found your echo sooner than you expected," she said, soberly, when peace was restored, and George hung his head.

"Oh, is that what you mean, mother?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied; "that is what I mean. Just as the echo behind the barn sent back the very tones of your voice, so your little brother and sister reflect back your tones and manner. I think if you will remember this it will make you very careful how you speak."

Later in the day George was playing stagecoach with the little children, and with his shouting and his trumpet setting the nurse almost crazy. "I wish," she cried out angrily, "that you would go down stairs; you are such a noisy, horrid boy."

"You are a horrid old thing yourself," he shouted back, and then suddenly he began to laugh.

"Why," he said, "I was an echo myself that time," and as his mother came in just then, they had another little talk about echoes, and both George and the nurse determined to try to make some pleasant ones before the day was over.

When Baby Ned's supper came upstairs he was cross, and would not drink his milk, and said that his bread was "sour."

"George," said mother, "now is your chance," and George ran into the room and was so funny and bright with the baby that in a few moments he was in high humor, and as mother listened she could tell which was the laugh and which was the echo.—The Parish Visitor.

SHADI'S BEAUTIFUL PRAYER.

A missionary lady had living with her a little Hindu orphan named Shadi. She taught him about Jesus and one night when he was six years old, she said to him, "Now, pray a little prayer of your own."

And what do you think was Shadi's answer?

It was this: "Dear Jesus, make me like what you were when you were six years old."

A beautiful prayer, indeed!—New York Christian Advocate.

WOULD BE DISASTROUS.

By Rev. W. W. Mitchell, Presiding Elder of the Durant District, and a Delegate to the General Conference.

Mr. Editor: Knowing, as every thinking man must, that the uniting of the two great branches of American Methodism in one organic body, even under the most favorable conditions, is, to say the least of it, an experiment, attended with great risk and possible disaster; it is astonishing in the extreme to note the cock-sure spirit being manifested, the persistent efforts being made and the methods employed by certain would-be leaders and a few satellites to thrust such union upon the Churches, regardless of results. Against such a ruthless disregard of the will of the people and the peace of the Church, we feel that every loyal, liberty-loving Southern Methodist should enter a solemn and emphatic protest.

To you, Mr. Editor, for your able, unselfish, and timely defense of Southern Methodism as planted and propagated by our fathers, we want to give our hearty commendation and unqualified endorsement. Our prayer is that the Great God may spare you in health and strength to continue the fight until this fanaticism is throttled and the dove of peace and prosperity is again permitted to rest upon and abide with our perturbed Church. That the Southern representatives of the Unification Commission in the tentative plan recently sent out from Savannah have departed radically from the instructions given them by the General Conference in its session in Oklahoma City, no one can successfully deny. That they have in this instrument surrendered the constitutional principle for which our fathers stood in 1844, and so earnestly contended for, that it became the wedge severing the body in twain, must be admitted. That they have broken the solidarity of the Southern Church and left us helpless in the hands of a Northern majority, is clear to every thoughtful and unbiased mind. Where a semblance of self-protection is seemingly provided, authority is vested in the General Conference to in some way nullify it or to repeal the provision. For example, we are granted in the Regional Conference the right to elect our Bishops, but the General Conference is given the power to reject them by a two-thirds majority. And since, as Bishop Denny has said, the representation of the Southern Church in the General Conference would be less than, or about, one-third of that body, we would be absolutely at the mercy of the North, even as to the men we might elect to the Bishopric. This is but one instance, but why is this restriction placed upon our election of Bishops? Is it not a "big stick" suspended perpetually above our heads, that we may be coerced into electing men to preside over us who are favorable to Northern ideals?

The proposed Regional Conference is an anomaly. It is a body without functions. In the language of Dr. L. S. Massey, Editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, "The heart has been cut out of it;" * * * and he adds, "we should look for the very name to drop from the Discipline of the Reorganized Church in a decade or two as a useless wheel in the machinery." The Editor of the Texas Advocate does not mince words in summing up his judgment of it, when he says, "Instead of ministering to local self-government, the diminished membership of these conferences will commit the government of our various regions into the hands of an oligarchy."

The Negro is to be retained in the unified Church—with some slight restrictions, it is true—but he is there with the privilege of serving on the powerful General Boards, with a definite representation in the General Conference, with a voice and vote; and when they are six hundred thousands strong, they are to attain to the dignity of a Jurisdictional Conference, losing their vote in the General Conference but retaining a voice there, acquiring representation in the Judicial Council, to help construe all the laws enacted by the white General Conference.

Now, Mr. Editor, permit me to say in all candor that if this clumsy, complex and confusing instrument is presented to our General Conference and supported by that body, thus virtually acknowledging itself incapable of self-government—I suppose it will be well enough, and the sooner it secures a guardian the better. But ten thousand people in the Durant (Miss.) District solemnly protest against this scheme.

Durant, Miss.

There is something supremely exhilarating and sublime in the spectacle of the good man who, in the strength of what he believes to be heaven-sent guidance, goes intrepidly forward, noting little of what opposes and may attack, though death itself hang its sword above his head, though the world seem to shake in ruins around him.—C. E. Harris.

CONCERNING OUR EPISCOPACY.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate may be found a most interesting discussion by Dr. George A. Cooke, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, under the caption, "The Democracy of Our Episcopacy." What he has to say on this subject applies with equal force to the episcopacy of the Church, South.

Statements have lately appeared in the public prints which have seemed to imply that the view that the episcopacy of Southern Methodism is not a mere creature of the General Conference is something new, which had not been heard of until lately. Such a notion evinces an ignorance of Methodist history that is nothing short of astounding.

Prior to 1808, the government of the Methodist Church was wholly in the hands of the preachers, and every minister in the entire Connection was entitled to a seat in the General Conference. The episcopacy existed then, being subject to the undelegated governing power of the Church. But when, in 1808, arrangement was made for delegated General Conferences, the episcopacy, along with the Articles of Religion and some other things, was protected from the power of the General Conference in the Constitution that was then adopted, as the following provision therein embodied shows:

"They (the General Conference) shall not change or alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away with the episcopacy, or destroy the plan of our general superintendency."

Thus it will be seen that, while the episcopacy is subject to the Church as a whole and may be modified or abolished by constitutional process, it has never been subject to the unrestricted will of the General Conference. Bishop Soule (not then a Bishop), who wrote the Constitution of the Church in 1808, declared in 1844 that he had never until then heard it suggested that "a Bishop could be deposed at will" by the General Conference. (See Tigert's Constitutional History of Methodism, page 375.) Hence, it will be seen that the view which is now being criticised by some as if it were a claim just set up, is nothing more nor less than the position that was held by the founders of Methodism in the United States, and the position to which our Church has always adhered.

Nor does this view make our episcopacy autocratic. It merely gives it constitutional protection against the delegated legislative branch of our Church government, such as the Constitution of the United States gives the Presidency and the Supreme Court against Congress, that it may the better serve the ends for which it was instituted.

Our CHURCH, by constitutional process, may do anything it pleases with our episcopacy; but the General Conference alone cannot do so. If the General Conference might remove a Bishop at will, the episcopacy would be substantially in its hands, since it could set aside any Bishop with whose views it was not pleased and elect another subservient to its notions in his place. Would government by an untrammeled delegated General Conference be preferable to government by the CHURCH, under a constitution? We certainly do not think so.

WE HOPE THIS WILL NOT BE DONE.

We are printing in this number of the Advocate "The Report of the General Conference Commission on Finance," which, as will be noted, proposes a plan for having a permanent General Commission on Finance, with Annual Conference Commissions related to it, after the manner of our General and Conference Boards. It is, furthermore, proposed that this General Commission shall have charge, subject to the direction of the General Conference, of the levying of all assessments upon the Church for all purposes, and that all assessments shall be levied in one lump sum, without specifications as to the amounts to go to the different causes.

It might be well enough to have a temporary Committee on Assessments at the General Conference, made up of one representative from each of the General Committees, to secure such assessments for the various causes as would be equitable and fair to all the interests involved; but, in our humble opinion, the adoption of the suggested plan would be a very unwise piece of legislation.

1. We think it would be a mistake to take away from our people information as to what causes they are paying their money and the right to choose to what ends they will apply their gifts. This arrangement would tend to place the fiscal government further away from the people and more completely in the hands of a bureaucracy.

2. The educative effect concerning the various interests of the Church that comes from the presentation of the merits of each cause to our congregations and the taking of a collection for it would, we think, be lost by this lump-sum process. Perhaps the greatest weakness in our present way of raising our collections is our failure to instruct our people more definitely concerning the various causes which they are asked to support—the Presbyterians and Baptists seem to be surpassing us in this respect—and this process seemingly would be still more deficient in this respect.

3. The adoption of the proposed plan would be to increase the machinery of the Church, giving us a new General Board, the expenses of which would have to be met, and an additional Board in each Annual Conference. It is our conviction that now, when the great world-war is raging and we cannot tell what tremendous burdens we may have to carry within the next few years, is no time to be piling up additional expenses in administration when it can possibly be avoided.

SOME HISTORY FOR PROFITABLE STUDY.

In these days of agitation for radical and ruinous changes in our Church polity by such men as Shuler, Eleazer, Fritts, Trieschman, and others, it is well that we look into past history for the fruits of similar disturbances. Perhaps a little search of this kind may cure the anarchistic tendencies of some. An authoritative publication of a few decades ago, the Columbian Cyclopedia, narrates the founding of the Methodist Protestant Church in the following language:

"Organized in 1830 by former members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who for some time previously had expressed dissatisfaction with the government of the Church, which they declared was too exclusively in the hands of the itinerant PREACHERS, to the exclusion of other preachers and the LAY MEMBERSHIP. To effect a change in this respect they PUBLISHED (being copied after to-day by the publications of the "Movement for Revision" and periodicals by R. P. Shuler, etc.) The Wesleyan Repositor 1820-24, AND PRESENTED NUMEROUS PETITIONS TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE IN 1824. After the meeting of the Conference they resolved to publish another publication for the discussion of the questions at issue, and also organized themselves, in Baltimore, into a union society, with the recommendation that others be organized throughout the Church, for the purpose of ascertaining how many members were in favor of a change in its government. Some of the agitators WERE THEN EXPELLED FROM THE CHURCH, 11 ministers and 22 laymen in Baltimore being among the number. These at once organized, under Wesley's General Rules, with the title of the 'Associated Methodist Reformers' in 1827 (the only difference that can be discerned between this organization and the present "Movement for Revision" is that the members of the latter body of plotters have not been dealt with as properly as our fathers did business with the former schemers). They petitioned the General Conference of 1828 for a change in the government; BUT WERE REFUSED. Thereupon they withdrew from the Church in large numbers in various parts of the country, and called another general convention of the reformers in Baltimore on November 12, 1828, at which a provisional government was formed; and at the Baltimore convention of 1830 a constitution and discipline for the government of the Methodist Protestant Church were adopted. THE CHURCH AGREES WITH THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN DOCTRINE, BUT DIFFERS IN GOVERNMENT."

A recent pamphlet issued by the "Movement for Revision" (piloted primarily by R. B. Eleazer) tries to make out a case against Southern Methodism by a statistical table to show that the Baptists have grown faster than the Southern Church on account, they would try to make us believe, of "the fact that every other denomination named above (Baptists, Presbyterians, Disciples) is in far closer harmony with THE DEMOCRATIC SPIRIT OF THE TIMES THAN OURS." Now, it may be said with perfect propriety, if the Baptists are making larger gains than the Southern Methodist Church IT IS NOT ON ACCOUNT OF THE DIFFERENCE IN THE POLITY OF THE CHURCHES. Else why has not the Methodist Protestant Church, whose government was so liberally democratized in the making eighty-eight years ago, grown more extensively in that great length of time? Since 1830, the year of organization, it has increased to 201,110, according to Dr. T. N. Ivey's Handbook for 1918. Southern Methodism alone, the polity of which Church the malcontents are now trying to mutilate, has grown in seventy-two years from 455,229 members to 2,343,785 members. These figures represent the most phenomenal growth of perhaps any Church of the century. It is a great pity that those in our Church who like the government of another organization better, while it maintains the same doctrinal standards, do not depart from us and find refuge in that Church which suits them both in doctrine and in polity. It is a shame for them to want to take our organization whose strength has largely been the result of its present polity and convert it into something different for their purposes.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Natchez, Miss., will preach the Commencement sermon for the public school at Fernwood, Miss., on May 12.

In a letter bringing us 2 names for our mailing file, Rev. T. B. Winstead, of Burns, Miss., says: "Everything is moving on well in the Trenton charge."

The Editor will leave the first of next week for Atlanta, Ga., where the General Conference will open on Thursday morning, May 2. He may be addressed while there, "In care of the Piedmont Hotel."

Dr. J. T. Sawyer filled the pulpit of the Felicity Street Church at the morning hour, April 21, the pastor not being well. A good congregation was present and the text was as follows: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Rev. C. A. Battle writes us that the Coale revival is making good headway at Baton Rouge, La. Up to April 20 there had been about 40 accessions since the services began. Brother Battle has had 99 additions since the last Annual Conference.

Rev. W. F. Rogers, our worthy pastor at Oakland, Miss., brings us under obligations to him for 5 subscriptions to the Conference organ. Referring to his work, Brother Rogers says: "Everything goes well with us. The outlook promises a successful year."

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Cochrane, Ala., one of the appointments in the Columbus (Miss.) District, is having a good year. Brother Williams is a strong and forceful preacher, and we dare say that the people in his charge are being delighted and profited by his pulpit messages.

Rev. A. D. George, of Bonita, La., April 15, writes: "We are in the midst of a meeting here, having with us Rev. H. T. Young and Rev. Earl Moll. They make a good team, and we are hoping for a gracious revival." Brother George's letter brought us 5 subscriptions to the Advocate.

Rev. J. R. Murff, pastor of the Iuka (Miss.) Circuit, favors us with four subscribers to the Advocate, for which he has our thanks. He states that his second quarterly conference was an occasion of much interest, Rev. T. H. Dorsey, the presiding elder, delivering two very impressive sermons.

Captain R. P. Hobson addressed a good audience in the interest of the prohibition cause at the Athenaeum, this city, last Sunday afternoon. At the close of his strong speech, resolutions asking the Louisiana State Leegislature to ratify the National Prohibition Amendment were enthusiastically adopted.

Rev. J. T. Abney, of Scooba, Miss., gives us the following message concerning his charge: "Our second quarterly conference has just been held. The pastor's salary was raised to $900. Everything is moving along smoothly. We are planning and working to make this the best year in the history of this church."

Rev. A. L. Davenport, pastor of the Corinth (Miss.) Circuit, in a business letter to our office, appends the following note: "Our second quarterly conference, which was held on April 19 at Gaines' Chapel, was a success in every way. So said our excellent presiding elder, Rev. T. H. Dorsey. The indications point to a good year in this field."

Rev. F. M. Freeman, pastor of the Parker Memorial Church of this city, has lately been much in demand as a speaker in behalf of worthy causes connected with preparation for the great war. He has recently filled a number of such engagements in other sections of the State.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosciusko, Miss., reports that an encouraging revival meeting is in progress at that place, in which the preaching is being done by Rev. R. A. Clark, of the Memphis Conference. Brother Cunningham will serve as the special reporter of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, the South's greatest daily paper, at Atlanta, Ga., during the session of our General Conference.

Under date of April 18, Rev. W. M. Williams, of Collins, Miss., says: "We had a good quarterly conference at Bethel on Saturday and Sunday. The reports were good and there was a fine spirit. The Bethel church 'went over the top,' paying more than half the assessment for the year. This is what a country church can do when it tries. Rev. W. B. Jones, our presiding elder, preached two excellent sermons. We had a splendid dinner."

Aberdeen, Miss., has lately had a fine revival meeting, in which the pastor, Rev. J. T. Lewis, was assisted by his brothers, James, Henry, and Osmond Lewis, of the Mississippi Conference. We have in hand an interesting report of this meeting from the pen of Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, which reached us too late to appear in this issue of the Advocate, but which will be published next week.

We thank Brother J. O. Ware, of Fayette, Miss., for an invitation to attend the Port Gibson District Conference, which will convene at that place on May 30. (See notice elsewhere in this number of the Advocate.) Brother Ware writes in terms of high appreciation of Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, his presiding elder, who, he says, measures up to a good standard both as a preacher and administrator.

Bishop E. E. Hoss attended the late meeting of the Unification Commission in St. Louis. In a note received from him Monday he stated that he was on the eve of leaving for Nashville, Tenn., to be present at a meeting of the College of Bishops in that city this week, and that from there he expected to go to Atlanta. We hope that he will be able to attend the entire General Conference.

The following press dispatch was carried in a late issue of the New Orleans Item: "McComb, Miss., April 12.—Much interest is being manifested in the union revival services here, which are being conducted under the direction of the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches. Rev. Dan E. Kelly is assisting in the meeting. Mr. H. C. Fullerton, a Y. M. C. A. man from Camp Bowie, Texas, has charge of the singing."

Through the courtesy of Mr. H. Croom Armour, a most attractive card announcing the Commencement of the Houlka (Miss.) High School is on our desk. The exercises will take place on May 15. The finishing class, of which Mr. Armour is a member, numbers six. Mr. H. M. Collins is the Principal of this School. We hope that the coming Commencement will be a happy one for all these Seniors, who are nearing the end of their High School course.

The following dispatch was clipped from the Memphis Commercial-Appeal: "Meridian, Miss., April 15.—Ground will be broken to-morrow for the building of a new $70,000 church for the Central Methodist congregation here. It will be one of the handsomest religious edifices in the State. This congregation has been without a church since its old house of worship was burned several years ago." We congratulate Pastor Watkins and his people upon this forward movement.

Dr. E. B. Partin, of Chunky, Miss., one of the choice laymen of the Mississippi Conference, has, we regret to state, been in a poor state of health recently. Dr. Partin, says: "I have been sick for about three months, during which time I have been able to be present at but very few services in the sanctuary, but the presence of the Lord has been with me, and this affliction has been sanctified to my spiritual good. I should be glad to receive letters from any friends who may feel disposed to write me."

In a business letter to our office, written from the Seashore Campground, Biloxi, Miss., Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh thus remarks: "My wife and I are living a simple, restful life over here now, in spite of the war. The Lord's mercies are ever new to us and his promises are proving 'yea and amen.'" Beneath the great live oaks at the Campground is a fine place to rest and be happy in the Lord. We are not surprised that these faithful servants of the Master are finding the way bright as the days pass.

Rev. T. H. Mills, of Pickens, Miss., April 20, writes us as follows: "Our home has recently been made sad by the death angel claiming my wife's mother, Mrs. J. L. Smith, of Amory, Miss. She has been a faithful Christian since girlhood, and, although she has suffered long and much, she died happy in the faith of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. We ask to be remembered by the Advocate's readers at the throne of grace." We extend sympathy to these sorrowing ones and all others sharing in this bereavement. May the Everlasting Arms sustain them!

Rev. N. G. Augustus, of Coldwater, Miss., calls our attention to an error in his excellent article, entitled "Church Absorption," which appeared in last week's issue of the Advocate. Brother Augustus wrote: "The word apology first meant 'a defense,' a manly talking back." The word "taking" was by the printer substituted for the word "talking." We are pleased to make this correction.

The Commencement exercises of Whitworth College will be held May 19 to May 21. The Commencement sermon will be preached at 11 o'clock a. m. May 19, by Rev. H. M. Ellis, of Gulfport, Miss., and the sermon at the evening hour on that day will be preached by Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss. The Annual Literary Address will be delivered on May 21 at 8 p. m. by Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College.

We have in hand the following wedding announcement: "Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gilbreth Falls announce the marriage of their daughter, Corinne, to Captain William Fitzhugh Murrah, of the United States National Guard, on Wednesday, April 3, 1918, at the First Methodist Church, Atlanta, Ga." Captain Murrah, who is a son of Bishop W. B. Murrah, is a graduate of Millsaps College, and has many friends in Mississippi. His home is in Memphis, Tenn., where at the time of his enlistment in the Army he was a promising young lawyer. The bride is a most charming and accomplished young lady.

We were distressed to note the following statement in last week's issue of the Lincoln County Times, Brookhaven, Miss.: "Rev. J. T. Leggett was the victim of an automobile accident at Columbia last Sunday, in which his shoulder was broken. Mrs. Leggett hastened to his bedside Monday, accompanied by Rev. Lloyd Decell." We have had no later news concerning Brother Leggett's accident, but we hope that his injuries were not so severe as were reported and that he may soon recover. It will be a distinct loss to the Church if he is unable to attend the General Conference, to which he is a delegate.

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon, Miss., Treasurer of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference, writes: "I have just received a check from Rev. C. P. Moss, of Shaw, Miss., to cover his educational assessment, and also a check to be applied to the same cause from Rev. A. J. Henry, pastor of the Ripley Circuit. Rev. I. F. Holland paid the assessment upon the Gunnison charge some time ago, but in the Advocate in some way the name of Rev. T. J. Halfacre was substituted for that of Brother Holland, though credit was given to Gunnison." The Editor regrets this mistake, for which he is unable to account, having known as he did that Brother Holland is stationed at Gunnison. Possibly the linotypist was at fault.

COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS.

The following are the committee assignments of the North Mississippi Conference delegates to the General Conference:

TO THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Last October your Publishing Committee planned for a campaign to increase the circulation of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The patronizing Conferences were asked to secure new subscriptions as follows: each of the two Mississippi Conferences 1500, and the Louisiana Conference 1000. The Publisher of the Advocate informs me that up to date there have been sent in from the Louisiana Conference 285 new subscriptions. May I call your attention to this matter and ask you to press the work, for the paper needs more financial support? Let me also say in this connection that it is a matter of the most urgent importance that an earnest and diligent effort be made in every charge to secure renewals of all the Advocates taken. I would suggest to each pastor that he send to the office and obtain a list of the subscribers in his charge that he may be in a position to take up this feature of the work in a systematic manner. In writing the office, give the names of all the post-offices in your charge.

JOHN F. FOSTER,
Manager of the Advocate Campaign for Louisiana.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

Dear Brother Meek: I have carefully read both sides of the question of unification, and I am fully convinced that we are not ready for it. We are too far apart in many things; and the principles that separated us in 1844 should keep us apart now. To accept union with the present status of the colored members in the M. E. Church and the proposed Regional Conference would disintegrate, "chop up," and destroy the M. E. Church, South. Why such haste in trying to force it on the Church? Much zeal on the part of many who advocate "union" has been untimely and unwise. It is time to call a halt.

Our Advocate Campaign.

Our Advocate campaign has lately slowed up appreciably. In all, we have had sent in more than 1000 new subscriptions, and we are truly grateful to the brethren who have been active in this good work. We are now, however, face to face with the certainty of having to drop many hundreds of names from our mailing files unless they are promptly renewed, and this, of course, will offset the benefit of the new subscriptions that have been received. WE URGE OUR FAITHFUL PASTORS TO AID US ALL THEY CAN IN GETTING THE SUBSCRIBERS IN THEIR CHARGES TO RENEW.

SOME SUBSCRIPTION RECEIPTS.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. R. Murff, Iuka Ct., N. Miss. Conf., 4; Rev. A. J. Henry, Mantachie, Miss., 2; Rev. P. F. Luter, Tchula, Miss., 5; Rev. W. L. Storment, Coffeeville, Miss., 2; Mrs. W. A. McKenzie, Homer, La., 4; Rev. J. M. Boykin, Bossier City, La., 4; Rev. W. M. Williams, Collins, Miss., 3; Brother F. A. Howell, Durant, Miss., 5; Rev. W. T. Griffin, Summit, Miss., 3; Rev. J. T. Abney, Scooba, Miss., 3; Rev. B. S. Elliott, Holcomb, Miss., 2; Rev. H. N. Harrison, Franklin, La., 2.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

Our dear sister, IDA SHEFFIELD, departed this life on Feb. 12, 1918. She joined the Church at the age of twelve years and lived a Christian life until the time of her death. She was ready and anxious to go and be at rest. She had been a great sufferer for several years, but bore her sufferings without complaining. She leaves a husband, three sons, three brothers, two sisters, and a host of relations and friends to mourn their loss, but we mourn not as those without hope, for we know she is at rest. Oh, how we miss her dear presence! We can't call her back, but we know we can go to her. She was a devoted wife and mother. Her home was the preacher's home. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones! May we be found ready and waiting when the summons comes, as this was our sister's way.

Her sister, S. M. H.

Mrs. E. L. BROWN was born on June 27, 1836, and died at her home in Pineville, La., on Jan. 13, 1918. She was an only daughter of Col. Robert Hunter, Esq., of the Alexandria bar. She married Robert V. McGimsey on Sept. 22, 1859. He died in 1862. She married Dr. Brown in 1882. He died in 1892. She was the mother of R. H. McGimsey at Alexandria, and such was her love and devotion to him that he can "rise up and call her blessed." She was converted in early life and united with the M. E. Church, South, and was a faithful member to the end of her life. She had a well trained mind, and an unbending will, with great energy and strength of character, which fitted her for leadership and made her for more than fifty years the leading member of the church in Pineville. She dispensed a hospitality that was as cordial as it was large. Her house was the preacher's home, and many a weary one found rest and cheer in that sacred place. This writer was an inmate of that home for two years, and the memory of the blessings that came to him there abides as a benediction after these thirty-seven years. Especially appropriate here are the words of John on Patmos: She rests from her labors and her works do follow her.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

(These resolutions were adopted by the Second Quarterly Conference of the Galloway Memorial Charge, Jackson, Miss., on April 9, 1918.)

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to call to his heavenly reward our beloved brother and co-laborer, Dr. R. S. Ricketts, and

Whereas Professor Ricketts was for many years a devout member of the Galloway Memorial Church, and a most faithful and efficient member and official in the Board of Stewards and Quarterly Conference; therefore be it

Resolved (1), That in his death we recognize the irreparable loss of an aged and honored servant of the Church; and while we bow in resignation to the divine will, the event is to us all an official and personal bereavement.

Resolved (2), That, while our hearts are touched with sorrow, we find comfort in the long and useful life, and treasure the memory of his lofty and unsullied character, in which we shall continue to find inspiration and strength.

Resolved (3), That our sincere sympathy is hereby expressed for the bereaved family, with prayer for the blessings of the God of all comfort and grace on them all.

Signed: T. P. Barr, J. C. Cavett, J. M. Sullivan, Committee.

THE ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The forty-ninth session of the Aberdeen District Conference was held at Tupelo, Miss., on March 29 to 31, 1918. The Conference session opened at 9 a. m. Friday morning, with Bishop W. B. Murrah presiding. The roll call showed nearly all the pastors present and more laymen than usual in attendance.

Our gifted and wide-awake young presiding elder, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, made an optimistic and encouraging report of the work of the district.

The reports of the pastors show progress along the usual lines of activity. One revival with good results was reported, and many others were stated to have been planned.

One report of special interest was that of Rev. J. E. Thomas, of Amory, making public the great benefaction of one of his big-hearted laymen Brother E. O. Gilmore, an account of which has been already published in the Advocate.

The District Lay Leader, Mr. W. T. Reeves, had planned well for the Laymen's Meeting on Friday night, and that prince among laymen, Mr. Thos. B. King of Memphis, made a great address. Brother Reeves was re-elected Lay Leader for the District.

One young man, Eldred O. Baird, was licensed to preach. Rev. L. H. Floyd was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial. Rev. E. C. Driskell was recommended for Local Deacons' Orders.

The following laymen were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: W. T. Reeves, P. W. Shell, Rev. L. T. Sargent, and Charles Ward; alternates, G. J. Leftwich and W. A. Boone.

The following compose the District Licensing Committee: O. W. Bradley, J. E. Thomas, J. B. Randolph, and J. T. Lewis.

Bishop Murrah preached each day at 11 o'clock. He preached three great sermons, to the delight and edification of all who heard him. He seemed at his best. Rev. O. P. Armour preached a good sermon Saturday evening, and Rev. J. E. Thomas preached a very fine sermon Sunday evening.

The following visitors were present and gave good accounts of themselves in representing their several interests: Dr. A. F. Watkins, President for Millsaps College; Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner of Millsaps College; Rev. Robt. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; Mr. T. B. King, Financial Agent of the Methodist Hospital at Memphis; Mrs. J. H. Haughton, District Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society, and Mrs. S. F. Riley, Field Secretary of the Mississippi Orphans' Home at Jackson.

Rev. T. J. Halfacre of the Columbus District was also a welcome visitor to the Conference.

Rev. O. W. Bradley and his good people at Tupelo did themselves proud in their royal entertainment of the Conference.

Houston and Pontotoc both invited the next Conference. The vote was very close, with Pontotoc slightly in the lead. The Conference then unanimously selected Pontotoc.

A spirit of harmony and good fellowship prevailed and all pronounced the Conference a good one.

Fraternally,
J. B. RANDOLPH,
Okolona, Miss. Secretary.

Sage and Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair
Brush this through faded, streaked locks and they become dark, glossy, youthful.
Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.
Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR INFLUENCE.

Paris T. Farwell.

One gift which every human being possesses and for its use will be held responsible, is the capacity to exercise influence on other lives. In fact, every one of us does exercise some kind of influence, either for good or ill. Some are capable of exerting wide influence. Some might exert much more than they do. The power of friendship, the power of relationship, the gift of speech, of eloquence, the talent for writing, the ability for leadership, all are channels of influence, talents which should be used in the service of God and his kingdom. — Congregationalist.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could never get your consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of Rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Spring are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water than those who have been relieved of their Rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

SPIRITUAL KNOWLEDGE SHOULD EVER INCREASE.

Dear Mr. Editor: I am just in receipt of the first copy of your paper, and, anxious to know who the editor was, I opened the paper at the page of information. Casting my eye down the column I noticed a headline "Knowledge, Not Opinion, Needed," which struck me very forcibly, in so much so that I have selected your publication, through which I wish a few suggestions to reach your readers, provided you can see anything "worthwhile" in them.

Quite a number of people have imbibed the idea that certain teachings have reached the point where they are boxed up and labeled eternity. With due regard to their judgment, I believe a little light let in will start them to thinking. Man is only in his infancy, in appreciation of the stupendous knowledge and wisdom of his Creator, when we come to understand that the finite intelligence is dependent upon "Infinite Intelligence" for any conception of religious ideas. The term "religion" means to re-unite with God. God is wisdom—the word "God" was derived from the word "good." To live wise and "good" lives we must live religiously or we can not re-unite with "good," "God," and wisdom. The needs of the soul are by no means imaginary, nor do they rise from certain artificial requirements; they are very real, and we all know through experience that if their needs do not receive attention, we come to periods of time in life where the soul hunger becomes unbearable. In fact, we feel an aching void within that nothing in the world can supply. This surely must come from a higher source, and that higher source can be reached only through the religious and spiritual life. This feeling of interior spiritual need has always been present to some degree in every human soul, regardless of beliefs, and every religious system that has ever been evolved at any time in history has been the result of man's effort to provide something that would satisfy for the time being this spiritual demand of the soul. In many parts of the world the systems evolved have been very crude and contain but fragments of the truth; but they have been the best that the power of those higher minds of the times could work out for the relief and satisfaction of the soul. We realize, therefore, that religion is a constant demand on the higher self for clearer and clearer discernment of spiritual enlightenment, to reveal to our minds exactly why religion is necessary or why the soul is constantly crying out, so to speak, for something to satisfy the spiritual hunger with. The soul must come into the deeper and higher state of realization that its purpose be fulfilled—approach more and more the Christ consciousness. The soul must learn to enter more perfectly into conscious unity with the infinite; to learn to walk with God, to work with God and to realize that wonderful spiritual relationship that is described in the statement, "God is closer than breathing, nearer than hands and feet."

The soul must come into this deeper and higher state of realization. And in order to reach this, we must "look unto God." "Come unto me." It must heed that small voice within, the only voice "worth while," whispering to our spark of divinity to fully realize life's purpose. The human family are progressive beings and are being emancipated through prayer to a higher and nobler consciousness of the image of God that man is made in, and man, being a conscious being and in the image of God, God must be a conscious being, not an abstract principle. For the same reason God must be personal, though not a far-away personality, because being universal and omnipresent as well as personal to every soul in the universe, and it is by feeling that he is personal to us that we can enter into that oneness with the infinite which is so necessary to the true prayer.

The difference in living in the lower mental world and the upper is so great that when one goes up from one to the other he is entirely transformed. He becomes a new creature in every sense of the term. The man in the lower life mentally clings to the crude teachings that divinity exercises the characteristics of the human, failing to grasp that they are a part of the curriculum in our earthly school. As we scale up in grade we reach a height where we get glimpses of the vastness of the "supreme," and as our narrow views broaden our mental vision opens up the x-ray of our spiritual vision, and raises the veil a little higher to glimpses yet unseen, that our God-given talents may develop the higher powers of our minds that place us—if used in the spiritual sense—"Nearer, my God, to thee." And if we are made in an intellectual image, as we grow intellectually, changes from the grosser to the finer until the finite mind runs closer and closer to the Infinite. We are units—or sparks of this "Divine Light," intellectually scintillating brighter and brighter as God's effulgent light shines more and more upon us.

GOD'S FAITHFULNESS.

Gospel Herald.

"I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."

It should be enough that God "hath said," even if ten thousand other voices, both within and without the soul, should speak the contrary. His love is everlasting (Jer. 31:3). His covenant is everlasting (Isa. 61:8; Heb. 13:20), and unchangeable. "Thus saith the Lord, if ye can break my covenant of the day and my covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season, then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant." (Jer. 33:20, 21.)

Think of it—just as much as it is impossible for man to change the seasons of the day and the night, so is it impossible for God to break his covenant of mercy to one of his servants. Though "we believe not, yet he abideth faithful." (2 Tim. 2:13.)

All healthy, thriving, stalwart Christians become so by appropriating the promises. David said: "Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage forever: for they are the rejoicing of my heart. Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage" (Psa. 119:54, 111). All who believe the promises, "rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory," even in seasons of great heaviness through manifold temptations (1 Pet. 1:7, 8), knowing that "all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Rom. 8:28.)

The "sincere milk of the Word" of God is food for babes in Christ, by which they grow (1 Pet. 2:2). It is through the Scriptures that they become "rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith" (Col. 2:7.)

Jesus has left his own with many comforting promises of his abiding presence and help in time of need.

"'Tis so sweet to trust in Jesus,
Just to take him at his word;
Just to rest upon his promise;
Just to know, 'Thus saith the Lord.'"

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp, of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

The Soldiers' "Comfort Kits"

Are not complete without a box of Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to shake into the shoes. The Plattsburg Manuel advises men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning. It takes the friction from the shoe, freshens the feet and gives instant relief to corns, bunions, callouses and aching, swollen, tender feet. Allen's Foot Ease has been the standard remedy for over 25 years. Try it today and mail some packages to your friends in Army and Navy.

Drugs Excite Your Kidneys, Use Salts

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

REVIVAL AT HODGE, LA.

Dear Editor: On Sunday night, April 7, after a campaign of two weeks led by Rev. H. T. Young, Conference Evangelist, and his assistant, Rev. Earl B. Moll, we closed a revival meeting at Hodge. We labored earnestly and faithfully to give the people the pure gospel by offering Christ to them as the only hope of eternal life. Brother Young is thoroughly consecrated, and is uncompromising with sin. His sermons are of a very high order, simple in language, profound in thought, orthodox in doctrine, and the Holy Spirit attended the Word in power as he expounded it. With wonderful effectiveness he drives conviction of sin into the hearts of men, and then, with the tenderest sympathy, he applies the divine remedy—salvation by grace through faith in Jesus Christ. Brother Moll, in his helpful and inspiring work as song leader and a personal worker, added materially to the success of the meeting. As to the results of the meeting, I feel safe in saying it was one of the greatest spiritual awakenings ever witnessed at Hodge. Sinners were converted, backsliders were reclaimed, and the spiritual life of the church was quickened. Many testified to the fact that they had experienced a real revival of religion in their souls. Seventeen members were added to the Church.

REVIVAL MEETING AT NOEL MEMORIAL CHURCH.

We have just closed, on Sunday night, April 14, what is probably the best revival meeting that has been held at Noel Memorial Church in its history. Evangelist Thurston B. Price, of Siloam Springs, Ark., assisted by his singer, Mr. F. W. Rollins, conducted the services from April 2 to the end, the pastor having opened with Easter Sunday. From the beginning there were fine crowds in attendance, and on the two Sundays of Brother Price's presence with us they overflowed the large auditorium and filled the Sunday school room and balcony. People came from Ruston, Monroe, Minden, Mansfield, and other towns to be present, and on one evening a delegation of thirty from Haughton, fifteen miles distant, came in cars, the pastor, Rev. J. L. Evans, being in the party. In spite of the great "liberty loan drive," which began during the meeting, the crowds did not flag.

Brother Price's preaching is strong, thoughtful, and remarkably free from objectionable features and from over emphasis on the emotional side. He tries to do thorough work and makes no effort to secure superficial results by manipulation. He has the faculty in an unusual degree of appealing powerfully to the conscience, and his propositions, which are not multiplied, always call for full and definite surrender.

A great many came forward during the meeting either to begin the Christian life or to renew their vows. About twenty will come into the Church upon profession of faith, and others by letter.

Just prior to our meetings, we had held "Decision Day" in the Sunday school and over twenty children had given their names as applicants for Church membership and for definite confession of Christ. When all the results of the meeting and of "Decision Day" have been recorded, we will have received ninety or a hundred persons into our Church in the five months since Conference.

Our Sunday school is growing steadily in attendance and enrollment, our finances are some twenty-five per cent increased over last year, and everything points to a successful year's work.

Noel Memorial labors against some special difficulties, one of which is that First Church with its fine location, its social prestige and its active body of workers in every section of the city, including the section surrounding Noel Memorial, is within a short car ride of our neighborhood and attracts many of the people who normally should come into our congregation. But recognizing the fact that a great church is needed to minister to this growing section, in spite of these difficulties, our congregation is determined to develop a church that is second to none in its influence and work, and is making rapid strides in the direction of that goal. DEAR FRIENDS:

I am sorry to tell you that I have not sold enough whetstones to pay for the car and it will soon be summer, and I am still here in bed yet. I was so in hopes that I could get the car, so I could be put out in it this summer to see if it would help me, but I have only sold about half enough to get the car, and I once more appeal to you with all my heart and ask you all to please kindly send me a dollar for a fine whetstone. I have laid here in bed for 19 years and God knows that I have had a hard time in this world, and being a poor boy all my life has made it so much harder on me, and I do trust that you every one are willing to help me a little to pay for the car to try to make my sad lot that has befallen me more bearable and rest my tired, suffering body a little, and brighten the few remaining days of the short time that I have to stay here. When you write tell me if you want me to send the stone. Some may prefer to give me a dollar or two to help me get the car, which I need so badly. Please don't forget me this time, and help me a little if you can and I believe God will help you.

Your brother in misfortune,
JOE MORPHEW,
Trade, Tennessee.

HATCHED 117 CHICKS

John A. Clark, of Jonesboro, Ark., writes: "I hatched 117 chicks and did not lose one. Not a weak one in the flock." Mrs. J. B. Courson, Cordova, Ala., writes: "I have been using your tablets and did not lose a single chick. My neighbors want your tablets."

You will not lose a single chick, either, if you will use Reefer's Ready Relief, which every poultry raiser knows saves baby chicks from dying of that dreadful white diarrhoea plague. A package of this new scientific discovery will save 500 baby chicks. Aren't 500 of your baby chicks worth $1.00? That is less than one-half cent apiece. I take all the risk and will refund every penny of your money if Reefer's Ready Relief fails to save your chicks. A million dollar bank backs up this guarantee. Send for a dollar package to-day, or write for my free poultry book which tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. E. J. Reefer, 6401 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo.

NUX IRON PEPSIN and

SARSAPARILLA — Effective Spring Medicine Combination.

As comprised in Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron, taken in conjunction, these valuable remedies possess unequalled value for the quick relief of a long train of ailments common in the Spring season. You know well the great tonic properties of Iron. They are much increased and improved in this combination—Hood's Sarsaparilla before meals and Peptiron after.

In these days of rushing and pushing, beyond the endurance of even the most robust, nearly every man and woman needs this blood-purifying, cleansing, up-building in the Spring. If it is not supplied, the depletion of the blood and the broken-down nerves may soon give way to permanent ill-health.

If a cathartic is needed, as where there is billousness or constipation, Hood's Pills should be taken. They are purely vegetable, do not irritate.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Brethren, let me have your list of delegates to the District Conference; and let all local preachers and all others who will visit the Conference advise me as to their coming, so homes may be provided. We are looking for you and shall be disappointed should you not come. Sincerely yours,

Fayette, Miss. J. O. WARE.

THE POTENCY OF PRAYER.

The potency of prayer has subdued the strength of fire; it has bridled the rage of lions, hushed anarchy to rest, extinguished wars, appeased the elements, expelled demons, burst the chains of death, expanded the gates of heaven, assuaged diseases, repelled frauds, rescued cities from destruction, stayed the sun in its course, and arrested the progress of the thunderbolt. Prayer is an all-efficient panoply, a treasure undiminished, a mine which is never exhausted, a sky unobscured by clouds, a heaven unruffled by the storm. It is the root, the fountain, the mother of a thousand blessings.—Chrysostom.

"GLORY IN THE LORD."

Herald of Holiness.

There is a glorying which is defined as exultant pleasure, supreme satisfaction. Herein is the glorying of the follower of Jesus, incomprehensible to the worldling. As to birth, the Christian's exultant pleasure is that he has been born from above; as to position, his supreme satisfaction that he is counted among the blood-washed; as to achievement, that he is enabled to do the will of God. He shows the paradox of glorying, finding exultant pleasure, in tribulation. Not only not seeking but refusing glory of men, he glories, finds extreme satisfaction, in the shame of the cross. To such has been revealed "Christ in you the hope of glory," and to him shall come the glory and honor of the eternal world, when Christ shall sit down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, and receive the glory that was his with the Father in the beginning.

THE KEENEST REGRETS.

The bitterest tears shed over graves are for words left unsaid and deeds left undone. "She never knew how I loved her." "He never knew what he was to me." "I always meant to make more of our friendship." Such words are the poisoned arrows which cruel death shoots backward at us from the sepulcher.—H. B. Stowe.

TEN CENT TERMS.

Big totals frighten some minds. Some folks have been fairly bewildered by the sums asked for war purposes, for the Liberty Loans, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Red Cross and other drives. In every community there have been the timorous who have looked at the millions of the aggregate and have said, "It can't be done." It has been done. It has been done often, and it will be done often again; but it is done by the people who look away from the staggering whole and go to work on the basis of what they themselves or their town or district should give.

Large sums are asked for the Church—amazingly large, until we get down to the average gift. Then it all seems different. We are not talking in millions; we are talking in terms of pennies. We are saying "ten cents a week." We are saying "four dollars a year." For that is what the entire program of the Centenary of the Methodist Episcopal Church means to the average member.

Is it much? Comparatively, is it much? Our friends, the Southern Presbyterians, are just completing a campaign which is apparently assured of success, asking their people for $3,000,000 for this year, with the hope that the Church will be kept at that level in future. On the basis of membership, the Presbyterians are asking $8.55 per member, where the Centenary asks the Methodist for $4.25.—Centenary Bulletin.

TAMPA PROPERTY DESTROYED.

During the recent session of the Woman's Missionary Council a telegram was received by Mrs. MacDonell announcing the total destruction, by fire, of the church and Wesley House at Tampa, Fla. All other churches and missions were destroyed in the area of the fire, which burned four city blocks. The Council sent expressions of sympathy through the secretary. Steps will be taken to rebuild the work at once.

LEGISLATION REPORT.

The following portion of the report of the committee on legislation was adopted and recommended to the General Conference which meets in Atlanta next month:

"Whereas, the Woman's Missionary Council now has, in more than one-half of all the States and Conferences in which the M. E. Church, South, is at work, and in seven non-Christian lands, China, Korea, Japan, Africa, Brazil, Mexico, and Cuba, large educational plants and many other forms of institutional and evangelistic work for Christianizing and building up the neglected and Godless people of our own land, and

"Whereas, this ever enlarging work requires a constantly increasing number of well equipped women, who can be secured and trained only through the Woman's Missionary Societies, and who must be maintained, and their work developed by the free will offerings of their fellow-workers in the auxiliaries, whose interests and liberality must be wisely and unceasingly stimulated and increased, and

"Whereas, the responsibility and burden of administering this great work ordained of God falls upon the administrative secretaries, we recommend:

"That the Council elect four administrative secretaries whose departments of work shall be as follows:

"One shall have charge of the Oriental fields.

"One shall have charge of Latin-American fields, and African fields.

"One shall have charge of deaconess and city mission work, and

"One shall have supervision of home mission educational institutions, and social service.

"WORKING PEOPLE CAN DEMOCRATIZE BOCHES," SAYS DR. HARRY WARD.

"The only hope of the democratization of Germany and Austria lies in the working people," declared Rev. Harry F. Ward, D. D., secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service, of Boston, speaking at the recent Council meeting. His subject was "The Next Step in Home Missions."

"'The wealth and power of the world is coming into the hands of the working people,'" he quoted Charles M. Schwab as saying. "But if that great silent mass of humanity is to come to power without religion what will happen? That is exactly what is wrong with Russia to-day. We must find the way to carry the gospel to them. The safety of the world is at stake here."

"The Church has a two-fold work in missions. First, go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature; and, second, the call for great human needs." He pointed out that the first was worked for in answering the call of the Christ, and the second determines the need for activity.

NOTICE.

We had hoped to have a full account of the Council proceedings in this number of the Advocate; but failure to receive our papers and Council Daily, due probably to congestion of mails, has made it imperative that we postpone the report until a later date.

ACTIVITIES AT ST. MARK'S HALL.

St. Mark's Hall was honored by having its Head Resident, Miss Helen A. Gibson, called to Nashville to help with the Centenary work. During her absence members of the Board are giving assistance with the office work.

The call for teachers for the sewing school still continues. The attendance is not so large as during the winter months; still there are more children than can be properly handled and instructed with the present teaching force.

Mrs. James Black, chairman of the domestic science department has returned to St. Mark's and the cooking classes are taking on new life. Some of the Food Administration recipes have been tried with good results.

The Neighborhood Parlor is receiving its rightful recognition and the good work of furnishing this room goes on. Four subscriptions to magazines have been given, a rug donated, and the Mothers' Club is making dainty curtains.

The boys are not being neglected. The chairman of the Educational and Recreational Committee visited the younger Boys' Club three times during the month. Besides telling them stories, Mrs. Gaston brought flower seeds, an act which filled the boys with the greatest delight.

Subscriptions to "The American Boy" and "The Youth's Companion" were given by friends in attendance at the recent annual meeting. Would it not be a good idea for other friends to send in subscriptions? It would be hard to find a better paying investment than furnishing these boys with good, clean reading matter.

A large number of visits were made and received, and a good attendance reported at the various organizations. One hundred and seven new patients were brought to the Clinic; total number in all clinics being 364. Thirty-five laboratory tests were made.

Humors Come to the Surface in the spring as in no other season. They don't run themselves all off that way, however, but mostly remain in the system. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them, wards off danger, makes good health sure.—Adv.

THE GIFT OF GLORY.

There is only one fight that God wants us to win. That is the fight of faith. And the fight of faith is simply that we insist with ourselves upon letting Christ do all the fighting. The moment we bring our own effort, even of the slightest sort, into the conflict with temptation or testing of any sort, that moment we are defeated. If we want victory, we must perpetually remember God's word, "The battle is not yours, but God's." Jesus did not lay upon us the impossible task of overcoming the enemies that attack us in this world. He said: "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." He did not send us out to win the victory; but "thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ," Christ has won the victory, and makes a gift of it to us. So he does not ask us to be conquerors, as are men who win their own battles. He offers us something far better: "We are more than conquerors through him that loved us." This is the victory"—our fighting? No; "our faith." We are indeed to be overcomers; but always and only by the act of faith, ever receiving the finished victory from his hands. This means, when we are the center of the fiercest onslaughts that all the powers of evil can hurl against us, we may have unbroken peace, undisturbed rest.—Sunday School Times.

Coarse Hair

doesn't become you and it is as unruly as it is unbecoming. The hair should be soft and light and should hold its original luster when it is healthy. The quickest and surest way to deprive the hair of its original luster is to leave it alone to look out for itself. Each separate hair is an individual delicate structure in itself and every hair on your head, in order to contribute its share of beauty should be perfectly fed with the natural hair oil, which comprises its food. Starve your hair and, like anything else, it will die. Feed your hair with nature's hair food, "La Creole." This excellent hair food, first discovered by the Creoles of Louisiana fifty years ago and preserved by them, proved a treatment from which sprang their reputation for beautiful hair. It has since been offered the public and has served to beautify the hair of thousands of the tasteful and fastidious.

For sale by all reliable dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINE B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Our Boys in France and Home Protection

The men on the firing line represent the pick of our American youth. One in four of our boys at home was sick, rejected because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame.

If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then procure at your nearest drug store, Anuric (double strength). This "An-u-ric" drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

Send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package. "Anuric"—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"I have successfully used Doctor Pierce's Remedies, especially the Anuric Tablets, and they did me much good, as I suffered a great deal with my kidneys."—E. BLACKWOOD.

DAYTONA, FLORIDA.—"I procured two packages of Anuric Tablets, and after taking one package will say I have been almost completely relieved of the chief trouble, the dropsical swelling of my feet and legs, and I also note a marked improvement in my circulation."—E. DU[illegible]NGHA[illegible]ox 294.

UGH! A DOSE OF NASTY CALOMEL

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Freckles

There is just one way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gets rid of the old, freckled skin, gradually and harmlessly, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them

Pain

Will Master You If You Don't Master Pain

If you suffer from any Ache or Pain, take One or Two of Eden, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: This is my fourth year here. We have paid a $95 special on missions that I subscribed at Conference. The Eden charge had seven appointments when I came here. This year she calls herself a half station. Eden and two other churches have agreed to take care of the situation. We are hoping to make a better financial showing than we did with the seven appointments. We have a good, live prayer meting at Eden and as good a Sunday school as we can well have with such poor accommodations. We hope ere the year is gone to have a modern, up-to-date church building with Sunday school rooms. Our school is up to the average, if not above, accommodations considered. We are expecting the greatest year spiritually that we have ever had.—A. S. Oliver, P. C.

Petal, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: The work on the Hattiesburg Circuit is moving forward. We have just closed at Petal a very helpful meeting, with Brother J. S. Purcell assisting. Rev. W. B. Jones, our brotherly presiding elder, was with us at the Batson Church on April 6 and 7, it being the occasion of our second quarterly conference. Brother Jones also preached able sermons for us on Sunday at McCalium and the Terrell schoolhouse. Quite a number of our soldier boys from Camp Shelby and the rifle range attend our services frequently. Brother John C. Chambers, our Sunday School Field Secretary, came to us on Saturday, April 13, and we had a service that night at Lux, another Sunday morning and one at night, also one on Monday afternoon at Petal and a Sunday afternoon service at Eastabuchie. We closed the engagement at Batson on Monday night. Each of these services was instructive and entertaining. We are preparing to observe "Children's Day" at each point on the charge. With our faith unshaken in the Christ, the source of all our help, we hope to meet all discouraging features incident to our work with an uncompromising spirit.—C. E. Downer, Pastor.

April 16, 1918.

Courtland, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: Doubtless some will be glad to hear of the good meeting we have had at Courtland. Brother J. H. Bell of Columbus, our Conference evangelist, and his singer, P. J. Templeton, of Meridian, assisted us in the meeting. They make a good team. The services were well attended and the interest increased daily. Each morning Brothers Bell and Templeton conducted chapel service at the Panola County Agricultural High School and so won the hearts of this student body that many of them were touched by the earnest appeals "to make God first in their hearts and lives." One of the most beautiful sights that we have witnessed lately was when about 90 per cent of this body of young people came to the front of the rostrum agreeing to lead in a sentence prayer. Eighteen of this number did pray and the service was closed with an earnest prayer by the principal of the school for his student body. This body of young people attended our services at night, and, with their enthusiasm, added much to the meeting. Another gratifying feature of the meeting was that the people of the different denominations entered whole-heartedly into it with us and contributed largely to its success. The harmony was beautiful. There were thirteen additions to our Church and several gave their names to become members of other churches. The people of the town liberally rewarded Brothers Bell and Templeton for their services, and also sent lots of nice groceries to replenish the pantry of the pastor and his wife. This being our fourth year with these good people we shall reluctantly surrender our post to some other preacher this fall.

Our dear friend, Rev. H. C. Moorhead, is still very sick. This faithful veteran of the Cross sends his love to the brethren. Pray for him and his.—R. I. Collins, Pastor.

Lintonia Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Dear Brother Meek: Our wide-awake, energetic, and capable presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, brought the pastor and membership of this charge under great obligation by giving us Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday preceding our second quarterly conference, held at Lake City on April 7-8. He visited all the churches with me, holding special services in all except Cryme's Chapel, this being prevented by rain at the hour appointed. Our congregations were quite good and the work received a decided inspiration and uplift. The great rain of Friday night preceding our Conference cut off members confidently expecting to be present, and no doubt this put the finances less than they would have been could all our faithful stewards have been present. We are expecting the collections on the Lintonia charge to be reported in full. We see a growth in our Sunday school and a greatly improved condition in the work of the school. We have had a gracious revival on the entire charge. Funds are being raised to fully repair and paint the Lake City church, and we are assured by those who have the work in hand that it will be done without delay. Our church building at Pleasant Hill, which was burned just before our late Annual Conference and on which there was no insurance, will be replaced during the year with a better and more modern building, unless we are mistaken in calculations based upon the character of the noble men and women back of the enterprise. Our motto is, "We can and we will." Owing to the severe winter and the scattered condition of the membership, little as yet has been accomplished. The country churches are the base of supply for the strong and capable ministers and laymen of the next generation. Hoping to be able to send good tidings of progress soon, and craving an interest in the prayers of all Christians who may read this imperfect report from this part of the battle line, I am yours for victory in the war against sin and Satan.—C. H. Ellis, P. C.

Oak Grove, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have under way a movement to construct at Oak Grove a new brick church, which will cost about $6000. Of this amount about $2000 has been secured, and our committees will soon be active to raise the remainder of the sum needed. There are several reasons why we should build this church. Oak Grove is the new parish seat of West Carroll Parish. They have a new court-house here which cost $60,000, and a brick school building has recently been erected at a cost of $35,000. Oak Grove bids fare to become one of the live towns of Northeast Louisiana. It is located on what is known as the Bayou Macon ridge, which is above high water. It is on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and we are planning for a public highway which is to run from Little Rock, Ark., to Alexandria, La., passing through this parish. This church will be visible from this highway. There are thousands of acres of unimproved land near Oak Grove which can be (and is being) bought at a low price, with terms that can easily be met. Nearly every week brings new people to Oak Grove. A church situated amid conditions so promising needs to keep abreast with the time.

We have set the third Sunday in May for an "over-the-top" day, when the subscriptions of this new enterprise will be read for the first time. This project is going to be quite an undertaking for the people of Oak Grove, as this is a new town. It is going to take a steady pull, and a pull altogether, to succeed, but this we are resolved to try to make. Our Church here was destroyed by a cyclone nearly two years ago, and we have been using the Baptist Church since that time. I want all the friends to whom I have preached who still remember me and want to help this preacher in a needy work, to send me at once an offering for this new church enterprise. We should also be glad to have assistance from any other person, who may want to help a good cause. Let us hear from you, dear friends. My family and I are well pleased with the work of Oak Grove.—R. H. Bamburg, P. C.

Why I Believe in Nuxated Iron

As a Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder

Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron. It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; Physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Nannini, a prominent Clergyman, recommends it to all. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor dep't.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says there are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood builder but do not know what to take. In his opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, and other prominent people with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Last year Coahoma and Lyon of the Greenville District led the Conference with a Children's Day offering of $60 for the support of the work that means so much to the future of the Church and Nation—the religious education of our children. Olive Branch in the Sardis District was second, with an offering of $36; Byhalia in the Holly Springs District was third, with $35; Starkville in the Columbus District, fourth with $32; Tupelo, in the Aberdeen District, Corinth in the Corinth District, Minter City in the Winona District, each contributed $25; Kilmichael led the Durant District with $20. Sardis District led the other districts, with $291. The entire Conference contributed $1501.

This amount ought to be doubled the present year, and would be if we appreciated the possibilities of childhood. The Memphis Conference gave for this work last year $3955 and expects to exceed this contribution this year.

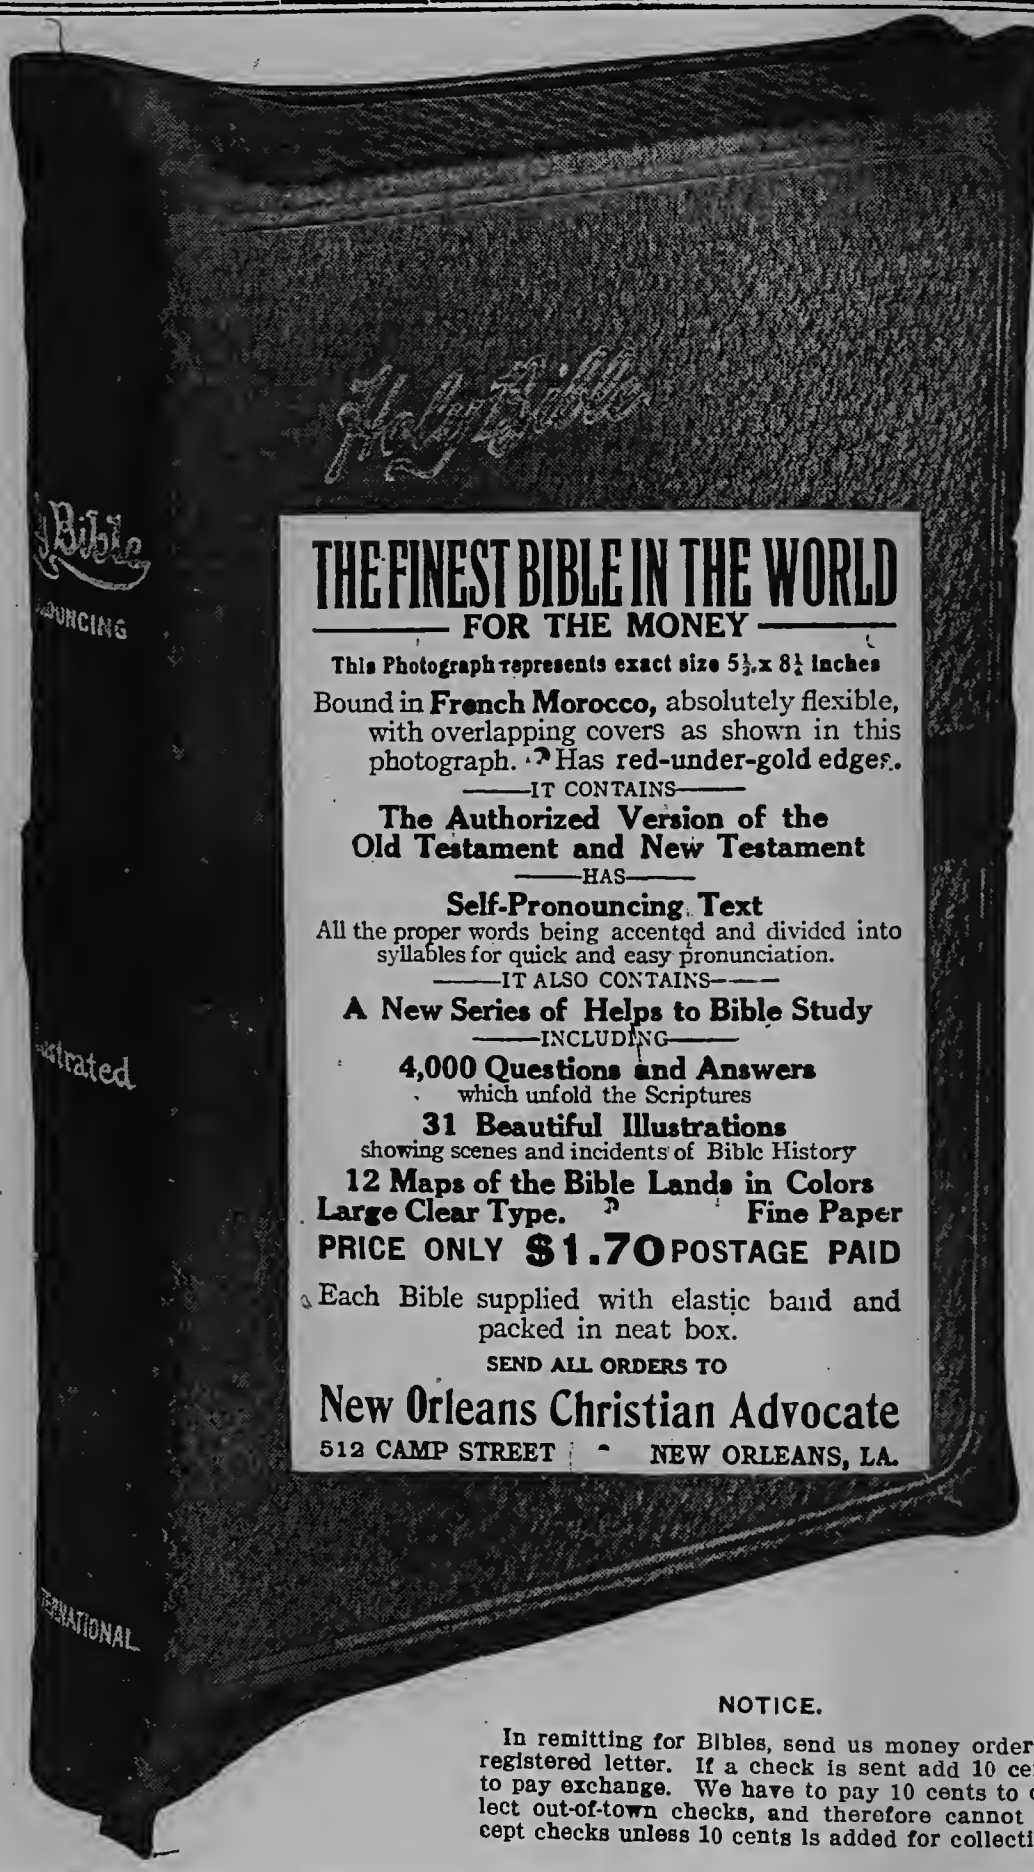
So far forty-one preachers have failed to order Children's Day programs. Of course they will order them, but they ought to be in the hands of the committee that is to train the children.

To neglect the children is to deliberately destroy the future Church. George Washington said, "We shall maintain our liberties only by the religious education of our youth." Trumbull said, "America has been practically saved to Protestant Christianity by the Sunday school." Chief Justice Brewer said, "The one who is engaged in bringing the Bible to the people is a patriot. If it were possible for any organization or number of organizations so to take this Bible and send it through the land that its teachings and precepts could be brought home to the people, the results would be grander than all the victories won in all the wars since the beginning of time." And what did Jesus say? "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not." How can they come unless they are taught?

NOTES FROM THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

I have lately had the privilege and pleasure of speaking to the good folks of Lux, one of the appointments of the Hattiesburg Circuit. Rev. C. E. Downer is the pastor and he is in great favor with his people. This Sunday school is a union school; so we could not do much definite work. We enrolled two individual students in the teacher-training work—one signing the pledge to continue until he had finished the complete course.

We were at Petal for three services. We were enabled to organize one class for Young Men and Women. I hope that this will be a great stimulus for the whole school. The Workers' Council was put in this school, and a Home Department was promised.



One individual teacher-training pupil was enrolled at Estabutchie, and two were enrolled at Batson. All of the above Sunday schools have agreed to give one Sunday's collection to Missions and Brother Downer has promised to help in carrying out this purpose. All these schools have promised and are getting ready to observe Children's Day. This is greatly appreciated by the Board.

Two days were spent at Wiggins at the Seashore District Conference. The brethren were most kind and patient in hearing and extending me all the courtesies of the Conference. It was a most profitable Conference, and the reports of the preachers showed that the years' work was well under way. The brethren made many expressions of their preparation for Children's Day. I hope that each church in the district will observe the day.

I want to thank all the brethren for their kindness to me and ask them to continue their prayers in my behalf.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Field Secretary.

10-CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

PHILLIPS BROOKS ON PRAYER.

Pray, the manliest thing that a man can do, the fastening of his life to the eternal, the drinking of his thirsty soul out of the great fountain of life. And pray distinctly. Pray upon your knees. One grows tired sometimes of the free thought, which is yet perfectly true, that a man can pray anywhere and anyhow. But men have found it good to make the whole system pray. Kneel down, and the very bending of those obstinate and unused knees of yours will make the soul kneel down in the humility in which it can be exalted in the sight of God.

THE CRUCIAL TEST.

"A minister may be very popular and multitudes may flock to hear him, and yet his ministry may be a miserable failure. The crucial test is, Does he show Christ to men? Does he make clear to them the condition upon which their eternal destiny depends, and lead them to surrender themselves to Christ? If he does not lead men to Christ, it is of small import that he has a temporary following."

A wise man is not inquisitive about things impertinent.—Broome.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

THE POWER OF THE HOLY GHOST.

The disciples of Jesus are to bear testimony. They are to be witnesses "unto the uttermost parts of the earth" by the power of the Holy Ghost. No man can witness to a fact only as he has personal knowledge of that fact. Hearsay evidence is not good evidence. To have experience and bear testimony in spiritual things we must have holy communion and fellowship with God. Religious testimony need not be based upon the deductions of reason or any of our mental faculties. It is the simple statement of personal experience and is the prerogative of all believers. The witnessing for God and his Christ is the special work of all Christians, and the power for it is the power of the Holy Ghost. The power of the Holy Ghost is something wholly different from intellectual power, and does not depend upon mental strength or culture. It is not mere emotional fervor and enthusiasm. Those who have "a zeal not according to knowledge" strive in their own strength to extend the kingdom, and yet be lacking in the fire of Divine love. It may be that one gifted and possessed of personal magnetism may draw large congregations by his logic and eloquence, and yet have a barren ministry in that those that hear him are not convicted of sin, made truly penitent and born again. The ministry of such an one is not in the power of the Holy Ghost.

The power of the Holy Ghost indicates deep spiritual conviction of the truth and puts within man an abiding testimony as to the presence and power of the Holy Spirit in his soul and life. There will result personal fellowship with God in holy living. His thoughts, words and deeds will be pure and holy. The power of the Holy Ghost is known as divine unction, and is a holy anointing, enabling one to speak with a strong power.

This is said to be "the great lost gift of the Church and of the ministry." It is essential to the having of a truly successful revival, and the pastors and people who have the gift, and work it, have the Divine secret of winning blood-bought souls.

The power of the Holy Ghost has all to do with service and should be sought in believing prayer as a special induement. Paul in the 13th of 1st Corinthians speaks of the necessity of love reigning in the heart and life in order to work in the power of the Holy Ghost. May the love of God and our fellow-men have our beloved Church and its every member in full possession, and may the power of the Holy Ghost work mightily in us, that we may win for our blessed Master many millions of precious souls!

May the General Conference—Bishops and clerical and lay delegates—all receive the gift of the power of the Holy Ghost, for just that is what is greatly needed by the ministers and laity of our Methodism. The Power of the Holy Ghost, given in answer to believing prayer, would make the next quadrennium the best and most successful in all the glorious history of the M. E. Church, South.

"OVER-HONED."

A writer in a current periodical, who uses the nom de plume, "Aviator," writes as follows:

"In the days before we had learned to use safety razors, the man who wished to bring his steel down to a fine edge found it was easy to over-hone the blade. Too much stropping was as bad as none, for the man who kept up the motion too long found that he had 'turned the edge.' The Aviator received the other day a letter from a critical hearer in a big city church. And his correspondent said: 'Our minister studied four years in one university and three years in the seminary, and then had two years of study in Germany. And now no one can discover from his sermons what he believes—if indeed he believes anything.' One such over-honed minister preached six or eight years in a church well known to the Aviator—and when he left, the church, in a good neighborhood and of historic importance, was dead past resurrection. He could not have more effectually destroyed the church had he been educated only in a little red schoolhouse and taken a post-graduate course in a sawmill. No man is less fitted for success in the ministry than the man who has spent all the best years of life getting ready for it."

This puts an important truth in a very striking way. Education for the work of the ministry, if it be of the right sort, is a good thing; but not all of the equipment and skill needed by a preacher for the difficult service that he is expected to render can be secured from text-books taught in college halls, any more than a good farmer, or a good lawyer, or a good physician, or a good mechanic can thus be made. There are other elements than education that go to make up efficiency in the pastorate, and these should not be overlooked. Scholarship, though it has its place in helping the Church to fulfill her great mission, does not necessarily make one an effective leader of men. On the contrary, a too-exclusive tarrying with books may make a man impracticable and place him largely out of touch with ordinary men and everyday affairs. In training her ministry, the Church needs to exercise common sense and maintain a proper balance between the things that contribute to the development of pastors who can reach and win and spiritually strengthen the people. We ourself have seen some striking cases of "overhoning."

A MATTER OF VAST IMPORTANCE.

In his impressively able article which appeared in the Advocate of April 18, Rev. N. G. Augustus, who is one of the most scholarly Methodist ministers in Mississippi, touches upon doctrinal conditions in the Methodist Episcopal Church, suggesting that the unsound teaching in that denomination is one reason why we should hesitate to have our Church to enter into organic union with it. In this connection, we desire to call attention to the following extract from a recent address to the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, from the pen of Dr. Jay Benson Hamilton, Editor of "The Bible Champion," who is a distinguished minister in the Church, North, and a brother of Bishop J. W. Hamilton and Bishop Franklin Hamilton:

"Your branch of the denomination (the M. E. Church, South), being controlled by unswerving loyalty to the Sacred Book, can stay the drift by demanding as a condition of union an agreement for the maintenance of the old standards and a prohibition toward any future approach toward rationalism. The coming generations must be safeguarded by confining to the established standards of orthodox Christianity, publishing houses, periodicals, pulpits, Sunday schools, and institutions of learning."

As many know, the Course of Study for young preachers in the Church, North, has been severely under fire, a number of the Annual Conferences of that denomination having by formal resolutions denounced it as rationalistic and un-Methodistic. The way this Course of Study was fastened on the Northern Church was by taking the arrangement of it out of the hands of the College of Bishops and placing it in the hands of a Committee named by the General Conference.

The ultra-unionists of our Church are already moving in this direction. Note the following deliverance made by Dr. John M. Moore at the Baltimore meeting of the Joint Commission (see proceedings of that meeting, Page 62): "I think that the requirements for admission into the ministry and the Course of Study for the ministry should be matters to be determined by the General Conference. The Course of Study in our Church is made out by the College of Bishops."

MEMORIAL AGAINST FURTHER NEGOTIATIONS.

[The following memorial to the General Conference was adopted by the Greenville (Miss.) District Conference, recently in session at Merigold, Miss. This is in many respects the leading district of the North Mississippi Conference.]

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled at Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Fathers and Brethren:

Believing that any legislation that would now consummate the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would fail to promote the welfare of either of these branches of Methodism, or extend the power and influence of either of them for good, but on the contrary would be an occasion of disruption, discord, and great dissatisfaction among us, and would seriously interfere with our Southern ideals, convictions, and customs; therefore

We, the members of the Greenville District Conference, of the North Mississippi Annual Conference, assembled at Merigold, Miss., do most earnestly and respectfully request and memorialize you to discharge the Unification Commission appointed at the last General Conference and leave us in our present status and organization, holding only fraternal relations with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A PRAYER.

By Rev. Campbell Coyle, D.D.

Like a vast wilderness the future stretches on.
My Father; and standing at the entrance
To the wood I know not where to enter,
Or entering, what the path that I should take.
Therefore, hold Thou my hand, and push aside the thick
And tangled underbrush that my feet stumble not.
Thou also my beacon be that I lose not my way
When dark clouds gather overhead, and wild storms prowl
Amid the wilderness; and lead me at set of sun
To the safe shelter of my Father's house.

TENNYSON'S ANSWER.

(The Southern Churchman.)

A visitor, staying with the poet Tennyson, at his home on the Isle of Wight, one day ventured to ask him what he thought of the Lord Jesus Christ. The two were walking in the garden when the question was asked. For a moment the poet made no reply, but seemed lost in reverie. Then he stopped before a beautiful flower, every petal of which seemed to be drinking in the enlivening rays of sunlight, and said, as simply as a child: "What the sun is to that flower, Jesus Christ is to me. He is the Sun of my soul."

CHRISTIANITY IN THE HOME.

"There are two kinds of Christianity in the home," said Dr. Cuyler, in writing on this important subject. "There are two kinds of piety in the home. One is a pious sham; the other is a solid reality. One parent prays for the conversion of his family, and then sets them an example of money worship or fast-living—and even cracks jokes, talks politics, and gives Sunday dinners after the most solemn sermons in the sanctuary. The other parent not only prays for the conversion of his and her children, but aims to lift them towards Christ. The conversation of the fireside, the books selected for their reading, the amusements chosen for their recreation, the society that is invited and the aims set before them, all bear in one and the right way. It is in the power of every parent to help, or to sadly hinder, the salvation of their offspring. May God help all parents to fulfill their high and holy trusteeship."

THE PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT.

A new Methodist Bishop has just told his people in Chicago that the Church is very much behind other progressive agencies. But did the Bishop carefully consider his statement? Of course, the Church does not chase off with every new thing which is sprung upon a harassed public. But if there is anything more progressive in the moral improvements of the world than the Church has been during the last hundred years, I do not know where it keeps itself.

What has been the awakening power in India? The Church. What awakened Japan? The Church. What started all the stir that there has been in China? The Church. Who gave the impulse and push to the great temperance movement which is now making the water wagon the band wagon? Members of the Church. When the sisters organized the Women's Christian Temperance Union, there was something doing. Prohibition was a far-off hope until they put the power of their passion into it. Now the warring nations of Europe have been compelled to adopt it in order to make stronger men for the terrific strain of the great struggle. Does any good movement start up in any community that you do not find church members at the front end of it? Puncture the tire of one of these movements and you have to call in the Church to fix it. It makes one tired to hear the Church criticised as too slow and not up-to-date, when it is anywhere from ten years to a thousand years ahead of its generation, and when everybody who starts a reform either borrows his ideas from the Church or begs for its money to pay the bills. It is where the church bells are ringing that you hear the sound of the going.—The Presbyterian.

AS IT APPEARS TO ME.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D.D.

I am a great believer in Moses. He had a level head. He said: "And if thou shalt say in thy heart, How shall we know the word which the Lord hath spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously; thou shalt not be afraid of him." That St. Louis meeting of the Commissioners spoiled the reputation of some prophets. We need no longer be "afraid," for one, of our friend, Dr. John M. Moore. He predicted with a jaunty confidence after the Savannah meeting that the remaining differences between the Northern and Southern Commissioners would be quickly and easily adjusted at the St. Louis meeting, and gave out with a flourish that he would soon accomplish the task of Methodist unification. But unification is, as a friend expresses it, a "dead cock in the pit." I believed all along that they could not run over such men as Hoss and Candler and Reeves and White, and others, on our Commission—men who are willing to go a long way to meet the other side, but who are too faithful to their commission to do what they were never authorized to do; and too wise to surrender our ground. They know the sentiment of our people and the invincible resolve of the South to stand for the policy of the separation of the races, and could not be hypnotized by fraternal clairvoyants! As a prophet, Brother Johnnie is sadly discredited.

But there must be no cessation of our earnest opposition. Keep up the fire, Meek, or Dr. Meek, as that handsome Tom Holloman thinks I ought to call you, and as your proper "entitlements" deserve. Fight it to a finish. The General Conference at Oklahoma City pronounced for unification by reorganization, not by merging. This four years of agitation has cleared the clouds away for near-sighted prophets, and, if we are wise, will only mark a stage toward the real unification on a basis of broader and more comprehensive principles. If this plan fails, as I hope it will, no one need despair of our coming together on some other plan that will recognize the right of smaller bodies to exist and work according to their special genius. A proper application of the great principle of federal representation, similar to that in our political system, by which a hundred million Americans live togther in peace, will ultimately solve the problem of a various Methodism. Rhode Island is not as large as many counties in Texas, yet "Little Rhodey" maintains its separate statehood, manages its local affairs, and is at the same time an integral part of the great American Union. Our brethren in the North must come to the point where they are willing for us to live our own life in our own way before we ought to unite.

I expect to be tickled half to death, Meek (there it is again!), seeing the pro-union prophets trying to get back in line, and a lot of fellows tumbling off the fence they have been straddling for a year or two. Some of them must be pretty sore. Time and mustard will restore them. I'm not sorry for them; they ought to have grit enough to be on one side or the other. I have had some pretty hard raps for speaking out; but here is a letter from an old Union veteran saying my "bark is worse than my bite" he is sure, because I am frank. Just so.

I'm ten years younger since the prospect of union is fading away, and I'll be younger still if about five hundred readers of the Advocate will send me 50 cents each for a copy of my "Tale of the School in the Sticks." I would like to have another school like that one I had at Lumberton, and am watching for another big-hearted J. H. Hinton to say "Go ahead." One thing, a man in a work like that is immune from the fatal disease of Almanac-itis, which is incurable by any human skill. Old age is pitiable, especially when its unfortunate victim dries up and all the sap and snap go out of him. I don't think I'll ever get old. I see the funny side of everything yet; I still love to lie under the shade of a big tree, where the buttercups burn in the grass, and read Locksley Hall and L'Allegro, then shut my eyes, and, with the good fairies all about me, see the most wonderful things! Away with your solemn-cholly, shuffle-footed, kicking, whining, grumbling type of old age! "Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything," according to William of Avon. I have climbed to the heights, but find the path still winding upward bordered with flowers. I am living on the mountain-top, and see no sign of the "millennium;" but do see the plan of Infinite love unfolding in glorious beauty, and feel mighty sorry for those prophets who are waiting for Jesus to come in order to conquer the devil. The more I study the Bible the less I believe in the "pre-millennial" idea of our Lord's second coming. There is too much unfinished business for the end to be near at hand.

Whatever is the outcome of the unification business at Atlanta, I take off my hat to those Commissioners on our side who stood firm for the integrity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. If they were near at hand I would shake the hand of every man of them who could not be doped with the perfume of Saratoga roses, and then set 'em up to a bowl full of Bobbitt's luscious strawberries and Sister Logan's Jersey cream! Yes, I think I would let you come along, too, Meek; because you have been our champion, and your trumpet has given no uncertain sound. When his flag was shot away, and the British Commander asked Captain Paul Jones if he was ready to surrender, he replied, "We have just begun to fight!" Keep shooting, Meek. Jones won, and so will we.

IS THERE A RACE PROBLEM?

Some Reflections.

The quotations (given in the Advocate of March 28) from Lord Morley's private correspondence, not written for publication, show first of all that social equality was indulged at Andrew Carnegie's Scotch castle, other Americans, in addition to Mr. Carnegie, apparently enjoying social intercourse with the noted American Negro, Booker Washington. No source of information is at hand by which it can be determined whether or not social equality is also practiced in Mr. Carnegie's New York home. But the presumption is that with him it is a matter of taste and not one of geography.

In the next place the correspondence shows that this able and distinguished British statesman, who, as a responsible minister of the Crown of Great Britain, has had to deal with race problems all over the world, in India, Egypt, South Africa, where conditions are acute, and in Australia, holds the conviction that the United States has a race problem more difficult of solution than that of any other country, if, indeed, it is not "insoluble." In the light of such testimony, how can Southern Methodists affirm that there is no race problem in the South?

Not infrequently the Southern public is assured by public speakers of both races that social equality is not desired by the Negro. This will not bear examination. That it is practiced in parts of the North is well known—it cannot be truthfully denied. Booker Washington himself is reported to have said that "if the Republican party would stop eating with the Negro and the Democratic party would quit sleeping with him, he would get along much better." Yet he continued, apparently, to break bread with his Republican friends.

Nor should anybody be surprised that the Negro thus aspires. It is a perfectly human desire. But the South dare not depart from her traditional principles and practice; and nothing can be more certain than that this issue will be squarely presented to the Southern people should union between Northern and Southern Methodism take place. The result would be inevitable ruin of the Southern Church and possibly terrible civil commotion.

Side Lights.

The Outlook (New York) for March 13 contained a sympathetic and interesting article on "Mobilizing 'Rastus" from a Lieutenant who had been training Negro troops of the selective draft, in which he relates an incident of one of the Negro soldiers preaching to his fellows as follows: "He had chosen for his theme the possibilities offered the Negro in the present war, showing how he might prove himself fit for a greater trust, larger responsibilities, and complete sharing with the white man of the vote (Italics mine) and its benefits if he bore himself as a man during the fight." This is described as an ignorant Negro. Is not the possession of such aspirations by those of this type significant?

The same number of The Outlook contained the following:

"The other incident comes from a very well known Northern citizen who is spending the winter in the South. In a personal letter he writes as follows: 'I can tell you a beautiful story for The Outlook. The policy of giving Negro regiments Negro officers has caused great controversy North and South. I have myself noticed in moving among the soldiers of our own army a very marked unwillingness in many quarters of white officers to salute the superior black officers. There have been several unpleasant incidents in consequence. In the South, naturally, this blameworthy attitude is more in evidence. Here in South Carolina prejudice against the black man is, I think, more marked than in any other State of the Union.

"A Negro major in this State found himself in a room with several junior officers (all, of course, in uniform). The white officers avoided giving the salute. The black man, looking at them steadily, quickly took off his coat, hung it on a chair, and said, 'Salute that, gentlemen, and I am satisfied.' The salute was immediately given. A big man, brave and witty, that Negro major."

Now this story is of a piece with the one concerning a Negro physician on a Pullman car by Dr. I. Garland Penn, which was quoted in the columns of the New Orleans Advocate some weeks ago. Both belong to a category that could be aptly described by Bishop Hoss's well-remembered retort, when editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, that a certain gentleman was "not inconveniently scrupulous about his facts." Neither story can be believed. Neither Dr. Penn nor the correspondent of The Outlook claim to have witnessed what they related. It is the sources of their information which is challenged.

The effective opposition of the New Orleans Christian Advocate to an obliterating form of union with the Northern Methodist Church has doubtless led to the private circulation of the charge that its Editor is in part animated by feelings of hostility to the Negro. Nothing could be more false, if my information is well-founded. I understand that in his home State, Mississippi, the Negroes are very fond of Dr. Meek, that he has befriended them on many occasions, and that he has made enemies by openly opposing candidates and policies calculated to do their race harm under excited conditions of public feeling.

On the other hand, I have sat at table in public dining-rooms with some of those who are apparently willing to swallow the Negro in order to accomplish Methodist union and have been mortified at their offensive treatment of Negro servants whose ministrations were unsatisfactory to them.

A SOUTHERN METHODIST.

MRS. D. W. BABB—AN APPRECIATION.

On March 27, 1918, the earthly pilgrimage of Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Babb came to an end; and with its ending a beautiful and loving ministry to the world was closed. For quite two years she had fought heroically against disease; and despite the ebb and flow of the contest it was all the way a losing fight. But when the time came to cross to the other side, the calm and confident resignation, with which she gave her bent, tired and frail body to the dust, was a more eloquent defense of immortality than any speech that human mind ever conceived or human lips ever uttered.

Sister Babb, who was the daughter of Peyton and Nancy Atkins, was born in McNairy County, Tenn., January 12, 1845. In early womanhood she was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of which Church she was a devoted member until her translation to the Church triumphant. On December 17, 1867, she was married to Rev. D. W. Babb, who is now one of the veteran itinerants of the North Mississippi Conference. But Brother Babb is not more a veteran itinerant than was his sainted wife, for she traveled with him for nearly fifty years. Over hills and valleys, and in heat and cold she went to be joined with him in the Master's work; and always and everywhere she was an effective ally. To the burdened heart she loaned the sunshine and warmth of her own faith and hope; and from her remarkable knowledge of the Book she was able to furnish a staff to the weak and faltering soul.

But after all a sweet and beautiful and devoted life cannot be crowded into dates and traits and places. God himself has fixed the measure of the meaning and possibility of the redeemed life—it is heaven and the beautiful forever. So to the bereaved husband, relatives, and friends we confidently offer the holier companionship and friendship of heaven. Rapidly the shadows grow thicker and darker. The night of life will soon be at hand. But when the shadows have passed and the fullness of the resurrection morning has come, we will be joined with our loved ones in the beautiful and unbroken harmonies of heaven forever.

Church News

Archbishop Ireland, who was thought to be recovering from a physical breakdown, has, according to a dispatch from St. Paul, Minn., recently had a serious relapse.

Gipsy Smith, the noted English evangelist, is touring the United States in the interest of causes connected with the great war. He paid a visit to Memphis, Tenn., last week. This well known minister has spent much of his time for the past two years with the soldiers in France.

The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, maintained by the Church of England, received for its work $70,000 more during the year 1917 than it did during the year 1916. There was said to be a gratifying increase in the receipts from all sources except legacies, which fell off $10,000.

We clip the following dispatch from a local paper: "Boston, April 18.—A proposal to amend the canons of the Protestant Episcopal Church of this State to give women the right of franchise on the floor of the diocesan convention was voted down by the clerical delegates, after a long and heated discussion at the annual convention here."

The following press dispatch was sent out from Rochester, Minn., where the Mayo brothers, the famous surgeons, have their great hospital, on April 21: "Bishop J. H. McCoy, of the Methodist Church, South, whose home is in Birmingham, Ala., underwent an operation at a hospital here on Tuesday. His condition was said to be somewhat relieved. The hospital physicians said the Bishop suffered no ill effects from the operation." The Church will feel anxious concerning this beloved Chief Pastor until it is definitely announced that his restoration to health is assured.

MY VIEWS CONCERNING THE QUESTION.

Certainly I am against the so-called unification as it now stands. I say so-called unification, and that is exactly what I mean, for any one can look at the plan proposed for the Regional Conferences and see that if it is carried out it will make a divided Church instead of a united Church. Sectional likes and dislikes would be emphasized. In fact, it would be no union at all, but a division. Why should they have these Regional Conferences? I think that a little thought will make the reason obvious. It is simply this: we have not the proper faith in each other, and until we can have confidence in each other I think we had better remain as we are. What differences does it make whether we have a Bishop elected in the Northern part of the Church or in the Southern part if he is a man of God? If sectional lines are to be wiped out, why this division? Why, my dear brethren, it is not wiping out sectional lines, but creating more. Now I am a Southern Methodist and expect to live and die in Dixie; but unless we can unite as brethren and have one great white Methodist Church of America and one great colored Church of America I think that we had better quit trying to unite and give more time and money to the building up of the kingdom of Christ.

I tell you that the Negro problem is not all that I object to in the proposed plan of union, but I do seriously object to this as it now stands. Let me say right here that I have no malice against the colored man and would not knowingly anger him in the least. I am frank to say that if separating the two Churches meant to throw the Negro out of the Church without any Church affiliations at all and without any Christian advice or educational assistance, I would say, boys, let's open the doors of our Church and take them; boys, let's fix a place in our church houses where the Negro can come in and let's take care of him until he can take care of himself. But as it means neither of these, I see no reason why we should have the white Church hampered by the Negroes, nor the colored Church hampered by the whites. I am sure that we of the South can not sympathize with the North as we should. Neither can they with us. We each have problems that are peculiar to us, but to save myself I can not see why the Negro could object to being set up in a Church to himself, being governed by and presided over by men of his own color. It has been a surprise to me, lo! these many days, that the M. E. Negroes did not pull loose from the M. E. Church and organize a Church where they could have chief pastors of their own color.

And to save me, I can not see how a member of the M. E. Church, South, could for one moment think of taking in the M. E. Church Negroes when we are getting along in harmony and have settled the Negro question. How could we do this and leave the C. M. E. Church Negroes entirely out? If the C. M. E. Negro can not come in, we are morally responsible for him and can not cast him aside. We recognize the ability of the Negroes more when we say that they are capable of self-government and should be kept in a Church of their own. The M. E. Church virtually says he is a weakling and is not capable of self-government, and that, therefore, he must be presided over by a white Bishop. The M. E. Church Negro virtually says, "We acknowledge our inability to govern ourselves. We are weaklings and need the supervision of white Bishops."

Yes, I believe in taking the Negro into the M. E. Church, South, in our Missions in Cuba, Brazil, and Africa and in keeping him there until he is sufficiently educated and numerically strong enough to take care of himself; but not here in America. He is capable of self-government, and it is doing him no injustice at all to set him up in a Church to himself any more than it is for us to be in a Church to ourselves. God made us different, and he intended for us to remain different. It is my conviction that the different Churches with fraternal relations is the best solution to the problem, and it seems to me that both sides ought to be able to see this. If we could have one white Church of America with sectional lines wiped entirely out and one colored Church of America with sectional lines wiped entirely out, I would say, "How beautiful it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

PEARLS OF HUMILITY.

Wait not for some great cross to show
How much with patience thou canst bear;
Try now thy strength in bending low
To take the cross of daily care;
It may seem poor and small instead,
But it may yet more needful be
To train thee, first of all, to tread
The path of true humility.

THE AGITATION FOR UNIFICATION.

I cannot refrain from saying just a word in behalf of the rank and file of the men and women who go to make up our Southern Methodism, and when I give voice to very positive views concerning the unification of the two branches of American Methodism along the lines proposed by the Joint Commission, I feel that I am likewise expressing the conviction of thousands of men and women in our Church whose views have not been recorded in the columns of our church papers.

Surely it must be apparent to the great majority of thoughtful men and women of our Southern Methodism that the further agitation of the matter of unification of the two great branches of American Methodism will result in very great damage to our Church. The movement up to the present time has not been at all helpful in promoting good fellowship and harmony.

The Methodist Episcopal Church should have first settled the status of its Negro membership. Possibly then we would have had a starting place; but not where we stand now. The Commission on Unification having failed to agree on a plan of unification based on justice to our Church, even the semblance of a suggestion of a slight measure of autonomy having been eliminated, and the Negro question left unsettled, I feel that it is time to stop the wrangling, and sincerely hope that our General Conference will not allow this question to be projected into another quadrennium.

Union will not come by "promotion;" agitation for unification will not secure real union. When the two Churches are really ready for union it will not be difficult to get together. That time is not now. Meanwhile, let's move to "table the report of the Commission," and discharge the Commission.

Southern Methodists are not willing to become a minority in a new organization, where our strength would approximate one-third, and where the Regional Conference (made up of General Conference delegates) is only a "farce," as even the Bishops that would be elected for the Southern Regional Conferences would have to be approved by the majority of our Northern friends.

I have lived as much of my adult life in the Middle Atlantic and Middle Western States as in the South. There is a temperamental difference, particularly as between the people of New England and the northern section of the Middle Atlantic States and those of the far South. We are different; our ways our different; our intentions and motives may be equally good—but we are not quite prepared yet to live under the same roof.

Ever since the Cape May Convention opportunities have been accorded the Methodist Episcopal Church for developing a co-operative spirit and working along federation lines, and keeping out of distinctly Southern Methodist territory. They have not been over-careful in keeping to the spirit of federation agreements, and while over-zealous for union with our Church—while the "courting days" have given opportunity for love-making—they have failed to keep faith in the larger matter of agreements already entered into, and have not, seemingly at least, always felt that our convictions and position with reference to the question of either federation or unification were always worthy of the serious consideration of their General Conference.

Our extreme unionists, willing for union at any price, having surrendered so much of what was deemed as absolutely essential in the Oklahoma plan, in order that our interests as a great Church might be adequately safeguarded, without agreement being reached for union upon a basis "fair and honorable for all," still seem willing to let this wrangling continue, evidently hopeful of ultimately being able to turn us over to the Methodist Episcopal Church for absorption—for the plan outlined means nothing less.

Our General Conference at Oklahoma gave expression to its views. Every paragraph of the Oklahoma plan was entitled to the fullest consideration by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. All that had been previously hinted at as desirable in promoting federation between the two Churches should have had the serious thought of our sister Church, and every agreement should have been kept. Not so. Almost at the very time of the adoption of our Oklahoma plan we find our sister branch of Methodism appropriating $50,000 for a new Methodist Church in Atlanta, where we have almost forty churches, and no less than eight handsome edifices with large congregations—less excuse for a Northern Methodist Church than anywhere else. Did not the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Minneapolis, fail to give consideration to the Chattanooga plan, and did not the Saratoga meeting fail to give us the courtesy of allowing the Oklahoma plan a place in the Daily Advocate, but instead gave us a new thing?

I have not been in sympathy with the small band of laymen (and some preachers) who have been "promoting the movement for revision." There seem to be some strong reasons for the belief that some of the extreme unionists of our Church are in hearty sympathy with these men who find so many faults with our Southern Methodism and feel that all the good Bishops are in the M. E. Church. These men will soon be forgotten, but unborn generations will revere the names of Pierce, Marvin, Kavanaugh, McTyeire, Galloway, Wilson, and those of our living Bishops who fought the Vanderbilt steal.

A REVIVAL IN THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Dear Dr. Meek: Allow me to say through the columns of the Advocate that we have just closed a fine revival meeting at Point Aux Chien (Dog Point), a community twenty-three miles below Houma, on a line between Terrebonne and Lafourche Parishes. I began the meeting on Sunday, April 14, and Brother Hebert came to me on Tuesday and preached till the following Sunday night.

This is a community where we had made a small beginning several years ago, but because of a shortage of workers, after making a couple of converts, we were compelled to discontinue operations. In the meantime, the Baptists came in and reaped the most of what little we had been able to sow. After allowing them to try their hand at evangelizing the community, it became evident that they would never extend their gains beyond the three or four of our members whom they had been able to proselyte; so we again entered the field, and, as an evidence of God's blessings upon our labors, I will say that just about a year ago we had only two members, and when we closed our meeting last Sunday night we organized the Point Aux Chien Methodist Church with a membership of 21.

Our meeting was held in a vacant dwelling house fitted up for a church, but aside from the two services held daily there, we were invited to different homes to hold services, and sometimes had as many as four a day. It would have done your heart good to have heard our choir, consisting of about twenty young people, many of whom are still nominally Roman Catholics, singing our Protestant hymns, in both French and English. We closed Sunday night (April 21) with a packed house, having administered the Sacrament in the afternoon to twenty-one persons and received eight into the Church on profession of faith. Some others who have moved into the community are coming in by letter. We nominated a board of trustees and initiated a movement looking to the erection of a little chapel. Brother Hebert said to me at the close of the meeting that he knew of no place within the bounds of the Louisiana Conference where the gift of a hundred dollars to help build a chapel would mean more for the Kingdom of God than at this very point.

Will not the readers of the Advocate pray that God may bless us in this, and the entire French Mission field? Your brother in Christ.

A. D. MARTIN,
Pastor of Lafourche Mission.

SOME RECENT GIFTS TO THE MILLSAPS COLLEGE DORMITORY.

Dear Doctor Meek: On a recent Sunday I had the pleasure of preaching to a very appreciative congregation at Doddsville, in the Delta, and was much gratified at the generous response made by the good people of that community to the appeal for aid for the Millsaps College Dormitory. Dr. J. E. Coleman, a princely layman of Doddsville, favored the College with a subscription of $500, which is all the more appreciated in view of the fact that his children are all girls. After meeting Mrs. Coleman, who is a woman of exceptional intelligence, refinement, and consecration, it was easy to understand the Doctor's deep interest in education and the work of the Church. Other gifts, smaller in amount, but none the less appreciated, were made by Miss Lee Grider, sister of Mrs. Coleman; Mrs. B. O. Bibb, Jr., and by Brothers J. A. Sykes, J. T. Coleman, and E. L. Coleman. The Commissioner greatly enjoyed association with that genial and successful pastor, Brother W. S. Shipman, who is much beloved by his flock.

I take great pleasure also in reporting that Brother H. L. Wilkinson, a big-hearted layman of Shelby, who last year made a contribution of $500 to Millsaps College, has recently increased his subscription to $1000, notwithstanding the fact that he is making a large contribution to Grenada College. May others be inspired to emulate his noble example! I am glad to say that, in spite of the drive for the Red Cross work, Liberty Loan Bonds, etc., excellent progress is being made in our campaign for the Dormitory, and we hope to see work begun on this new building early in the summer. The hearty co-operation of our Methodist laymen throughout the State is needed, however, in order to insure the complete success of this worthy enterprise. Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK,
Commissioner.

AGAINST THE TENTATIVE PLAN.

The following resolutions on Unification were passed a few days since by the Official Board of the M. E. Church, South, at Drew, Miss.

Whereas the Joint Commission on Unification has repudiated the Oklahoma City plan, we feel called upon to express to the said Commission and the Southern Methodists at large our disapproval of the tentative plan lately published for the following reasons:

1. The tentative plan, now under consideration, is a repudiation of the Oklahoma City plan and puts the Southern Church with its millions of consecrated money in church buildings, parsonages, hospitals, schools, colleges, church periodicals, and printing establishments, in the hands of Northern and Negro Methodists, the latter being only a handful of the great body of Negroes of the South, who are in need of help—and when once this is done we can never recover it.

2. The tentative plan would make it possible for our Bishops to be removed from office at the whim of a General Conference controlled by Northern and Negro Methodists.

3. The tentative plan is an outgrowth of reconstruction days, in which an effort has been made to break the solid South; this is admitted by some of the strongest advocates of Union of the Northern Church. The solid South is the hope not only of the South, but of America; therefore be it resolved:

1. That we, the official board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Drew, Miss., hereby memorialize the General Conference of said Church meeting in the City of Atlanta, Georgia, in May, 1918, not to accede to any proposals for unification that in any way resembles this tentative plan suggested by the Joint Commission.

2. That the General Conference insist on the faithful carrying out the Cape May agreements, and that each Church confine its activities to the territory agreed upon by the Joint Commission sitting at Cape May so far as these sections are concerned, now known as North and South.

3. That we heartily indorse the Editor of the New Orleans Advocate and other editors of our periodicals who have stood for the preservation of Southern Methodism, and for their fearless and uncompromising efforts to save our Church from disintegration and ruin.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

UNIFICATION.

By Raven.

Much has been written and said about the Unification of American Methodism, yet nothing definite has been accomplished. In my humble judgment I think the whole matter ought to be laid on the table, and I so move.

The simplest and shortest and best way out of the matter is to let each Church retain what it now has and adjust the situation in the smaller towns and rural communities. As for the cities, every ism is there and our two Methodisms had as well be there as any of them.

The M. E. people do not want unification; they want organic union, and are now encouraging unification because it's in the air with the M. E. Church, South. Last summer, after a meeting of the Commission, an M. E. preacher said to me, we are nearer organic union than we have ever been. I said unification, you mean. No, he replied; I mean organic union, for that is what it means in the end, and I am satisfied he voiced the sentiment of ninety-nine hundredths of the M. E. preachers and people. I do not make the above statement because I am prejudiced, but because of the facts in the case.

There isn't a Church since Pentecost that can show a record like unto the M. E. Church, South, from the close of the Civil War to this good hour. A large majority of the M. E. Church, South, desire no further agitation of the matter, and it is best for the advancement of Christ's Kingdom through the instrumentality of the M. E. Church, South, that the whole matter be closed and nothing more be written on unification or any other fiction. The large majority of the M. E. Church do not know anything about the M. E. Church, South.

A few choice spirits in each of the Churches desire to see some adjustment of our present situation, but our people as a class do not want anything more written or said, and it is best for the Kingdom of God that the whole matter stop and stop forever.—Central Methodist (Lexington, Ky.)

RECEIPTS FOR ALGIERS CHURCH.

Dear Readers of the Advocate:

Since last reporting I have received some help on our $4000 request for the Algiers new church enterprise. I am certainly anxious to have your help.

Previously reported	$ 372.00
J. R. Metzker	25.00
W. B. Reily	10.00
Balance needed to make $4000	3593.00

Remember when we have $10,000 the Church Extension Board will let us have $10,000.

LOUISIANA WAR WORK FUND.

The following receipts for the Louisiana War Work Fund have come in since my report in the last issue of the Advocate:

Previously reported	$1075.31
L. E. Crooks, Greensburg	15.50
H. J. Boltz, Clay	6.00
G. D. Anders, Indian Bayou	24.10
H. W. Cudd, Elizabeth	10.00
	$1130.91

I wish you would call the attention of pastors of "high steeple" churches that they are not responding to this excellent cause as are the pastors in the more humble charges. Only one response so far from the New Orleans District.

SOME ITEMS.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am not writing up the Columbus District Conference which convened at Starkville, Miss., this week, but it was a nice occasion and the entertainment was most royal. Those fine Methodist people and Pastor Parks did the honors delightfully. The new district minister, Rev. W. L. Duren, presides like a Bishop, makes speeches though at times, and interferes with legislation (?). A special feature was the patriotic address by Rev. E. Nash Broyles, pastor at Macon. The preaching, too, was good. The deliverance by Dr. Selby, representing Emory University, was a "great testimony." How would he do for a Bishop? The A. & M. College at Starkville has a most magnificent plant and has lately finished a splendid Y. M. C. A. building. With "the grace of God" up there all should do well. Dr. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, was a most interesting visitor—only surpassed by the captivating sample of pupils who were with him. That great Methodist institution, like the A. & M., is slightly short on patronage because of the "firing line" demands, but is doing well.

A. H. WILLIAMS.

LET US DESIST.

An Appeal for the Cessation of the Union Agitation.

My Dear Doctor Meek: Some two years ago I sent you an article on "Methodist Union" that you gave space to in your paper. In that article, I referred to the fact that it is the great desire of preachers who may have members of their churches to disagree that those members be brought together and through prayer and a candid consideration of their difficulty, that they agree to be friendly and to live together in an amicable manner. Then reference was made to the difficulty of agreement on the part of the two great branches of American Methodism, and this writer asked the question, why could not the two great Churches talk over their differences and pray about these things so that some sort of an agreement could be effected. I have had nothing to write about this question since that time.

The Commissions on unification have held several joint meetings. They tell us that the most brotherly spirit has prevailed and that they have considered the differences of the two Churches that they represent in a most friendly and Christian manner. Time after time they have written about the fine spirit displayed in these meetings. We have also been told of the volume of prayer that has gone up to the throne of grace in behalf of the unification of American Methodism. While all this has been going on, we have also been told that there are certain differences between these two great Churches which it has been impossible for the Commissioners to overcome. Extra meetings accomplish nothing. These things come up again and again like Banquo's ghost.

This is a condition that is certainly to be deplored. It is a condition that every genuine son and daughter of Wesley should devoutly trust and pray might be removed from the relations of American Methodism. Yet, this is a condition that cannot be waved aside nor winked out of existence. It remains after all has been said that we of the South and our brethren of the North cannot agree.

We have come together in a friendly and a brotherly manner. We have prayed over this question in Commission meetings and in our private devotions. We have looked the whole affair squarely in the face. It appears to this writer that there is but one thing to do. This is to lay aside all this talk of union and let each group of Methodists follow the leadings of Providence in working out its share of responsibility in this great country.

No man has desired that we might all be one more than this writer. While this is true there is no man who can see more clearly than I that we are expending energies following a dream, and we cannot make that dream a reality. We have had too much discussion and are still having too much. This thing is harmful to our spiritual well-being. We are not getting anywhere. We all know that. Then let us have done with Commissions and plans and Regional Conferences and "Unification" and all others things that have the ear-marks of any of this propaganda, and let us gird up our loins to go forth in the real work of the Church. I am satisfied of one thing. That one thing is that the American Methodists have not yet come to see eye to eye. We either misunderstand each other or else our training and principles are so different that they cannot be made to harmonize. Such can be true in the realm of human thought and conduct. Witness the great systems of thought and government that are to-day struggling in a death grapple for the supremacy of the world!

It is a pitiable thing that we cannot come to some agreement, but it is a more pitiable spectacle to see hostile parties arrayed within the borders of our own Church. We are brethren. We have been bought with a price and have come into the fellowship of Christ in the same great organization. Let us live as brethren. We have come to the solid conclusion that we cannot agree with our brethren of the North. Now let us not create a condition in our own ranks that will cause a new breach to be formed. We have enough of these now.

Would God that the cement of brotherly love might bind us all together on this great question and that we might come to have peace again within our borders! We have had enough of effort at union and the discussion of "unification." This writer for one would hail with delight the laying away of this child of fond and loving hearts and the awaiting of another day when a new light shining upon the minds and hearts of Methodists, North and South alike, might bring into being another "unification" movement born under more propitious skies. But for the time being, let us desist. It cannot now be. Do not force the issue. Great harm and no good will come of it.

Let me say again that this writer has always had a great wish in his soul that Methodists in this nation might be one. The wish is still there. But very evidently we are not one in thought and in ideas. We are not one in our attitude on certain very vital and important matters. The Commissioners have helped us to come to this conclusion. A union forced through mere organization that would not be bound together by a union of spirit and ideals would be like a wooden man that has no life in it and which would fall to pieces when some great strain was laid upon it. Let us desist.

"TO LOIS IN HEAVEN."

(Miss Lois Moore died in her senior year at the I. I. and C., on March 24, 1918. She was a member of our Church at Madison, Miss. The poem below was written by J. F. Dorroh, and read at the funeral service.)

And you have sailed to realms afar,
Beyond the bounds of time and space.
And you have crossed the outer bar,
And see your Savior 'face to face.'

To you the mystery of Death
Is as a riddle that is read:
The things we see alone by faith
An open book before you spread.

The vital spark—the deathless soul—
Rests not with you beneath the sod;
But while eternal ages roll
Forever more it dwells with God.

Yes, 'broken is the golden bowl'
And 'loosened is the silver chord,'
And the white rose of your pure soul
Blooms in the Garden of the Lord.

The mystery of ten thousand years,
An open page before you lies;
And clear as noon-day light appears
In the white light of Paradise.

And face to face, and hand in hand,
With all the ransomed of all time,
You dwell forever in a Land
Unsullied by a stain of crime.

The sunset's glories fade away,
The twilight deepens to the night,
Earth's roses wither and decay
And fade forever from our sight.

But your pure soul no change can know,
To you no care nor grief can come,
For you Love's deathless roses blow
In your eternal heavenly Home.

DATE OF DISTRICT CONFERENCE CHANGED.

Dear Dr. Meek: I will thank you to announce that the date of the Newton District Conference, to be held at Bay Springs, has been changed to June 11, 12, 13. The opening sermon will be preached in the afternoon of June 11, by Rev. Jas. G. Galloway.

W. L. LINFIELD, P. E.

Newton, Miss.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE JACKSON DISTRICT.

Please send a list of your delegates to the District Conference to Rev. A. S. Oliver, Eden, Miss., and also a list to me at Jackson, Miss. Rev. M. A. Massey will preach the opening sermon on Tuesday, May 28, at 11 o'clock. The conference will convene at 9:30 a. m. on May 28. Let all local preachers be present or have a written report.

The Great Battle

NOTES.

It is stated in the city papers that many New Orleans saloons are finding it unprofitable to keep open after midnight, and are arranging to close their doors after that time until in the morning.

Mr. E. C. Dinwiddie, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, is in Louisiana to help in the fight to secure the ratification of the National Prohibition Amendment by the State Legislature, which will meet on May 13.

The following dispatch was sent out from Washington, D. C., on April 26: "Absolute prohibition of the manufacture or distribution of liquor during the war was proposed in a bill introduced to-day by Representative Barkley of Kentucky."

By instruction of Mr. Nicholas Callan, Assistant District Attorney, all the saloons within half a mile of Camp Nicholls have been ordered closed, thus putting out of business eight dramshops. Fourteen saloons within half a mile of the Jackson Barracks were closed last week by a similar order. Let the good work go on.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders of the Louisiana Conference.

Dear Brethren: Please arrange to have two or more laymen from each presiding elder's district in Baton Rouge at 11 a. m., on May 13, when the State Legislature convenes, to assist in our fight for the ratification of the National Prohibition Amendment. We hope to see dozens of people present from your districts, but be certain to see that there are at least as many as two men from each of them. We must "go over the top" in this important movement, and we will if all the prohibitionists in the State will pull together.

STOP IT.

During the past few weeks hundreds and hundreds of letters have come from manufacturing concerns, coal operators, those who have to do with transportation and distribution, addressed to the Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, all deploring the loss of efficiency in war operations caused by the liquor dealers. Letters from practically every large coal operator in the United States variously estimate this loss of efficiency, due to drink, their estimates ranging all the way from five to thirty-three and one-third per cent. Remove this cause of inefficiency, and the coal supply of the nation immediately increases from five to thirty-three and one-third per cent. What is the use of tolerating this source of inefficiency and disorder, especially in war time, when the whole welfare of the nation is at stake? Hundreds of ships lie at anchor in Atlantic harbors because they cannot get coal, and the reason they cannot get it is because disloyal liquor dealers make a profit by preventing their getting the coal. In recent issues of the American Issue have been printed whole pages of letters from manufacturers, chiefly manufacturers of munitions. These men testify—some of them with heat—that the output of their establishments is decreased from five to twenty-five per cent because of the saloon. This shortage of munitions output, ranging from five to twenty-five per cent, is caused solely to enable German brewery corporations, through their network of saloons, to make a profit hampering the output of munitions. War-time prohibition, and that alone, will solve this problem. And Congress is the body that can give us war prohibition. It is up to Congress, which means that it is up to you.—American Issue.

And verily it is naturally given to all men to esteem their own inventions best. So both the raven and the ape think their own young ones fairest.—Sir Thomas Moore.

THE SERVICE FLAG.

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer;
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

Blue is your star in its field of white,
Dipped in the red that was born of fight;
Born of the blood that our forebears shed
To raise your mother, the flag, o'erhead.

And now you've come, in this frenzied day,
To speak from a window—to speak and say:
"I am the voice of a soldier son
Gone to be gone till the victory's won.

"I am the flag of the service, sir;
The flag of his mother—I speak for her
Who stands by my window and waits and fears,
But hides from the others her unwept tears.

"I am the flag of the wives who wait
For the safe return of a martial mate,
A mate gone forth where the war god thrives
To save from sacrifice other men's wives.

"I am the flag of the sweethearts true;
The often unthought of—the sisters, too;
I am the flag of a mother's son
And won't come down till the victory's won!"

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer;
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

—William Herschell, in the Indianapolis News.

FROM A MISSISSIPPI LAYMAN.

Dear Doctor Meek: I want to say that I fully indorse your stand on the unification issue and that I am glad you are a delegate to the General Conference. I feel that to unite our Church with one that would absorb all that we have—all that we have worked hard to secure for the last 50 years—would be a great injustice to the members of the Southern Methodist Church who have given so much of their means and spiritual help to place us in our present advantageous situation. Are we ready to place under the control of others all that we have raised to build and endow our great colleges and other institutions?

It is the individual members of the churches, in the rural sections as well as in the towns and cities, that make the life and growth of all denominations, both in a spiritual and financial way—not simply those who hold a few big official places, or those who hold small official places for that matter. No attempt should be made to carry forward this movement without giving every member of the Church a vote on this great and important question. I believe that the opposition to union among the rank and file of the Church is so strong that fully one-half of our communicants would secede if the effort to force the merger were successful, and this would be a great drawback to the upbuilding of God's kingdom. No one can deny that there still exists a lack of harmony between the two Churches as to their sentiments and ideals, just as there is between the North and South. The larger Church would doubtless dictate to us what we should do and in all probability would give our part of the country a very small showing in making laws for the Church, and I imagine that Bishops with Southern sentiments would be pretty scarce in the new organization.

Now, Doctor, I do not wish to show any disloyalty to our Church or disrespect to any of our officials, nor even to those who hold small positions in our Church; but I can not see how a good member of the good old M. E. Church, South, one who is full of the Spirit, can advocate this union, for with a lack of harmony between the two denominations they could not prosper to the honor and glory of God. I dislike to have to believe that there is politics in our Church, but I am forced to think that there is. I am afraid that some of those who are in high places think that maybe this union would elevate them a little higher, failing to take into consideration the fact that the larger Church would have plenty of men to fill the higher places, and that they would certainly fill most of them with their own fellows. Of course, this is not aimed at any special person.

The well known fact that the Southern Methodist Church has done wonderful things for the upbuilding of God's kingdom is a sufficient argument against unification and for its continuation as it now is. The sound teaching and deep spiritual religion that the Southern Methodist Church has always had, and now has, are good enough for me, and I hope that everything possible that can be done in an honorable way will be done to prevent this union. A mere form of union—for, in truth, it would be only a form—would tend to produce discord and destroy spirituality among the Methodists. I feel that if this question were left, as it ought to be, to a vote of the entire membership of the Church it would be overwhelmingly defeated. A lay member,

HOW PARENTS CAN AID THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER.

Helen M. Richardson.

Do you realize how much parents sometimes thoughtlessly handicap the work of Sunday school teachers by seeming indifference to their painstaking efforts?

Simply to send a child to Sunday school, week after week, is not enough. You must bring yourself into more vital touch with the good work that is going on there every week in that short hour which precedes or supplements the church service, if you would have your child's interest in it unwavering.

There is nothing which so stimulates a child to renewed effort in anything as a knowledge that father and mother are interested in the same thing, and are making a study of it, just as he or she is.

Visit the Sunday school often, just as you do, or ought to do, the day school. Become acquainted with the man or the woman who is your child's religious instructor; look over the lessons that are taught; talk with your child about them; make the names of God and Jesus household words, and let him see your reverence and belief in the grand old Bible lessons with which his young mind is grappling.

A subject which is thus daily discussed and lived up to in the home, cannot fail to impress itself upon the mind more forcefully than one which is talked about only on one Sunday, and then forgotten until the next.

A teacher can impart a lesson only. It is the child's work to absorb it. There are some thoughtful children, subject to moral and uplifting home influences, who can do this to a greater degree than can others.

A child, too, who is blessed with church-going parents will not be so apt to drift away from church as the one whose parents go to church only at far-separated intervals, such as Christmas and Easter, and stay away from service all the rest of the year.

I cannot cite an instance within my own observation where children whose parents are constant church-goers do not themselves attend church as regularly as ever they did the Sunday school, coming into it as a matter of course, and still remaining in the Sunday school, many of them, as earnest, faithful, and consistent teachers.—Zion's Herald.

MY HEAVENLY FATHER.

Betty Procter Fike.

When Thou art near,
The things I fear
Take wings and fly away;
Upon Thy breast
I find sweet rest—
I'll praise Thee day by day.

When Thou art near,
The sky seems clear,
The day one glad sweet song;
Then comes the night;
Thou art my light,
I'll praise Thee my whole life long.

When Thou art near,
Thy voice I hear;
Oh! music cannot compare.
Close by Thy side
Let me abide—
Oh! Lord this is my prayer.

When Thou art near,
The grave is dear;
Thy face I long to see;
Oh! be my Friend
Until the end,
And I shall dwell with Thee.

THOUGHT AND DEED.

Ideas rule the world. Men do the things they think. Deeds are thoughts put into life. The man who teaches wrong ideas is as bad as the man who performs evil deeds. The desire to destroy men's faith and the belief that one has the right to do it, are as much marks of a criminal spirit as the propensity to do harm to a man's body.—Presbyterian Journal.

MY DREAM-SHIP.

To-night my memory took me back to happy days of yore,
When I dreamed beside my window, with the moonlight on the floor;
Oh! the future seemed so golden, and life's pathway all aglow,
While I listened to far-off voices, with the moonbeams on the floor.

My dream-ship was all ready, its sails all white, its lights agleam,
Longing to begin life's voyage, and launch out on its stream;
Hope was helmsman, glad radiant Youth was at the bow,
Joy and Faith were hand-in-hand; Love stood at the prow.

Long years have passed; and o'er life's drifting foam,
My battered barque lies safely anchored, for my ship is almost home;
Youth has fled, but shining Love, Faith, and Hope are as bright's of yore,
When I dreamed beside the window, with the moonlight on the floor.

WHEN A GREAT WRITER WAS A LITTLE BOY.

"Miss Keller said we would have a Dickens celebration at school on February 7. What is a Dickens celebration, Aunt Minnie?" questioned Clarence Hart.

"A Dickens celebration would commemorate the birth of Charles Dickens, the noted English author, I suppose," Mrs. Starr answered. She went to the bookcase and took out an encyclopedia, which she consulted. "Yes, it was on the seventh of February, 1812, that Charles Dickens was born; near Portsmouth, England. He was the eldest son and the second of eight children. His father was a clerk in the navy pay office. When Charles was four years old his father was transferred to Chatham, and here the family lived until the boy was about nine years old. Then they were sent to London.

"Charles Dickens was a pale, small, sickly child. He could not stand the exertion of games like cricket, peg-top, and prisoner's base, but he took great pleasure in watching the other boys play. This frail health in early life caused him to cultivate a taste for reading. His mother was the first teacher, instructing him in English and later in Latin. The last two years in Chatham he went to a day school taught by a Baptist minister.

"The Dickens family were not very prosperous, and their affairs were in such a bad state when they removed from Chatham to London that they were forced to live in a poor little cottage in Bayham Street, the poorest part of the London suburbs. Charles did not go to school now, but he spent his time doing errands for his parents and helping to care for the younger children in the family. The purse grew more empty daily, and Mrs. Dickens decided to teach a private school; a house was found on Gower Street that would accommodate the family and the school, but no pupils ever came. The father was at last arrested for debt and put into the Marshalsea Prison, as was the law in those days."

"I think little Charles Dickens had a hard time," Clarence interrupted, soberly.

"He did," Mrs. Starr agreed. "He went with his father to the prison the first day, and Mr. Dickens said to his son, 'Charles, if you earn twenty pounds a year and spend nineteen pounds, nineteen shillings and sixpence you will be happy. If you spend one schilling over the twenty pounds you will be wretched.' The father knew from experience that this was true, and it was good advice for his son.

"Mrs. Dickens and the children lived on in Gower Street until most of the furniture and everything else they possessed was pawned. Charles was the one who made the visits to the pawnshops to obtain money on these articles. At last the family gave up the struggle and went to live with the father at the Marshalsea Prison. Charles worked in a tumbledown blacking warehouse near the river, over-run with rats.

"His work was to cover pots of paste-blacking with oil paper, then with blue paper, and tie them firmly around the pot, then trim the paper until it was even and neat. Then he pasted on a printed label. For this work he was paid six shillings a week (about $1.50). He wore shabby clothing, and this sum would scarcely keep him in food; indeed, he was often hungry. He saw his parents only on Saturday. During the week he had nobody to care for him, nobody to give him loving advice and encouragement. Charles Dickens said when he grew older, 'But for the merey of God I might easily have been for any care taken of me, a little robber or vagabond.' He finally complained of his loneliness to his parents, and they secured a little back attic room for him, which was nearer the prison, and he was able to take his breakfast and supper at the prison with his family.

"When Charles was about twelve years old his father inherited some property, and was released from prison. Charles now went to school again, where he invented games and wrote short stories, which he loaned to friends on payment of marbles, slate pencils, and white mice, which the boys liked to keep in their desks.

"In 1826 Charles Dickens went to work as clerk for a man named Edward Blackstone. He learned to know many queer types of people in this office. He was unconsciously laying the foundation for the work of writing. In 1828 he gave up his work as clerk and began to learn shorthand, for it was his ambition to be a newspaper reporter for Parliament. Shorthand was hard for him, but he had strength of will and determination, and he conquered the subject. He had to have two years' experience before he could become a parliamentary reporter, but at last he realized his ambition and became a reporter for the paper called the True Sun. In 1833 the Old Monthly Magazine published the first of his writings."

"I thought he wrote a lot of books," remarked Clarence.

"He did," Mrs. Starr explained. "In 1834 he became reporter in Parliament for the Morning Chronicle. His first book appeared in 1835, when he was twenty-four. While a boy in the streets of London he observed places, things and people, forming the habit of studying queer types, and later all this knowledge was used in his writings. In 1849 he wrote 'David Copperfield,' which was his favorite work and the best known of his books. This book pictures many important actions and struggles of his own life. He was the most popular novelist of his century, and one of the greatest humorists England ever had. He visited America and was shown a great deal of honor, which he certainly deserved. He died in 1870," Mrs. Starr finished.

"Charles Dickens became famous even if he was a poor, neglected boy," Clarence said, earnestly. "I think his history shows that any one can do a lot for himself if he will only try."

"It surely does," his aunt assented.—Boys and Girls.

THE GOSPEL TRAIN.

A conductor of a local passenger train, running between two Pennsylvania cities, a member of a Presbyterian Church, so labored during the evangelistic meetings conducted by Dr. Munhall, that the engineer, fireman, baggage-man, and two brakemen on his train confessed Jesus Christ as Savior, and united with the Church. This train came to be known among the men on that division as "the gospel train."—Christian World.

UNION BUT NOT DISUNION.

(We take this article from the Central Christian Advocate of Kansas City. Dr. Loy was last year district superintendent of the New Orleans District, and now, if we mistake not, holds a like position in the Lake Charles District. The Editor of the New Orleans Advocate esteems him highly. What Dr. Loy says anent the matter of duplication is worth noting.)

To the Editor: In the Southern District, Gulf Conference, are located twenty-five Methodist Episcopal churches in towns and rural districts where there is no other Methodist church, and fifteen where there is no Protestant church at all. "Altar against altar" is more a fancy than a reality. However, in some places it would be better if there were only one Methodist Church. There is but little apparent friction.

The "tentative plan" seems to me an anomaly. It looks like a disruption more than a union. It is burdensome, almost a puzzle. It would not work. At best it is only a makeshift. But worst of all, it is unfair. I cannot believe it is right. It means caste. A great Church should not make a difference where God does not.

Many loyal Methodists would not know what to do should this plan go through. Better wait until God makes the way more clear.

The plan adopted should be democratic and Christian beyond question. Many think this "tentative plan" is not. F. W. LOY.

A POETIC HERESY.

A certain poet once wrote, "God is on his throne and all's right with the world." We have reason to be thankful that God is on his throne. Let us never forget this fact. It ought to strengthen us in the Gethsemanes of life. God will make all things right in the end for those who have put their trust in him. However, all is not right with the world now. All has never been right with the world since the fall of man. If all had been right with the world, Christ would not have come to earth and suffered and died to save the souls of men, for God never sanctions a useless sacrifice in behalf of the right. Take sin out of the world and there would be no need for the existence of the Church as an agency for saving mankind.

The man who makes the statement that all is right with the world is setting his opinion up against the working assumption of the Christian Church in all the ages of her history, and against the opinion of many wise and good men, for the Church has always contended that all is not right with the world, that many things need to be remedied; and good men in every age have been depressed because of the evil that is in the world. Nay, more, he who advocates this view is setting his opinion up against God's teaching, for it is certainly not Biblical. If God's Word teaches anything, it teaches that man in the unregenerate state is a fallen creature and that all is not right with the world.

The right kind of optimism is a good thing, but that which is brought about by accepting and teaching unsound views should be avoided. Those who accept the dictum of the poet in question, going about with their heads in the clouds, meditating upon the lovely state of things in the present world, remind one of the old Greek philosopher whose star-gazing caused him to fall into an open well.

ERRATA.

Rev. C. A. Battle states to us, with reference to the figures compiled by him, which we presented last week in our editorial, entitled "Misrepresenting Southern Methodism," that the Northern Methodist percentage of gain from 1890 to 1916 should have been 67 per cent, instead of 40 per cent, making the comparative gains for Northern and Southern Methodism for that period 67 per cent and 75 per cent respectively. The figures in the aggregate were printed correctly. This mistake as to percentage does not appreciably change the value of the statistical exhibit, since the tables incontrovertibly show that Southern Methodism has progressed faster than Northern Methodism since the Civil War, including also the period in which this error occurred. We make this correction in the interest of accuracy. Brother Battle assures us that his statistical compilation was made with great care and may be depended upon, notwithstanding this error in a calculation as to percentage based upon figures that were correctly given.

In the same editorial we said: "In 1866 (according to Bishop McTyeire's History of Methodism) our Church had 428,232 communicants; now, 51 years afterwards, it has a membership of 2,145,875—an increase of approximately 500 per cent." These figures are correct as to the totals, but the increase has been about 400 per cent, not 500 per cent. (This mistake was due to the fact that when writing in haste we made only a quick mental estimate, noting at a glance that our members are now about five times as numerous as they were in 1866.) The 400 per cent increase, however, is without a parallel in the history of any denomination of any considerable size in this country, so far as our knowledge extends.

One other matter. Brother Battle desires us to say that in his article, "Some History for Profitable Study," which was published in the Advocate last week when, in referring to the course of the disturbers of Episcopal Methodism in the earlier decades of the last century and to the fact that some of them were expelled from the Church, he said, "The only difference that can be discerned between this organization and the present 'Movement for Revision' is that the members of the latter body of plotters have not been dealt with as properly as our fathers did business with the former schemers," he intended to use the word "promptly" instead of "properly." As reprehensible and harmful as he considers the course which these agitators have pursued, he did not mean to take the position that they should all be summarily expelled from membership in the Church. On the contrary, he believes that in every case all possible effort should be made to reclaim an erring member before excommunicating him—that expulsion should come only as a dernier resort and when the good of the Church imperatively necessitates it.

DEATH OF REV. H. C. MOREHEAD.

According to a dispatch from Courtland, Miss., to the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Rev. H. C. Morehead died at that place in the early morning of April 24. It was stated that the funeral services would be conducted by Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Sardis District; Rev. R. I. Collins, the local pastor, and Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College, and that the body would be taken to Grenada for interment.

Brother Morehead had been ill ever since the last session of the North Mississippi Conference at Oxford, Miss., but the latest reports that had reached us from his bedside were to the effect that he was improving. He had been on the superannuate roll of his Conference for a number of years, and last year spent several months in the Far West.

He served with great diligence in the itinerant ministry until his health gave way, filling a number of important appointments in the North Mississippi Conference, including two terms in the presiding eldership. He was highly esteemed by the brethren and made many friends in the fields in which he labored. He was born in 1849, and was nearing the allotted three score years and ten.

The deceased left a wife and several children to mourn his departure. To them we extend sympathy, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them in their bereavement. We hope that some one will furnish the Advocate with a fitting memoir of the deceased in the near future.

PREDICTS NATIONAL PROHIBITION SOON.

Dr. E. C. Dinwiddie, General Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, who has been in New Orleans for several days, predicts that National prohibition will come within two years. Dr. Dinwiddie gave a reporter of the New Orleans Item last Saturday an interesting interview concerning the situation, from which we take the following:

By next January, Mr. Dinwiddie points out, all the Legislatures will have met—and, unless his logic is altogether wrong, the prohibition amendment will have been ratified by the sufficient number of States—three-fourths, it is—and will have become part of the Constitution.

How He Figures It Out.

Here's how the dry leader explained it:

"We need 36 States," he said, "to ratify the amendment. Eleven have already voted on it, and five of them, despite the fact that they were wet States, ratified it.

"That's a start. Now, we have some other States that are generally regarded as doubtful. They are: Florida, Wyoming, Nevada, Minnesota, Ohio, California and Missouri. My personal opinion is that they will all ratify the amendment, but just for luck I'll leave out the two most doubtful ones—California and Missouri. All right, take the others. Florida is a cinch. Wyoming and Nevada have changed just the way Montana did when they went dry—simply turned over. Montana was the wettest State in the Union, now it is one of the dryest. Wyoming and Nevada are going the same way.

"Minnesota comes next. We nearly carried Minneapolis at the last election and the country districts are half dry. Minnesota is certain. The drys won in Ohio at the last election, but the wets counted us out. They won't get away with that this time.

"There are five States. Then we have 21 that are dry and are absolutely certain to ratify the amendment. That makes 26. Add 11 to it, and you'll see what's going to happen in Congress ten months from now—after the Legislatures have met.

Looks For 40 Dry States.

"That's a low estimate, though. My own opinion is that within ten months, 40 States will have ratified the amendment."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Commencement sermon of the High School at Shannon, Miss., will be preached Sunday, May 5, by Rev. S. L. Pope, of Columbus, Miss.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, is this week assisting Rev. J. W. Faulk in a revival meeting at Boyce, La.

Rev. A. T. McIlwain, of Senatobia, Miss., says: "Brother McIntosh will begin a revival meeting with us here on Sunday, April 28. We are expecting a great meeting. Pray for us in the work."

Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., of Homer, La., writes: "Our work goes along well. We have some as fine people here as I have ever known. A large number of people signed last Sunday the Fellowship Covenant in behalf of the Missionary Centenary."

Dr. J. M. Henry, presiding elder of the Ruston District, was in New Orleans last Friday to attend a meeting of the Louisiana Legal Conference, which was held here on that day. Dr. Henry is the President of that body.

Rev. H. T. Carley, of Centenary College, preached ably for our congregation at Mansfield, La., on a recent Sabbath, when Dr. S. A. Steel was in Houston, Texas, to preach the dedicatory sermon of the First M. E. Church, South, at Houston, Texas.

Rev. W. V. Shearer is planning for revival meetings at all the appointments of the Kilmichael charge, North Mississippi Conference. Brother Shearer is truly an evangelistic pastor, and he is never so happy as when he is leading souls to the Master.

Rev. R. I. Collins, our hustling young pastor at Courtland, Miss., gives us an additional list of 5 subscribers, and thus comments upon his work: "We are getting along nicely on this circuit." Brother Collins is making an excellent record in the itinerancy.

Writing from Tishomingo, Oklahoma, concerning a subscription to the Advocate, Brother T. H. Maddox, M. D., says: "I hope to see you in Atlanta during the session of the General Conference. I predict no union of the Churches. You are wise in your opposition."

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, delivered the Baccalaureate Address at the recent Commencement of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss. This institution is reported to have had a notably good session under the capable presidency of Dr. Roife Hunt.

Writing from Wiggins, Miss., Rev. James B. Stringer gives us a list of 5 subscriptions, for which we extend to him our thanks. He says: "I am in my second year as a minister and am happy in the Master's service. I am laboring among a good people. Please pray for me and my flock."

"The work on the Wall Hill (Miss.) charge looks quite promising. We are expecting a great year." So writes Rev. Henry H. Wallace, in a business letter to our office bringing us 3 subscriptions. The country churches in the Advocate's territory do not by any means seem to be in a moribund condition.

The second Efficiency Conference at Centenary llege will be held immediately after the aphing Commencement—June 4-7. Among the akers announced for the occasion are Dr. Paul Kern and Dr. J. L. Cunninggim, of the Southern thodist University, and Dr. Sam R. Hay, preing elder of the Dallas (Texas) District.

ev. U. G. Foote, D. D., pastor of the Rayne Merial Church, this city, has accepted an invitafrom President V. L. Loy, of the Louisiana te Normal School at Natchitoches, La., to ach the annual graduation sermon for that ool on Sunday morning, May 26. The State mal will have 250 graduates this year.

ev. W. D. Bennett, pastor of the Sardis (Miss.) uit, April 22, writes: "Brother Martin C. Dorr laid to rest in the Davis Chapel Cemetery Thursday. He was one of our oldest members and a true and loyal Methodist. We started an every-member canvass at Davis Chapel yesterday, and the indications are that we shall go over the top."

Rev. D. R. McDougal, of Calhoun City, Miss., is pleased with the progress of the work in his charge, which he thinks promises to take high rank in the near future. Brother McDougal has a son with the colors, which naturally makes him and his family feel lonely and somewhat solicitous. May the Heavenly Father keep watch over the dear boy who is away."

President W. H. Smith, of the Mississippi A. & M. College, has sent us a somewhat extended communication, from which we take the following: "As previously announced, the annual Vacation School for ministers and other Church workers will be held at the A. & M. College, June 15-24, 1918. The College will furnish board and lodging for the nine days for $5, or at the rate of 75 cents by the day."

Rev. W. H. Coleman, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of this city, preached an interesting sermon to a large congregation at 11 o'clock a.m. last Sunday, following which four persons were received into the Church on profession of faith. The Rev. L. B. Newberry, a missionary to Mexico, who was en route to the General Conference at Atlanta, occupied Brother Coleman's pulpit at the evening hour.

Rev. Henry T. Young, Conference Evangelist of the Louisiana Conference, writes us as follows from Many, La., April 27: "I closed out a meeting with Brother George at Bonita, La., last Sunday. We had a great meeting. Eight persons gave their names as subscribers to the Advocate. You will hear from Brother George concerning them. I am assisting Brother J. B. Williams, the pastor here, in a series of revival services. I will go to Rayne, La., on May 5."

The work of the Southern Methodists among the soldiers and sailors quartered in New Orleans will be centered in First Church and in the Algiers Church, the first being accessible to the young men in the service who are at Camp Nicholls, West End, and the Jackson Barracks, and the latter being near the Algiers Naval Station. Of the money to be raised in the Louisiana Conference for this kind of work, $1200 has been apportioned to the city of New Orleans.

Rev. J. T. Leggett, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, whose shoulder was wrenched and broken in an automobile accident at Columbia, Miss., some days ago, had recovered sufficiently last week to preside over his district conference, which met at Hazlehurst. It is thought that Brother Leggett, accompanied by Sister Leggett, will be able to report for duty at the General Conference in Atlanta this week. We are happy to know that he is making such satisfactory progress toward a recovery from his injuries.

We are in receipt of a "Field Service Post-Card" from our esteemed friend, Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the United States Army, who is with our military forces in France, which conveys to us in the prescribed way the following message: "I am quite well. Letter follows at first opportunity. I have received no letter from you in a long time." We are happy to know that Brother Randolph, who is one of the most efficient chaplains in our Army, is in good health, and we pray that a kindly Providence may continue to watch over him.

The following friends, whose kindness has not been elsewhere mentioned, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate sent in within the past few days: Rev. A. R. Beasley, McCool, Miss., 3; Rev. C. F. Sheppard, Dubach, La., 2; Rev. W. V. Shearer, Kilmichael, Miss., 3; Rev. W. I. White, Shannon, Miss., 4; Dr. E. B. Partin, Chunky, Miss., 2; Rev. A. B. Barry, South and East McComb, Miss., 8; Brother J. M. Bush, Laurel, Miss., 3; Rev. J. W. Thompson, Wesson, Miss., 10; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison, Miss., 3.

Rev. M. W. Porter, of Shubuta, Miss., sends us the following message concerning the work in his field: "I am glad to report that things are moving on well with us. We are preparing to have a Children's Day service at each of our churches, and we want to follow these with genuine revivals. I do not mean simply protracted meetings, but real revivals of religion, such as will take people to Sunday school, prayer meeting, and all the other services of the Church. We are indebted to Brother Porter for 4 subscriptions to the Advocate, with a check to correspond.

Dr. J. W. Price, an honored veteran of the North Mississippi Conference, writing from Memphis, Tenn., states that his wife is very ill. Let Sister Price and the members of her family be remembered at the throne of grace in this anxious hour.

From a business communication from Rev. R. M. Evans, of Isola, Miss., which brings us several names for our mailing files, we extract the following: "This charge is keeping abreast with the demands of the times. At our second quarterly conference, recently held, the assessment for the pastor's salary was increased $200; I have a good part of the Conference collections in hand, and everybody everywhere seems to be ready and willing to respond to the calls being made upon our people. About $100,000 has been subscribed to the third Liberty Loan from within the bounds of my charge. The outlook is good."

From the News Beacon, issued at Waynesboro, Miss., we take the following note of interest: "Rev. C. M. Chapman was pleasantly surprised on the night of the closing exercises of the High School here last week, when Dr. B. G. Lowery, of Blue Mountain College, who delivered the diplomas to the graduating classes, proceeded to deliver to him a certificate of the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Lincoln-Jefferson University of Illinois. Dr. Chapman is entirely worthy of this honor." It gives us pleasure to learn that this distinction has come to our esteemed brother and friend.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Bogalusa, La., sends us a printed program of a series of sermons that he delivered during the month of April. The general theme of these discourses was "the Hebrew Prophets—Modern Men with Messages." The ministries of Amos, Hosea, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Jonah, Obadiah, and Malachi were discussed in this series of sermons. Brother Townsley thus refers to his work in Bogalusa: "All goes well with us here in the Magic City. In three minutes after 8 a. m. on April 6 (the first day of the drive), Bogalusa went way 'over the top,' and then some. We are about ready to begin our drive for our splendid new brick church."

Our gifted young pastor at South and East McComb (Mississippi Conference), Rev. A. B. Barry, writes us as follows: "The meetings recently conducted for me at South and East McComb by Rev. J. V. Bennett were both successful revivals. We had about 82 accessions to the Church, most of them by profession of faith, and I feel sure that besides these there were more than 100 conversions and reclamations. I have my work well organized, and I think that this bids fair to be the best year of my life. Our Sunday schools have about doubled in attendance since last December and new pupils are coming in every Sunday." We rejoice with Brother Barry at the success that is attending his labors.

Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, La., writing on April 29 says: "We have had a great meeting. The afternoon service last Sunday was a magnificent one. Five young men gave themselves for the work of the ministry. It was in every respect an uplifting occasion. Sixty-eight persons have united with the Church during our meeting, and about 250 have been converted or reclaimed. Many of the young people have promised to give up dancing. Our church has been helped more than I can express in words. Brother D. L. Coale is certainly a consecrated and God-fearing man. I feel that it has been a privilege to have him with us. We have had 125 accessions to First Church this Conference year. Our membership now numbers 860."

Rev. S. A. Brown, of Leland, Miss., sends us the following remarkable summary of conditions in the Greenville (Miss.) District, of which Rev. V. C. Curtis is the capable presiding elder, along with some of the developments at the district conference, held last week: "All the pastors and about 25 laymen were present at the conference. Every preacher had received the amount due on his salary up to date, 37 per cent of the aggregate for the year having been paid. Three charges had paid the Conference assessments in full; 6 had paid more than 90 per cent of these assessments, and 11 more than 50 per cent. More than $19,000 had been contributed to the cause of education. A goodly number of additions to the Church on profession of faith were reported. Doubt was expressed whether any district in Southern Methodism has surpassed this record during this Conference year. The presiding elder, the pastors, and the people seem to have but one purpose, namely, to do their best. The closing session, a consecration service, conducted by Rev. E. S. Lewis, was the climax and a veritable Pentecost." Great is the Greenville District!

A VETERAN LAYMAN SPEAKS.

Dear Dr. Meek: I don't know how long I have been reading the Advocate. My father, W. W. Millsaps, took it when I was a boy. He may have been among the first subscribers. When a boy I joined the church at Pleasant Valley on six months' probation. I was received into full connection at the end of the time. After the War between the States, I moved from Pleasant Valley to Hazlehurst and placed my membership there, where it still remains. Since my connection with the Hazlehurst Church I have served officially under about nineteen different pastors, and tried to give all faithful support.

I have seen but one picture show, and that was when our Sunday school leased it to give the school a Christmas entertainment, but we selected the pictures—all of which were Bible scenes. I don't believe Jesus would go with me to a picture show, and I would be afraid to go without him.

I am opposed to unification. I am tired of so much stir in the Church. I think it would be better to try to stir up more religion—old-time religion. We all need more—preachers, laymen, and the entire membership. When we get to the place where our preaching and teaching will reach ourselves, it will reach others. I am teaching a Bible class in a colored Sunday school, and I am on time every Sunday. I love the Advocate, and pray God to give it success.

R. W. MILLSAPS.

FROM SISTER LEGGETT.

Dear Dr. Meek: Your letter of the 23d inst. was waiting for Mr. Leggett upon his arrival from the District Conference. We appreciate the many letters of sympathy that have come to him since his accident. He has asked me to tell you that he was enjoying the country scenery in a Ford car when it left the road and turned somersault in a ten or twelve-foot ditch. His right shoulder was broken. He was taken to Columbia, where he remained in the hospital a week. He attended the District Conference at Hazlehurst. We had a delightful session. He will leave for Atlanta next Thursday. I will go with him.

Sincerely.

JOSIE F. LEGGETT.

Brookhaven, Miss.

ANOTHER VOICE FROM THE LAITY.

Dear Dr. Meek: Your contributors writing on the all-absorbing subject of unification of Methodism reminds one of the Nations at war, each declaring that they do earnestly want "peace," but neither side wants the kind of peace the other side has to offer. I want to have my vote recorded AGAINST ORGANIC UNION.

I was born within the pale of the M. E. Church, South, and I am still living within her jurisdiction. Next to my Lord, I believe I love Methodism better than anything else. I am better acquainted with the history of Methodism than any other history. Up to this time, I have heard of no good reason why our two branches of Methodism should unite. But scores of reasons, good and logical, have appeared in your columns against it. I believe there shall come a time in the history of this old world when "the lion and the lamb shall lie down together," but just NOW I should not care to assume the attitude of the lamb. Nor should I care to have our beloved arm of Methodism assume that position.

Had the M. E. Church lived up to her agreements in 1844 and not encroached upon the Southern field, I believe we would be nearer organic union, if indeed it had not been already accomplished. The stock argument advanced for encroaching on Southern territory, that of the neglected colored man, was and is still untrue. Our Church did a wise thing when it organized the C. M. E. Church for the brother in black. To-day the best men of the colored race wisely prefer to steer and control their own ship of Zion.

We have in Kaiserdom to-day a fair sample of what an over-concentration of power can do. As in State, so in Church affairs. If I mistake not, it was Mr. Wesley who said the only fear he had for the future of Methodism was when it became wealthy, influential, and popular.

Again, I believe this to be a very inopportune time to stress a subject like this in the midst of a world-wide war. Why press a subject for discussion that would lead to disaffection among so large a number of people, and when so much would be at stake?

Yours for Statu Quo.

Brother VILAS RUSSELL was born on Feb. 18, 1885, and departed this life on Feb. 11, 1918. Brother Vilas followed closely after his mother to the "better land." Having lived with her very nearly all of his life, he was not separated from her long. He never married, but after his father's death he remained with his mother, making a comfortable home for her, for his widowed sister, and for the smaller children. He provided for the home well and made a great sacrifice for the education of the younger boys and girls. In his death the entire family sustained a great loss, as he had proven a father, indeed. The community has lost a neighbor that was loved by all, and the county a citizen with high and noble ideals. He always stood for the right. He had a big heart and a noble, sweet spirit. He was a devoted Christian and a faithful member of the Methodist Church, having joined it under the pastorate of the writer. The pastor has lost a warm friend, and the church has given up one of the most regular attendants that I have ever known. But, if faithful, we can all rest upon the perfect assurance of a happy reunion, for back of Brother Russell's bright, smiling countenance was the indwelling Christ, and from his life within emanated the light that shone in his face. The time element in the formation of character proves what is within. As every force in nature carries with it its atmosphere, so does every man and woman. So did he. To the bereft loved ones, permit me to say that only God can calm and ease the disturbed soul amidst such sorrows in life. To Him I commend you, and pray that there may be another family reunion some day—a day which is not followed by night, and a coming together never to be separated one from the other. His pastor,

T. B. WINSTEAD.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. LEILA McKEE.

(Resolutions passed by the Rose Hill Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Sunday School.)

On April 10, 1918, at 5 p. m., the reaper, "Death," came to our parsonage and claimed as his sheaf the sweet spirit of our beloved pastor's wife. Words are inadequate to express the sadness of the officers, teachers, and pupils the following Sabbath as they walked into the church and saw the vacant place which she never can fill again. We miss her. Yes, but, dear ones, weep not as those without hope. She'll be your guardian angel still, and when you, too, cross the "River of death" you'll meet your loved one and be at rest where sickness, sorrow, and death never come. As a wife she was devoted; as a friend, true; as a mother patient and gentle. While surrounded by husband, children, parents, and a host of friends, her redeemed spirit took its flight to the bright beyond and was safely anchored in the "haven of rest." Therefore, be it resolved:

(1) That, while we bow in sadness to our Father's will, acknowledging his wisdom and goodness and thanking him for a life of service to the Church and community, we most sincerely lament her death.

(2) That we cherish the memory of her devotion to the interests of her husband's work and her loyalty to Christian ideals.

(3) That our hearts go out in deepest sympathy to her family in this sad hour, and we pray that the Holy Comforter may pour the balm of consolation into their wounded hearts.

(4) That this tribute of affection be published in the Christian Advocate, that a copy be sent to the family, and that a copy be put on the minutes of our Sunday school.

Signed: Mrs. Allie Russell, Mrs. Minnie Russell, Miss Bell Shoemaker, Committee.

MRS. LAURA EASTERLING McREE.

Miss Laura Easterling was born in Rankin County, Mississippi, in the year 1848. Her father was Col. Easterling of Rankin County, and the family lived for some years at Fannin in the northern part of that county. At that little village there was an excellent school for a long time, known as the Masonic Institute, where many of the best young people of the county were taught. It is delightful to read the names of the McLaurins, Shaws, Easterlings, Mosses, Moores, Martins, Montgomerys, Marshalls, Wellbournes and others who gathered there in the early years and studied and formed friendships for life. Miss Laura Easterling was a member of that school, and when school-days were over she was united in marriage with Mr. S. P. McRee of Lincoln County. This was in the year 1870. Mr. McRee and his wife were a couple devoted to each other. They spent the years of their married life at Caseyville. Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. McRee went to Brookhaven, where she spent the remainder of her life. In her younger days she was a member of the Presbyterian Church at Fannin, but when she married she joined the Methodist Church with her husband. And so far as the record goes, she lived a sweet, happy, and blameless life. It is pleasing to note that when she left the Caseyville community she carried with her the good-will and best wishes of the whole neighborhood. In these days when war-clouds cover the world with darkness, it is delightful to think of a woman with a bright, smiling face who always spoke words of cheer and comfort. A woman like this is a blessing from God to any community.

The above estimate of Mrs. McRee was confirmed on the day of her burial when the whole community met at Bethel Church to pay respect to her memory.

The common sentiment was that we had every one lost a friend, and that her life was a benediction to all.

It is saddening to see the Lord's saints called away from a world where they are needed so much. Surely in this world of heavy shadows we need men and women of brave hearts, of gentle touch and tender word to bring strength and courage to the faint and weary. Departing, our friend leaves behind her a trail of mellow light. And we look in the on-coming ranks of her children and grandchildren, nephews and nieces and young friends, for some that will wear her mantle and lead consecrated lives.

Mrs. McRee, as we all know, had many sad days, full to overflowing of sharp, bitter trials. Time and again flesh and spirit were sorely tried, but she passed through all these purified by grace, as gold is refined in the furnace. As a cluster of grapes ripened and mellowed through summer heats and autumn frosts, she passed forth ready for our Father's house.

A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her in the gates.

With the greatest regard, we pay this tribute to the memory of a former schoolmate and friend of early days who was always true and loyal.

May heaven's blessing rest on sacred memories.

With reverence and love,

C. W. GRAFTON.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN
Make this beauty lotion, cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.
At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.
Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE.

On last Wernesday morning, April 3, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. M. Sharp, in Laurel, the lovely spirit of Mrs. Alethea Rhodes Carr, relict of Mr. William F. Carr, who died a number of years ago, winged its flight to the celestial regions. For years she had suffered with asthma, and as she grew older the attacks became more distressing, and while everything possible was done by her son-in-law and daughter and able physician, the attack was more violent than formerly, and only for a few hours was the struggle borne, and then came the calmness and peace of death.

The remains were brought to Forest, accompanied by her children, Rev. and Mrs. L. M. Sharp, Mrs. W. H. Alexander, of Bay Springs, and Mrs. Bell, of Laurel, and from here were conveyed (followed by other friends and relatives) to her home near Otho, back to the broken-hearted boys who only a week before had bidden her a cheerful good-by, hoping that her visit would greatly benefit her. Many friends gathered at the home to receive the body of her whom they had loved so much in life, and to do all they could to assuage the grief of the heart-broken children.

The funeral was held at Carr church on Thursday at 11 o'clock, where a large crowd assembled to pay the last sad rites, and where her pastor, Rev. M. L. White, and presiding elder, W. L. Linfield, paid tender tributes to her beautiful and useful life. Other ministers present were Rev. J. G. Galloway and Rev. J. M. Corley, who also had a part in the services. The comforting words were a great solace to the children and other sorrowing relatives grouped about the beautiful flower-ladened casket that held the form of their beloved mother, but no loving smile could greet them; the untiring hands of love lay still, their tender ministrations were ended, and only memory sets in the haunts once so happy for her presence. She was laid to rest by the side of her husband and near by her little ones who had preceded her.

Where she is asleep in God's Acre spring has spread her emerald velvet; the sleeping flowers have awakened in golden resurrection; the gentle wind is stirring their subtle fragrance, and the sunshine out of the shadows strayed, like a benediction follows when some one prayed. In the cool evening the quiet stars are her sentinels in the skies, and nature is so sweet, so kind out in God's Acre where she lies.

Mrs. Carr was born near Trenton, Miss., on March 25, 1848. At an early age she was left an orphan and was adopted by her uncle, Mr. Joe Thomas, of Raleigh, Miss., where she grew from sweet childhood into lovely and interesting girlhood, and on to beautiful, intelligent, amiable and graceful womanhood. In 1867 she was united in marriage to Mr. W. F. Carr, the youngest son of Col. Frederick Carr, one of the estimable and most wealthy men of the county. Eight children blessed this union, four of whom preceded the mother to the grave. The remaining ones are: Mrs. Nannie Sharp, with Joe, Frank and David, and one grandchild, Little Frank, Jr. No children were ever more thoughtful, considerate, and devoted than hers, which was a just recognition of her unselfish love for them. All the boys live in the old ancestral home, surrounded by associations that will always lead them to higher and greater living; for there their grandparents spent their honored lives, the good influences of the father still remain, and the precious mother, whose daily life was a testimony of her confidence in God, leaves an inspiration to love Him and their fellowmen. The story will never be told of her worth, not only to her family, but to all around her, to whom she was a friend, guide and counselor, their refuge in all their troubles, the physician of their ailments and a true missionary to the uninstructed. She was a pillar in the church, a great help to her pastors, who ever found in her home a welcome for the man of God.

At the age of 12 years she was converted and joined the Methodist Church, and throughout 58 years she lived close to God; therefore there was no preparing for death—her life had been a constant preparation.

Sweetly she fell asleep to awaken in heaven to greet those who had gone before, where supreme joy reigns over the reuniting. There her life is complete, for we know she is satisfied having awakened in Christ's likeness.

One who loved her,
MRS. L. BUTLER.

STOP! CALOMEL IS QUICKSILVER!

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and does not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

Sunday School

TO PASTORS AND LOUISIANA SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Such big things are happening every minute a fellow can't think about himself much without coming to the conclusion that he is pretty small, after all—can he? If we think of homes and their needs, religion, education, politics, food, or fighting, it is the same thing; the biggest we have are only big enough to do the best they can, and leave a lot undone. We are pretty small after all, aren't we?

There are some things though that we can do and the very manhood and womanhood that God gave us ought to and largely does force us at this critical time of the lives of men and babies to do the best we can. Certainly there is a deeper conviction on the part of men everywhere in civilized lands that the weakest of the race MUST HAVE A SQUARE DEAL, and if need be we will "chuck" everything in business that is not conducive to helping us kick any force clean off the face of the earth that is not willing to concede this fact by the lives they live, and we will just let our little old business that we have been running for our own benefit rest for awhile till we have finished the unselfish job as nearly as we imperfect fellows can finish it. That's kinder the way it looks to me now.

The children have not been getting a square deal from the Churches. We Methodists have been doing the best we could to feed ours with the best of food, clothe them as well as our means would allow, and sometimes better than we were able to do or was wise, and by various taxes it has been made possible for the United States to spend $15 per capita for their public education, but Protestantism, according to Dr. Edgar Blake, Sunday School Editor for the Methodist Episcopal Church, only spends 48 cents per capita for religious education. I don't think that's giving God a chance; it's cheating the child's soul out of its just dues, and it is certainly tying the hands of the Church to a great extent in its efforts toward soul nurture of her children.

Last Sunday was the day designated by our Church as Children's Day throughout all of Southern Methodism. It is the duty of every pastor and Sunday school Superintendent in Methodism to see that the day is observed on the last Sunday in April or as near thereto as is possible, and that the collection taken on that day be sent to the Treasurer of the Sunday School Board at once. Let us Louisiana Methodists get under the proposition this year as we have never done before. If we will put as much zeal in our Church work as we put in our war work we will make an overwhelming success of every special day that is set aside by our Church, and we certainly ought to do at least that much in order that our Churches may be in a better condition to meet gladly and easily every opportunity that humanity might give us for unselfish service and future preservation.

Order your Children's Day programs from Smith and Lamar, Dallas, Texas, and if you want the Sunday School Board to pay for them, have the bill sent to T. W. Holloman, Alexandria, La. Of course, you will help the cause along by paying for the programs from your treasurer if you have the money and will do so. One hundred Sunday schools last year reported in round numbers $1000. There are 350 schools of our denomination in this State and we ought to have the Day observed in every school, and the amount received at the treasurer's office should average at least $10 per school. If this happens some of the schools will have to get up in the $100 class, like First Church, Alexandria, did last year. Some of the better churches can give the larger amount much easier than others can raise $10.

Children's Day brings in the first offering of the year for Sunday school advancement and betterment. Order your programs to-day. Will you do it for the sake of childhood?

C. V. BREITHAUPT,
Conf. Field Secretary.

HISTORY OF THE SUNFLOWER CHAPEL SUNDAY SCHOOL.

By Mrs. S. E. Hendricks.

The Sunflower Chapel Sunday School is located in Sharkey County, Miss., 48 miles north of Vicksburg, on the west bank of the Sunflower River, a lovely stream that flows through the Yazoo Delta. It was organized in 1884, just one month after the first church was built on this river. The outlook at that time was anything but encouraging. There were many adverse circumstances to contend with, such as bad roads, or rather trails through the cane-braks, and no bridges across the streams in times of high water. We had to resort to boats as a means of transportation. Yet the attendance was better then than now, considering the population and the conveniences for traveling that we have now. Our school would necessarily suspend during the winter months, and often during an overflow, until late in the spring. However, we made a reasonably good record, having some years enrolled as many as 76 pupils. Our present enrollment is 54 students. Our success has been largely due to the faithful superintendents that we have had. John W. Hendricks was superintendent for 22 years; Mr. Renfield for 2 years; Mrs. S. E. Hendricks for 8 years, and Mr. A. E. Martin is serving his second year.

We have four grades and a Home Department. We practice the old plan of calling the roll each Sunday and expect each member to answer with a verse of Scripture. We take up a collection every Sunday to pay the current expenses and for other objects. The different Sunday school "days" are observed with appropriate exercises.

What our Sunday schools need are men and women for teachers who are consumed with a desire to do something for the Master. It is useless to "train" people to do a thing in which they are not interested. We need today men and women who are willing to make any sacrifice of time and talent necessary to lead our children and young people to Christ.

BLOOD POISON IS SNEAKING.

It steals upon you in the most unexpected manner. Beginning with a mere scratch of the skin and aided by the careless touch of a pair of dirty hands the slight wound becomes infected, festers and spreads. Blood poison sets in and unexpectedly the entire body is affected. Too often it proves fatal. Don't be foolish. Take care of yourself. The application of Gray's Ointment in all cases of cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, stings, sores, whether large or small, will put a stop to any possible chance of infection and blood poison. Telephone your druggist, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Seashore District Conference was held on April 17-18, 1918, in the hospitable little city of Wiggins, Miss., the opening sermon having been preached by Rev. J. E. Gray on the evening of the 16th.

Some sixty members, clerical and lay, were present at the first roll call or came in later. Three pastors were absent throughout the session.

The business of the Conference was transacted with dispatch under the presidency of Rev. J. R. Jones, the presiding elder.

The sessions were marked by unusual gravity and seriousness, due to world conditions incident to the great war. At the same time there was prevalent a note of optimism and confidence.

The Conference was favored at various intervals with the presence of visitors representing some of the more general interests of the Church. Among these were Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner, Emory University; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Manager Orphans' Home; Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sunday School Field Secretary; Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner Millsaps College; Rev. T. J. O'Neil, President Port Gibson Female College; Rev. Roy H. Kleiser, Religious Work, U. S. Army, Camp Shelby; Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder, Hattlesburg District, and Rev. G. W. McLain, a member of the North Mississippi Conference. Those representing the above-mentioned interests gave good accounts of the work committed to their hands.

There were public services at several hours, the pulpit being occupied at different times by Rev. Robert Selby, Rev. M. M. Black and Rev. Roy H. Kleiser. The preaching was of a high order, and good to the use of edifying.

Rev. E. M. Allen was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial into the traveling connection.

J. C. Ross, C. P. Gates, Rev. L. R. Roberts and P. F. Noland were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, and C. H. Wood and Robert Harmon were chosen as alternates.

Strong resolutions were enthusiastically adopted endorsing President Woodrow Wilson's administration, especially in the conduct of the war, and pledging our daily prayers for him and his counselors.

The reports from the several pastoral charges indicated that good progress had been made in the work of the year, and revealed plans for greater things in the future.

Lumberton was chosen as the place for holding the next session of the Conference.

Much praise of the hospitality of Rev. J. L. Sells, conference host, and the good people of Wiggins was heard among the delegates.

Secretary.

HATCHED 117 CHICKS.

John A. Clark, of Jonesboro, Ark., writes: "I hatched 117 chicks and did not lose one. Not a weak one in the flock." Mrs. J. B. Courson, Cordova, Ala., writes: "I have been using your tablets and did not lose a single chick. My neighbors want your tablets."

You will not lose a single chick, either, if you will use Reefer's Ready Relief, which every poultry raiser knows saves baby chicks from dying of that dreadful white diarrhoea plague. A package of this new scientific discovery will save 500 baby chicks. Aren't 500 of your baby chicks worth $1.00? That is less than one-half cent apiece. I take all the risk and will refund every penny of your money if Reefer's Ready Relief falls to save your chicks. A million dollar bank backs up this guarantee. Send for a dollar package to-day, or write for my free poultry book which tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. E. J. Reefer, 6525 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo.

New Kind of Calomel Safe and Delightful

The new kind of calomel, known as Calotabs, retains all of the good medicinal virtues of the old style calomel, yet is entirely purified from all of the nauseating, disagreeable and dangerous qualities. You can, therefore, eat what you please and go where you please, with no loss of time from your work.

One Calotab at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. Next morning you awake feeling fine, your liver cleansed, your system purified and with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends them and will refund your money if you are not delighted.

I believe no love, no life ever goes from us. It goes, as He went, that it may come again, deeper and closer and purer to be with us always, even to the end of the world.—Geo. MacDonald.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatments, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others? Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists, price 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

"BLOOD AND IRON"

A Combination That Makes for Better Health This Spring.

Every man and woman who would enjoy good health this Spring, and would have such life and strength as not to be a slacker, but equal to anything, must have an abundance of iron in the blood.

The new iron tonic, Peptiron, combines this valuable metal in medicinal form so that it is easily absorbed and readily assimilated.

Peptiron also includes pepsin, nux, celery, gentian and other tonics,—nerve helps, digestives and carminatives—a health-giving medicine in the form of chocolate-coated pills, convenient and pleasant to take. It has given entire satisfaction in cases of anemia or thin blood, paleness, nerve debility, brain-fag One or two Peptiron after each meal will quickly tell a story of marvellous results.

Peptiron is prepared by its originators, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

CHRISTIANITY TO-DAY.

By H. Croom Armour.

From the viewpoint of Christianity, the world of to-day is not what it was a couple of decades ago. The world seems to be gradually drifting away from all things pertaining to God and his kingdom. Lust and conquest for worldly things seem to have taken possession of people. Christ and the Church are in the back-ground.

In this day and time we make too much of a mockery of Christianity. Too many people go to church to-day without proper intentions. Among the many we may mention a few: The coming of the automobile which has seriously affected Christianity. The theaters, which seem to have a greater attraction for people than the Church. The moving picture shows are a great pleasure of life to a majority of people. All these things, and many more, are occupying the minds of men and women, rather than the Church.

We see few such manifestations of religion to-day, as we saw a few years ago. The people seem to think of the Church as only a side issue. The world has drifted very far away from the Christian life of a couple of decades ago. This terrible war, we believe, was brought upon us to make us realize that we were not living as close to God as we should. Few people seem to fully comprehend this. But, until we turn more toward God and his work, we must expect to have war and troubles.

Chrisianity to-day, then, is only a second issue with a great many people. This must and can be remedied. How? You are only to see and to be seen. The things that the preacher says do not occupy the proper places in their minds. The writer thinks of the people who attend Church, perhaps eighty per cent of them go out from the house of God without having formed the least conception of what the preacher said. Possibly there are more, we leave that to your judgment.

There are too many worldly pleasures that possess the minds of men, I may say. By all the preachers, laymen and Christians—really true Christians—doing their part, and more. The Lord has said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." This applies to all Christians. So, let us make the Christianity of to-day what it was a few years ago—a safe, sound religion, that will take full possession of a man.

Houlka, Miss.

A HEALTHY BODY.

Do you suffer from constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, or other forms of liver trouble? A healthy liver means a healthy body. When constipated don't poison yourself by failing to take the proper treatment. Don't force your perspiration to carry off through your skin pores more than its share of the impurities of your body by failing to keep your bowels clean and healthy. Take Van Lax for your liver. It is harmless, contains no calomel or habit-forming drugs, is pleasant in taste and results. It promotes a healthy condition in your entire digestive system. Take Van Lax and keep your body healthy. Sold by all reliable dealers. In bottles 50c. Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

A MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT WILSON.

"Resolved, That we, the members of the Seashore District Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session at Wiggins, Miss., send greetings to President Woodrow Wilson, and express to him our high appreciation of his conduct of the affairs of our Nation, especially of those matters concerning the war, and assure him of our full confidence in his splendid leadership.

"Resolved, further, That we pledge him our daily and earnest prayers for the presence and guidance of God for him and his counselors."

These resolutions were signed by Rev. H. M. Ellis, and sixteen others, and were enthusiastically adopted by the Conference.

We cannot believe in Christ for ourselves unless we believe in Him for all the world. The more deeply we believe in him for ourselves the more certain we shall believe that He is the Savior of the world.

Just as surely as you deepen your own spiritual life and make Jesus more your Savior, just so surely you will believe in Christian missions, and long to tell all that he is their Savior, too.—Phillips Brooks.

AFRICA FOR AFRICANS.

Just as the Balkans were the tinder box for the present world conflagration, so does Africa threaten to become the source of a possible "next war." Says Mr. H. G. Weils: "A muddling in Africa this year may kill your son and mine in the course of the next decade." It is true.

In Africa the Negro outnumbers the white five to one. The "one" is the small white aristocracy that even today is a virtual though veiled autocracy. Our high talk of world democracy goes lame when it comes to Africa.

No less eminent a South African statesman than General Smuts says: "Honesty, fair play, justice and the ordinary Christian virtues must be the basis of all our relations with the native." Is there any practice of such preachment? The world knows there is not.

Africa is still a blind child stumbling in the dark. Not one of the Allies can remain unconscious of its duty to the great Black Continent; not one can ignore the danger of careless statecraft after the war. Safeguarding the rights of all peoples does not mean of the white race only.

It is possible to presume that Africa can stand up for her rights alone. International aid for her is certain after the war. Statesmen at last will come to the assistance of the struggling and heroic missionaries, laboring and dying to save Africa for herself. Only by persistence in such a policy can a future war be averted. —The Centenary Bulletin.

FACTS WORTH QUOTING.

Forty per cent of the people of India live in areas where the proportion of Christian workers to the population is only one in 115,000.

A converted thug in North India became such a man of prayer that he came to the missionary asking to be taught geography in order that he might learn the names of more places to pray for Christianizing America's laws and policies dealing with non-Christian lands is a vital and integral part of the full missionary program of the American Church.

The Africans believe not only in the continued existence of the human soul after the death of the body, but they also believe in the existence of the essence of matter separate from the matter itself.

One far-reaching effect of the war is seen in the fact that Hindu soldiers in France deliberately broke caste by drinking out of the same cup with a Christian worker, stating that their act was the seal of friendship.

A Brahma Samaj leader of Calcutta asked for a Bible class in the life of Christ for the women of the community, on the ground that social freedom was dangerous without the restraining influence of Christianity.

Two young Siamese women, one the daughter of the Attorney-General, have gone to Manila to study medicine at their own expense, in order to become the first women physicians in Siam.

Christian Koreans who have settled in California have built a substantial church, are scrupulous in their observance of Sunday, and recently contributed generously to Armenian-Syrian relief.

Candidates for church membership in the West African Mission are so carefully trained in giving that the "Every Member Plan" is taken for granted, contributions being regarded as an essential element in worship.

"The darkest spot in the United States," area and population considered, is said to be the Navajo country, where the illiteracy reaches ninety per cent.—The Missionary Review of the World.

MEMORIAL TO MISS BONNELL.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Japan, which Miss Bonnell inspired and helped to organize, has decided to raise a memorial fund of 2,000 yen ($1,000) and use the interest for a schoiarship in the Lambuth Memorial Bible Training School in Kobe. The Japanese friends have already secured almost half the memorial fund proposed. One man, an old Palmore Night School Student, gave 500 yen. Miss Bonnell was greatly beloved by the Japanese and her loss is felt very keenly by them.

A LITTLE FARTHER ON THE WAY TO WEMBO-NIAMA.

Miss Etta Lee Woolsey writes as follows from Matadi, Congo Belge: "I am sending you a little note from Matadi in order that you may estimate the time we shall arrive at the mission. We got in here on December 13, and expect to leave for Kinshasa on the 17th. The Lapsley is there now waiting for her party, but we Methodists are not quite sure that she can accommodate us all. We hope so. But these big ocean liners that have just come in here were full of officials, and so we are not sure of being able to get on a State boat at once. Our month's stay at Loanda was very pleasant. I was privileged to make my first trip on 'an African trail' in company with one of the missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal Mission Board. We walked eight miles into the country one day to see about establishing a school in a village. One of the mission graduates was to be the teacher. This girl was under persecution in the town, and the missionary was trying to get her away from Loanda in order to protect her Christian character. We are having many new and varied experiences, but I thank God for the wonderful privilege of being a messenger of light to this dark continent."

A THING TO BEWARE OF.

Travelers tell us that the constant rubbing of the sand on Egyptian hieroglyphics removes every trace of color, and even effaces the deep-cut characters from basalt rocks. Iron is Greatest of All Strength Builders

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Physician Says: Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Delicate, Nervous, Rundown People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

MOST people foolishly seem to think they are going to to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, when, as a fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But, don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated, like nuxated iron, if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists

A WORD OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Mr. Editor: It has been qulte awhlle since I wrote you, but I could not refrain from expressing to you my appreclation of your edltorial in the Advocate of April 18, entitled "As a Spiritually-Minded Worker Sees It," and how I enjoyed reading it. Such utterances are just what we need to refresh and encourage the Christlan in this time of peril. May it be a blessing to many others who love the cause of our Lord and His Church, as it was to myself!

I have not written for the Advocate lately, not because of lack of interest, but because I have been slck for about three months, during which time I have been able to be present at but very few services of the sanctuary, but the presence of the Lord has been with me in it all, and the "Joy of the Lord has been my strength," and thls affliction has been sanctified to my spiritual good. I would be glad to receive a letter from any of my friends who may feel disposed to write to me.

I want again, as I have in the past, to say that I am in full accord with your views on the unification question, and I hereby record my oppositlon to it. Yours in Christ,

E. B. PARTIN, M. D.

Chunky, Miss., April 20, 1918.

A GOOD MEETING AT ABERDEEN.

Rev. John Tillery Lewis has just closed a very successful meeting at Aberdeen, Miss., in which he was assisted by his three brothers, Henry, James, and Osmond, of the Mississippi Conference. The attendance was large (as many as 500 being present at a service); twenty-five were received into the Church on profession of faith; and the general impresslon made was most favorable.

The unique feature of four brothers, all ministers, with voices blended in perfect harmony in the service of song, and with hearts and minds working together in like harmony in preaching, prayer, and personal work, all in the pulpit together twice, often thrice, daily deeply impressed the entire community.

The preaching was done by all four of the brothers, and it would be hard to determine whose sermons were most impressive. At one time Brother James would deliver a heart-searching message; then we would hear of what a fine impression was made by Brother John Tillery's sermon the night before; then we would hear Brother Henry present the Atonement in so clear, profound, and impressive a manner as we felt we had never heard excelled; then Brother Osmond would present the gospel to the children in so pure and persuasive a manner as to draw all hearts to him and to His Savior—so we can only say that the four make a team, rarely gifted in song and speech, doing a great work together for Christ and his Church. May God's blessings abide upon them richly, and may their work abide in the hearts and homes of all our people! We only regretted that we could not be with them constantly during this meeting at our home church. My only daughter, Martha, is among the converts. T. H. LIPSCOMB.

RAYNE, LA.

Dear Dr. Meek: Perhaps some one would like to hear from the Rayne charge. I am the only four-year man in the Lafayette District. Perhaps some of the brethren who are planning to move at the close of this year will be interested in this report. We have a whole block, well situated, in which is located the church and the parsonage. Rayne is in tho center of the rice section; yet we have diversified farming, and as a result prosperity is in evidence. I believe Rayne is recognized as one of the choicest charges in the district. Branch, our afternoon appointment, is almost an ideal rural church. I realize that my time will soon be up here unless the General Conference shall remove the time limit. I shall leave here with a great deal of reluctance. A preacher becomes very much attached to his people in four years, especially when they make allowance for his failures and short-comings. I'm sure this is a point in favor of the Rayne people. It is a great thing to be a Methodist preacher, and certainly so if one is surrounded by appreciative people. I'm certain in my own mind that as a church we have the greatest people in the world. Brother H. T. Young, our Conference Evangelist, will soon be with us for a ten days' meeting. We are praying for and expecting a gracious revival. I will be assisted at Branch by Brother G. D. Anders, who has a host of converts in Mississippi and Louisiana as a result of his labors. Brother Bowman, our new presiding elder, has been with us several times and has done us good by his gospel messages. Our financial prospects are good. Notwithstanding the many demands on our people, our Sunday school at Rayne raised $150 for our Orphanage at Ruston. The Woman's Missionary Society has increased its pledge, and the preacher's salary has also been slightly increased. We need the prayers of the brethren. Our Methodism should be one of co-operation and sympathy. Perhaps, after the General Conference, we will hear less of unification, the Negro, and Vanderbilt, and more of the spiritual needs and possibilities of our Church. The mission of the Church is to save men.—C. E. Fike, P. C.

THE SECRET OF THEIR POWER.

Do you wonder that the apostles "turned the world upside down?" that the early disciples "went everywhere preaching the Word?" that St. Paul spent himself and was spent, became all things to all men that by all means he might save some? The first converts felt themselves to be new-born men. They had been delivered, and they had been delivered in order to deliver others. "Every Christian told his neighbor, the laborer to his fellow-slave, the servant to his master and mistress, the story of his conversion, as a mariner tells the story of his rescue from shipwreck."—Rev. John Y. Ewart, D. D.

ONE WAY TO HELP.

One simple and ever-ready means of helping the church service is to attend it. Any kind of meeting that is poorly attended is likely to be a poor meeting. If a committee or board consists of ten members, and only three are present, not much is likely to be done. But pack the meeting full, and it will have power. This principle applies with special force to religious services where sympathetic contagion is so vital a factor. A full attendance at a service shows interest on the part of the people, and then this interest intensifies itself, as embers heaped together begin to glow. Pentecost derived much of its power from the fact that all the members were there with one accord in one place. But let there be a light attendance, thinly scattered over the seats, and every one feels a chill. Every seat filled adds so much, and every seat left vacant subtracts so much from the service. This old familiar truth should not be forgotten, not even when we are tired or when many engagements press upon us, but should keep its grip upon our consciences and lead us to say, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us fill the Lord's house by our attendance, and then the Lord's house will fill us with his blessing.—Banner.

A Warning—to feel tired before exertion is not laziness—it's a sign that the system lacks vitality, and needs the tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sufferers should not delay. Get rid of that tired feeling by beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day.—Adv.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

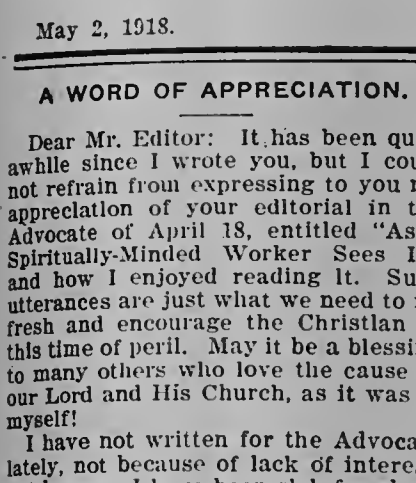
How can more truth be packed in fewer words than in Psalm 46:1? "God is our Refuge and Strength; a very present help in trouble." Let me put four of these words in one line: God, Refuge, Strength, Help. Each of these last three words, or all three taken together, are equal to the first in Redemptive work. Then I see them opposite that last word, Trouble, that great big word, which includes all the trials and sorrows, the temptations, the assaults, the storms and persecutions that come from youth to old age. This verse has been the friend of millions of tried and tempted people. And from their great sorrows they have learned great lessons, and especially that all-important one, that "All things work together for good to them that love God." If God said "all" things, who am I that I should say "some" things?

But God is "our" Refuge, "our" Strength, "our" Help. Then the tense of the verse appeals to me, "present" Help; therefore the translators could use the word "is," italicised in the Authorized Version, but a part of the text in the Revised.

Our Refuge, shelter, trust and hope. He is our help in time of need. "The Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." And this wonderful truth is but the doorway to the wealth and beauty of the Forty-sixth Psalm. Enter; its riches and its inspiration and help are all yours, if you say so.

Ruminating upon trouble is bitter work. Children fill their mouths with bitterness when they rebelliously chew the pill which they ought obediently to have taken at once.—Spurgeon.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD



Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Rheumatism Back on the Job With its Old-time Fury

No Let-Up In Its Torture.

Pretty soon you will be reaching for the liniment bottle again, for the millions of little pain demons that cause Rheumatism are on the warpath. Winter weather seems to awaken them to renewed fury.

But your Rheumatism cannot be rubbed away, because liniments and lotions cannot reach the disease. It is in the blood, and only a remedy that goes deep down into the circulation, and routs out the disease germs, can rid you of this disabling disease.

S. S. S. has given some wonderful results in treating Rheumatism. Being a purely vegetable blood remedy, it purifies the blood of every germ, and thus removes the cause of Rheumatism. Get a bottle to-day at your drugstore, and start on the right treatment that will get results. Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have workod practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT,

Johnston, S. C.

I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful curative powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from indigestion and nervous debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to baffle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she began using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.

W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold ofone of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D.

Fredericksburg, Va.

Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

WM. C. CARTER.

Roper, N. C., Oct. 30, 1914.

I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.

MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

MRS. THEO. KUKER.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 24, 1914.

It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones.

MRS. JAMES R. CARTER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.

For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my livermost marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.

S. A. DERIEUX.

Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.

LIVER AND KIDNEY

Ohoopee, Ga., Aug. 21, 1914.

I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.

M. L. STEPHENS.

Carlisle, S. C.

It is fine for liver tronbles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.

REV. A. McA. PITTMAN.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

Columbia, S. C.

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

J. P. D.

Virgilina, Va., March 28, 1914.

Your Water has done me more good than anything I ever tried for bladder trouble.

A. R. F.

Wesley, Ga., May 12, 1914.

I had been down with bladder trouble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minutes at a time. In threo days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.

S. B. D.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.

Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.

W. J. STRAWN.

Williamston, N. C. Oct. 8, 1914

My doctor said I would have to be operated on for gallstones, but since I have been drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor.

W. H. EDWARDS.

Columbia, S. C.

My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

By Rev. R. P. Neblett.

The General Conference was called to order in the commodious Wesley Memorial Church, at Atlanta, Ga., on Thursday morning, May 2, at 9 o'clock, by our Senior Bishop, E. R. Hendrix. "Nearer, My God, to Thee" was feelingly sung, and Bishop W. R. Lambuth led in a fervent prayer. After Scripture readings and prayer, the Secretary of the former General Conference called the roll; Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., was elected Secretary, and routine business began.

Bishops Joseph S. Key, R. G. Waterhouse, and J. H. McCoy are not present at the seat of the Conference. Bishop Key is very feeble and was not able to make the journey from his home in Sherman, Texas; Bishop Waterbouse is detained on account of his wife's illness; Bishop McCoy is in a hospital, quite ill, in Rochester, Minn.

It was evident from the beginning that this session of our General Conference was to be marked by spirited discussions and a wide-awake interest. The body of delegates are in place and looking well. The church in which the meetings are held is so arranged as to give ample accommodations for the Committee and Board meetings. The main auditorium was made the bar of the Conference and the two galleries will comfortably seat all the visitors and people of the city who wish to attend. About two hundred can be accommodated in the choir loft, which has been given over to the ministers of the city, their families, and the wives of delegates.

The Episcopal address, which was written by Bishop E. E. Hoss, was read by Bishop Collins Denny and occupied the larger part of the morning session. This address will be published in the Daily Advocate, as well as by the religious press, and should be read by every Southern Methodist.

Bishop W. A. Candler presided at the second day's session. On being called to the chair by Bishop Hendrix, he was presented with a bound volume of the personal diary of Mr. John Wesley, giving in detail, as it was written by Mr. Wesley himself, day by day, his life and work during his two years' stay in Georgia in 1736-1737. The book is one of peculiar value and interest. It is written with a goose-quill pen, with a fine quality of ink, and is clearly legible to-day, after nearly two hundred years. It will be kept in the fire-proof vault of the Library at Emory University.

The Conference received a number of memorials and resolutions asking for revision of present laws or the making of new ones. The greatest interest seemed to be manifested in the proposal to provide more adequately for superannuates. From the Woman's Missionary Council came a paper asking that the women be granted equal privileges with the men in all departments of church work. Several asked for the removal of the "time limit." There were others proposing the limiting of the term of the presiding elders, and various requests regarding more activity on the part of the laymen.

The afternoon was given to Committee and Board work, and a number of the members of the Conference attended the patriotic gathering at the City Auditorium, at 8:15 p. m.

Some of the strong men of the Conference are: Dr. James Cannon, Jr., of Virginia; Dr. W. F. McMurry, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, who is a member of the St. Louis delegation; Dr. A. J. Lamar, who belongs to the whole Church, as one of the Agents of the Publishing House, but who is a member of the Alabama Conference; Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, of Savannah, Ga., and Dr. E. B. Chappell, of Nashville.

At Saturday's session of the Conference, Bishop H. C. Morrison, who has asked to be relieved from active service after this session of the General Conference, presided. The topic of greatest interest was the report of the Commission on Unification, which had no plan to offer for the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, Southb. They gave an extended and full account of their labors, yet regretted that they were unable to bring before the Conference a definite plan. This report was referred to the Committee on Church Relations. Whether the Commission will be discharged or continued, is yet to be determined by the Conference.

The Educational Commission, appointed by the last General Conference, also made their report, turning over to the Church two great Universities, one west of the Mississippi River, at Dallas, Texas, and one east of the river, at Atlanta, Ga., representing within twenty thousand dollars of $6,000,000 in property and endowment, and "owing no man anything but to love him."

It was our pleasure, in company with six other brethren, to go over the grounds of Emory University, which is located on a ninety-acre campus, four and a half miles from the center of the city. The car line now runs to the campus and paved streets and drives extend far beyond. This section is rapidly building up, and will soon be a beautiful residence part of the city. The buildings on the University grounds are marvels of beauty, causing one to give grateful thanks to Almighty God that our young men will have such splendid advantages while they are being trained for their life-work. We met a remarkably interesting character in the chapel of the Candler School of Theology, Brother Condo, a native Japanese, who has spent three years away from his wife and children to equip himself as a preacher of the Gospel to his own people, to whom he will go on the completion of his work, in June. He sang for us one of the gospel hymns in his own language. He has a rich baritone voice of peculiar softness. May his tribe increase!

The Conference adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock p. m., when formal addresses of welcome were extended by Gov. Dorsey, of Georgia; Mr. Asa Candler, Mayor of Atlanta; the Rev. Mr. Scott, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, representing the local Ministers' Alliance, and Dr. Dickey, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city. "America" was sung and Bishop Hendrix introduced Gov. Dorsey, who, in a few well-chosen words, given in a fitting and earnest spirit, welcomed the General Conference to Georgia, the cradle of Methodism in America and to the Capital City of this great commonwealth. Mr. Asa G. Candler sounded an inspiring note of cordial welcome to this growing city.

Pledges of loyalty to the Government at this time and to President Wilson were assured, and every mention of the part America was taking, or would take, in the great world struggle, was cheered to the echo. Bishop Hendrix responded to the words of greeting and on the part of the Conference accepted the generosity of the Churches, City and State.

The city is astir with soldiers, who are in camp near-by. The bands play, the boys march, and Liberty Bells ring all along the streets, while Scouts and clubwomen sell Liberty Bonds.

Sunday services were held in nearly all the Protestant churches of the city, conducted by members of the General Conference. The writer had the privilege of worshiping with the congregation at the First Methodist Church, South, where Bishop H. C. Morrison preached to a vast throng. Great is Atlanta and Atlanta Methodism! it is not only historic, but it is making history, and that right rapidly.

One of the interesting features of the coming week will be a series of lectures in the Sunday school department of the Wesley Memorial Building, where the Department of Sunday School Supplies of our Publishing House at Nashville has an exhibit. This exhibit is unique and perfect in all of its parts. Every department of a well organized and thoroughly graded school is there shown; the only touch needed to finish the picture would be the pupils and a well trained teacher standing in the midst of them. Dr. A. L. Dietrich, Mr. E. E. French, and Hon. J. H. Ledyard deserve much credit for arranging and putting on this exhibit. Mr. John R. Pepper, of Memphis, will give the first lecture of the series Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Then will follow Dr. Edgar Blake, of the Northern Methodist Church, Dr. Geo. R. Stuart, Bishop James Atkins and others each afternoon, at the same hour in the same place, for ten days.

The North Mississippi Conference delegation are all now in place, Rev. J. R. Countiss having been detained two days on account of the illness of his mother, who is still in a critical condition. But Brother Countiss is at his post of duty, looking after the interests of the Church to which he has been called, and so is Brother E. M. Fant, who reached Atlanta Saturday, accompanied by Mrs. Fant. So far, very few visitors from our territory are looking in on the Conference. Rev. J. T. Leggett, of the delegation from the Mississippi Conference, is reporting for duty at every session, despite the fact that he is just recovering from an automobile accident, which came near being very serious. His wife is with him and looking as young as when a student at Millsaps College in the days agone.

The weather has been ideal so far—not too hot or too cool—clear and bright. We could not have hoped for more fitting and excellent conditions in this regard.

THE OVERFLOWING CUP.

"My cup runneth over." He had not only a fullness of abundance, but of re-abundance. Those who have this happiness must carry their cup upright, and see that it overflows into their poor brethren's emptier vessels. The showers which fall upon the highest mountains should glide into the lowest valleys.

The fact that you are a Christian may, without doubt, assure you a safe entrance into heaven, but it may not mean that you are much of a blessing to your friends about you. God makes the life to overflow that other men's lives may be touched with your power. For it is only the overflow of your life that proves a blessing to your friends and kindred. It is the overflow of the Nile that makes the valley of the Nile fruitful.—J. Wilbur Chapman.

"MY GRACE IS SUFFICIENT FOR THEE."

"The other evening I was riding home after a heavy day's work; I felt very wearied and more depressed, when swiftly and suddenly as a lightning flash that text came to me: "My grace is sufficient for thee." I reached home and looked it up in the original, and at last it came to me; and I said, 'I should think it is, Lord,' and burst out laughing. I never fully understood what the holy laughter of Abraham was until then. It seemed to make unbelief so absurd. It was as though some little fish, being very thirsty, was troubled about drinking the river dry, and Father Thames said, 'Drink away, little fish, my stream is sufficient for thee.' Or, it seemed like a little mouse in the granaries of Egypt, after the seven years of plenty, fearing it might die of famine; Joseph might say, 'Cheer up, little mouse, my granaries are sufficient for thee.' Again, I imagined a man away up yonder, in a lofty mountain, saying to himself, 'I breathe so many cubic feet of air every year, I fear I shall exhaust the oxygen in the atmosphere;' but the earth might say, 'Breathe away, O man, and fill the lungs ever; my atmosphere is sufficient for thee.' Oh, brethren, be great believers! Little faith will bring your souls to heaven, but great faith will bring heaven to your souls."—C. H. Spurgeon.

SIMPLE KINDNESS.

I once lived by the side of a very excellent man who, nevertheless, had his infirmities, which, of course, surprised me; and I recollect an occasion on which he became angry and manifested his displeasure in a very striking manner. I, wanting a place to hang up a dipper in my yard, drove a nail into the fence between him and me, which went through on the other side. One day I heard a racket in my yard; and, looking to see what was the occasion of it, I found my dipper ringing over the pavement. This man had got a hammer and hit the nail a rap and sent the nail, dipper, and everything else flying. My first feeling was to fire the dipper over at him and give him as good as he sent, but my second thought was: "Well, that man is made so, I suppose; he is a passionate man by nature; he was taken by surprise; he is a very good fellow, a kind neighbor, and I won't say anything about it." I was going to be satisfied so; but then I said, "I guess I had better say something to him," and I stepped in and said: "I ask your pardon, sir. It was thoughtless, my driving that nail through the fence, and I am glad you reminded me of it." He shook hands with me and said: "Well, well, well, let us say nothing more about that." The result showed the wisdom of treating the matter in a spirit of simple kindness. It was evidently the course of conduct which was best for him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

REV. S. M. THAMES.

The death of this old hero of the Cross occurred at his home in Jackson, Miss., on Tuesday morning, April 11, at 5 o'clock. He had la grippe. For some months he had been confined to his bed because of a broken hip, but he was gradually recovering from that and was able to stand up with a little assistance. He contracted a terrible cold which ran into la grippe, and, though every attention was given him, his once strong, vigorous body gave way under the severe strain and he made the final surrender to the great enemy.

Brother Thames left a distinct impression in the minds of multitudes of people throughout North Mississippi. Wherever he went people remembered him. His preaching was strong; as an administrator he was unexcelled. Around the family fireside he was convincing. His apt use of anecdote, his sunny disposition, his love for children, made him the welcome guest wherever he went.

How he did love his family! He never forgot them. He rejoiced in their success, and their sorrows were his. His love for his Church was a passion. The work in which he had been engaged so long was such a real part of his being that he had no thought for anything else. During the last few days of his life, not conscious of passing events, he would imagine himself still in the harness and would say, "Has my horse been fed? I must go and hold my quarterly conference." Twenty years of his ministry were spent in the presiding eldership, and it was in this field that he was seen at his best. His judgment of men rarely failed and he was always found on the side of orthodox Christianity. His end was peace. Quietly and gently, as daylight comes when night is done, his spirit took its eternal flight to be with God. His body was tired, but his spirit had the freshness and joy of a May morning.

His funeral was held from the Galloway Memorial Church, the service being conducted by Rev. C. W. Crisler, the pastor. Revs. B. F. Lewis, W. H. Lewis, W. W. Woollard, and J. R. Countiss took part in the service. Beautiful music was rendered by the choir, and the floral offerings were superb. The memory of such a service, held under such circumstances, will refresh and gladden the hearts of the family throughout all the coming years.

The remains were taken to Vicksburg and deposited in the family lot of Hon. J. D. Thames, the only surviving son. His body rests among the hills and will go back to mother earth whence it came, but his memory, his real self, will live on in the hearts of those who knew and loved him. May God comfort the sad ones back in the home at Jackson and at Vicksburg.

E. S. LEWIS.

FROM THE PELICAN PINES.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

Come on, and let us go to the district conference. No, don't shake your head. I know they usually are about as dull and sleepy affairs as you will find; but if you don't enjoy this one I'll set up the strawberry short-cake out of the little flour that is left, and I know you will enjoy that! It is to be held at Stonewall, a little village seventeen miles south of Shreveport. The Jefferson Highway and the Texas Pacific railroad will give chances to get away if you are bored. Look at the autos in the woods, will you! You can hardly find a place to "park" your machine. What is fifty miles now with a "machine?" And when this war is over so many men will have been trained to fly that the airplane will supercede the auto for quick transit, and a "landing" will be as necessary in every town as a garage. But this is the day of the auto, and "a seven passenger," like an omnibus, has an elastic capacity. The first thing you note then is that converted autos can make a district conference a big thing in the way of attendance; for the church would not hold the crowd that assembled for preaching, and we had to adjourn to a large high school auditorium. Ledbetter, the pastor, is jubilant because such a crowd is almost unprecedented. But, then, everybody is jubilant; it is the characteristic of the meeting.

You will also note that it is a three-headed affair. The district conference proper meets in the Methodist Church; the women of the district meet in the Baptist Church about a hundred yards away; and the young people of the Epworth League meet under the trees, but subsequently adjourn to the school auditorium. The women are in their glory and have full swing. They mean business and attend to it, setting the men a splendid example of efficiency. The young people are unorganized, but take fire, and start a drive that will startle the devil. Children swarm around. What, children at the district conference? Certainly. Why not? They were in the crowd that followed Jesus. I have little patience with these nervous preachers who are upset if a baby cries; and I have little patience with a mother who has no more sense than to hunt a front seat when she has a restless little one at church. If it is the preacher's place to overlook the natural disturbance of a noisy child, it is the duty of the mother to sit near the door where she may slip out if the youngster becomes too obstreperous. By all means let the little ones come!

Yes, you will criticise the program. "Three minute reports" about the work spoils the plan. First, because no one can say enough in three minutes to mean anything; and, second, because not one in a hundred will stop in three minutes, and ten to one ninety-nine in a hundred will get in a bad humor if you call him down. These reports bored us—no use denying that, and especially the one that took twenty minutes to tell us nothing! Our hope is that such a wide-awake presiding elder will not stumble twice in the same place, but will furnish blanks for what he wants to know about the work, and use the time in discussion of plans. You will also probably say that the women should be given the second instead of the first day, so as to make the climax. God did not make woman till he had finished everything else—the best last!

Let's go to the preaching. The preacher is the Rev. W. W. Drake, pastor of the Noel Memorial Church in Shreveport. His text is: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." Not since A. W. Wilson, D. D., stirred the conscience of Southern Methodism have I heard a missionary sermon of such breadth, and strength, and grip on the heart of the matter. The Church at large does not know this young man, or Noel Memorial would have to look somewhere else for a pastor. That sermon if preached at the General Conference on the Sunday before the election for Bishops came off would put the Bishop before the preacher's name; and no mistake would be made either. For he is young; he has a good case of religion; he studies and grows stronger all the time; and he carries a level head. It was a great message he gave us. And he made the impression of great reserve force—there was no straining after elusive thought; no crude and half-digested ideas; no odor of the lamp in stiff and academic periods. It flowed like a river, clear and deep and strong. That was at 11 a. m. I did not hear the other sermons; but report says both Shankle and Wynn fed them on "strong meat."

This district conference was a big religious picnic. Come on and let us go to dinner. Look at that long table under the trees. In spite of Hoover it groans under a load of good things. There—O, well, I won't attempt to enumerate the fare; but one thing I can assure you, they had less molasses pie when I got through than they started in with. "Stonewall is famous for barbacues," a friend remarks as we stroll a little aside to where some colored women are brewing hot coffee in a big pot. "Thank you, auntie; that's fine." Whether the compliment or the quarter pleased most, who will say! "Lord, no charge fer this." "That is all right. Put that in your missionary box." And your stock is all right in that market.

Who is responsible for this sort of a district conference—this combination of religious work, social pleasure, and genuine feasting? Well, while you are eating that piece of Hoover pie, look at that ugly little bald-headed man with the square shoulders and big mouth standing modestly in the crowd. His name is Atkinson and he is the presiding elder. Drake can outpreach him; possibly some of the rest can do it; but none can out-hustle him. He is a genuine "live-wire." He has no more sense than to believe that a district conference is for some other purpose than to elect lay delegates to the Annual Conference. He is as full of initiative as an egg is of yolk; a nervous, restless fellow, always planning, scheming, trying to do something; if he can't do it one way, then another; brotherly with it all, and without offensive official pretense. It is very probable that he is planning already for the district conference next year.

The singing was led by Grambling, Dr. Drake's lieutenant. I told him for pity's sake don't lose the "r" out of his name. He is fine, not only as a vocal leader; but for work in general, especially with the young people. That ubiquitous Breithaupt was there—I always have to turn to the Minutes to see how to spell his name, and he is as hard to stop when he gets started as Turner. Vaughan was there, as skinny and as genial as ever, with his report of the "best year yet." We had no "Connectional" magnate, and they missed something. I can't brag on the appetite of the crowd for good literature, for I sold only one copy of my "Tale of the School in the Sticks;" and Wynn had something ten cents cheaper that did not seem to take any better. Brother Brown bought my "Tale." They got the Browns tangled in the Minutes; this was that youthful gentleman who is pastor at Zwolle. Level head to get my "Tale!" There was pie enough for the whole Advocate force, "devil" and all, if they had been there. It was the general opinion that it "was great!" And it was.

Mansfield, La.

COLLEGE DAY IN OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Attention, Louisiana Methodists!

Our General Board of Education has provided for the observance in our Sunday schools of a day to be called "College Day," when the claims and interests of Christian education and the facts about our own colleges shall be brought home to the young people of our Sunday schools. Our own Conference in session at Minden recommended the observance of such a day, but set no definite date for it. Heretofore we have tried once or twice to introduce this observance, but the date set has been too early in the year to carry it out effectively, and it has never been generally adopted.

Your Conference Secretary recently had a conference with the State Secretary of Education for the Baptist Church and learned that the Baptist Church in the State is planning to observe such a day in the month of June, making that their education month. Mr. Godbold suggested that the Methodists of Louisiana unite with the Baptists in making June the time for a great drive for Christian Education. There are reasons why this is a good time for such a drive. It is just after our college commencements, when the subject is fresh in the minds of many; students from our institutions are just home from college, and there is nothing to interfere with the observance at this time. There will be added inspiration in the fact that the two strongest Churches in most of our communities are considering this important interest of the Church. Why should not every Sunday school in Louisiana Methodism enter into a great campaign of information about our colleges and get our young people, from whom the future student bodies must be recruited, in touch with our institutions?

One difficulty presents itself, that of a suitable program. Attention is called to the fact that in the March Sunday School Magazine a responsive service is published giving the information desired. From this and other data your Conference Board of Education proposes to prepare a program sufficiently full, and at the same time simple and usable, which pastors and superintendents may secure on request, and which may be used in any Sunday school. Will not every pastor and superintendent at once begin to plan for such a day some time in June?

This proposal does not include any plan for a special collection. Such a time would be a good opportunity, however, for any school or organized class to undertake some special help for our schools, such as the support in part or in full of a young minister in college, or some other special educational effort in connection with Centenary or Mansfield.

Another suggestion that may be of value is that every pastor take advantage of the time when the subject of education is before our young people in the Sunday schools to preach the sermon on Christian Education that he is required to preach during the year. Let us unite among ourselves upon this month for a great new interest in Christian Education, joining with our Baptist brethren, who are taking hold of it with an energy and effectiveness that promises to outstrip us if we do not catch step.

I shall appreciate it if brethren who are interested will write me as to whether they will cooperate in such a movement, whether they desire the publication of such a program as has been suggested, and offering any suggestions as to making it most effective. Fraternally,

W. WINANS DRAKE,
Conference Secretary of Education.

THE BATON ROUGE REVIVAL.

Five Young Men Give Themselves to the Ministry.

It was a holy hour, an hour charged with the consciousness of divine power, in which five of the strongest young men of Baton Rouge gave their lives to the ministry late Sunday afternoon in one of the revival services conducted by Rev. D. L. Coale and his singer, C. G. Spindler. Another young man already had taken the same step privately and his name was announced at this consecration service.

The young men who consecrated their lives to the ministry Sunday are Charles J. Rupp, Wilbur Kean, Wilbert Burcham and Jack Adams, of the First Methodist Church, and L. W. McFarland, of the Baptist Church. Le Roy Johns, son of Rev. H. S. Johns, chaplain of the penitentiary, is the young man who took the step in private. During the war he is doing Y. M. C. A. war work in this country.

As these young men, victorious in recognition of their calls, silently gripped the hand of Evangelist Coale, their eyes were moist but triumphant and their faces were radiant. It was the end of the service and as more than 100 Christians stood around the altar in the semi-shadows, a ray from the low-lying sun slipped through a window and touched with a soft glow that consecrated group; and the light of God shone from over the clifftops of His eternal hills and lay in holy splendor upon them.

Sunday was the last day of the two weeks' revival, and at its close Sunday night the tangible result of the 14 days' work was that some 300 persons had been brought to Christ, a large number of whom joined other churches. Additions to the Methodist Church totaled nearly 70. But the unrecorded effects of the revival, the unseen good that it accomplished in the lives of hundreds of Baton Rougeans, could only be sensed in the light that shone in the faces of each congregation.

Baton Rouge has gained materially, not only through the spiritual effects of the revival, but in coming to know an evangelist like Reverend Dr. Coale. He is a man of deep consecration, of sympathy with human nature and of strong personality, and his is a sane evangelism, founded not upon emotionalism but upon conviction. Chorus Leader Spindler is one of the best singers and song leaders ever participating in a Baton Rouge service. The heartfelt appreciation of the entire congregation—many who were not members of the Methodist Church—went with them both. Dr. Coale returned to his home, 2710 Oak Lawn, Dallas, Tex.

LIBERTY BOND ADDRESS OF REV. JNO. F. FOSTER.

The Shreveport Times gives the following report of the able address of Rev. Jno. F. Foster, made at their great Liberty Bond meeting:

"The meeting closed with a magnificent discourse by Rev. John F. Foster, on the civilian's duty in the war. The best efforts of the patriots back in '76, he said, were comparatively small compared with the work now before the American people. To-day it is the aftermath of those patriots' fight that is being fought, and the fight is much bigger. It is in the hands of America to settle this question, but if America should not win, Germany will settle it. In '76 it was a fight for the liberty of 13 colonies; to-day it is a fight for the liberty of the world.

"The speaker then referred to the Kaiser's dream of world domination, and asked if life would be worth living if Germany should happen to gain the empire of the Kaiser's dream. The German power, he explained, is practically centralized in one man, the Kaiser, who has not inculcated the principles of God into his soldiers in their ruthless invasions.

"The civilians are to provide the sinews of the war. Some men say they are too busy to help sell Liberty Bonds. Of them he asked what under the sun would their business be worth if Germany should rule? Some say they have better investments to make than Liberty Bonds. To them he said: 'If you don't invest your money in this way, you may lose it all.'

"He said he was glad the Sammies are in France, but wished they were there a million strong, in which event there need be no fear. 'Shall we stand back with our dollars when we have given our sons? What means more to you, your first born or your money? Shall we give our boys and not stand by them with our dollars and our time?' These were among the questions he asked, in emphasizing the necessity of the army at home providing the finances to feed and clothe and arm the soldiers and save democracy.

"'Will we stand by the boy we've rocked and cradled, or will we desert him?' he asked in conclusion.

"'If that don't put patriotism in you, I don't know what will,' remarked Chairman Wray, amid great applause, after which the Rev. Mr. Foster was given a rising vote of thanks for his message."

A UNION REVIVAL AT LEXINGTON, MISS.

On Sunday, April 14, 1918, Rev. W. M. McIntosh, with his wife and Mr. Watson, of Meridian, Miss., as helpers, began a union revival here at the Methodist church, and he was joined a few days later by the district evangelist, Rev. W. A. Wilson, of New Albany, Miss. The services were moved to the Baptist church at the beginning of the second week, where this great meeting was closed Sunday night, April 28. There being but few people who were not members of some Church, the labors of this unusually capable evangelistic party were directed chiefly to the spiritual upbuilding of the people. Their work will bring forth fruit many fold in the years to come as well as now. These workers are especially qualified to preach a whole gospel with extra force and unusual directness; to give to young people the spirit of consecration and service; to develop workers among the girls and women, and to enlist the men of all classes. This work was done. The sermons were masterpieces and the commendable feature was that they were built and delivered to convince by the power of God's Word. They did their work and many lives were revolutionized. I wish every charge in the State might have the benefit of such help. I rejoice that our Conference shall share so largely in their work this year.

The only very sensational things during the meeting were the raiding of "blind tigers" on Friday night, and a big wind-storm Saturday night. But these were not comparable to the abiding effects of the movements of the Holy Spirit among us.

Little Doris could not count beyond four. One day, when she was showing me five berries that she had picked, I asked, "How many have you, Doris?" Her brows puckered; then, dimpling with a smile, she answered, "Wait till I eat a berry; then I will tell you!"—Woman's Home Companion.

REPORT FROM CAMP SHELBY.

By Roy H. Kleiser, Camp Pastor.

Your camp pastor has been exceedingly busy since the last report. At that time we were just beginning to find out where we stood and what niche we were to fill in the great organization of the cantonment life. Without taking up too much of your valuable space I will give just a brief report of what has been accomplished to date.

The Methodist work has been fairly well organized and is moving smoothly. After finding out what expense was necessary in connection with the work, the Mission Board has authorized an additional $800 to cover same. Presuming, of course, that the Mississippi Conference will not fail in its obligation to this work, I have opened up an office, employed a stenographer, bought a mimeograph, and am handling the correspondence and circular work on that basis. My office is No. 404 Carter Building, Hattiesburg, Miss., and I may usually be found there from 9 to 12 a. m. All stray preachers will be welcomed, as well as anybody else who cares to call on us. If the camp pastor is out, his efficient assistant, Miss Alice Haney, will be glad to do the honors of the occasion.

We have had a number of men to join the local churches, and it has been my privilege to baptize and administer the vows of the Church to a good many others and send their memberships to their home churches—especially in the case of men who wished to unite with other branches of the Methodist Church. We have also issued about 25 or 30 Honorary War Memberships to men who have voluntarily asked for them. This plan identifies the men with the local churches, but it does not change their relation to the home church.

The "motbering movement," which was started in the Y. M. C. A. buildings, and of which I spoke in my last report, is more than meeting our expectations. Our ladies are in the buildings every Wednesday afternoon, sewing or entertaining in some way, and there has been a very marked change in the general behavior of the men. Of course, vulgar language and profanty is rather a rarity around the Y. M. C. A. buildings now. The presence of the women seems to have helped the men to drop back into their normal attitude of respect, and they behave more like they probably did at home.

I have not only done considerable personal work in the Base Hospital, but have organized the women's societies of the three Methodist churches for the purpose of visiting, taking flowers to, and cheering the men in the wards in various ways.

The representative of the Community Service of the War Department, learning of our organization, called upon me to organize the entire work for the city upon the same basis. This has been done, and we now have every religious and social society in the city at work in the Base Hospital every Wednesday afternoon, including a colored representative, to do the work in the colored ward. Camp Shelby has only forty-nine Negro soldiers, who are detailed here for sanitary work under white officers. We have a colored preacher cooperating with us and ministering to the men of his race.

Your camp pastor has also been asked by the representative of the War Department to sit as a member of the General Council of the Community Service Board, representing the interests of all the camp pastors thereon.

There are representatives of each of the large Protestant Churches at the Camp, including the colored preacher mentioned above. These have recently organized into a Camp Pastors' Association for Camp Shelby, for the purpose of closer cooperation and more effectively caring for the Protestant work of the Camp. Your camp pastor was elected Chairman of this association.

The Methodists are perhaps the strongest of the religious bodies at the camp, and I need about two or three assitants at Camp Shelby, and one at Gulfport. However, I am doing my best to handle the work alone until the General Conference makes some provision for sending me assistance. We are trying to make up in efficiency what we lack in the number of workers. How well we are succeeding will remain to be seen. The Baptists, who rank second to our denomination in numbers, already have four workers in this Camp—the camp pastor, his asistant and two singers—under the employment of their Mission Board. And just incidentally I would like to remark that the Baptists have the best general organization throughout the camps that I know of in any denominatlon. It is a little hard to understand how a great Church like ours, with all of its machinery and its centralization of power, can be so far behind.

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL, JUNE 25-JULY 4.

The next session of the Seashore Divinity School will begin on June 25 and close on July 4. The program of the public speakers is an unusually good one. No preacher can afford not to attend.

Doctor Henry N. Snyder, Lit. LL.D., President of Wofford College, Spartansburg, S. C., will speak on "The Literary Interpretation of Religious Ideals," beginning on Tuesday evening and speaking each day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., closing with the Saturday evening hour. Dr. Snyder is one of Southern Methodism's great men.

Beginning with the two sermons on Sunday, June 30, Dr. Ozora S. Davis, President of Chicago Theological Seminary, will speak twice each day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., closing with the evening service on Wednesday, July 3. Dr. Davis is one of the strongest platform speakers and Bible interpreters of the Northern Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Camden M. Cobern, Lit.D., Thobern Chair of English Bible and Philosophy of Religion, Allegheny College, Meadville, Penn., will occupy the 9 a. m. hour throughout the session. Dr. Cobern is a lecturer and teacher and is one of the most popular Chautauqua speakers in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The following are some of his subjects: "The Romance of Papyri Hunting," "Light from the Papyri on the New Testament," "The World of Abraham's Day and Earlier," "The Age of Moses and the Wisdom of the Egyptians," "The Hebrew Prophets and Their Times," "New Light on the Times of Jesus and St. Paul," with numbers of others equally interesting to a live preacher.

In addition to this excellent program there will be a Conference day for each of the three Conferences, at which time one of the strongest and most interesting speakers from each Conference will deliver a great address. We want to make this a rallying time for all the preachers.

Make no engagements to conflict with the above dates. Be on hand with your note-book, prepared to get the treat of your life.

Yours for a greater service.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Whereas, our section is passing through a perlod of unprecedented financial prosperity, particularly in the farming sections of the State, where heretofore, as a rule, the greatest deficits in the benevolent collections of the Church have occurred; and

Whereas, every interest of the Church, missionary, educational and benevolent, is facing increased demands in proportion to the generally increased financial and economic standards; therefore,

Be it resolved by the preachers and laymen of the Shreveport District Conference, That, believing this to be the time, if ever, when we can and should meet every financial obligation in full, we set as a minimum goal for this year the raising of all our Conference assessments for the entire district in full, and make it a point of honor with pastors and congregations to reach this goal.

Resolved (2), That the Shreveport District issue hereby to each of the other districts of the Conference a challenge to a race for a similar goal in each district; each district which pays out its entire budget of Conference assessments in full to be marked with a gold star on a banner or chart to be prominently displayed in the Conference room at the next session of the Annual Conference; and

Resolved (3), That all possible publicity be given to this resolution and challenge through the New Orleans Christian Advocate, Our District Outlook, and otherwise.

Is there not some Methodist family who will take these two bright boys, ages 5 and 7 years, and rear them, and give them a chance in the world? If so, write to Rev. W. E. Thomas, Superintendent City Missions, 815 St. Charles St., New Orleans, La.

NOTICE.

The pastors in the Meridian District will please send me the names of their delegates to the district conference at their earliest opportunity. I cannot make entertanment provisions until I have this information. C. M. CHAPMEN,
Waynesboro, Miss.

Purity Gives Power.

There are still many persons in the world that need to be impressed with the fact that the purer the blood is the greater is the power of the system to remove disease and the less the liability to contract it. Persons whose blood is in good condition are much less likely to take cold or to be long troubled with it, or to catch any contagious or infectious disease, than are those whose blood is impure and therefore impoverished and lacking in vitality. The best medicine for purifying the blood is Hood's Sarsaparilla, and persons suffering from any blood disease or any want of tone in the system are urged to give this medicine a trial. It is especially useful at this time of year.—Adv.

WAR CONDITIONS
—REFLECTED IN—
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

THE WAR.

Josh. 7:13.

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

I.

The Causes of the War.

I presume, since practically every one has kept himself informed on the progress of the war from the beginning till now, it would be a needless waste of time for me to make any attempt to recount the causes of the war in detail. Suffice it to say that all the causes may be briefly classified under three heads: Physical, mental, and spiritual. The physical, or ostensible cause, was the assassination of an Austrian Prince while in Servia, for which Austria made unjust and impossible demands upon Servia with which that country refused to comply, upon which Austria began preparing for war, to enforce her demands. Then Russia, which had some sort of relation with Servia, treaty or otherwise, began mobilizing her troops. Germany issued her ultimatum to Russia to the effect that if Russia did not cease her mobilization she would declare war, and when Russia refused to comply, Germany sent her army through Belgium into France, thereby violating the neutrality of Belgium. Later England declared war, other nations following her lead. Finally, because of her violation of our neutrality, as well as for the sake of humanity, the United States declared herself in a state of war with Germany. The mental cause was the state of mind produced by the divorcement of religion from Germany's system of education. Her colleges and universities were hotbeds of materialism and rationalistic philosophy, and the rejection of the plain statements of the Bible for so-called higher criticism. These institutions of learning also adopted in full the Darwinian theory of the origin of man, that by various stages of evolution from the ape or monkey, man finally attained his present state. All this kind of teaching resulted in the acceptance by Germany, as a nation, of Thor, the heathen god of the ancient Norwegians, thereby displacing and dethroning the true God. These last statements largely embrace the spiritual causes of the war. It only remains for me to say that far back in the ages there came, in the very nature of things, a necessary cleavage between heathenism and true religion, the latter moving toward the glorious heights of spirituality, while the former advanced toward the refinements of cold and material intellectualism which has found its most perfect completion in the people, but especially in the war lords, of Germany. So we are really engaged in a war of Christian civilization against the oncoming hordes of heathenism.

But now, while I have briefly given the reasons for this war, may I take the time to say that all of them may be summed up in one word, Sin? The prophets of old and the preachers of the present have been, through all the ages, warning the people that sin inevitably destroys and damns men and just as inevitably brings the downfall of nations. Although the bleaching bones of men and the debris of fallen nations along the pathway of human progress emphasize this truth, and the record of the world's history adds its evidence, yet men and nations have stiffened their necks and, refusing to believe, have rushed on toward their inevitable and irrevocable ruin. It is to be hoped that when this terrible war is over, the world will come to understand that sin brings death to the individual and destruction to the nation, and that people will at last believe what the preachers have been telling them—that men and women cannot sin with immunity against Almighty God, who rules the nations of earth, and guides the destinies of men.

II.

Is the Lord on Our Side?

Well, we believe and hope that he is because we are thoroughly convinced that we are waging the warfare of civilization against barbarism; but for finite beings to attempt to interpret the mind of God, who inhabits all eternity, beyond the revelation which he has given of himself in the Bible, would be presumption. "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are my ways your ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts."

It is an historical fact that in every war each warring nation, as it has taken up arms and gone to the battle-field, has believed that God was on its side. For instance, both Napoleon and Wellington each thought that God was on his side, but both armies had to await the issues of Waterloo, which changed the currents of history, for the determination of God's place in that struggle. Take again our Civil War. The North said, "God is on our side," and the South said, "God is on our side," and the preachers on both sides implored divine aid to give victory to their respective armies. Is God on our side? I repeat, we believe and hope he is, but that question can best be answered by a Lincoln story. The story has it that during the progress of the Civil War, when the tide of battle was running against the North, a preacher called upon Mr. Lincoln and said, "Mr. President, I hope the Lord is on our side." Mr. Lincoln, with his quaint wisdom, replied, "Whether the Lord is on our side does not concern me; but what does concern me is whether we are on the Lord's side." After all, that is what should concern us most: Are we on the Lord's side? Well, we believe that also; but I am inclined to the opinion that in all warfare God uses both sides as agencies of divine power to achieve divine ends, to accomplish his wise plans and purposes for the betterment of humanity, and to accelerate the crest of civilization toward its highest level. Thus, in their occupancy of the promised land, God alternately punished his own chosen people and the heathen nations for their sins. He sent the armies of Israel against the men of Ai because their cup of iniquity was full, and allowed the men of Ai to put to flight the Israelites because one of their number had stolen a golden wedge and a Babylonish garment and hid them in his tent.

But if the Lord is on our side and we are on his side, as we hope, I speak it reverently when I say that that fact alone will not give us the victory. This war can only be won by each man, woman, and child realizing his individual responsibility, and each doing his part in the various directions prescribed by our national authorities, such as the purchase of Liberty Bonds, contributions to the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. work, and the conservation of food and fuel. If he is not able to buy Liberty Bonds, then let him give to the Red Cross or Y. M. C. A. work, or both; if he is able to do neither, then let him engage in the production and conservation of food and fuel so that our Allies and our own armies at the front may be fed. Nothing short of this will win this war—nothing short of this will enable us to measure up to our responsibilities and, like men, face this crucial hour in the history of our great nation.

III.

The Attitude of the Citizenship of Our Country Toward Our Enemies.

The reports of savagery and cruelty toward their helpless and innocent victims with which Germany has so far waged this war naturally tends to engender hatred toward our foe; but we cannot afford to allow ourselves to become obsessed with the thought of vengeance and hatred, or to permit ourselves to be urged by their barbarisms to the commission of deeds of violence and reprisal. To do so would be to become as savage and cruel as the Germans. Sherman is reported to have said, "War is hell," and so it is, but while we fight let us alleviate human suffering as much as possible. Shall we kill the Germans? As civilians, no. On the battle field, that is one of the unavoidable necessities of warfare. Shall we hate them? No; Jesus Christ said, "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, love your enemies that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven."

This is no time to lose self-control and drop the reigns on the neck of the steed of passion, as is being done in some localities, if newspaper reports be true. We have read that in some places men have been tarred and feathered, and at least one man has been hanged. Such conduct is unworthy of our Christian civilization, and is neither autocracy nor democracy, but mobocracy; and now that Congress has enacted laws for the punishment of treasonable and seditious utterances, let the law take its course that the world may know that we are a law-abiding people. This serious hour, when we have entered upon the most unexceptional period in the history of our nation, is no time for hysteria and lawless deeds. We need to follow at least a part of the advice of a great financier to his son who was starting out in life for himself: "My son, keep your feet hot and your head cool." So must we keep our heads cool, if we expect to have God on our side, maintain our self-respect before the eyes of the world, and win in this war. We need not lose our heads because some alien enmy speaks some seditious words. This whole Republic will stand though the storms and tempests of a world war beat about it, because it is founded upon the rock of Liberty. Besides, there is no place in our system of government for those wild extremists who would take the law in their own hands. The foundation of our system of justice is based upon the right of a fair trial before a penalty is imposed. Those who violate that principle, or advocate its violation, are not properly imbued with the spirit of democracy, for the salvation of which we are now fighting. Those in authority over us have deplored these acts of lawlessness and of the spirit of hate. Mr. Wilson has said, "I call upon you, my fellow-countrymen, to witness that at no stage of this terrible business have I judged the purposes of Germany intemperately. I should be ashamed in the presence of affairs so grave, so fraught with the destinies of mankind throughout the world, to speak with truculence, to use the weak language of hate or vindicative purpose. We must judge as we would be judged. We have ourselves proposed no injustice, no aggression. We are ready, whenever the final reckoning is made, to be just to the German people. There can be no difference between peoples in the final judgment, if it is a righteous judgment. To propose anything but justice to Germany at any time would be to renounce and dishonor our own cause." In my opinion, in uttering these bravely-spoken words, Mr. Wilson placed himself upon high ground, exalted the dignity of his country, and assumed an attitude toward our foes worthy of the highest and best Christian statesmanship of any age of the world. Mr. Wilson's sentiments, as expressed in these fine words, which I have quoted from his admirable address delivered on the occasion of the anniversary of our entrance into the war, indicate that he is no small man of narrow mind and unreasonable prejudices to shout, as did a traveling man a few days ago, "every German ought to be hanged." Such a sentiment is not in harmony with the ideals which this nation has set for itself in this great war. Those ideals should create within us a profound pity for the German people. To say the least of it, despite the fact that the German record is stained with so many acts of barbarism, deeds of heroism are being performed upon both sides. The Outlook relates this authentic story: During a fierce engagement a British officer saw a German officer impaled on a barbed wire, writhing in pain. The fire was dreadful. The British officer could stand it no longer. He said, "I can't bear to see that poor chap suffer." So, going out under a hail of shell, he released him, took him on his own shoulder, and carried him to the German trench. The firing ceased. Both sides watched the act with wonder. Then the German commander came forward, took from his own bosom the iron cross and pinned it on the British officer. Such an episode is true to the holiest ideals of the age of chivalry.

REV. J. H. EVANS.

In the death of Rev. John Henry Evans the Mississippi Conference has lost one of the most beloved members of its Roll of Honor, as Methodists delight to call their list of worn-out preachers. Born on April 25, 1823, he lacked only a few weeks of completing the ninety-fifth year of his life. Four years a brave and devoted Confederate soldier, and for nearly fifty years a faithful and self-denying minister, he had fairly won the rest that came to him in 1894 with his retirement from the active ministry. Thenceforth he waited the lengthening shadows of that closing day with the same quiet courage with which he had borne the labors of his active life. It was in the growing darkness of the night that was to give place to the morning of the Nativity, that the wearied soldier of Jesus Christ laid aside the "two-edged blade of heavenly temper keen," to pass into the presence of his Lord to be forever with Him whom he had loved and served so long.

He was born in old Winchester, In Wayne County, Miss., the son of Isaac Thomas and Martha Goodwin Evans. When a child he moved with his parents to Jones County, Miss., where he seems to have spent the years of his youth. Two indications exist of the devoutness of his parents and of the wholesome religious atmosphere of the home of his childhood: first, that he was converted and joined the Church when a child; and, secondly, that in the last hours of life the old saint repeated, over and over, the childhood prayer, learned only at the knee of a godly mother:

"Now I lay me down to sleep;
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take."

On October 13, 1851, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Echols, who died on June 30, 1858, leaving three children—Mrs. S. T. Thorn of Meridian, Mrs. Bettie Finch of Montrose, and J. M. Evans of Pelahatchie.

At the beginning of the Civil War he entered the Confederate Army, serving with a courage characteristic of the man, and worthy of the highest traditions of that heroic struggle. He was wounded several times, suffering on one occasion the loss of an eye, and finally receiving, by the bursting of a shell, such injuries to his head as to necessitate his discharge from the service. From these wounds he did not recover to the day of his death. While upon his bed, suffering from his wounds, he joined the Methodist Protestant Church, and in 1865 was licensed to preach. The union of the Methodist Protestant Church in Mississippi with the Mississippi Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was consummated in 1871, and of this union Brother Evans was one of the most active and influential promoters, and at the session of the Conference held in Meridian in December of that year he was received into the ministry and membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Twenty-three years were spent in the pastoral work of this Conference, confined almost wholly to the south-central section of the State. Nine years were given to Raleigh, four to Williamsburg, three to Cato, two each to Trenton and Rankin, and one each to Franklinton, Leaf River, and Walnut Grove.

On February 10, 1869, he was married to Miss Rachel J. Franklin. To them were born three daughters—Mrs. S. L. Thompson, Carlos, Miss.; Mrs. Hattie McDonald, Rankin, Texas; and Miss Beulah Evans, Collins, Miss. Brother Evans and his wife have been richly blessed in the skilful and unselfish attentions of Miss Beulah. In the years of his old age and feebleness, when at times the mother was almost as helpless as the father, this devoted daughter gave herself with unremitting devotion that cannot be surpassed to the kindly ministry that in the providence of God was committed to her. Surely the blessings promised to those who honor their father and their mother must rest in unmeasured benediction upon this dutiful and affectionate daughter.

After his retirement from the active ministry, Brother Evans settled upon a little farm at Williamsburg, Miss., where he continued to live until 1907. He then bought a little home in Collins, where he resided during the remaining years of his life.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist Church in Collins on Christmas Day, 1917, and were conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. M. Williams, assisted by Rev. George H. Thompson, the presiding elder of the Meridian District, and Rev. W. B. Jones, the presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District. The interment took place in the Collins cemetery, with Masonic honors.

In person, Brother Evans was tall, large of frame, and broad-shouldered. He must have been a powerful man in the vigor of his young manhood. He had an intent and aggressive look and a directness of movement that bore witness to the strength and independence of his character. He was afraid of nothing, and yet modest with all. Positive in his convictions and outspoken in his denunciations of sin, he was kindly and sympathetic in his spirit. He accepted without abatement the tenets of Wesleyan Arminianism, delighted to proclaim them as the truth of God, and rejoiced in his personal experience of justification by faith and the witness of the Spirit. In the later years of his life he was deprived of the privilege of public worship; but when possible he was in his place in the congregation, rejoicing in the communion of the saints.

The closing days were days of quiet joy. Words of prayer and praise trembled upon his lips; his wearied hands were uplifted in adoration; and the voice that had so often shouted in the battle in feeble accents gave utterance to the songs of Zion.

"How blessed the righteous when he dies;
When sinks a weary soul to rest,
How mildly beam the closing eyes,
How gently heaves th' expiring breath!"

AN INTERESTING COMMENCEMENT AT THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Perhaps the Commencement just closed will be the most memorable in the history of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss.

The sermons by Rev. W. L. Blackwell and Rev. J. T. Abney, both Montrose "boys," were appropriate and made a profound impression upon the large audience who heard them. The baccalaureate address by Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, was worthy of the occasion and creditable to the distinguished speaker. In his address to the Alumni Association, Rev. Leland Clegg, of last year's class, but now of South Mansfield, La., sounded the note of progress. Prof. B. H. Chatham, another alumnus, delivered impressively the chief address in memory of Second Lieutenant Tillman Gray. The students acquitted themselves creditably, and good-will abounded at all times.

There were four young ladies and eleven young men in the graduating class, and there were two young ladies who had completed the course in piano.

The Alumni Association agreed to take it upon themselves to build a structure to be used as a dormitory for young women, with a domestic science department attached. To begin with, they levied an assessment upon themselves of at least $2.50 each. Each young man in the present senior class then subscribed $10, but some went beyond that. Brother Stokes stated that if we would add one year more to the curriculum, he would give $100 toward its maintenance, and, if necessary, give five acres of land. Toward the dormitory fund, Brother P. L. Blackwell subscribed a house and lot. Besides these, others subscribed several hundred dollars. Brother Clegg volunteered to give his services toward raising funds during the month of August. Mr. O. E. Sumrall, of the present senior class, subscribed $25 and said that he would work for the school two weeks during the summer. A number of the students have promised to try to add to next year's attendance.

I might add other items of interest, but this is sufficient to indicate something of the spirit in our midst. I should not close, however, without saying that we have delivered this year four incomplete diplomas and five blue seal diplomas to students in our Sunday school teacher-training classes, and, further, that three of the young men who graduated from the Institution will enter the ministry, and yet again, if we can add one more year to our curriculum, nearly all those who graduated this year will be with us again. We hope for a great and good training school here, and forces are at work to make it so.

CHILDREN'S DAY IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Pastors and Sunday school superintendents of the Louisiana Conference who have not observed Children's Day on April 28 are hereby requested to make every effort to do so at the earliest convenient time. The Sunday School Board has made arrangements to pay for programs for such Sunday schools as are not able to provide them; and such pastors or superintendents as wish to obtain programs on this plan will order their programs direct from Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., or Dallas, Texas, and state when ordering that they will observe Children's Day, and will forward the offering to Mr. T. W. Holloman, Treasurer of the Board. The Sunday School Board depends for the maintenance of its work through the early part of the year on this fund. The brethren are requested to be prompt in this part of the Sunday school work.

H. N. BROWN,
For the Sunday School Board.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES.

I want to call attention to the importance of this service, provided by the Church for the children. It is practically the only time in the year that the whole congregation sees the children and all the children see the whole congregation. Let the service be held at the morning preaching hour and do everything possible to make the occasion worth while.

The offering on that day is Home Mission money of the finest sort. Ninety per cent of it stays at home and works for the extension of the Lord's Kingdom.

The Children's Day service is the children's hour. It presents a great opportunity to reach many homes otherwise untouched by the Church.

Let me urge that, as these services are held throughout the North Mississippi Conference, the the offering be sent in promptly to the treasurer.

GOOD REASON.

A little newsboy, to sell his paper, told a story. The matter came up in Sunday school. "Wouldn't you tell a lie for three cents?" asked a teacher of one of the boys.

"No, ma'am," answered Dick, very decidedly.

"For a dollar?"

"No, ma'am."

"For a thousand dollars?"

Dick was staggered. A thousand dollars looked big. O, would it not buy lots of things!

While he was thinking, another boy behind him roared out, "No ma'am."

"Why not?" asked the teacher.

"Because when the thousand dollars is all gone, and when all the things that were bought with it are gone, too, the lie is there all the time," answered the boy.—The Sabbath Visitor.

SAY IT!

A small and very poorly clad boy trudged down the street carefully pulling behind him a battered child's wagon piled so high with fragments of kindling wood, which he had picked up from the alleys, that it was top-heavy. A group of young people were standing at the corner of the street chatting gaily when the ragged boy passed.

The boy passed them indifferently, intent only on getting his burden safely home. In crossing the street one of the wheels of the wagon struck a small, unobserved object that unbalanced the unstable load and pitched the contents of the wagon into the street. A burst of merry laughter went up from the young people at the boy's awkward predicament. For a moment the small boy stood helpless, and as he began to reload he was seen to be crying.

One of the boys sprang from the group of young people, and ran to the rescue of the unfortunate child. He quickly replaced every piece of the wood in the wagon in such a way that it would not fall so easily. When he had finished his task he spoke a cheering word to the boy and gave the wagon a starting shove, and returned to his friends. "I pity the kid," began one of the group when he returned. "If you did, why didn't you say so and show it, instead of laughing? interrupted the one who had helped.—Anonymous.

TAD'S SISTER.

She was only an ordinary girl with simple frock and a sun-bonnet; and as my mind was busy, I should scarcely have noticed her at all had it not been for the kind words I heard her utter as I was waiting for my tram. "O, well, let's not wait for him!" said one of her two companions, pulling her by the arm.

"Why, I promised him, you know," was the serious reply, "and I couldn't go without him. Sarah."

"Well, he's only your brother. You need not be so particular about keeping your promise to him."

"But I need to be particular about keeping my promise to anybody, my brother just as much as anybody else," Daisy replied firmly, but in the same sweet tone. "I never disappoint Tad if I can help it. He knows it, too, and depends upon me. Mamma says breaking a promise is as bad as telling a lie; and you don't want to do that, you know."

"Well, what is he about? Where is he, anyhow? He ought to be here by this time," remarked the other girl.

"He had to go on an errand for father, but he was to meet me here at two o'clock to go with us to the picnic."

"I'm afraid we'll be late," she grumbled in reply.

"I'm sure we will," said Sarah.

"Then suppose you two go and don't wait for me," Daisy said quietly. "I shall not mind, but I wouldn't go without Tad for anything."

"O, it wouldn't be nice to go without you," Sarah objected.

"Well, here he comes now," cried the other.

And just then a lad of about ten years could be seen hurrying along the street. In a few moments he joined the group, asking anxiously: "I didn't keep you waiting long, did I?"

I looked at Tad. There was nothing about him to attract the attention of a stranger except it might be his bright, happy face; but his sister's eyes rested lovingly upon him as she replied: "No, only a few minutes, Tad."

"There, Daisy," he said; "I brought your waterproof and goloshes. It looks cloudy, and I'm almost sure it will rain before we get home. No, you needn't take them." And he held on to the things he had brought. "I can carry them; I just wanted you to know they were handy."

"O, thank you, Tad," the girl said heartily; "I shall probably need them."

They were starting now; and as Sarah took her place beside Daisy, she remarked wonderingly: "How polite you two are to each other! Are you always like that?"

As they moved off, I caught only a part of Daisy's surprised answer, and that was: "Of course. Why shouldn't we be?"

And the question will bear being repeated with some addition: Why should not all sisters and brothers be happy in the same love and consideration that Tad and Daisy gave each other?—The Messenger for the Children.

THE CRUEL SCHOOLMASTER.

An indignant mother wrote thus to the principal of an academy:

"Dear Sir: My son writes me that he has to study too hard. He says he has to translate fifty hexameters of Latin a day. I looked 'hexameter' up in the dictionary and find it is a poetic verse of six feet. Now that makes 300 feet or 100 yards of poetry for my poor son to translate each day. I think about half a hexameter, or six inches, of this Latin is enough for a boy of his age.

"Yours truly,

"MRS. SMITH."

TURKISH SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Turkish children recite their lessons all together in the old-fashioned schools, and if you could hear them, you would think that you had gone into "Wonderland" with "Alice" where "things wouldn't come straight." The little girls go to school in groups, and with them is always an old servant who carries all their books on what looks like a small clothes tree. The boys go and come in two long lines attended by their teacher. They carry their own books and wear long trousers and fezzes exactly like their fathers. Some of the tiny girls carry their own little tables and drawing boards. In the gypsy village in Scutari the children learn their lessons by songs in the street. They stand in a circle with a big girl in the middle, and they grow noisier and noisier the more interested they become.—Lindamira Harbeson, in St. Nicholas.

WHAT THE CHURCH NEEDS.

A contemporary suggests that there is too much of the "high-brow" about our modern church worship, in both the preaching and the music. Looking to the effective work of Mr. Sunday and other evangelists among all classes, it concludes that what is needed to-day is a fresh and more definite statement of the eternal truths of the Gospel. Put more briefly, the majority of the churches need a rigorous spiritual arousal. A spiritually dead or moribund church cannot be expected to awaken sinners or to do real service for the Kingdom.—Christian Herald.

MINISTERIAL EFFICIENCY FUND, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

In the effort to secure a fund to aid young men in completing their education before entering the itinerant ministry, Dr. I. W. Cooper is rendering to the Church an invaluable service. As never before in the history of the Church, the demand is for an educated ministry. The entrance requirement into the Conference has been raised, and rightly so, but when a young man, called of God to preach the Gospel, knocks at the door of the Conference for admission, if not thoroughly prepared, the Church should be in a position to say to him, "Complete your preparation for more efficient work and we will furnish the means necessary."

This is what Dr. Cooper is endeavoring to make possible, and every church in our Conference should be glad of the opportunity to lend a helping hand. We feel justly proud of the laymen and the churches standing back of Dr. Cooper in this great work. The Board of Education is in hearty accord with it. May he reach his desired goal—sufficient funds to aid at least twenty-five young men each year!

WALKING WITH GOD.

One of the earliest and briefest descriptions of a holy life is the Bible statement, "Enoch walked with God." To live a holy life, is not only to walk in the presence of God, but with God. He who walks with God must go the way God goes. In Amos the question is asked: "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" There must be a perfect agreement as to the starting-point, and the course, and the end; and the agreement is made from start to finish upon the line of God's will. Hence, the way of holiness, which is every Christian's way, is in the whole of it obedience unto God. The essence of genuine piety is absolute surrender to the will of God. The simple-hearted disciple had it correct when he said: "I resolved to be nothing; for when I am nothing, the devil can't get hold of nothing." Self-will is to die at the start, and to die daily, if we would walk with God; for to so walk we must go the way that God goes, completely losing our wills in his dear will. To walk with God is to touch God at times. There is always contact, more or less frequent, between fellow-travelers. We touch God through His Word. The Bible is a "living" word, for God's spirit breathes in it and his very heart throbs in it. Take one passage—the 14th of John—in which our Lord says, "Let not your heart be troubled," etc. Can we read that comforting passage without feeling the touch of God through the Son, our loving Lord? So, all this blessed Bible, as we open it and read between the lines by the Spirit's aid, abounds with the pressure of the Father's hand and the assuring whispers of His tender solicitude and His mighty love. We have the touch of God in the secret place of prayer, for, closed in thus with Him, there can be no obstruction to perfect communion of soul and unconstrained fellowship. There, as perhaps nowhere else, we, like the fleece of old, drink in of the heavenly dew, and realize his loving touch, and are strengthened by His Spirit. And so, praying in the Holy Ghost elsewhere, our lips may be touched of God as with live coals from His altar and our hearts fired, so that we are clad with power as we plead for mercies and grace. God talks with us also in the voice of an enlightened Christian conscience. There is, too, ever with us the voice of the Spirit—that "still, small voice" within the soul. Two human beings could scarcely walk far in company and not talk to each other.

There is constantly maintained a spiritual converse between God and those who walk with Him, sweetening their life and strengthening them as with a divine cordial. Those who are God's dear children and living a holy life keep step with Him, in so far as a finite being may with the Infinite. It is written that God's ways are not as our ways nor God's thoughts as our thoughts, but that they are as high above ours as the heavens are above the earth. Nevertheless, we must remember that God dwelleth with the humble, and He can and does so measure his steps that any man or woman who is honestly bent on walking with Him may easily do so. We are not to run on ahead of God, nor lag behind as if unwilling to follow; but we are to watch the Divine leading and put our feet in the footsteps of God. We may not always be able clearly to see and fully to understand the plans of God, and we therefore have need in such case of patient waiting for the unfolding of them, that we may fall in with them and walk just as God willeth. God said of Caleb: "But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereunto he went; and his seed shall possess it." In the original the words "followed me fully" mean literally "filled in after me." Caleb pressed along in the very line of duty God marked out for him, keeping step by putting his feet into the footsteps of God—"filling in after" God.

To walk with God is to leave the world behind us. There must be steady progress away from all evil and so towards all good. Avoiding the very appearance of evil, the Christian will come to the point where duty will be lost in the paramount incentive of privilege. "Perfecting holiness in the fear of God," becoming more and more like unto Him with whom he walks, daily dying unto sin and living unto Christ, he can with Paul say from the depths of his heart: "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live: yet, not I, but Christ liveth in me and the life that I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." His life "hid with Christ in God," and happy on the way, the Christian finds the fruition of his hopes in the forever enfolding of God in heaven. Yes—to walk with God means to rest with God at the end of the journey. A little girl said in talking of Enoch: "One day they walked farther than usual, and God said, 'Enoch, you are a long way from home; you may come in and stop with me.'" How perfectly the dying words of Miss Willard express the blessed rest of the saints: "How beautiful to be with God." J. T. S.

METHODISM.

Methodism is the mightiest Protestant and spiritual power in the world to-day. Swarming over the hills and vales, the cities, towns and villages of the Christian lands, her sons of thunder and consolation—her Spirit-baptized ministry—have not confined their labors alone to the home field, but have gone out to the ends of the earth, carrying every whither the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, preaching free and full salvation and singing its songs of faith and hope to all the hapless, sin-cursed sons and daughters of earth. Making much of the cleansing, saving blood of Christ, they have brought many millions of souls to Him who is "able to save unto the uttermost all who come to God by him." John Wesley's triumphant, dying words, "The best of all is, God is with us," have been gloriously verified wherever, as Chalmers called Methodism, "Christianity in earnest" has taken the field for Christ and precious, deathless souls. Though the enervating and deadening influence of "the world, the flesh and the devil" upon our beloved Church has been great as she has increased in material wealth, worldly power and the honors of men; and though in consequence there may have been, at times and in spots, a blighting of piety, a stunting of spiritual growth and a dampening of spiritual ardor, still there is left us much of the old-time religion and the old-time power of the fathers; and our part in the conquest of the world for Christ moves on with increasing momentum and signal success. True it is, that some of the old-time peculiarities of form and modes of action have passed or been somewhat changed, yet the fires of God still burn, with rare exceptions, in the bones of our preachers, and their messages of love and power continue to ring true, as of yore, to "the truth as it is in Jesus Christ." Christianity, and our Methodism as part of it, is to-day, as truly as is the United States, a world power; and as the telegraph message now goes around the world, so also goes "the old, old story of Jesus and his glory, of Jesus and his love." Our American Methodists will raise for Missions the full amount of $35,000,000, that they have resolved to secure; and, shoulder to shoulder, they, with all other Christian Churches and organizations, will keep step and "forward march" to the conquest of the world for God and his Christ.

THE IRON GATE.

"The iron gate" marked the limits of the prison in which Peter was held a prisoner. Without the iron gate there was a praying Church; and "prayer was made without ceasing of the Church unto God for him." The Church was at the house of Mary, the sister of Barnabas and mother of John Mark. Mary gave her house for a church, Barnabas gave his wealth to the Church, and John Mark gave himself. Of a truth Mary's house was just the place for a prayer meeting. At night the voice of prayer was in the house of Mary. The business and duties of the day over, God's little flock turned into the house of an elect sister for special prayer. Their one object was to pray for Peter, and the record has it thus: "Prayer was made without ceasing for him." It was specific prayer, just for his release from prison: It was persevering prayer, "without ceasing." Though the iron gate did not move on its hinges, they ceased not their earnest cries unto God. Their faith was truly heroic, for it sought, without the use of key or slightest touch of hand, to open the iron gate beyond whose threshold the imprisoned Peter lay. Peter was made as secure as possible from release. Ushered into prison, the doors of the first and second wards closed upon him. Two chains bound his limbs and armed soldiers guarded him. The keepers before the door kept the prison. Scarcely could anything more have been done to prevent Peter's release. On the morrow his chains were to be taken off, the gates opened, and Peter led forth to die. The account says: "When Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers." The eve of his execution had arrived and the sleeping saint was resting sweetly in the care of God. In the 127th Psalm it is written: "He giveth his beloved sleep." Peter trusted God against vast odds. Faith triumphed and deliverance came, and the prayers of the little church prevailed. God's ear is ever open to the prayers of the faithful, and He will deliver. The angel came, God's messenger, to Peter's prison-cell and awakened him, saying "Arise up quickly." His chains fell off and the angel said: "Gird thyself and follow me." Drawing near the inner gate, it opened for them; and when they had passed the first and second ward, and had reached the iron gate, it, by an unseen power, of its own accord, opened to them, and Peter was free.

The conflict between faith and an iron gate is found at times in many a Christian life. Under the most trying circumstances we should go forward with prayer and faith in obedience to God's call, and the iron gate will open by Divine command and we shall be set at liberty. It took an angel sent of God to deliver Peter, and God will, if need be, send an angel, though we may not be able to see him, to deliver us in answer to our believing, persevering prayer. J. T. S.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

In a recent letter Rev. C. Nash Broyles informs us that he has received checks from Rev. J. S. Duncan, pastor of the Oxford Circuit, and Rev. L. A. McKeown, of Iuka, to cover the educational assessment for their respective charges.

Rev. J. W. Price of the North Mississippi Conference, who is staying with his daughter, Mrs. Upton Likens, at Memphis, Tenn., informs us that his dear wife is seriously ill. Let all of Brother Price's friends pray earnestly for her recovery.

Rev. J. L. Decell, of McComb, Miss., writes as follows: "I am now at Edwards assisting Brother McKeown in a revival. I am going to send you a big list of subscribers when I return home. I have part of them now but am waiting for the strategic time."

The Rev. Isaac Lockhart Peebles, of Meridian, Miss., has sent us two pamphlets written by him and named as follows: "The Love of God—Its Meaning, Nature, Regulation and Greatness," and

"How the War for Democracy Can Be Won." The price of the pamphlets is ten cents each.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Sicily Island, La., came to New Orleans last Saturday, and is undergoing the Pasteur treatment, he having been bitten by a dog.

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., under date of April 31, writes as follows: "It has now been a whole month since I returned to work after my operation and sickness, and I am moving along nicely with my work, and seem to be in perfect health again. Thank the Lord!"

The members of the Methodist Church at Jeanerette, La., and friends are sending their pastor, Rev. F. B. Hill, to Atlanta, Ga., giving him the opportunity to attend the General Conference as a visitor. There is no doubt that the pastor will thoroughly appreciate so generous an act.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin sends from Cockrum, Miss., five new subscriptions for the Advocate and adds the following: "My charge is in good shape and going forward. Our popular and beloved presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, was with us last week and preached for us three soul-stirring and helpful sermons."

Rev. J. W. Raper, of Duncan, Miss., in a letter inclosing a list of subscriptions, for which he has our thanks, says: "The outlook in this new field is very promising. We are expecting this to be a great year for us. Our Conference assessments have been paid in full for the year. We have received into the Church thirteen."

Mr. S. M. Collins, Civil Engineer of Monroe, La., writes thus: "I am very much gratified that Unification is sidetracked. I hope we have heard the last of it. I can't fine anybody here in favor of it. I think the whole discussion and wrangling ought to stop. It would be better for us to spend our energies in trying to stop the Hun."

Rev. John F. Foster, of Shreveport, La., writes: "My charge of fifty-one members (Bayou La Chute) has paid to the Ruston Orphanage thus far four thousand and two hundred dollars since Conference." Brother Foster has done a splendid work in the Liberty Bond drive, as will be seen in the Shreveport Times' report of his speech as published elsewhere in this issue.

Writing from Sarah, Miss., on May 6, Rev. Geo. A. Baker, pastor of Longtown Circuit, North Mississippi Conf., says: "Many hearts in North Mississippi will be made sad to learn of the death of Rev. W. H. Eckles, of Pleasant Grove, Miss. He passed away on May 4, and was buried at Pleasant Grove the next day." We extend healtfelt sympathy to the bereaved loved ones.

Rev. C. F. Emery, of Hattiesburg, Miss., continues to look after the interests of the Conference organ. On May 4 he sent us another list of twelve subscriptions, with a check to correspond, and he says that this makes 26 subscriptions sent in thus far from his new charge, 8 of them being new. We are grateful to Dr. Emery for the good work he is doing for the Advocate.

The Rev. J. M. Morse, presiding elder of the Jackson (Miss.) District, sends us the following under date of May 3: "Methodism in Camden is housed after ten years of waiting. Last Sunday we organized a Methodist Sunday school in the Methodist church; I preached, and we administered the Sacrament in our new church. Rev. A. Joe Beasley is doing a fine work. It was due to his untiring efforts that we could take this step. He will succeed anywhere."

Brother Paul I. Templeton, evangelistic singer, writes from Meridian, Miss., that he has just been in one of the best meetings he was ever in, helping Rev. E. H. Cunningham at Kosciusko, Miss. Rev. Robert Clarke, of Covington, Tenn., did the preaching, giving "good old gospel truths." He says further that he has some open dates, and will be glad to assist as singer, or pastor's assistant, any preacher in need of his services. He gives as references, Rev. J. H. Bell, Rev. E. H. Cunningham and Rev. R. A. Clarke.

The following have our thanks for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate, sent in during the past few days: Rev. L. A. Darsey, Ocean Springs, Miss., 2; Rev. E. S. Lewis, Greenville, Miss., 2; Rev. J. B. Cain, Washington, Miss., 2; Rev. B. G. Whitehurst; Mooreville, Miss., 2; Rev. S. A. Brown, Leland, Miss., 2; Rev. W. F. Rogers, Oakland, Miss., 3; Mr. J. L. Bell, Newton, Miss., 5; Rev. W. M. Young, Pontotoc, Miss., 5; Rev. M. W. David, Taylorsville, Miss., 3; Rev. John Park, Kosciusko, Miss., 6; Rev. N. N. Maxey, University, Miss., 5; Rev. B. H. Sheppard, Lecompte, La., 3.

The Commencement exercises of Whitworth College, of which Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., is president, will be held May 19-21 in the Lampton Auditorium, on the College campus, at Brookhaven, Miss. On Sunday, May 19, Rev. H. M. Ellis will preach at 11 a. m., and Rev. W. H. Lewis will preach to the Y. W. C. A. at 8 p. m. The Trustees will meet on Monday at 10 a. m., and a grand concert will be enjoyed at 8 p. m. The Class Day exercises will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday, the meeting of the Alumnae at 11 a. m., and the address will be delivered by Dr. J. M. Sullivan at 8 p. m.

THE VOICE OF A CENTURY.

By Rev. W. W. Pinson, D. D.

From 1819 to 1919 marks an era of change. It is a century of world shrinkage. It speaks the message of neighborhood. Steam, electricity, the auto and the aeroplane have made space a jest. The cutting of two canals has shortened the road to our neighbor's door.

The voice of this century is the voice of the people. The scrap-heap for crowns and thrones and junk of that sort has grown steadily. In the beginning there was one young democracy; now there is only one autocracy and the finish of the century will see the finish of that monstrous anachronism.

This century tells the story of modern missions. It is significant that the Church began to awake when the world began to shrink. The inventor and the missionary were set to making a new world physically and spiritually. The Bible has been translated into 500 languages and dialects. The missionary has found his way into every land. The fields have been surveyed and charted. Some outposts have been occupied. Now the churches are combining and preparing to compass the task.

But the inventor has outrun the apostle. The forces of the world have moved faster than those of the Church. Science has shelved forever the clumsy methods of the 18th century. The machine has multiplied power and set men free. The earth, the sea, the air, have been conquered. The world has been made over. But the Church has not held the pace. Spiritual forces have lagged behind. Our Christianity has not made a brotherhood of this world-neighborhood. The Church has lagged in the rear while the physical forces have swept over the earth. Possessing the powers of the world to come, we have cowered in the presence of the world that now is. Now the crash of a world wakes us to our shame, our failure and our impotence—not the failure of Christianity but the failure of the Church adequately to express Christianity. We hear the call of a helpless world, helpless for all its boast of power, the voice of a neglected century calling in "the crimson chorus of the guns."

Methodists of America, attention! Your first century of organized missions parallels these world-changing events. You come to your Missionary Century at the end of a most colossal century and at the most momentous hour in human history. It is God's hour timed for a great awakening for the Church, and an advance of unparalleled magnitude.

Is the voice of a century the voice of approval? Can we vaunt ourselves and glorify our past? No, a thousand times. The dust of humiliation best becomes us. We have been provincial and self-centered while the world swept by us. We have clung to our traditions and mumbled our shibboleths in our little corner while the tragedy of a stricken, bleeding world was nigh our doors. The century calls us to penitence and a plea for mercy. It calls us to rise up and make history that our children can read with approval.

The voice of a century calls for an entirely new standard of service. We have been singing, "Like a mighty army moves the Church of God." Can we sing it now? We have seen how a mighty army moves. It levies its billions of dollars, and gets them. It enters our kitchens and tells us what we may eat. It builds ships, requisitions factories, builds cities over-night, and takes over whole railroad systems. It demands our best. Mothers kiss their boys good-bye and send them to face cannon. Men go singing by the million to "The red rampart's slippery edge." If we dare sing like that we must set an undreamed-of standard of loyalty to the Prince of Peace. We have not been marching; we have been marking time.

Thirty-five millions in five years sounds big only because of our habit of thinking in small terms. We can do that no longer. We have been jolted out of our ruts. We have been swept suddenly out into big horizons. The whole past has uttered a call summoning us to the making of a new world. By the grim terror, by the red ruin, we are called to begin over, and proceed on a scale undreamed of before. Demands that five years ago would have struck us dumb no longer surprise us.

Look how many finger-boards point the way! We are thinking in terms of the world. Shall we forget it is Christ's world? We are thinking in terms of the brotherhood of nations. Shall the Church alone be provincial? We are thinking in terms of billions for the business of making the world safe for democracy. Shall we who alone are set to make democracy safe for the world think in terms of the bargain counter?

We are Americans. That never before meant what it means to-day—the big brother to whom the nations turn in their distress. We are Methodists. Every fourth Protestant in this foremost nation, this most missionary nation on the planet, belongs to the large-hearted, evangelical, singing brotherhood of Wesley.

God set the time. This hour that now strikes is God's hour. He challenges our faith and our consecration. Let us meet the challenge on our knees. Let us dare great things for Him. Not to do it is to disappoint and dishonor Him.

PROHIBITION IN MISSISSIPPI.

This book contains 230 pages, is printed on No. 1 book paper, and neatly bound in cloth. It contains the last word on the prohibition situation in Mississippi from territorial days down to September 1, 1917. It will be found of indispensable value to preachers, lawyers, Sunday School workers, and teachers in our literary schools. Indeed, no library in Mississippi, either public or private, will be complete without it, as it records in a vigorous, authoritative way the history of one of the greatest social, moral, and economic problems which has ever demanded solution at the hands of Mississippi patriots. Mailed, postage prepaid, for $1.25 cash.

MRS. LIZZIE DAY DAVIS.

In the darkness and the stillness of the night of Feb. 17, 1918, the soul of a good woman sped upward toward the Eternal Light. In the passing of Mrs. LIZZIE DAY DAVIS, a Christian mother, a Christian friend, and a Christian citizen has gone beyond our ken, and the strongest tie that binds the home has been severed. But we know

"That they never quite leave us, those who have passed
From the shadow of death to the sunlight above.
A thousand memories are holding them fast,
To the places they blessed with their presence and love.

Mrs. Davis, daughter of Mr. M. P. and Mrs. M. A. Day, was born near Bayou Sara, East Feliciana Parish, on Oct. 13, 1850. Having early united with the Church, she lived an earnest Christian life, and her influence was always for good. In 1871 she was married to Rev. R. A. Davis, a consecrated member of the Louisiana Conference. Into this happy home nine children came to bless it, four of whom were waiting in the "many mansions" to welcome their mother. Although modest and retiring in disposition, Mrs. Davis went about doing good, and no one who came to her for help ever went away empty-handed. Her husband found in her a faithful and earnest co-worker, and our deep sympathy goes out to him in his loneliness.

Mrs. Davis at the time of her death was a member of the Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church, a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, a Daughter of the Confederacy, and a member of the King's Daughters. She was buried in Houston, Texas, the services being conducted by Dr. Adams, presiding elder of the Houston District, and Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker. The Ransom Chapter No. 135, Order Eastern Star, of Houston, also assisted. Those left to mourn the going away of Sister Davis, besides many friends, are a devoted husband, four daughters, one son, and two grandchildren.

"Out of earth's weariness, trial and sorrow;
Out of its cares and fears for the morrow;
Into the dawn of a glad resurrection;
Into the house of unbroken affection;
Into the joy of Christ."

A FRIEND.

WILMOT F. PAXTON, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Paxton, was born on Dec. 5, 1893, in Carrollton, Miss., and "fell asleep in Jesus" at Columbus Barracks, Columbus, Ohio, on Aprii 4, 1918. These dates fail to compass a life so full of wonderful accomplishments and complete in noble purpose and high, lofty character. The great Moulder of human lives leaves no piece of his work unfinished, and we are assured that Wilmot's life-work was compieted, when to human eyes it seemed just beginning. When a child, he gave his heart to God with a definite purpose to serve him, and united with the First Methodist Church, Greenville, Miss., twelve years ago, with Rev. Robt. A. Meek as his pastor. Wilmot Paxton was endowed with a splendid mind and a disposition which revealed true nobility of soul. In the home he was ever the tender, devoted son and brother, the perfect companion of his parents. He won friends by the score in all walks of life and always met everybody with a smile and kind word. He heid his friends with the charm of his wonderful personality. When the news of the sudden home-going of this faithful young soldier was carried to his home, it seemed that the whole city was thrown into mourning. From the far North to the sunny slopes of the Gulf came messages of condolence, many of these from officers in the Army who knew and loved in coilege days the young soldier who laid down his life for his friends. In every place Wilmot Paxton showed himself the man. At the first call to arms of his country he volunteered. The funeral service was held in the First Methodist Church, Greenvilie, Miss., which he loved so weli, just when the soft twilight shadows were falling upon a wealth of exquisite flowers, a tribute from ioving friends. The scene was one to carry us in spirit to the "Father's house," where the tired young soldier is resting in the bosom of his Savior. Let us be submissive to God's will and realize that his going away makes heaven nearer to us. He cannot come back to us, but we can go to him. We loved him, but Jesus loved him more. "To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die." His sister-in-law,

SARAH L. PAXTON.

Atlanta, Ga.

The subject of this sketch, W. W. LUNSFORD, was born on March 25, 1837, and died on March 29, 1918, aged 81 years. He lived almost his entire life in Holmes County, Miss., and as a citizen took an active part in its history and affairs, serving for several years as a member of the Board of Supervisors. He was a true and valiant Confederate soldier and was ever loyal to our Southland. As a member of the Masonic fraternity he loved its precepts and teachings, and was held in high esteem by his brothers in early manhood. He served for many years and up to the time of his death as a steward of his church, and his pastor never had a more loyal supporter. As a husband and father he was ever kind, affectionate, and indulgent. Late in life he married Mrs. Busshart, who faithfuliy and affectionately nursed and cared for him during his last illness. To her and his grandchildren we join in sorrow and with tenderest sympathy pray that they may meet him again in his heavenly home.

PARHAM WILLIAMS.

Little NINA MAE GERMANY was born in Neshoba County, near Dixon, Miss., on May 30, 1914, and died on April 15, 1918. She was a very bright little girl, with a pleasant and loving disposition, which made her loved by all who knew her. Her smiling face and simple, child-like words are missed in the grief-stricken home and community. It makes us sad to give her up, but she was so pure and sweet and gentle that our Heavenly Father had need of her and took her from this world of sorrow, pain and woe. She has gone through the pearly gates to the arms of the biessed Savior, where she will play around the great white throne with her little sister, who had gone on before. Being the only living child of her parents, she leaves a sorrowing father and mother and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her death. Weep not, dear ones, for our ioss is heaven's gain. Though Nina Mae cannot come back to us, we can go to her, and we know where to find her, safe in the arms of Jesus!

JOHN R. MATTHEWS was born in Copiah County, Miss., on Jan. 7, 1875, and died at his home in Wesson, on Feb. 6, 1918. He was married to Miss Nannie Bridges in 1900, and four children blessed their home. Brother Matthews had lived in Wesson since his early manhood and for sixteen years he was the kind, obiiging postmaster in his town. Those who knew him most intimateiy testify to his worth and gracious qualities of life and character. He was a man of kind disposition, sound sense, and excellent judgment; he loved his town, his country, his church, his famiiy, and his God. No Sunday school teacher or pastor ever had a more responsive iistener than Brother Matthews; he was an earnest Sunday school pupii and a faithful church member. He served as steward in the South Wesson Meth-

IN MEMORY OF LOLA BOND.

The grim reaper of Death,
With cycle clean,
On April's eve the nineteenth day,
Came and claimed a jewell blest
in "Lola Bond," a little queen;
And carried her on in his way
In heaven to dwell, ever at rest.

Weep not, dear parents,
For the sweet little thing.
She's waiting, so patiently,
Closer to Jesus you to bring.
Ever close in his presence
His praises she sings.

She budded on earth
in heaven to bloom.
By living a righteous life,
We can all meet her soon,
Where Jesus himself
Dispells the clouds of gloom.

Our lives are all burdened
With many a storm;
God moves mysteriously
His wonders to perform;
He walks upon the sea,
He rides upon the storm.

Let us live rightly
Our duty to do;
The Savior will guide us
All safely to you—
Lola! sweet darling,
As pure as the dew.

Those queenly affections—
By faith they are seen—
Went heavenward with Jesus, in nineteen-eighteen.
Dear Lola is at rest,
The pure little queen.

Her Uncle, J. F. R.

Brother JOHN BOWMAN STAPLES, eldest son of J. W. Shaples and M. E. Bowman, was born in Wilcox County, Alabama, on May 1, 1847; and died in Ruston, La., on Jan. 20, 1918. Few men have accomplished more under the adverse conditions with which he had to contend—the war and reconstruction having deprived him of educational advantages, he did not falter. He moved with his parents to Louisiana, and settled near Downsville, Union Parish, in 1865, and in 1868 married Miss Cinderelia Hester, to which union 12 children were born. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when but a boy, and was a loyal member to the end, having served as steward and Sunday school superintendent for many years. He was a successful farmer, and specially ambitious to educate his children, in which he succeeded remarkably well. The ten which lived to maturity are well equipped for life's battle, six of whom became teachers. Professor O. B. Staples, of Baton Rouge, La., and Miss Addie Staples, of Muskogee, Oklahoma, continue in that vocation. Although a modest farmer, the number of business men and citizens of Ruston who gathered at his home (where his pastor, Rev. J. G. Snelling, assisted by his presiding elder, Dr. J. M. Henry, and the writer, conducted the funeral service) was an evidence of the esteem in which he was held. He leaves three sisters, a devoted wife, six sons and four daughters, and many relatives and friends, to mourn his going, but may this providence prompt each to so live as not to mourn without hope.

W. J. PORTER.

In the death of Mrs. SUSIE TOOKE, on Jan. 24, 1918, many hearts were made sad by the great spiritual loss which they sustained. She was born on June 27, 1866, and was reared at Ringgold, La. She is survived by her husband and six children. Her afflictions, which have been many, demanded the care of her loved ones, who never seemed to tire of doing all that loving hands could for her. Her death was sudden. She fell asleep in the arms of Jesus, which was beautiful to behold. Her body was quietly laid to rest by her pastor, Rev. J. F. Dring, at the Rocky Mount Church, the funeral being attended by many friends and relatives. To visit Sister Tooke was a pleasure. I always came away feeling refreshed and strengthened. Her life was not in vain. Her sturdy character was seen in her devotion to duty. She never forgot to pray. The burden of her heart was for the salvation of the unsaved. She longed for a revival at her church, Rocky Mount. I have heard her husband and children testify to a saving grace, and I feel that they will be a united family in that sweet home above. Weep not; our loss is her gain. Mrs. G. B. MAYFIELD.

Ringgold, La., April 22, 1918.

GIVING THAT SAVES FROM LOSS.

A British soldier invalided home with his arm amputated at the shoulder, it is related, refuses to let any of his friends refer to his having "lost an arm." Says the soldier manfully, "I did not lose it; I gave it." There is an entire encyclopaedia of chivalry and generosity in that distinction. It is the man who has consecrated himself to an unselfish use of all that he is and all that he has, who can see any part of himself or his possessions taken for the benefit of that cause and still feel no sense of loss. In place of lamentation for what he is deprived of, he is conscious of a prideful honor in what he has been enabled to do.

In this high mood the words of Christ saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," rises into a mystic significance, cleared completely from the suspicion which among the selfish and uninspired treats it as a fanciful paradox. When one's giving, either of himself or what he has won and earned, becomes to him a title-deed of comradeship in the mightiest things that God is seen doing among men, then the joy of bearing a share in making the world better and mankind happier appears more than worth any price that it costs. The blessedness of giving is for those from whom nothing can be taken away because they have already dedicated everything. And it is because just this is the spirit of Jesus Christ that He said no man could be His disciple without renouncing everything private and personal to himself.—The Continent.

THE BEST RETURN.

The best return we can make for a gift of God is to take a higher gift. Have you thanked Him for your daily bread? Then the best return you can make is to take the bread of life. Have you thanked Him for your sleep? Then the best return you can make is to take His gift of rest and peace. Have you thanked Him for your health? Then the best return you can make is to seek His gift of holiness. "I will take the cup of salvation." I will take the finest thing upon the Lord's table! —J. H. Jowett.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Brother Ulmer, at Bond, has just lost his Sunday school superintendent, Dr. B. S. Hood, who has gone into the army service. They have agreed to give one Sunday to missions and have enrolled three individual students in the teacher-training work, and will put in a Home Department.

The Brookhaven District Conference was a delightful affair, and the brethren enjoyed the Sunday School Institute. Mrs. Featherston presented the Elementary Department in a most pleasing manner. The preaching was of a high order and proved a great blessing to me. Brother Leggett, while suffering, was able to hold the Conference, to the delight and profit of all.

Rev. J. H. Moore, of the Gloster charge, has organized one new Sunday school. He is in need of a superintendent at Gloster. Two teacher-training classes were organized, and two Home Departments promised. He has 3 Cradle Rolls, two individual teacher-training pupils, and four of his Sunday schools promised one Sunday for missions. Brother Moore begins his protracted meeting at Gloster the first Sunday. Pray for the meeting.

The Port Gibson District Conference was well attended. It was a fine Conference. Brother Sharbrough is doing a good work. The best service to me was the last service in which the cause of Missions was presented. Dr. Holloman and Brother Saunders divided the time and both delivered fine messages.

I have appreciated the fellowship of the brethren more than words can tell.

The Sunday School Institute for the northern end of the Port Gibson District will be held on June 4, at 2 p. m., to June 5, at 12 m. All superintendents, Wesley Bible Class officers, officers of Sunday schools, and those designated by the schools are entitled to come and participate in this meeting. Let each school have a report according to the Standard of Efficiency. I hope this meeting will be a great blessing to all. Pray for me.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.
Field Secretary.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

This is not the time to abandon any part of the work of the Church; neither war work, nor anything else should cause us to pray, preach, or work less, but, on the contrary, we should give ourselves more fully to the work of the ministry than ever. Some unthinking people have gone so far as to advocate the closing of the churches until the war is over. We may not preach such a false doctrine, but when we neglect any part of the work of the Church we are putting the doctrine into practice.

Every preacher in the Greenville District has ordered the Children's Day programs; all in the Columbus District, except one; all in the Holly Springs District, except one; all in the Sardis District, except one; all in the Durant District, except three; all in the Corinth District, except seven; all in the Winona District, except seven. The Sunday School Board is doing all it can to have the day observed in every charge in the Conference this year, and the Board means to work until the last day before Conference convenes this fall. Let us get at it now.

Miss Mamie Jones has a class in the Hernando school that has completed "Heroes of Faith in Japan." This class has done excellent work in map drawing and their study of this inspiring book has given the girls a new vision. Mrs. Gladney has a class in the Sardis school studying the same book. The work that this class is doing will rank with the best that I have seen. The Grenada school has four classes taking mission study. The results of the recent great revival will not only be conserved, but the gracious work will be extended. The man that puts mission study in his school loves God intelligently. No one was ever born with the spirit of missions—it must be taught. We are very slow in learning this plain truth.

Rev. J. C. Park has recently taught a class of thirty-two young men at the A. & M. College the first book in the teacher-training course, "Life in the Making." Fourteen took the examination. He also taught a class of his teachers, six of whom took the examination. This is a beginning in the right direction. Such work will make "A Greater Methodism." Who will be the next to make such a report?

Seven copies of "Life in the Making" were ordered for the teachers at Baldwyn, two for the teachers at Guntown, nine for the teachers at Mt. Olive, four for the teachers at Well's Chapel, one for the teachers at Jonestown, five for the teachers at Hind's Chapel, twelve for the teachers at Polar Corner, six for the teachers at Horn Lake, four for the teachers at Longview. One new school was organized at Natchez Trace, near Saltillo. The Graded Lessons for Beginners were placed in six schools. Thus the good work goes on, and will continue until the earth is covered with a knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. May that day come speedily. Who hears the call to help?

Abundant Health is assured when there is good blood in the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to make good blood. Begin taking it now. It is just what the system needs at this time and will do you great good. Sharpens the appetite, steadies the nerves.—Adv.

THE SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

On the morning of Tuesday, April 23, had any one had a vision of the roads leading to Stonewall, La., each one of them would have presented a strange sight.

With model roads, autos and auto bus cars, the Shreveport District Conference could have been seen on wheels driving at a rate of which Jehu never dreamed. The elder of the district was at his wheel with his wife and daughter and a preacher or two, and away he sped before the breeze, clipping it off at twenty, twenty-five, thirty, and thirty-five miles an hour.

As one auto sped past another, a spirit of rivalry became manifest, and John Gilpin and his famous ride was eclipsed in a jiffy.

The scene around the Methodist church, situated beautifully in the woods, a little off the main road, was pleasing to look upon from many angles of view. From the number of machines parked by the roadside and under the trees, one was forced to believe that Methodism in this part of the State was prospering indeed, and not likely to feel the financial pinch of the war at any early date.

But this was not all that one would think, for so many cars meant that the folks were awake and interested in the things of life from more than a material standpoint, and that the affairs of the Church held them and their thought, marshaling them for conference upon matters of spiritual import.

The ladies of the district, as well as the men, were having conference together, and the association was helpful for both.

Numerically, the writer is tempted to believe that the district meeting, or conference, of the Woman's Missionary Society had it a little over the men. Both were well attended and the spirit was fine—optimistic and prophetic of greater things ahead. The "dinner on the ground" was not on the ground, but on the table with plates, knives and forks, plus napkins, a barrel of clean drinking water and plenty of ice.

The Grand Cane Circuit is blessed with good cooks and the ladies planned beautifully. The barnyard fowl was there in every manner known to the cook, with pork and ham, and fresh steak served hot, pies and cakes, puddings, and all else besides, and then a little more. Jack Horner would have been happy, too, for while the plum pie was not, the raisin pudding was a fine substitute. I learned something on Dr. Steel, too, for as a forager he can teach us all a lesson when in quest of a hot cup of coffee. None was in sight and no one had an idea of any, unless it was Brother Schuhle, when, with a wish, as it were, from out of the clouds or elsewhere it all came. Why it was or how, I can not tell—Aladdin's lamp or what not—but with the wish, the fire, the coals, the southern dripper and Black Mammy were all there. If you don't believe it, just ask Dr. Steel.

The preaching was of a high order and good for edification. Drake, on missions, led off and set the pace high. I failed to hear Shankle, but learn that he held his own. Dr. Steel, on the Crucifixion, lifted us all high and higher and melted the whole conference, while Dr. Wynn never appeared to better advantage. The program was well planned and showed that the elder is a master of details.

With Missions, Our Young Life, The Preacher's Library, The Church and Patriotism, The Rural Church, The Epworth League, The Sabbath School, all presented by men capable and at home in their subjects, there was much for thought and profit.

A whole afternoon was given to the Epworth League, and a District League was effected, and, judged by the enthusiasm manifested, promises good things for the future. Brother Drake gave the Young People a creed, which was as follows:

Epworth League Creed.

"I believe in the young life of the Church, with its God-given endowment of power and its limitless possibilities of helpful service.

"I believe in its organization for the best use of its power and the best development of its possibilities; therefore,

"I believe in the Epworth League with its program of effective training in reverent worship, in helpful service, and in wholesome, social fellowship."

It came to him on the spur of the moment and was some better than the above; but, asked to reproduce it, this was all that he could recall. The toasts, often made out under the trees, were most delightful. The toastmasters for the two days were Dr. R. H. Wynn and Prof. R. E. Bobbitt, and the speakers were Wynn, Drake, Atkinson, Bobbitt and others.

The reports of the preachers were all excellent and the outlook is promising for even better things. Revivals were being held, souls were being saved and gathered into the Church, parsonages and churches being repainted and the work going forward.

Brother Vaughan was most hopeful of his work and collections were large. The work paying the largest amount in this district since Conference was Bayou La Chute, which has paid a little over $4200.

The delegates elected to the Annual Conference were as follows: T. L. Dowling, J. W. Elston, S. H. Porter, C. M. Corbin. Alternates—T. F. Sledge, Judge W. C. Barnette, W. S. Miller, and J. M. Middleton.

The place chosen for the next meeting was Many, La.

TEACHING RELIGION BY EXAMPLE.

Many parents are anxious about the religious life of their children—as they should be, for religion is one of the most important assets that a child can possess. But it is not an asset that can be handed down from generation to generation. It must be "experienced" by the individual for himself. A child may talk about the religion of its parents, but it will all end there unless the child has come into possession of the precious thing for itself.

Several years ago, when President Wilson was the head of Princeton University, he delivered an address upon the relation of young people to the Church and made this remark about the influences that often determine the entrance of children upon the religious life:

"Religion is communicable, I verily believe, aside from the sacred operations of the Holy Spirit, only by example. You have only to ask yourself what is the effect of a profession of religion on the part of a man who does not live a religious life. You know that the effect is not only not to communicate religion, but to delay indefinitely its influence. It is certainly true that we are not to judge religion by those who profess it but do not live it. But it is also true that if those who profess it are the only ones we live with, and they fail to live it, it cannot be communicated except by some mysterious grace of the Holy Spirit Himself. So that no amount of didactic teaching in a home whose life is not Christian will ever get into the consciousness and life of the children. If you wish your children to be Christians you must really take the trouble to be Christians yourselves. Those are the only terms upon which the home will work the gracious miracle."

Here is a wise word and it is commended to all those who desire to have their children enter into the Christian life: "If you wish your children to be Christians you must really take the trouble to be Christians yourselves." That's fair enough. And the test of real Christianity comes often in the home rather than in the church or in the community, and there is no one in the home who is quicker to discern the quality of one's Christian life than the child of that home. It is hardly fair to say to the child, "You go and become a Christian." It is better to say, "Come, let us try to be Christians together."

Ever Salivated By Calomel? Horrible!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain.

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at a small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

SPRING TREATMENT

Necessary to Purify Blood and Correct Weak, Run-Down Conditions.

Trying weather, exposure to storms, the grip, hard colds, pneumonia, fevers, diphtheria and other blood-poisoning, prostrating diseases leave the whole system sub-normal—below par—weak and slow—blood depleted and thin, with that tired feeling, poor appetite, backache, rheumatic pains, delicate digestive power or almost none at all. The ideal treatment is

Hood's Sarsaparilla—to be taken before meals—thoroughly to purify the blood and expel poisons, and

Peptiron—to be taken after meals—to put power into the blood, give strength, increase red corpuscles and restore tone, and do it quickly.

If there is biliousness, constipation, bad taste in the mouth, or "the blues," the liver is torpid. Take Hood's Pills—they rouse the liver and relieve all liver ills, are perfectly compatible with Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron.

THE COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The forty-eighth session of the Columbus District Conference of the North Mississippi Annual Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, met in the Methodist Church in Starkville, Miss., on Wednesday morning, April 24, 1918. Every clerical member was present except Chaplain J. A. Randolph, who is in France. Starkville amply sustained her reputation for hospitality, and her genial, popular and efficient pastor, Rev. John Park, excelled as conference host.

We had a new presiding elder in the chair, but it was not apparent in his presidency, for in the mastery of assemblies, executive prowess, dignity and efficiency, W. L. Duren moved with the poise of a veteran.

The work of the conference had been carefully and thoughtfully outlined beforehand by the presiding elder and presented to the conference in a neat printed program. The business moved with ease and dispatch, with no undue haste or delay. There was no lag in interest from start to finish, and the delegates stayed through.

The atmosphere of the conference was brotherly and spiritual, and there was manifested a cheerful and willing spirit to grapple with the ever increasing and perplexing problems occasioned by the great war. The reports of the presiding elder and the preachers rang with optimism and progress. Despite the hard winter, prairie mud, fuel shortage, and other hindrances, an unusual amount of work has been accomplished during this the early part of the Conference year, especially in the paying and providing for the general assessments.

A feature of the conference was the address of Rev. E. N. Broyles on "The Part of the Church in the Great War." Brother Broyles is the Chairman of the Liberty Loan Campaign in Noxubee County. His address, indicated extended research in international law, world politics, and present international problems. "The Allies must make the world safe for Democracy and the Church must make Democracy safe for the world."

The number of connectional men in attendance was small. Robert Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; Dr. J. M. Sullivan, Director of Science at Millsaps College, and Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary for the Conference Sunday School Board, were present and gave satisfactory and encouraging accounts of the work committed to their hands. Dr. Sullivan had with him ten members of the Senior Class, and in a happy manner presented them to the conference. They were on a geological expedition to East Mississippi.

A. A. Martin, E. N. Broyles, L. P. Wasson, and T. J. Halfacre were the preachers for the conference, to the delight and edification of the increasing congregations that heard them.

A goodly number of lay delegates were in attendance. A big-hearted, spiritual layman is ever an abiding inspiration to a district conference. The laymen elected as their representatives to the Annual Conference, Dr. S. M. Rainey, Prof. Dabney Lipscomb, T. Whitman Davis, and Dr. N. D. Guerry, together with R. C. Bridges and W. E. Stokes as alternates.

T. Whitman Davis, of Macon, was elected district lay leader. License to preach was granted to James McCaskill, of Columbus. W. L. Duren (ex officio Chairman), D. W. Babb, J. C. Park, T. J. Halfacre and S. L. Pope were elected a District Licensing Committee. The next district conference goes to Artesia.

THE BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference convened at Hazlehurst, Miss., at 2:30 on Tuesday afternoon, April 23, 1918.

Pastor Roberts and his accommodating committee met the trains, and, soon after his arrival, each delegate was comfortably located in a splendid home. The hospitality of the pastor and the people was unstinted and was enjoyed by those in attendance.

Though the presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, had suffered painful injuries in an accident near Columbia, he was present, with his work prepared to make the conference a blessing. With the assistance of his wife, and with the relief given by Dr. Henry's assuming the direction of affairs occasionally, he gave the work the usual interest and dispatch that has been characteristic of his labors as presiding elder.

Though our "connectionals" were not as numerous as usual, the quality was of a high order. Rev. R. Selby, Commissioner of Emory University, Prof. J. Reese Linn of Millsaps College, Prof. G. L. Harrell, Conference Lay Leader, Rev. John C. Chambers, Field Secretary Miss. Conf. Sunday School Board, and Mrs. S. F. Reily, of the Orphanage, all delivered strong addresses on the matters committed into their hands.

The pastors of the district were all present except Brothers R. A. Sibley and W. B. Alsworth. There were 28 local preachers and laymen present. The report of the pastors and the supplementary reports of the laymen were encouraging. Several good revivals were reported, and a general evangelistic movement is on in all the other charges. The spiritual condition being good, the financial and other matters are promising. Tylertown's new $18,000 church building was reported by the pastor as nearing completion, and Layman W. H. Morse nominated Tylertown as the place for the next conference, and it was unanimously chosen.

Thomas Marvin Ainsworth was unanimously recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial. Prof. J. E. Carruth was elected District Lay Leader; W. D. Davis, V. D. Youngblood, P. H. Enochs, and W. M. Lampton were elected delegates to the Annual Conference; and L. L. Roberts, I. W. Cooper, W. G. Henry, and J. L. Decell were elected members of the Ad Interim Committee.

Courteous consideration, good-fellowship, and a dominant spiritual note prevailed throughout the conference. Dr. W. G. Henry, Revs. J. S. Purcell and J. L. Decell preached during the conference.

The work of the committees and the reports and resolutions all being in, the conference adjourned sine die with the forenoon session Thursday. The conference members turned homeward with a high appreciation of the Methodists of Hazlehurst and their pastor and with renewed consecration to Christ.

J. LOYD DECELL,
Secretary.

A WRONG TENDENCY.

There is always a tendency to lay undue emphasis upon the material. It is visible and tangible. In this bodily life we are in the midst of it, and it so fills our vision that we are disposed to think there is nothing else. Yet the spiritual is far more real and abiding. "The things which are seen are temporal;" that is, they pass away; "but the things which are not seen are eternal." It is the spiritual that abides. —Raleigh Christian Advocate.

If you are all out of sorts, read the twelfth chapter of Hebrews.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

NECESSITY HELPS.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self-control, diligence, strength of will, content, and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

ECHOES FROM THE COUNCIL MEETING.

Miss Bennett in her message to the Council stressed a number of vital facts and important changes which, carried out, would lead to a further advance and more rapid development of the work already enterprised. She touched upon the Centenary celebration of American Methodist Missions, feeling that there could be no more auspicious time than the present; and of our part in this great celebration she says: "The Woman's Missionary Society is the best mobilized arm of the Church, and you members of this Council are the chosen leaders of your Conference organization. At your call, twenty thousand trained women from the Adult and Young People's Auxiliaries could be ready in thirty days—to use that little dynamic sentence now so luminous with sacrifical love—ready to 'go over the top' in every congregation. You are the women called of God to lead in this great awakening of his sleeping forces. In all of these congregations there is a 'no man's land' where ignorance, indifference, and spiritual coldness keep a silent watch. These must be won to a study of God's Word, to a close, loving knowledge of our divine leader's life, and to a passionate desire to walk in his footsteps. There must be a great league of prayer, prevailing prayer, undergirded with that humble confession of sin and disobedience that only a broken heart and a contrite spirit can make.

"The greatest task of this Council and its splendid constituency for the coming year, perhaps for the entire quadrennium, is to invest all of its God-given resources in a united effort with the trained and selected forces of the Board of Missions to make the Church a living power through which the Lord Jesus Christ shall speedily win the world to himself."

Miss Bennett urged that the women put forth a fresh effort for a ten per cent advance along all lines in 1918. This goal was not reached by all the Conferences during 1917. Some made it along financial lines but failed to reach the mark when it came to the increase in membership and new auxiliaries.

Miss Bennett said the need for a Woman's College in Shanghai was so appalling that adequate property should be secured and the removal of our small group of medical students and nurses from Soochow to Shanghai accomplished in the immediate future.

The need of the McTyeire High School was presented, the plans for which were completed before the death of Miss Richardson. A good equipment, and a larger, stronger faculty are needed. Nothing can be done until the old school property is sold and the debt paid on the new.

Miss Bennett urged the erection in the near future of a building for the Lambuth Memorial Bible Training School. Property was purchased in 1917.

The Retirement Fund is not sufficient to properly minister to the comforts and needs of those worn out in the service, so it was recommended "That the Week of Prayer be made a memorial to our loved pioneers who are still with us, asking the society to make financial offerings to the Retirement and Relief Fund, that these dear children of God may want for no material comfort when they lay down the work to await His coming."

The Centennial Celebration.

"Dr. W. G. Cram discussed the centenniai celebration from three points of view, (1) as a spiritual power in which the Church is called to pray that it may gain the Christ view-point of the world and thus obtain a mighty onward movement which will thus be inaugurated within it; (2) as an investment of life and life's influences and of means, in order that Jesus Christ's kingdom may come into its own; (3) as a movement which is now in its critical state."

"Dr. Cram outlined the general use to which this fund ($35,000,000) will be put: $2,500,000 for the general work in order that the cities in America may be made to feel the impact of the campaign, $2,500,000 more for increased work in the Conference missions, $1,210,000 for the extension of home missions, $2,000,000 for the Board of Church Extension, $8,000,000 for foreign missions, $4,000,000 for the work of the Woman's Board, $2,000,000 annually for the work in general, and $1,000,000 a year for five years for reconstructive activities under the Church direction in Europe."

Report of the Treasurer.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. F. H. E. Ross, showed that the total receipts were in advance of any previous year, being $625,510.10. An advance of ten per cent had been asked for 1917, but only a seven per cent advance was made. The amount expended for the foreign work was $346,442.99 and that for the home work $196,553.95. Including administrative expense and the amount expended for the training school and some office furnishing, the total expenditure was $592,826.83. Mrs. Ross reported that the total amount raised for the quadrennium has been $2,081,694.37, while the receipts since the beginning of the organization of the Home and Foreign Missonary Societies have been: for foreign work, $5,312,107.62; for home work, $2,496,134.43; and for city missions $744,960.75. Adding to this the Scarritt fund, there is found to be a grand total since the year 1878 of $8,570,053.85.

Report of Educational Secretary.

Mrs. Steele reported one million one hundred and sixty-five thousand leaflets and booklets printed and distributed during the year, at a total cost of $3,314.08. In the department of Mission Study there has been an increase in adult and young people's classes, but a falling off in junior classes. The total of all mission study classes is 2354, as against 2403 last year.

There has been an increase in Bible study. The superintendents report 1529 classes (an increase of 239 over last year), with a membership of 24,208.

Courses Recommended for 1918-19.

The general theme for the year 1918-19 is, "Christianity and the World Workers."

The following books are recommended for study:

Adult: "Working Women of the Orient," by Margaret Burton; "The Next Adventure for God," by Harry Ward.

Senior Young People: "The Path of Labor" (a compilation); another book to be supplied later.

Intermediates: "Making Life Count," by Eugene C. Foster.

Junior: "Jack of All Trades;" "Jack and Janet in the Philippines," by Norma Waterbury Thomas.

Election of Officers.

"Two secretaries were elected to each administrative office. In the office of foreign work one secretary has charge of the Orientai fields, the other of Latin America and Africa. In the office home work one secretary has charge of city mission and deaconess work, the other of educational institutions and social service. Instead of two vice presidents, only one was elected, she to be vice president at large, with such duties as naturally fall to vice presidents of large bodies. The work of young people and children, formerly under the care of the first and second vice presidents, is in the future to be under the leadership of superintendents, both of them to be salaried officers." The officers elected are as follows:

President, Miss Belle H. Bennett; Vice President, Mrs. F. F. Stephens; Secretary Foreign Work, Orient, Miss Mabel K. Howell; Secretary Foreign Work, Latin America and Africa, Miss Esther Case; Secretary Home Work, City Missions, Deaconesses, Mrs. R. W. MacDonell; Secretary Home Work, Educational Institutions, Social Service, Mrs. J. W. Downs; Educational Secretary, Mrs. H. R. Steele; Home Base Secretary, Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. S. Parker; Treasurer, Mrs. F. H. E. Ross; Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. J. H. Yarbrough.

Foreign Mission Candidates.

The following missionaries were recommended for acceptance and appointment to the fields named: Miss Mary Alice Lamar, of the Texas Conference, to Brazil; Miss Pearl Olivia Hicks, of the East Oklahoma Conference, to Brazil; Miss Jessie Drew Gill, of the Alabama Conference, to Mexico; Miss Pauline Glass Randle of the Louisiana Conference, to Korea; Miss Edna Lee Booker, of the Los Angeles Conference, to China; Miss Elizabeth A. Love, of the Holston Conference, to China; Miss Alma Pitts of the East Oklahoma Conference, to China.

The deaconesses appointed are: Miss Bertie Breeden, Roanoke, Va.; Miss Emma Almstead, Louisville, Ky.

Report of City Missions and Deaconess Work.

"It is worthy of note that $23,405.30 was expended for cotton mill work, $36,204.28 for foreign work, and $19,547.40 for Negro and other English speaking industrial groups by these City Mission Boards.

"We have maintained nine day nurseries, with 735 children; 21 kindergartens, with 1529; 208 industrial classes, with 4195 in attendance; 19 night schools, with 684 students; 11,465 books were loaned; and 6322 persons profited by the reading rooms. There were 118 boys' clubs, with 1715 enrolled; 70 girls' clubs with 1090 enrolled; 46 young women's clubs, with 663 enrolled; 32 mothers' clubs, with 1020 in attendance. Thirty-two settlements have conducted story hours regulariy. Nineteen conduct playgrounds, where 849 children were at play. Seven settlements maintain free baths; 11,208 took advantage of these. Fourteen settlements have conducted clinics, and 14,316 patients were treated. There were 15,669 garments given or sold. To this story of activity must be added that more than 213 were brought into the Church by the settlement work."

What Nuxated Iron Is Made From

Sworn Statement of Composition of Its Formula

It increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

The Board of Directors have authorized the broadest publication of the sworn statement of the composition of Nuxated Iron, one of the most widely used tonic, strength and blood builders in the world, so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits.

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over 3,000,000 people annually in America alone. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it are many physicians formerly connected with well-known hospitals, former United States Senators Wm. E. Mason and Charles A. Towne, former members of Congress; distinguished U. S. Army Generals (Retired), Judge Atkinson of the United states Court of Claims at Washington and former Health Commissioner Kerr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows:

Iron Peptonate (Special specific Standard) Quantity given below.
Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto.)
Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto.)
P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P.
Cascarin Bitter
Magnesium Carbonate
Po. Ginger U. S. P.
Oil Cassia Cinnamon U. S. P.
Calcium Carbonate Precip. U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in a state very similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Due Health Laboratories, Paris, London, and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says it has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles. Dr. J. W. Armisted, Grove Hill, Ala., graduate of the University of Alabama School of Medicine, Mobile, 1883, says: "In the cases I used Nuxated Iron I have found more beneficial results than from any preparation I have ever used in 34 years' practice." Dr. R. B. Baugh, Polkville, Miss., graduate of the Memphis Hospital College, Memphis, 1898, says: "I always prescribe Nuxated Iron where a reconstructive tonic is indicated." Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in cases of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In case of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists. Due Health Laboratories, Detroit, Mich.

From the Field

Greenville, Miss.

Our work is making very satisfactory progress. Congregations are good and the interest in church matters healthy. Fifty-two have been received into the Church, twelve of them on profession of faith. The opportunity of our church here is magnificent. We are trying to meet the demands and enlarge the sphere of our activities by urging a fuller devotion to the Church of all our powers. The outlook is most inviting.—E. S. Lewis.

Oakland, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We had our second quarterly conference on April 27 at Tillatoba. Our faithful presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, was on hand and preached a most excellent sermon to a crowded house on the subject of missions. After the services we were served by the good people of Tillatoba to a sumptuous dinner. This quarterly conference was the best that we have had since I have been on the work. All four of the churches were represented, and the pastor's salary was paid in full to date by three of the churches, Tillatoba going "over the top." Our Sunday schools are all in fine shape.—W. F. Rogers, P. C.

Washington, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Sunday, April 28, was a great day at the Washington Church. We gave our "Children's Day" program, which was conceded by everyone to have been the best ever given here. The decorations, songs, and recitations were as near perfect as could be. The offering was the largest this church has ever made, being equal to the amount assigned to the whole charge. At the conclusion of the children's program, the service flag of the church was dedicated. It bears a single star in honor of Claude C. Lazarus, Company B, 155th Infantry. An address was made by Judge Richard F. Reed, one of the leading laymen of our Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, a former member of the Mississippi Supreme Court and of the Millsaps law faculty. His speech on "The Church and the War" was timely and was enjoyed by everyone.

We have had a good year so far. The salaries of the pastor and presiding elder have been practically paid to date, and committees are at work on the Conference assessments with every prospect of getting them in full early in the year. We are planning to have a revival in every church. Rev. B. E. Meigs, of Monticello, Miss., will assist us here at Washington from the third to the fourth Sunday in May, and Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Whitworth College, will begin a meeting at Cannonsburg on the third Sunday in June. I ask the prayers of the Church that these may be real revivals.—J B. Cain.

FROM BROTHER ELLIOTT.

I am so glad that we have you at the head of our paper. I am glad that you did not publish in full the little pamphlet, "Who Queered Unification?" The last clause of this pamphlet reads thus: "The purpose of this paper is not to influence at all the issue of unification, but merely to show to the Church the sort of leadership that logically goes with the absolutism of our unlimited life-tenure episcopacy. Entrenched power and privilege are proverbially conservative. Our Church need never expect from the episcopacy the splendid, far-looking leadership it has a right to expect until the office is stripped of some of its vast prerogatives and made a more responsive servant of democracy. Note.—The purpose of this paper is not to influence at all the issue of unification."

If it were not the purpose to do this, pray tell me why did they wait till right on the eve of the convening of our General Conference to print this pamphlet and scatter it broadcast over the country? No, we don't want the power of our great Bishops abridged.

A MISSION CONFERENCE.

Last week Bishop Leonard, of the M. E. Church, held the Mission Conference for these Islands. He stated that 82 per cent of the ministers were from the Oriental countries. They were nearly all Japanese, Koreans and Filipinos. At the morning service on the 17th of March, he ordained three elders, impressively assisted by the district superintendent and the pastor of the Honolulu Church. His sermon was a wonderful exposition of the meaning of vicarious sacrifice. A packed house followed him intently and listened to his words. Truly, does St. Paul say that by the "foolishness of preaching we persuade men." Nothing will ever take the place of power held by the spoken word, delivered with unction and fire. At the night service he did not take a text, but delivered an address on the "Church in the World War." It was about an hour and a half long, and he held the almost breathless attention of a crowd, limited only by the size of the building. It was simply a masterpiece of logic, history, and a few incidents of which he happened to know. Although it was Sunday, and in the house of God, the vast audience could not be restrained, and broke into applause very frequently. With unsparing logic, keen satire, and caustic criticism, he showed the duty of the Church in this great period of her history, and pointed the way to a great ingathering of souls as a result of the duty well performed. I wish that every reader of the Advocate could hear the Bishop, and it would pay the President of the Divinity School to have him come to the summer session and preach several times. Biloxi would be stirred to the very soul by such preaching.

On last night (Palm Sunday) Dr. Stephens, of California, preached a wonderful sermon, and when he opened the doors of the Church no fewer than eight men offered themselves for membership in the Church. Dr. Stephens is pastor of Grace Church, San Francisco, but has had to have an assistant to relieve him of his work and thus permit him to attend to the men in the great camps out there. His church would not let him be moved, as they are fond of him, but they are wide awake to the needs of the men in the camps, and permit him to spend the greater part of his time there. After the men had reached the altar, without singing or any exhortation, he asked for the Christian soldiers to come and stand with these new men who were making a stand for "their Great Captain." It was a sight well worth seeing, when fifty men in uniform were at the railing in a body.

Some people will tell you that a soldier is a "peculiar animal," and do it with a sneer. After many years of experience with the men in all branches of the service, I must say that it is true in this way, and only this way: a soldier simply wants to be treated as an ordinary human being, nothing more or less. Treat him as you do any other man, and he is satisfied.

Right now the Army is the center of all thought and action, with our Navy and Marine Corps also under the spotlight. The Army, Navy and Marine Corps will "make good." Rest assured of that fact, and quit worrying. Let the good people at home do their saving, and praying as never before in their lives; let them keep close to the Master, and never lose the touch of His hand; then the other matters will naturally come out right. He says he will "draw all men unto" himself, and He will—do not doubt that!

Some days ago, just at sunset, wife and I stood on the lip of the old volcano called Diamond Head, which is situated on the post reservation. The sunset, and views of the city, are marvelously beautiful, and well worth the long, hard climb. The night falls very rapidly in these low latitudes, and as the light failed, and the city and harbor became a gem-decked vision of many lights, my wife called my attention to a great cross of light blazing on the side of a mountain about a mile away. How it gleamed in the gathering gloom, getting brighter and brighter as the shadows of a moonless night deepened! Often on my way to church I see this great cross (which is made by the intersection of two streets on the mountain), and it strikes me with such a forceful meaning—the darker the night, the brighter gleams the cross. So in this dark night of the world's history, the blessed Cross gets brighter and brighter, and points most surely to the dawn of a greater and more wonderful day—a day so wonderful that we are prayerfully waiting for it's dawn.

But this letter is too long.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH.

"The mission of the Church is not to convert men. The power to do this belongs to God alone. He has never delegated this power to any one else. The mission of the Church is to declare the gospel to men. As the ambassadors of our Lord, we are to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. When this is done, the responsibility for their acceptance or rejection of Christ rests with those who have heard."

LINTONIA MEETING.

Beginning on April 17 and continuing for ten successive evenings, special services were held by the pastor. The interest grew from the first to the last services. Only one person was received on profession of faith, but the uplift of the heart and the soul of professed Christians and the attendance of a number who had not attended any church for many years was a matter of encouragement. Brothers Huntley and Fuller, each preached one evening, giving inspiring and helpful messages. In my late report of this charge there is a mistake, which I wish to correct. It should have been: "We are laboring and praying to the end that we may have a general and gracious revival on the entire charge," and not as given: "A gracious revival has visited the entire charge." To be able to make such a report, as we understand a Scriptural revival, would be to say much. Well may we adopt the language of Habakkuk, 3:2, "O Lord, I have heard thy speech, and was afraid; O Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; in wrath remember mercy." The awful tragedy of the world war with its increasing burdens and heart-rending sorrows is a trumpet call to the ministry and Church to cry mightily to God to lead the stricken nations to repentence and an acceptance of Jesus Christ as the Savior and Lord. SARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

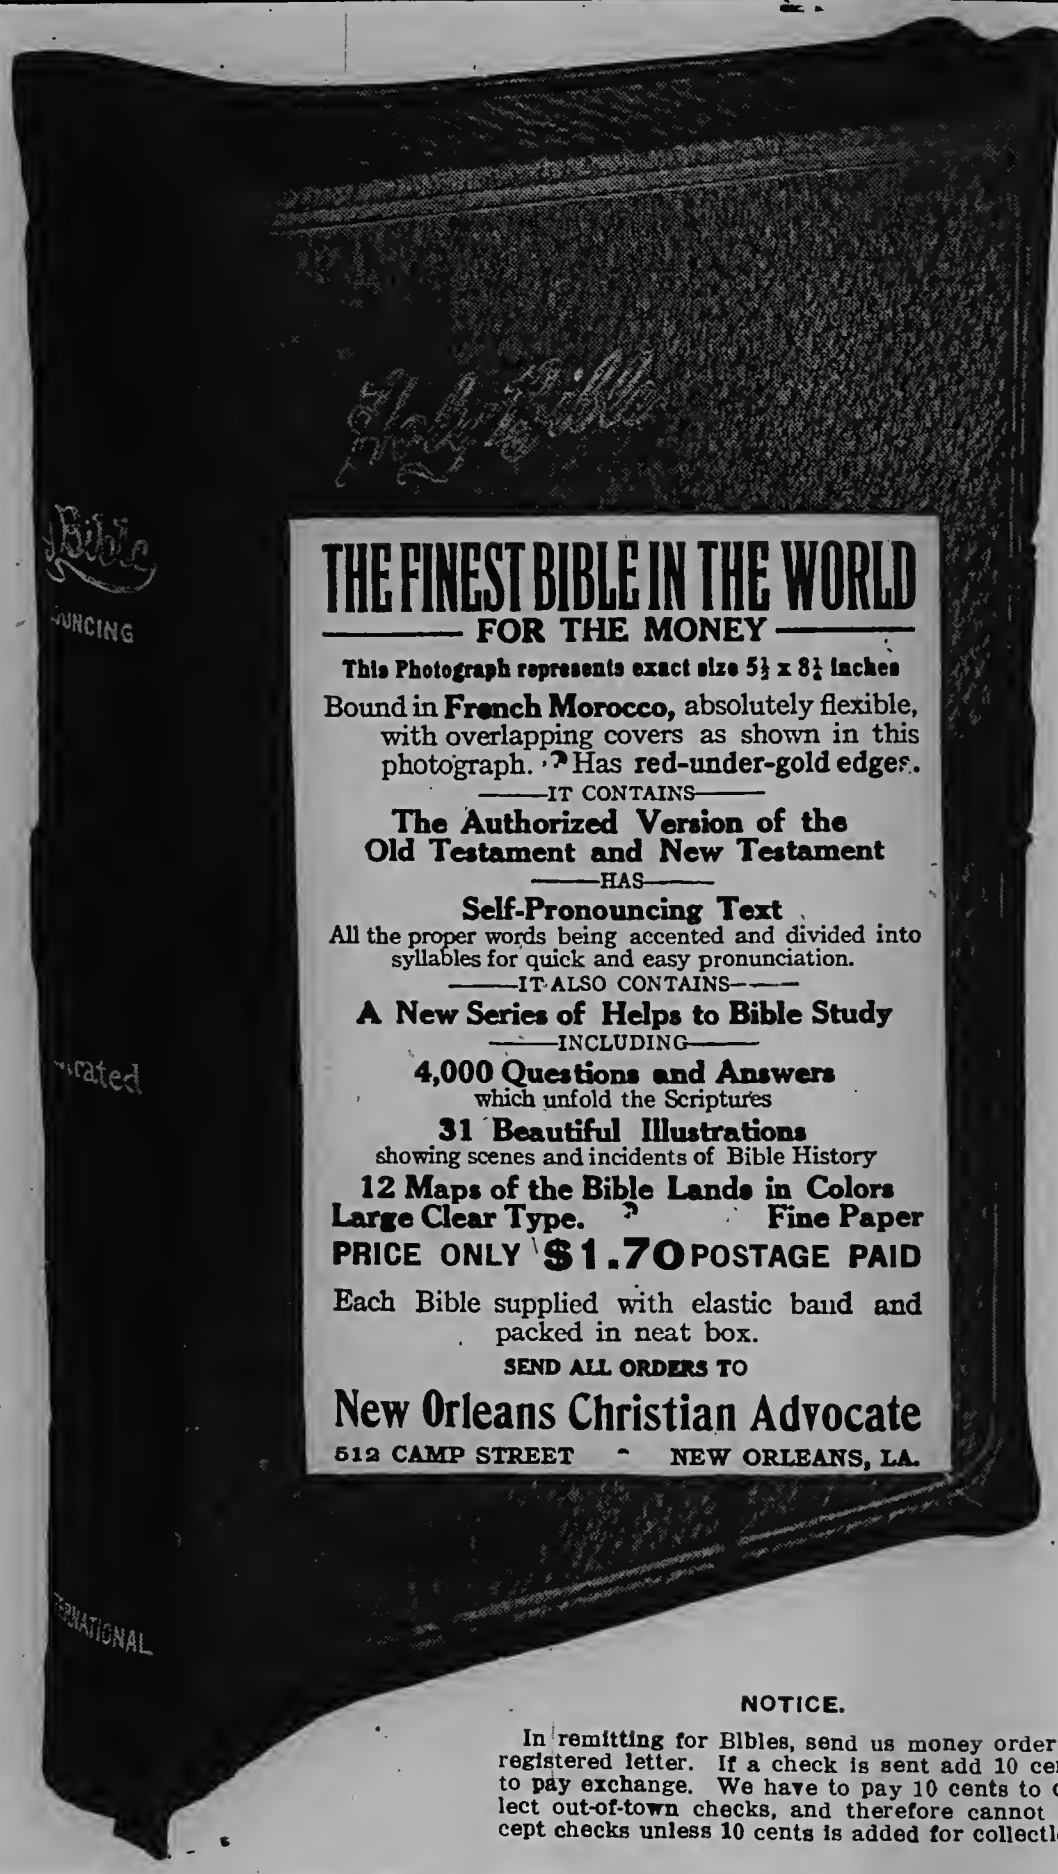
The Sardis District Conference, held at Como, Miss., the 24th and 25th ult., was a splendid success. Twenty-one out of twenty-three preachers were in attendance answering the first roll-call, and an equal number of lay members, sixteen of whom answered the first roll-call, were also in attendance.

The preliminary sermon was preached by Rev. N. G. Augustus on the night of April 23 to a large and attentive congregation. The conference assembled at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Opening exercises were conducted by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney and given a spiritual pitch which accelerated in power to the closing hour of the conference. On account of the funeral services, at Grenada, of Rev. H. C. Morehead, who died at Courtland on Tuesday, Rev. J. H. Holder, the presiding elder, was absent from the opening session. Rev. R. P. Neblett called the conference to order and, by appointment, presided during the day's session. P. T. Callicott, of Coldwater, was elected Secretary, and after the introduction of Rev. B. F. Lewis, of the Orphanage at Jackson, Miss., to the body, the several committees were appointed. Rev. W. D. Wendel, of Sardis, was called to the chair and reports of pastors were taken up, showing progress on all lines. Every pastor pledged himself and congregation to the great cause for which our Nation, with our Allies, are now engaged. Rev. R. P. Neblett resumed the chair and introduced Rev. W. E. Lee, pastor of the Como Baptist Church. Rev. W. H. Mounger, of Charleston, preached at the 11 o'clock hour. After a devotional service conducted by Rev. W. A. Bowdin, the afternoon session was given to reports of committees and minute work. Following adjournment the Reception Committee, with Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Chairman, took the more than 40 delegates for an auto ride about the prosperous little town and through beautiful stretches of farmland, for which the community is noted. Brother Holder, having returned, took charge, and at the night service introduced Rev. M. M. Black, who spoke in behalf of Millsaps College. He was followed by Mr. Jeff Marmon, Lay Leader of the Memphis Conference, whose address was one of the notable features of the conference.



Thursday morning the devotional service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Selman, of Olive Branch. Reports and brief discussions on various topics were heard. At 11 o'clock Mr. Thos. B. King, Financial Secretary of the Methodist Hospital at Memphis, gave an encouraging account of the enterprise which he represents, adding thereto one of the greatest sermons delivered during the conference. At the afternoon session the following lay delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: H. S. Gunn, Como; N. E. Wilroy, Hernando; P. T. Callicott, Coldwater; Dr. P. L. Maples, Olive Branch. Rev. W. W. Reddish, of Horn Lake, was recommended for admission on trial to the Annual Conference. Greetings from the Woman's Missionary Society was presented by Mrs. R. M. Short. A resolution of thanks to all who contributed to the success and pleasure of the conference was presented by Rev. N. G. Augustus. At the night session Dr. Robert Selby spoke in behalf of Emory University. Rev. W. D. Wendel preached a masterly sermon on "The World Program for the Church."

The conference adjourned to meet at Oakland next year.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

By Rev. R. P. Neblett.

Monday morning's session, May 6, was spirited, and every moment was full of interest. Many memorials were sent up and referred to the various committees. Under the call for reports from committees, that which caused unusual interest was the report from the Committee on Itinerancy, recommending the removal of the "time limit." The Committee on Revisals brought in a report asking that the words "Holy Catholic Church," in our creed, be so changed as to read: "Christ's Holy Church." These matters went to the calendar and will be taken up in their turn.

A number of visitors and fraternal delegates were introduced, among them Maj. Chas. W. Gordon, author of "Sky Pilot," "Black Rock," and other books under the name of "Ralph Connor," who electrified the Conference by his thrilling message from the front. He addressed the Chair as Bishop, whereupon Bishop Hoss, who was presiding, said: "I suppose I may respond to that name. An old Negro was acting as a bodyguard to a distinguished man. As he was being driven along the road, pointing to a little Baptist Church across the field, this gentleman said: 'Mose, you are pastor of that church ar'n't you?' to which he replied, 'I was, but I ain't; they done sunt me my resignation.'" (There had been some memorials sent up during the morning session asking for the limitation of the powers of the Bishops.) This remark caused laughter.

Maj. Gordon appeared in his full army costume as a Chaplain of the Aviation Department in the Scottish Highlanders Division of the British Army. He brought the Conference to its feet in applause when he said: "Do you want me to tell you when the war will end? It will end when America has put two million men in the field to fight along-side of France and Britain." He assured the ministers "that they were to shape the sentiment of the people at home, so that they would stand by the men at the front, for the pathway to glory was the pathway of the Cross." Bishop Hoss called upon the Confederate Veterans, who were members of the body, to stand. Five or six, only, arose, and the gallant Major said, as he lifted his hand to his forehead: "I salute you in the name of our brave men on the firing line in France."

Dr. Edgar Blake, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Sunday Schools of the Northern Methodist Church, was introduced, but, in reply to a request to speak, told the Conference that he would be heard from later. He is to he the speaker at the Sunday school anniversary this evening and again Wednesday afternoon, in the Sunday school auditorium.

Tuesday, May 7.

Almost all of the Tuesday morning's session was taken up by a spirited debate on the question as to whether the "time limit" was to be abolished, or not. Dr. A. J. Lamar, of Nashville, secured the floor and was beginning his speech when the hour for adjournment arrived. Many were expecting the matter of laity rights for women to be presented, but it was not taken from the calendar.

Young ladies from the Missionary Training School, located on the fourth floor in the Wesley Memorial Building, are acting as pages. Four of these spendid young women move about the Conference room, transmitting mail and messages among the delegates.

Dr. S. Earl Taylor, who is one of the missionary secretaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and who will deliver a number of lectures, illustrating them with views from the field, was introduced to the Conference.

Wednesday, May 8.

Practically all of the morning session, Wednesday, May 8, was taken up in debating the question proposing the "removal of the time limit." Bishop Denny presided at this session. Two reports had been presented, the majority report asking for the removal of the plan of appointing the preachers by the Bishops, so that a pastor could remain in charge of a circuit, or station, longer than four years, but the minority report asked for the law to remain as it has been. A substitute to the minority report was submitted, asking that the law might read: "A Bishop MAY appoint a preacher to a pastoral charge for a longer term than four years, provided the quarterly conference should so request, and a majority of the Cabinet concur." Various amendments were proposed, asking for an eight-year limit and other compromise measures, but they were promptly voted down.

The hour for adjournment arrived before the final vote was taken, and the question was left for a later session to finish. A special trip to Emory University Campus was made, where a bronze bust of Bishop Warren A. Candler, Chancellor of that institution, was unveiled, in the front corridor of the School of Theology, with appropriate exercises.

Thursday, May 9.

Thursday morning's session, May 9, was notable for two matters, which were of deep concern—the reading of Report No. 1 of the Committee on Episcopacy, and the taking of the final vote on the proposed abolition of the time limit to the pastorate.

All the Bishops pass in review, so to speak, before the Committee on Episcopacy, who recommend retirement of a Bishop, or that he remain on the active list. Three of the Bishops were placed on the list for retirement—Bishop H. C. Morrison, who had made a formal and public request for this relation; Bishop E. E. Hoss, and Bishop R. G. Waterhouse. All the other members of the Episcopal College, who are now effective, were asked to be retained as such. The Committee's report was accepted. Bishop Morrison, who was seated on the platform, was asked by the Chairman, Bishop J. C. Kilgo, to address the Conference, whereupon he thanked the brethren for their kindness, and assured them that he was a monument to God's grace and mercy, for he was not expected, as a child, to live, and had even read his own death notices. He referred to his record of fifty years of love and ministry, sounded a note of warning against the new religions and isms, and said the blood of Christ alone could save, here and here after.

After parliamentary plays, and seemingly much confusion, the final vote on the matter of time limit, brought over from Wednesday's session, was taken up, resulting in the adoption of a substitute to the minority report, which disposed of the question, leaving the matter of a pastor's appointment to one charge for a longer period than four years to the discretion of the Bishop and his Cabinet, upon recommendation of the quarterly conference of the charge in question. There are those who take the position that this does not affect the presiding elder's appointment, as the matter refers only to the preacher and his quarterly conference.

Friday, May 10.

Bishop W. B. Murrah presided at Friday's session, May 10.

One item, to which we failed to call attention in Thursday's proceedings, was the adoption of a report from the Committee on Revisals, striking out, in our creed, the words "Holy Catholic Church" and substituting therefor "Christ's Holy Church," so that our creed will officially read as thus corrected.

A special committee on war work submitted its report, providing for the raising of one million dollars annually as a minimum for the use of chaplains and Church work in the camps and among the soldiers. Bishop W. R. Lambuth, Chairman of the Commission of Nineteen, for which the paper adopted called, was asked to address the Conference. Among other things, he spoke of the need of the soldiers being supplied with the Bible, or portions thereof, and held up a New Testament in French, taken from the dead body of a French soldier, with a bullet embedded in it. This was a mute but strong witness of the sacredness of the Bible to the men in the armies of the Allies.

A letter from President Woodrow Wilson, responding to a message sent him early in the sessions assuring him of the hearty endorsement of him and the administration during these times, brought not only the delegation on the main floor, but the visitors in the galleries to their feet in prolonged applause. Some one started "America," and the vast throng sang it with such vim and volume that the great building seemed to shake.

A report from the Committee on Boundaries and Finance provoked much discussion and consumed a large part of the time of the morning's deliberations, the paper requiring all the collections to be taken together as a single budget. The recommendations of the Committee were finally adopted.

A motion to reconsider the action whereby the Conference was to give, as the special order for Saturday, two hours for prayer in the interest of the Centenary of Missions, so as to use one hour only, was made. The matter was reconsidered and one hour was given instead of two.

Saturday, May 11.

Rev. T. H. Dorsey, of the North Mississippi Conference delegation, conducted the devotional exercises at the opening of Saturday's session, which was marked by matters of historic and prophetic significance—historic, in that one of the time

LINES ON A SKELETON.

(About forty years ago, the London Morning Chronicle published a poem entitled "Lines on a Skeleton," which excited much attention. Every effort, even to offering a reward of fifty guineas, was vainly made to discover the author. All that ever transpired was that the poem, written in a fair, clerkly hand, was found near a skeleton of remarkable form and color in the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn, London, and that the curator of the Museum had sent them to Mr. Perry, editor and proprietor of the Morning Chronicle.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Behold this ruin! 'Twas a skull,
Once of ethereal spirit full;
This narrow cell was Life's retreat,
This space was Thought's mysterious seat.
What beauteous visions filled this spot!
What dreams of pleasure, long forgot!
Nor Hope, nor Love, nor Joy, nor Fear
Have left one trace of record here.

Beneath this mouldering canopy
Once shone the bright and busy eye;
But, start not at the dismal void!
If social Love that eye employed;
If with no lawless fire it gleamed,
But through the days of kindness beamed,
That eye shall be forever bright
When stars and suns are sunk in night.

Within this hollow cavern hung
The ready, swift and tuneful tongue;
If falsehood's honey it disdained
And where it could not praise, was chained;
If bold in Virtue's cause it spoke,
Yet gentle Concord never broke;
This silent tongue shall plead for thee
When Time unveils Eternity.

Say, did these fingers delve the mine?
Or with the envied rubies shine?
To hew the rock or wear the gem
Can little now avail to them.
But if the page of truth they sought,
Or comfort to the mourner brought,
These hands a richer meed shall claim
Than all that wait on Wealth or Fame.

Avails it whether bare or shod
These feet the paths of duty trod?
If from the bowers of Ease they fled
To seek Affliction's humble shed,
If Grandeur's guilty bribe they spurned
And home to Virtue's cot returned,
These feet with angel's wings shall vie,
And tread the palace of the sky.

THE UPPER ROOM.

We live by faith, not by sight. We do not preach that all is disappointment—the dreary creed of sentimentalism; but we preach that nothing here is disappointment, if rightly understood. We do not comfort the poor man by saying that the riches that he has not now will he have hereafter—the difference between himself and the man of wealth being only this, that the one has for time what the other will have for eternity; but what we say is, that that which you have failed in reaping here, you never will reap, if you expected the harvest of Canaan. God has no Canaan for His own; no milk and honey for luxury of the senses; for the city which hath foundations is built in the soul of man. He in whom Godlike character dwells has all the universe for his own.—Frederick W. Robertson.

THAT YE MIGHT HAVE LIFE.

One of the lessons that the times are teaching the Church, and the good men and women in it, who are stirred up as never before to think of the Kingdom of God upon the earth and how it may become a realized fact, is that our negations have bulked too largely in our religious life and thinking. We have been talking too much about what people must not do, and have magnified out of all proportion the prohibitions of our religion. And it has all at once dawned on some of us that we never got such a habit as that from the example or the teaching of our Master. He never once said or hinted that a man could become a Christian simply by not doing things. His programme was of the most positive kind and He was continually holding out before men the secret of a life that was broad and full, and virile, and interesting. And we never do Him a greater injustice than when we suggest that His religion is more interested in the repression than in the expression of the life of full-blooded, high-spirited, resolute, achieving men and women.—Christian Guardian.

GOD'S GIFT OF WATER.

I suppose about the easiest thing we can think of doing is to take a drink of water. There isn't any taste to it either, so it is odd it tastes so good, isn't it? But it is wet, and cools our tongues and moistens our lips and refreshes us.

Water is good in so many ways. We bathe in it, we wash our clothes and our dishes in it, and keep our plants and flowers growing with it; we use it to put out fires, and it carries great ships; animals could not live without it, and neither could birds; fishes live in it, as well as water-plants; we cook with it, and use it frozen, as ice. If it were not for water, there would be no snow; and of course no rivers or lakes or oceans or springs or fountains or any such things. The earth would be one mass of heat, and of course everything and everybody would dry up and die.

You see what a wonderful thing water is, and how necessary. Even a great deal of our human body is water.

Water is one of God's great gifts to man. Are we careful to think how precious a thing it is?

We are told in the Bible that when Moses was leading the people of God back to their own country they traveled for three days and could find no water. They were very thirsty, and nearly choked. Then all at once they came to water; but it was bitter, and they could not drink it. It may have been very salty, too. They did not know what to do; but God spoke to Moses and told him to cast a certain tree in the water and it would make the water pure so the people could drink and not die.

King David sang about the waters of the earth in a wonderful way, and we still have those beautiful words in the Psalms. He speaks of the springs in the valleys and hills, and how the wild beasts and the birds drink, and the grass and the green things are made to grow. In another place he sings of the rains, and how they keep the earth alive.

It is good for us to think often of how good God is to remember us and our health and comfort; for He knew we would need water, and how the earth would need it.

Let us thank God humbly for this great gift. Let us never waste it, for it is very precious. And let us pray that every one may have it who needs it. You know on battlefields water is dreadfully needed and very hard to get; what there is is usually dirty and not fit to drink. Think of how wonderful a clear, bubbling brook would be to those sick and wounded soldiers! Let us pray that they may have more good water. And sick people—how much good water does them!

Sometimes I think prayer is a good deal like water—prayer refreshes and cleans the soul, just as water does the body. We must thank God that He made us so we can pray; for those who pray truly love God, and do His will always.—Shepherd's Arms.

A VISIT TO SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY.

By Rev. Sidney H. Babcock, D. D.

On the last day of February the Rev. W. W. Drake, the Rev. J. L. Cannon, and I, in obedience to an appointment by the Board of Trustees, visited the University. It was our good fortune to arrive in time for morning assembly and to hear a brilliant address by the versatile and inimitable Mr. Taylor, of the State press fame. Addresses of a high order are frequently heard in the University chapel.

The student body is large, high-minded and brimful of good cheer. At times the halls rang with merry laughter, but one is impressed more with their dignity and studious attention to the task at hand. From 8 o'clock in the morning until the shadows grow long the diligent toil goes on. Naturally the young women outnumber the young men this year. There are one hundred and seventy-five Southern Methodist University men in the army. Twenty of these are from the Theological Department. Order was everywhere manifested, but the rules of order seemed to be entirely hidden.

The administration is worthy of the complete confidence and the heartiest co-operation of the entire Church. The faculty has been chosen with rare discrimination. They are leaving the impress of their personal worth upon students. The students are given a rather free hand under their own honor, but the infractions of discipline and complaints of every character are so few in number as to be negligible, or nearly so.

The business management is in charge of Mr. Frank Reedy, the Bursar. He is an all-round man, very popular, and deservedly so. He does many things and does them well. He knows everything and everybody in many radii. Such knowledge is serviceable in his office. Ordinary methods of bookkeeping are not sufficient for institutions of this class. In the very nature of the case, ingenuity and individuality are demanded. Reedy is working out a system, based, of course, upon the fundamental principles of bookkeeping, which will be a model for other universities.

The accumulating endowment funds are safely invested at 6 per cent interest, net from the date the money is received by the University, in only such securities as are acceptable under the law governing State banks and trust companies. In reality no securities are bought until they have been accepted by such company and under such guarantee. This is a remarkably fine proposition, in that the University gets 6 per cent net, being relieved of the expensive task of examination of proposed securities, titles, deeds, legal opinions and clerical expense. The endowment of the Theological Department is kept absolutely distinct from any other department and its funds are collected and handled without any expense to the department.

The outstanding indebtedness has been materially reduced by sheer good management. The University is on a sound financial basis. Its credit is good.

The entire administration is subject to and guided by the President, Robert Stewart Hyer. Theoretically, he is a scientist; poetically, he is a prophet; practically, he is a man of affairs. He turns the wealth of his accurate scholarship to the best possible advantage of the University. Everything that has been done as well as everything that has, for the time being, been left undone, evidence a remarkably sound judgment.

In the matter of equipment, for example, there have been no lavished expenditures calculated to plunge the institution into debt so as to impair its credit, but by an uncommon commercial acumen a choice equipment is there which has enabled the University to maintain a very high standard of efficiency.

The University has its problems, but they are problems of growth, and will easily yield to a growing treasury. The time has come when the far-seeing business men of the great and rich Southwest will turn their attention to this young, vigorous champion of the new civilization. In fact, the University does now challenge their unstinted support upon the following commanding reasons:

1. The necessity of a University in the Southwest second to none in the world.

2. The advantageous location of Southern Methodist University to the whole patronizing territory.

3. The fact that the University is upon a sound financial basis, its growth through the years is guaranteed, and funds placed in its trust are forever safeguarded.

4. Though administered upon a thoroughly conservative financial policy, yet in all other respects the University is free and forward-looking. Born at the dawning of a new era, it is unhampered by the educational traditions which have so signally failed to give life to the world. In the deep, rich heart of its President, there is an ability to build a university upon new ideals—new in the sense that they are vastly different from the dead forms of the past, but old in the sense that they are the secrets of God groaning to be uttered.

Big men with big hearts, open purses and patriotic forethought, will welcome the opportunity to help when they realize the magnitude of the task and the very part the University is to play in the re-making of the world. Surely there are 1000 friends of moderate means who will make it an annual custom to send the University a check for $100. Surely there are men of large wealth who will speedlly endow the University with millions. The need is great; the times are propitious; the children of ours and coming generations are stretching their hands to us; God calls us to prepare for the new day.

The School of Theology.

It was my pleasure and profit, in company with my associates, the Rev. J. L. Cannon, of the Little Rock Conference, and the Rev. W. W. Drake, of the Louisiana Conference, on the occasion of our visit to the Southern Methodist University, to get a special inside view of the Theological Department. It is indeed a very part of the University and so intimately connected with it that one cannot say, "lo here, or lo there it is." The theological students reside in the same domitories with the other young men, and in every other respect are closely allied with the students of the other departments. One of their number, the Rev. Mr. Abbott, was elected by a large majority as President of the Students' Association. The business of the department is carried on through the general office, and the Biblical professors use classrooms in the general Administration Building. The plan works admirably. In every way it has a wholesome effect. The enrollment of the department to date is 84. This will be increased by the enrollment for the summer term. Twenty of the students waived their exemption and have joined in the fight for world-wide freedom.

A standard faculty has been chosen. The customary chairs of the Theological School are now ably filled. In addition to first-rate teaching ability, the members of the faculty are without exception:

1. Men of scholastic intuition, training and growth.

2. Men of preaching ability, experience and evangelical fervor.

3. They are loyal to our Methodism as well as consequential factors in the larger work of the kingdom of God.

The aim of the school is another argument for its success. It is not only a high aim, but also a sure aim. That is to say, it is no mere School of Religion. It is a school with definite purpose to develop preachers of precision, sureness and evangelical power and send them out with a definite message of salvation. They have a deep reverence for the foundations of our faith, but there is no dead conservatism to be found there. Rather, there is a spirit of optimism, of scientific inquiry, of genuine prophecy and sincere desire to "see all nor be afraid."

The scope of work is gradually being broadened. In addition to the regular courses, summer courses and extension courses are now offered. Every young man who contemplates joining an Annual Conference within the territory of the University should by all means first complete the regular course of the School of Theology. If there ever was any prejudice against a university trained pastor that prejudice has now happily disappeared and the cry for an educated ministry now comes from every section, even the remotest rural sections of the country. Especial attention is also directed to the exceptional advantages of the summer term and of the extension courses. These are opened to all preachers who wish to sharpen their intellects, quicken their powers of perception and receive that general toning that is necessary if we keep time with the heart-throb of the new world.

A growing child needs nourishment. This young, vigorous plant of the new-world order needs, and no doubt shall receive, the unstinted support of the whole Church. Although the Department has been maintained on the support it has received, yet its growth demands a much larger income and an income of a more permanent nature. The Department appeals, and quite rightly, to the Church for this larger income. The Church must meet her own demands if she is able, and fortunately Southern Methodism is abundantly able to meet them. There are three ways in which the Church may help.

1. By an assessment on the whole Church by the General Conference in which our two Schools of Theology shall share equally. This assessment would enable each member to contribute a small amount and should take the place of the Annual Conference assessments and the pledges of the District Conference.

2. By scholarships. There are many individuals who are not able to give a large sum of money at any one time but who could give annually a small amount which would provide or partially provide for the expenses of a single student. Every well organized church ought to furnish one or more scholarships.

3. By endowment; The Theological Department does not share in the general endowment of the University. Therefore we must as speedily as possible increase the special endowment of this department to at least a half-million dollars. Here is an opportunity for Methodists who are blessed with more substantial incomes to do a genuinely patriotic service of exceeding great value to the Church—the mother of their spiritual life and the guardian of the only civilization that is worth while. The time has come when gifts to Southern Methodist University should spontaneously go from rare to frequent recurrence.

DEPENDENCE UPON GOD.

There is one outcome of our present hard experience which it would seem right to expect, that is, an increased sense of dependence upon God. We have been sharply reminded of the weakness of our Christian civilization, of the feebleness of the bonds which trade and commerce, religion and education make to maintain peace, of the insecurity of the order of the world's life of which we have been proud. We had supposed that the nations nominally Christian had been tamed so that hatred, cruelty and war were restrained, and now our work has fallen down about us and the revelation of our weakness and insecurity has come.

Many dangers have come at home which we thought were entirely past, because of our means of communication, the development of our industries and the progress of science, and we have learned this winter how dependent we are as regards the most necessary things in life. A week of extremely cold weather has made untold suffering because of the lack of coal which is but a few hundred miles away from us. We are dependent for our food upon fields far away, and the interruption of transportation makes great distress or something worse in our great cities. We have built up a great and marvelous order of trade and commerce, and we find how easily it may be disarranged and how near starvation we are. Whether men recognize their true relation to God, they are feeling as perhaps never before their helplessness and their dependence on the Power above who orders everything in this world. That is one of the very first things for men to learn. We have not the sense of dependence that was felt in the simple days of the Old Testament or in the days not so far back of us when the fields about the villages and towns provided largely for the simple needs of the people. Without being too confident as to what the war may mean for religion, while hopeful for good, there will be a response in the minds and hearts of the people to the presentation of the thought of our absolute dependence upon God. People are feeling this as never before, and it makes a good foundation on which to build up true regard for God and all that enters into the making of a good character and a good life.—Newark Churchman.

IF LOVE WILL NOT COMPEL HIM.

Condemn no man for not thinking as you think. Let every one enjoy the free and full liberty of thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgment, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach, in any kind or degree, to the spirit of persecution. If you can not reason or persuade men into the truth, never attempt to force any man into it. If love will not compel him to come, leave him to God, the judge of all.—John Wesley.

THE WAR.

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

IV.

Our Purposes and Ideals in this War.

Our purposes, or the things which we propose to accomplish, have been clearly stated by Mr. Wilson and may be briefly enumerated as follows: No more secret treaties; freedom of the seas except as closed by international action; equality of trade conditions; reduction of national armaments; impartial adjustment of all colonial claims; evacuation of Russia and Belgium; evacuation of France and righting the wrong done in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine; readjustment of Italian frontiers; autonomous development of Austro-Hungarian peoples; evacuation of Rumania, Serbia, and Montenegro; autonomous development of non-Turkish nationalities in Turkey; establishment of independent Poland; associations of nations with guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to large and small States alike. In addition to these motives, Mr. Wilson has said that we are not in this war for indemnities and territorial aggressions. These high and exalted purposes evince the fact that this nation has set for itself the achievement of sublime and spiritual ideals. It becomes, then, the individual responsibility of every citizen to be true to these ideals, being careful not to detract from them by harsh and intemperate utterances and ignoble deeds against our foes. If others want to show themselves savages and barbarians, let them do so; as for ourselves, we must be Christian gentlemen.

V.

How Are We to Win this War?

I answer that if we are to win we must do so precisely as the children of Israel won against the men of Ai—we must clean up. You know the story. There are golden wedges and Babylonish garments among us also that must go. These golden wedges are too many for me to enumerate them all. I mention only two.

1. The first is Sabbath desecration. One of the elements in the justification of war is not only in the defense of life, liberty, and rights, but also in the moral law, which is the foundation of the religious faith of the people; but the moral law as it respects the Sabbath, though the principle involved is a vital one, is being ignored, and there is one continual round of Sabbath desecration in our training camps. Besides, the Red Cross and Liberty Loan Committees, in some localities, have held great parades and mass meetings on Sunday to promote their campaigns. At first the churches and preachers held their peace, fearing that they would be misunderstood and that their patriotism might be challenged; but now they are lifting their voices in protest because if we lose the Sabbath we lose all, though we win the victory in the war. The Preachers' Meeting of Richmond, Va., has registered its protest in the following strong words: "Whereas the Council on Training Camp Activities seems to regard amusement and recreation as the supreme need of the Sabbath for our soldiers, and has let down the bars to all sorts of sports and athletic contests and theatrical entertainments; and whereas we, in common with all evangelical denominations, regard this as a violation of the law and an invasion of the sanctity of the Sabbath; and whereas the Southland and our Southern Methodist Church have given to these camps thousands of young men whom we wish to return cherishing the religious spirit and convictions of their fathers; therefore, be it resolved, That we request the Editor of the Christian Advocate of Nashville, Tenn., to call through the columns of the general organ of our Church upon all the congregations everywhere to register their protest with the Secretary of War and to request him to issue orders to protect our young men from insidious influences that tend to destroy their reverence and observance of the Lord's day." Mr. Wilson has said, "As Commander-in-Chief of our army, I desire and order that a due and proper regard be given to the sanctity of the Sabbath in all of our cantonments and wherever our soldiers are stationed. Yet, there is a continual and flagrant disregard of this timely order of the Commander-in-Chief of our Army, the Sabbath being used as a day for sport, recreation, and amusement. How can the Government continue to request the preachers to pray for victory, or to ask the blessings of God upon the Nation, while, in direct disobedience to the order of our President, the sanctity of the Sabbath, for which the preachers and the Churches have contended since the dawn of the Christian Era, is being openly invaded? The fact is that even outside our army camps we are becoming a nation of Sabbath-breakers. Voltaire, the world's noted infidel, is reported to have said, "We will never destroy Christianity till we first abolish the Christian Sabbath," and he was right—the Christian Sabbath is the bedrock of our Christian religion. The sanctity of the Sabbath must be maintained if Christianity is to win in its war against sin, and Sabbath desecration must cease if we want our army to win in our war against the Central Powers. If you will read the history of the Jews as recorded in the Bible, and discover how Sabbath observance or its desecration was an element in their victories and defeats, perhaps you will ascertain and recognize the truth, as I have done, that Sabbath observance, particularly at this time, is a question of patriotism. Hence, let those who are shouting their patriotism from the house-tops stand with uncovered heads in the light of this truth, and purpose in their hearts that as a matter of patriotism they will exalt the sanctity of the Sabbath in their own lives, and do their part to exalt it in the life of the Nation that the blessings of God may be on our cause.

2. Another golden wedge which must be cast out is the nefarious liquor business. The men who engage in this business are a lawless set, having no regard for the laws of the State or Nation, and use every possible subterfuge to evade our laws. In this connection, let me tell you a little secret. The Brewers' Association of America is closely related to the American German Alliance, having interlocking directorates. So, if any one wants to find a vent for his passion against the Germans, let him go after the brewers. All honor to Mr. Baker, who has done all in his power to protect our soldiers against liquor, thereby conserving their morals and efficiency; but what can one man do as long as the breweries are allowed to run in full blast?

Another accusation I bring against the liquor business is the fact that, while legitimate enterprises, in obedience to the call of the Nation, were observing heatless days, the saloons and breweries were running without cessation, consuming a pound of coal for every gallon of liquor manufactured. Furthermore, hundreds of cars are used by the liquor crowd to carry coal to the saloons and breweries and for the distribution of their manufactured liquors, thereby adding to the congestion of the shipping interests of the Nation.

Still another charge I prefer against the brewers is in the matter of the conservation of food and fuel. I have already referred to their consumption of coal during the heatless days ordered by our Government, but this consumption continued throughout the winter, when, owing to the congestion of shipping facilities, it became almost impossible to obtain coal, and many people suffered, some freezing to death. Even our schools closed for lack of coal. The superintendent of the schools of the city of Indianapolis said: "Our schools and perhaps half the schools of the State have been closed for a month because of the inability to get coal. Yet six hundred saloons in this city, also the saloons and breweries over the State, are running full time." It is a well known fact that many schools in the South closed for the same reason. If Germany has prohibited her breweries from using barley in the manufacture of beer, as she has done, this Nation should enforce the same prohibition. In hauling grain and coal to the breweries and transporting their beer the breweries use seven hundred thousand cars a year. Prohibition of the use of grain for making beer would mean seven billions of one-pound loaves of bread a day, or two trillions five hundred fifty millions of one-pound loaves a year. It would mean eight millions of tons of coal annually. It is evident, then, that the most pressing exigency of the hour is prohibition for the duration of the war and the period of reconstruction. To this end, Congress must feel the weight of the Nation's sentiment. If you are truly patriotic, let your congressman hear from you on this question which so vitally concerns the efficiency of the workmen in munitions plants, and our army and navy, and, therefore, the success of your country in this tremendous struggle in which we are engaged. Food, fuel, and transportation crises demand immediate and absolute war-time prohibition.

There is another phase of this infamous business which I must not forget to mention. It has been reported that, while this nation has been doing all in its power to protect our soldiers against vice and whiskey, as they have landed on English shores they have fallen into the arms of disreputable women, and have become intoxicated on the liquors of England and the wines of France. These reports have been denied, but the Temperance Board of the Northern Methodist Church, which gave them currency, affirms that it has the facts in hand and, to corroborate its asseverations, recently published a letter from Mr. Sheldon of Topeka, Kan., who declares that with his own eyes he witnessed disgraceful scenes of dissipation and dissoluteness. The statement has been made that the conditions in Canada are worse. In a letter from Canada, Dr. J. H. Jowett, of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, says: "I feel that I must add one more word about Canadian sentiment and conviction. I find a deep and widespread resentment that, while prohibition reigns in almost every province in the Dominion, her young men cross the seas into conditions in which the most deadly peril abounds and where temptations to drink are almost ostentatiously offered as tokens of comradeship as well as the indispensable necessity of endurance and strength. The Canadian youths are failing before the temptations, and there is bitterness in Canada." Bitterness and resentment will come in this country also if our soldiers have to face such conditions.

If we are to win in this war, I repeat, we must do as did the Israelites in their fight against the men of Ai—we must clean up. Sabbath desecration must cease, and the liquor business must go—these golden wedges and Babylonish garments must be uncovered and cast out.

(Note.—In the closing paragraph of the first division of my article on "The War," in the last issue of the Advocate, the printer makes me say "immunity" where I wrote impunity. Mr. Webster says immunity means exemption from obligation, and defines impunity as exemption from punishment. The latter is what I meant to say, which is quite different from what the printer makes me say. The sentence should read: "It is to be hoped that when this terrible war is over, the world will come to understand that sin brings death to the individual and destruction to the nation, and that people will at last believe what the preachers have been telling them—that men and women cannot sin with impunity (not immunity) against Almighty God, who rules the nations of earth, and guides the destinies of men."—J. W. R.)

UNATTENDED LIGHTHOUSES.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the civilized nations of the world go to great expense to maintain lighthouses and warning beacons along their coasts, some of these signals of danger having been erected in exposed positions in spite of tremendous odds of physical strain and difficulty. Once erected, the lighthouse becomes ordinarily the home of a few men who, because of their detached situation and the dreary raging of the storms from time to time, suffer much from loneliness, if not from positive melancholy, though even they are perhaps better off than are the crews on the tossing light vessels.

It is not so generally known, however, that a practice is coming into vogue of placing automatic beacons at various points afloat or ashore which require little or no attention from human hands. Acetylene lamps are used which are dimmed or extinguished in the daytime by the sun's rays and of themselves come into action at night, thus saving oil as well as labor. Some of these "unattended lighthouses," or vessels, as they are called, are placed in very stormy localities, and others at remote points, as on the almost inaccessible cliffs bordering the Straits of Magellan. To such a perfection have these instruments of automatic warning been perfected that they will go months without attention, and meanwhile their glow cannot be distinguished by the passing mariner from the gleam of a man-kept beacon.

All this is a picture of human life. Good men are like beacons in this dark, danger-filled world; but many of these moral lights are solitary souls detached in a measure from their fellow-men, unattended by retinues, servants or cheering helpers. Elijah, John the Baptist, Paul when tarrying in Arabia, John Huss, the morning star of the Reformation, Savonarola, and kindred spirits have largely fought their fight alone. The servant of God may not always be sure of social support. As his light is from above his reward must be from heaven.

There is a sense, too, in which all of us may set in action good influences, tributary to the main movement of our lives, which are comparable to the "unattended" beacons placed in lonely sections of a rugged coast. The teacher states a problem for a pupil on which the latter's native wits may ponder for months; a bit of sage advice may sink into a heart and bear rich fruit in later times; an auxiliary ministry—perhaps a mission school, or a hopeful "branch"—may be started, as on the prairies or in the Rockies, to which no personal attention can be given for long periods, which yet serves to reduplicate the main service of a Christian worker for long years to come. Our influence for good in this world, in other words, may be far more extensive and varied than anything covered by our own immediate presence or superintendence. We should see what we can do toward multiplying these unattended moral beacons!—Zion's Herald.

WAR CONDITIONS

—REFLECTED IN—

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

OUR MERIDIAN LETTER.

By Snlktaw.

The Advocate has seen little from Mississippi's "Queen City" during this Conference year, and it may be safely guessed that most of us have been too busy to write. However, lest some less worthy reason be attributed I venture to hand you a few notes.

Wiley J. Ferguson has just returned from Chicora, where he helped Brother D. E. Vickers in a meeting with the good results usually attending his work. Brother Ferguson is in constant demand among the brethren for revival work.

Elmer C. Gunn has just closed a most profitable meeting at East End, in which Rev. J. E. Bennett did effective preaching and Rev. J. A. Smith, of Meridian College, led the singing. The meeting was a success. Brother Gunn's Sunday school has had on a series of special surprise programs which have very greatly augmented the attendance. This is one of the best schools in Mississippi.

Hilary Westbrook closed on Wednesday night a meeting at Seventh Avenue, in which Benjamin L. Sutherland did the preaching, which is reported as a good meeting. Brother Sutherland is a strong, helpful, effective preacher.

Brother H. L. Norton has made good in the rather hard task of taking Broadfoot's place at South Side. After the severe illness of his wife, and after overcoming many difficulties, he is doing a fine work in that attractive field.

We are glad to have in our membership at Central Rev. Thos. J. Norsworthy and family. Brother Norsworthy is temporarily on the road for Hayward & Wood, of this city, and is doing nicely. But he has been drafted to preach somewhere nearby every Sunday since he came. We are delighted to have him and his folks.

We have been signally blessed also for the past year in having as a resident of our city Rev. W. T. Andrews, of the North Alabama Conference. Many in our Conference know him best as the father of "John B." He is a choice spirit indeed.

A conspicuous figure was recently removed from our midst in the death of Rev. Columbus W. Campbell, M.D., who died on April 17. He was for 18 years a member of the Mississippi Conference. An obituary will follow soon.

We are cheered by the presence here of Rev. C. M. Martin and Rev. R. F. Witt, of the Mississippi Conference. These men, though not in active work, are always sources of encouragement and help to the pastors. Brother Isaac L. Peebles and his family are very great help here. Brother Peebles, in the use of the printed page particularly, reaches many people.

Rev. J. D. Newsom, of the North Mississippi Conference, though extremely feeble, is able to be about, and, with his consecrated wife, is often at the services.

Recent helpful revival services were held at Meridian College, the preaching being done by one of the former students, Rev. J. R. Sasnett, under the direction of Rev. J. A. Smith, College pastor.

We are glad to report (Central) that the contract for our new church building was let thirty days ago, and that work is well under way. Cash and subscriptions amounting to $40,000 have been added to our funds since Conference. The entire plant when completed will cost $85,000. The building will be a handsome pressed brick structure, with stone columns and trimmings. R: H. Hunt, of Chattanooga, is the architect, and Hancock & McArthur, of Meridian, are the contractors. In their most difficult day, out of their devotion and love, this congregation will erect a temple fragrant with their sacrifice.

Rev. George H. Thompson, our presiding elder, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cochran are in Atlanta at the General Conference, echoes from which we are receiving with great interest.

Children's Day will be celebrated by every Meridian church, beginning at Central last Sunday, where the program was beautifully carried out.

Central is glad to have paid its $275 assessment for Conference claimants on the second Sunday in March and is planning a like performance for home missions on the second Sunday in June.

The Meridian pastors have discussed the altered time rule thoroughly, and, while concurring in the change, have decided we are not eager to stay "eternally" anywhere—except in heaven. And that's only one side of the question. The other will speak later.

A STORY OF BISHOP KEENER'S BOYHOOD.

Among the traditions connected with the early days of the Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., is the following story, which was told me over sixty years ago by the venerable Laban Clark, who was universally recognized as the "father" of the institution. In those primitive days if any mischief was going on about college it was generally suspected that Tad S. Gilbert, afterwards an honored member of the New York East Conference, or a student known as "Jack" Keener, subsequently the Rev. John Christian Keener, D.D., and Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, were in some way connected with it.

A favorable diversion in those days was to play tricks with the college bell, which used to call us up to prayers in the chapel at 6 a. m., winter as well as summer. No fire was thought necessary for the brief interval devoted to our morning devotions, so we endured the cold and shivered in our overcoats.

On one occasion the tongue was missing from the bell, and Jack was heard to make some remark which led to a suspicion that he could, if so disposed, throw light on the matter. This coming to the knowledge of Dr. Fisk, Keener was summoned to the President's office for an interview.

"Well, Mr. Keener," said Dr. Fisk, "of course you have heard of this matter of the bell? Do you know anything about it?"

"Well," was the reply, "I cannot say that I really know anything about it."

"Well, Mr. Keener, don't you think such transactions are deserving of the greatest censure?"

"Oh, certainly, certainly."

"Well, then, don't you think the student body ought to co-operate with the faculty in looking into such matters?"

"By all means."

"Well, then, if you know anything about it, is it not your duty to make disclosures?"

"Oh, yes, I should surely feel it my duty if I really knew anything positively about the matter, but a mere suspicion it might be unwise to speak of, lest it might involve some one entirely innocent. In fact, I am sorry I have said anything at all about it."

But Dr. Fisk grew more and more satisfied that Keener could throw light on the matter if so disposed, and finally, having given the young man an assurance that any disclosures he might make would be used with discretion, Keener made the following statement:

He said he was down town until very late that night, and as he reached college he saw a form which he was sure he recognized going up the stairs towards the bell deck. He wondered at the time, he said, what the individual was there for at such an hour, but thought nothing more about it until next morning, when the bell matter came out, when he could not help associating the two things together. Then Dr. Fisk wanted to know who the indivdual was, but Keener resumed his former reluctance lest he might awaken an unjust suspicion, but finally confessed what he had undoubtedly intended to reach all the time, that the person in question was Prof. Huber. Students who were at the university fifty years ago and knew Jacob F. Huber will appreciate this, for the gentle, quiet professor was the very last man to be named in such a connection.

Dr. Fisk looked at Keener with astonishment and burst into laughter; but the young man had conducted his part with such shrewdness that the President entered fully into it, and, with a little pleasantry, dismissed the student.—R. L. Mathison, in "California Christian Advocate."

Every man is entitled to be haughty when his veracity is impeached.—De Quincey.

AN EDITOR'S APOLOGY.

Most editors content themselves when returning manuscripts which are not available with a simple statement of that fact. The statement expresses nothing as to the quality or real value of the article. There are many reasons why a particular manuscript can not be used apart from its merit. It is open to the writer to suppose that some one of these reasons was present in the editor's mind when he rejected the article. It is also the privilege of the writer to regard the editor perverse or incompetent. He may thus find comfort in "unavailable."

The task of rejecting manuscripts, however, is not pleasant; for the imagination of the writer sometimes takes a different turn from that indicated above. For this reason editors are sometimes tempted to write explanations or apologies to accompany the rejected child of the author's travail, and if possible make its return less disturbing. If the Chinese editor, who is said to have produced the letter of apology quoted below, did not placate his would-be contributor, it must have been because all such attempts are futile:

"Illustrious brother of the sun and moon: Behold thy servant prostrate before thy feet. I bow to thee and beg of thy graciousness thou mayest grant that I may speak and live. Thy honored manuscript has deigned to cast the light of its august countenance upon us. With raptures we have perused it. By the bones of my ancestors, never have I encountered such wit, such pathos, such lofty thought. With fear and trembling I return the writing. Were I to publish the treasure you sent me, the emperor would order that it should be made the standard, and that none be published except such as equaled it. Knowing literature as I do, and that it would be impossible in ten thousand years to equal what you have done, I send your writing back. Ten thousand times I crave your pardon. Behold, my head is at your feet. Do what you will. Your servant's servant, The Editor.—From Pittsburgh Advocate. Republished with condolences and sympathetic regards for the editor.

EARLY NEW ORLEANS METHODISM.

By Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D.

The early history of Methodism in Louisiana and New Orleans is found in that of Mississippi Methodism, of which it formed at the first a part. The Mississippi Conference was our mother Conference until 1846. Lorenzo Dow was likely the first Methodist preacher to preach in Louisiana west of the Mississippi River, visiting our State in 1805; and he made a second trip in 1806, exploring the Attakapas district.

In 1806 the Mississippi Conference sent Elisha W. Bowman to preach in South Louisiana, New Orleans being mentioned for the first time as on his circuit. He was unwelcome in that city of mixed population, and was coldly received by the handful of Protestants there. Bowman became discouraged and went from New Orleans to Opelousas, where the record tells us he was able to bring seventeen souls to Christ in a whole year. During 1807 Rev. Learner Blackman "went into West Florida and often visited New Orleans," preaching there. Among the early ministers who labored in New Orleans mention should be made of Richmond Nolley, Lewis Hohhs, Matthew Bowman, William Winans, Tobias Gibson, Miles Harper, Mark Moore, Benjamin Magruder Drake, William M. Curtis, William V. Douglass, John C. Burruss, Seymour B. Sawyer, Lewellyn Campbell, Elijah Steele, Philip Diffenworth, and William Langarl. When Dr. Winans was sent to the New Orleans Station, it is recorded that "there was in the treasury $39.18, and $30 of this amount was voted to Brother Winans to enable him to fill the Orleans Station." At that time New Orleans had about 15,000 inhabitants, hut very few of them Methodists, among whom, however, were Jacob Knobb and his wife, and "they lived in a two-story hrick house on Bienville, between Chartres and Royal Streets."

There was another faithful Methodist in New Orleans ahout that time, Theresa Canu, who "escaped when a girl from the St. Domingo insurrection and took refuge in Wilmington, North Carolina. There she learned Methodism and thence removed to New Orleans." Mother Canu, as she was called, lived to old age and hravely bore the reproach of Christ. She opened her house to the messengers of the Master, and "sung and shouted in the little conventicles where Methodism took shelter for many humhle years."

Rev. Mlles Harper hecame pastor at New Orleans in 1812. He was followed the next year by Lewis Hobbs, of whom it is recorded "the dying Hobbs meditated and prayed along its streets, and sought out a few souls in private houses." Blackman was in charge of the district which included the city and made occasional visits. After this New Orleans disappears from the roll until 1819, when Mark Moore served as did Dr. Winans when there, teaching and preaching, for there was no money to support a missionary. After Moore came "John Menefee, who died of yellow fever and was buried there; and again a retreat was beaten from the city." In 1825, a young Kentuckian, Rev. Benjamin M. Drake, took charge in New Orleans, and "from that time Methodism has stood in her lot." He was returned the next year.

While Drake and others who followed him were hard at work in the toughest field in the land—New Orleans, as it then was—Dr. Winans acted for some time as agent to collect funds to build a church in New Orleans, and "though his success was not complete, he at least put the struggling cause in position where others, under more favorable circumstances, could achieve such success."

In a foot-note in his History of Methodism, referring to Rev. John Christian Keener, D.D., who afterwards hecame one of our Bishops, Bishop McTyeire states this: "The minister whose pulpit and pastoral fidelity, and administrative power, crowned the work which others began." Also, he further states that "the systematic and comprehensive plans laid and carried out by Dr. Keener date the epoch of the present New Orleans Methodism. He was appointed by Bishop Paine as pastor of Poydras Street Church in 1848, met the yellow fever and outlived it in 1849, and has since resided in the city, a witness, and, under God, the chief director of the prosperous condition of its Methodism." Out of the Poydras Street Church grew the old Carondelet Street Church, which a few years ago became our First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, located on St. Charles Avenue. Among its pastors have been a number of Methodism's strongest men. While Dr. Keener was in charge of Poydras Street Church, he held a revival meeting that ran for forty days, he doing the preaching every day and night, and which has been reckoned as the biggest and most successful revival ever held in the history of New Orleans Methodism. Among the pastors since Dr. Keener, we may mention Linus Parker, Joseph B. Walker, W. V. Tudor, John Mathews, Beverly Carradine, Chas. W. Carter, J. L. Pierce, Franklin N. Parker, W. H. La Prade, Felix R. Hill, Sr., J. W. Moore, S. Halsey Werlein, E. N. Evans, and W. H. Coleman.

Bishop McTyeire was pastor of Elijah Steele Church, which was named for one of the earliest pastors, Rev. Elijah Steele, who died in 1841, heing only 27 years old. It grew out of a mission; and, since becoming the Felicity Street Church, it was burned twice, but has throughout all its career heen a live and strong church, and has sent out a larger number of Methodist preachers than any other of our New Orleans churches. It has had among its pastors some of our greatest preachers, such as Bishops McTyeire, Keener, and Parker, and Dr. C. W. Carter, Dr. John Mathews, and Dr. J. B. Walker, the latter having preached and worked in the New Orleans churches some sixteen or eighteen years. We may mention also Drs. John Hannon, J. M. Beard and John T. Sawyer, and Revs. John F. Foster, W. Winans Drake, W. W. Holmes, C. A. Battle and R. M. Brown.

The Second M. E. Church, South, helow Canal Street, in the Third District, grew out of the Flathoat Church and Spain Street Mission into the old Moreau Street Church, of which Dr. W. H. Watkins became pastor in 1845. The Moreau Street Church, shortly after it was built, was burned about 1850, and services were held until it was rebuilt over the engine-house near where the Third Preshyterian Church now stands. The new church was completed the following year. Dr. Thweatt, afterwards President of Mansfield College, was one of the pastors. The following were some others of the old Moreau's pastors: Revs. James A. Ivy, Robt. J. Harp, Tiff Foster (who died of yellow fever in the 1878 epidemic), Thos B. White, J. D. Adams, J. L. Borden, Samuel H. Schroeder, Horace Kimball, Kinnear, Petway, Gober, Johnson, Bradley, J. F. Scurlock, Lewis A. Read, P. O. Lowrey, John F. Foster, H. N. Harrison, H. Newt. Brown, A. I. Townsley, and Drs. J. B. Walker, John T. Sawyer, James M. Beard, J. M. Henry and Rev. Mr. Clifford. Dr. H. N. McTyeire, afterwards Bishop, supplied the congregation at the engine-house after the fire until the church was rebuilt. Among the official members of Moreau Street Church was Capt. R. L. Rohertson, who loved the Church as he did his own home, and he was always ready to give in money or labor all he could. He was a Prince of Stewards, and was a class leader of the church class-meeting and also superintendent of the Sunday school for many years. His noble wife is entitled to special mention also. She co-operated with him along all lines of church work. Among the most devoted members of the early days were also the families named Flanders, Hooper, Halberg, Koffskey, Schroeder, Donelson, Adams, Monroe, and others. The Moreau Street Church was united with the Craps Street German Church some years ago and their name since has been the Second M. E. Church, South. Dr. J. B. A. Ahrens was the scholarly and efficient pastor of the German Church in its best days.

These other churches are of recent growth: the Carrollton, Algiers, Epworth, McDonoghville, and the Mary Werlein Mission, where that holy Christian woman, Mrs. Lilly Meekins, spent many years of her precious life in the needy Tchoupitoulas Street section of the city, working among the poor and neglected, and bringing many souls to Christ. Gone home to God, her crown is studded with stars. The Louisiana Avenue Church grew out of the old Laurel Street Mission, which was in charge of Rev. J. D. Parker, local preacher, who estahlished a Sunday school and preached there before the Civil War. Brother Parker was for many years a clerk at the D. H. Holmes store on Canal Street. He, with Richard Keen and others, built the Keen Chapel, next to Keen's house, and many of our leading preachers did service there. The Keen Chapel was succeeded by the Louisiana Avenue Church, built on a lot at the corner of Louisiana Avenue and Magazine Street. Rev. R. L. Walker, local preacher, and Bishop Linus Parker, Dr. John T. Sawyer, Dr. J. B. Walker, Dr. S. H. Werlein, Dr. R. H. Wynn, Revs. W. W. Holmes, Albert S. Lutz, H. T. Carley, John L. Sutton, and A. J. Gearheard, the present pastor, and many others, hecame its pastors. The present building was erected through the efforts and liberal contrihutions of the three Thomson brothers—John, George and W. Blaeney—J. H. Campman, Peter Rosenstream, John H. Keller, Mrs. E. W. Davidson, and many others. It was dedicated out of debt by Bishop John Christian Keener, after an "over the top" collection was taken by the then pastor, Dr. John T. Sawyer. The St. Mark's Mission Church on Esplanade Avenue and the Italian Church, lately erected on North Rampart Street, corner of Gov. Nicholls Street, grew out of the missionary work of Rev. N. E. Joyner and others—working among them were women missionaries, and devoted lay women of our churches. The present efficient pastors of the work are Rev. W. E. Thomas and Rev. G. V. Romano.

Rayne Memorial Church grew out of mission work at the Cadiz Street Mission, and became our most prominent and financially our strongest church. The present elegant church building stands on the corner of St. Charles Avenue and General Taylor Streets, and was so named by Rev. R. W. Rayne, a local preacher and wealthy merchant, in memory of his son, William, who died during the Civil War. Brother Rayne gave the money for the building of the church. The eloquent Dr. W. E. Munsey was the first pastor of the new church; and among others who have been in charge of Rayne we may mention Dr. J. B. Walker, Dr. John Hannon, Dr. John Mathews, Dr. Samuel S. Keener, Dr. John T. Sawyer, Dr. Beverly Carradine, Dr. W. H. La Prade, Dr. Franklin N. Parker, Dr. Felix R. Hill, Jr., Rev. Hlram R. Singleton, Sr., Dr. John A. Rice, Rev. Richard W. Wilkinson, Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., Dr. Theodore Copeland, and Dr. U. G. Foote, the present pastor.

Parker Memorial Church grew out of a mission church on the corner of Magazine Street and Peters Avenue; and the present handsome building is on Nashville Avenue, and was erected during the pastorate of Rev. C. D. Atkinson, now presiding elder of the Shreveport District. The church was named in memory of the Rev. J. D. Parker, L. P., who was its most devoted worker in its early days. It has been served by Dr. F. N. Parker, Dr. R. H. Wynn, Rev. R. H. Harper, Rev. Patrick Henry Fontaine, Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., and others. The present pastor is Rev. F. M. Freeman. Our presiding elder has appointed a committee of three to search out all possible information in the past history of each of our New Orleans churches; and, when they finish their work, there will be much of interest in their report.

A BEAUTIFUL ANSWER.

One day a little girl in a white frock and with a great bunch of flowers passed by a boy who was playing in the dusty street. Somehow the sight of that dainty figure stirred the spirit of mischief in the boy's heart, and suddenly he threw a handful of dirt which struck the edge of the white dress and fell in a shower upon the kid shoes.

The girl stood still. Her face flushed pink. Her lips trembled as if she would cry. But instead a smile broke over her face, and, taking a flower from her bunch, she tossed it to the boy, who stood waiting to see what she was going to do.

A more surprised boy no one ever saw, nor one more heartily ashamed. He hung his head and his cheeks reddened under their tan and freckles. His unkind fun was quite spoiled, just because in return for a handful of dirt some one had thrown him a flower.

What a changed world this would be if everybody, big and little, were as wise as this six-year-old maid! How quarrels would go out of fashion, if for angry words we threw back gentle answers! —Author unknown.

THE ONE WHO WAS BRAVE.

"Elton Tilton is just the bravest boy you ever saw, mother," said Winifred. "One day a big dog came along with his tongue hanging out, and we thought it was mad and scrambled over the fence; but Elton walked right along as calm as ever. He says he isn't afraid of bears or tramps or anything. I wish I were as brave as Elton, but I'm afraid I never will be."

"I heard a story about two boys the other day," said his mother, "and I thought one of them was very brave. They went to school together, and one day they thought it would be great fun to hide a frog in the teacher's desk; but the frog tipped over an ink bottle and spoiled a number of examination papers and other things, and the teacher was very angry. He asked the guilty boy to own his fault like a man and take the punishment he deserved. He put him upon his honor, you see. Well, the older boy, who found the frog and first thought of the joke, sat still in his seat without a blush; but the little boy, though he trembled with fear, went to the desk before the whole school and owned his fault. And he sat for an hour on the dunce's stool, a target for fifty pair of eyes."

"O mother," cried Winifred, "I was so ashamed! I'll never do anything so mean again as long as I live. How did you know?"

"I heard two boys talking about it as I rode in the car. I was proud of my boy, Winifred; and I pitied Elton Tilton's mother, for I said to myself: 'My boy was brave, but her boy was a coward.'"

"Why, I never thought that was being brave!" said Winifred.—Youth's Companion.

THE GRUMBLE BOX.

"Here, Nell, put in your cent; that was a big one!"

"I only said the potatoes were stone-cold, and it's the honest truth—they are. If that's grumbling, I'd like to know. Is that a grumble, mother?"

"I rather think it is, Helen," answered Mrs. Porter. "Some one had better read our contract again. We haven't heard it for two days. You read it, Harry."

Harry took a box from the middle of the table and read aloud this contract on the cover:

"Each and every member of this family of Porter agrees to pay one cent into this box for each and every grumble or complaint he or she may make about any article of food on this table. Signed, Edward Porter, Mary Porter, Harry Porter, Helen Porter, Elizabeth Porter."

"If that isn't the strangest agreement I ever read!" exclaimed Aunt Margaret who had come in unexpectedly for lunch. "How did it ever come about?"

"Oh! we've had it for a month or more, now, and the box is nearly full," said Helen. "For the first day or two, cents just poured in, but now father can eat salt butter and drink weak coffee without a word. He's almost heroic. Mother always was a martyr; nothing but tough beefsteak ever made her complain, and she would swallow shoe leather now and smile. I suppose Harry and Bess and I are to fill the box—we're no saints yet."

"But," said Aunt Margaret, "you haven't told me why you began to have a grumble box."

"I'll tell you," said Mrs. Porter. "Don't you remember some of the times you have been here to lunch, or to dinner, when everything was wrong on the table? The soup was either too hot or too cold, the beef was overdone, the vegetables either too salty or not salt enough, the bread was dry, or the toast was burned; sometimes we didn't even have the right kind of dessert. If there was pie, every one longed for custard or cream."

Aunt Margaret smiled. "I've known such things to happen in other people's houses, too."

"So have I," said Mrs. Porter, "but don't you remember, too, the little blessing father often asks before meals; 'O Lord, for the food that Thou hast given us, give us grateful hearts?' We would bow our heads and listen, and then grumble over every mouthful."

"You didn't mother; you never did. It was the rest of us."

"Well," continued Mrs. Porter, "one beautiful Sabbath morning we all went to church and heard an unusually good sermon. Then we came home and sat down to a very good dinner, but the grumbling was worse than ever, and before we left the table father stopped us, and said, 'I've been thinking, children, it would be just as well not to ask a blessing on the food any longer. We have such poor things to eat we can not feel grateful.'"

"I tell you, that took the breath out of us!" said Harry.

"Yes, but it opened our eyes," said Helen. "We couldn't believe that we found so much fault with everything."

"It was father who thought of the box," said Harry. "He said it would help us keep a resolution if we had to pay for breaking it."

"I've got some pennies in, too," said little Bess, "'cause I cried for more sugar in my oatmeal."

"And what are you going to do with the money when the box is filled?" asked Aunt Margaret.

"We don't know yet what kind of heathen are to have it," answered Harry, "Chinese, Siamese, Japanese, Indian or plain Americans; it will go from the heathen to the heathen."

Aunt Margaret rose to take her departure.

"Must you go, Margaret?" asked Mrs. Porter. "I am so glad you came in for lunch. I am only sorry we did not have a better meal to offer you."

"A cent, mother! A cent from you," exclaimed the children. "That was a genuine out-and-out grumble."

And Mrs. Porter laughingly slipped a coin into the grumble-box.—Southern Christian Advocate.

A NEW PET.

A woodchuck is an unusual pet, but not an impossible one, as proved by the experience of a family in Bath, Maine, as told in the Christian Register. The woodchuck was captured and tamed. Last summer it was thought he might like his liberty, so the man of the house took him to the woods and set him loose. But, when the man started for home again, he heard a pattering behind him, and there was the woodchuck, following like a dog. The inference was clear, and the appeal too strong to be resisted; and the little fellow went back to the family who had been taking care of him, and there still abides in peace and contentment. He has learned many clever tricks, it is said. Indeed, of the intelligence of woodchucks nobody ever suggested a doubt.—The Presbyterian.

THE THREE WISHES.

A gentleman while sitting at the dinner table with his family had these words said to him by his son, a lad of eleven years:

"Father, I have been thinking if I could have one single wish of mine, what I would choose."

"To give you a better chance," said the father, "suppose the allowance be increased to three wishes, what would they be? Be careful, Charley!"

He made his choice thoughtfully; first of a good character; second, of good health, and third, of a good education. His father suggested to him that fame, power, riches, and various other things are held in general esteem among men. "I have thought of all that," said he; "but if I have a good character and good health and a good education, I shall be able to earn all the money that will be of any use to me, and everything will come along in its right place."

A wise decision, indeed, for a lad of that age.—Christian Standard.

"IN LIGHT."

Paul defines heaven as "the inheritance of the saints in light," and the force of the definition is in the words, "in light." We can know nothing certainly of the heavenly world except as revealed in the Bible, and its revelations should excite our ardent desires. The righteous dead will be in the fountain-head and center of all light, wherein there shall never come the least fleck of darkness or night. In this world we may have some bright, sunshiny days, when all things are wrapped in the glorious garment of light, and even inanimate nature seems to breathe and rejoice. How, then, must the better world above pulsate with truest life, being held in the perfect light and splendor of eternal day? "In light" is suggestive of ceaseless activity. Men on earth rest in the night and work in the day. By reason of their frailty, men in this life must have night for repose; but of the world of light it is declared: "There shall be no night there." Glorified spirit and body made meet for heaven, the saints shall never weary in their ceaseless activities throughout the ever-rolling ages of eternity. The righteous dead will be in a place of purity. Darkness is an emblem of sin, while light is an emblem of holiness. We have only to look around us to see that it is so. Does not evil covet darkness? Sin and the sinful, evil and wrong-doers, hate the light, wrapping around them the folds of darkness. This is God's charge against the sinner: "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God." God demands of men purity of heart, and life, and that, growing in grace, they go on to perfection in a holy life. In heaven, the Church of God, Christ's Bride, shall be "a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing," but "holy and without blemish." In heaven the perfect image of Him who is Himself the Pure and Holy Light, shall be perfectly reflected in the character of redeemed saints.

"In light" there is permanent happiness. Here life is not all brightness, and joy and day—all have to experience somewhat of darkness, grief and night. Our joys and blessings here, as the days go by, are slipping from us and we can not stop their slipping away any more than we can keep the day from turning into night. The saints of God in their heavenly inheritance are in continuous, eternal light and their happiness can never know any change or abatement. "In light" is a place of perfect knowledge. By conversion a man is brought "out of darkness into marvelous light," yet he can only "see through a glass darkly." We do indeed by faith see much and understand somewhat, but not until we are "in light" shall we "see face to face." We can now see only the pencilings, as it were, of the coming day. We do not now understand mysterious providences that befall us, because the reason of the happening remains to be understood hereafter when seen in a clearer light. "In light" life's mystery will be explained, and the wondrous love of God that has ever been about us will be felt by us in its fullness. "In light," though in this world we can know God only imperfectly, we shall have a closer vision of Him as the Eternal and Infinite Source and Perfection of all. The veil of the flesh removed, "in light" we shall behold Him with the unflinching eye of a ransomed and glorified in its fullness. "In light," though in this world we shall be in a place of tireless activity, immaculate purity, abiding bliss and perfect knowledge, Christ is the way to heaven, and we must go by the Cross of Jesus to reach the crown of life. The true Christian life, beginning in love to our crucified Redeemer, runs right along in love all the way to the gate of heaven, and there flows into the Infinite Love. As one of our early English itinerants said: "Love is like wings to the bird, like sails to the ship; it carries a Christian full sail to heaven." Any man, woman or child who loves God and lives right will get home to heaven. J. T. S.

SOME THINGS TO KNOW.

In 1835 the Louisiana Districts were taken from the Mississippi Conference and added to that of Arkansas, but, this proving unsatisfactory, they were after five years again added to the Mississippi Conference. For the first time in the history of our Church, the Annual Conference was held in New Orleans in 1841, with good results to the city. The division between the Northern and Southern sections of the Methodist Church came in 1844, and the first General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, met in Louisville, Ky., the following year. A few years later the Mississippi Conference decided that Louisiana Methodism would be able to successfully care for her own interests, and so in 1846 the Louisiana Conference was organized at Opelousas. The following year the First Louisiana Annual Conference met with a roll of 51 preachers. At that time there were 4715 white members of our Church in the State.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate was established in New Orleans in 1850, and is still doing a great work. Bishop McTyeire was its first editor, Bishop Keener its third editor, and Bishop Linus Parker its fourth and greatest editor, holding that position for twelve years. Bishop Chas. B. Galloway was editor for some years. A number of our other foremost men have also filled the editorship.

The Methodists have a Preachers' Lot in the Cypress, or Firemen's, Cemetery, and we have buried there the following itinerants:

Rev. Elijah Steele; born 1814; died 1841.

Rev. William F. Brown; died 1848.

Rev. Tiff Foster; born 1850; died 1878 of yellow fever.

Rev. Lewis A. Reed; born 1812; died 1899.

Rev. J. F. Scurlock; born 1837; died 1902.

And possibly, Rev. Marcus C. Manly and his wife.

Having occasion to be in the cemetery lately, I noticed the high grass has well-nigh covered the lot. It needs attention. J. T. S.

MUCH MIXED.

The Presbyterian (Philadelphia) makes the following comment under the heading, "Congregationalists and Unitarians," which should, we think, be of interest in these days when seemingly there is a disposition upon the part of some to wipe out all denominational lines:

"In a number of instances, recently, we have noted the attempt to defend a religious teacher from the charge of Unitarianism, by announcing that he is a Congregationalist. In such cases, it is well to remember that with the Congregationalists every church has its own covenant of belief. Some are thoroughly evangelical, and some are Unitarian. Dr. Youtz, of Auburn Theological Seminary, is a Congregationalist, yet the Unitarians are quoting and advertising his teachings as setting forth exactly their views. Dr. Henry Preserved Smith, of Union Seminary, is a Congregational minister, yet taught in the Meadville Unitarian Seminary before coming to Union Seminary. One Congregationalist church with which we were at one time associated changed its covenant, in order to meet the requirements of a number of Unitarians who were prevented from joining it because of certain Trinitarian teachings in the covenant. A number of the young men from Union Seminary licensed by the New York Presbytery finally settled down with some liberal Congregational church. There has been some expectation of a union between this wing of the Congregationalists and the Unitarians.

"On the other hand, there is a body of Congregational brethren who are heartily and most intelligently loyal to Christ as God and Savior, and to the authority of the Scriptures, and they are the choicest of evangelical Christians. It is fair to make this distinction."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer filled the pulpit of Rayne Memorial Church at 8 p. m., May 12, the pastor, Dr. U. G. Foote, being in Atlanta on a visit to the General Conference.

Rev. A. Joe Beasley, of Camden, Miss., writes on May 9 as follows: "Everything is running nicely with us. I am having a very pleasant year. Some very substantial gains in Methodism are being made."

The Senatobia congregation, North Mississippi Conference, where Rev. A. T. McIlwain is pastor, has just closed a gracious meeting, conducted by Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, one of the general evangelists.

Rev. A. D. George, of Bonita, La., sends us 9 subscriptions to the Advocate and says they are "the result of the good work of Rev. H. T. Young, who made a strong appeal at the close of his meeting."

Rev. J. E. Thomas, writing May 6 from Amory, Miss., says: "My allotment of subscribers for Amory and Nettleton is fourteen. Enclosed I send you a list of 16 new subscribers and 3 renewals." Thank you, Brother Thomas.

Rev. Harry W. May, P. E., writes as follows: "The Baton Rouge District Conference will meet in Hammond at 8 p. m., May 28. The Committee on Admissions is composed of the following named brethren: L. 1. McCain, Alonzo Early, and L. N. Hoffpauir."

Rev. A. W. Turner, State Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, reports as follows: "Since our last report funds were received for the Anti-Saloon League as follows: From Bossier City Baptist Sunday school, $3.52; from West Monroe Methodist Sunday school, $12.80."

During this week we sent a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson, a Prince in Israel," to those of our friends who sent us five new subscriptions during the past month. Others who desire a copy should send in their lists promptly, since we will not be in a position to hold the offer open much longer.

Under date of May 6, Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houika, Miss., in a letter enclosing 16 subscriptions, writes as follows: "I have sent to the Advocate 28 new subscriptions, 40 in all—'gone over the top, taken fourth line of trenches, and still pursuing.' Everything moves on well in this charge."

Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Sardis District, North Mississippi Conference, had the misfortune, a few days ago, to have his car turn over, breaking his arm and fracturing his collarbone. The last report from him is that he is getting along nicely, and he is counting himself fortunate not to have had a more serious result, when his Ford left the road.

We have in hand a letter from Brother C. O. Beauchamp, a Noel Memorial Steward, in which he speaks of "the splendid activities and developments of Noel Memorial Church and Sunday school." He says that "the attendance at the Sunday school has increased 20 per cent in the past 60 days; and a still greater increase is noted in the attendance at the services on Sundays during that period."

We have received the following from Mrs. T. S. Randie, at Farmerville, La., under date of May 8: "We are here with my husband's twin brother, Rev. Robert Randie. He and his people are very kind to us. We need the prayers of all who read these lines and believe in prayer. My dear husband is sick and has been for seven long months. Pray that if it is God's will he may live and help his brother in this his brother's 50th year in the itinerancy. We love our friends and thank God for them."

A number of competent and deeply consecrated young ministers who are students at Meridian College desire to assist in meetings during the summer, either in the capacity of preachers or of leaders in song service. Two native Koreans, who are members of the student body, desire to lecture on Korea. One of these has a stereopticon machine and a number of slides representing mission work in Korea. For particulars write Dr. J. W. Beeson, President of Meridian College, Meridian, Miss.

Mrs. Mattie L. Lee, of Monticello, Miss., enclosing her subscription for the Advocate, writes as follows: "Please tell me why the M. E. Church is so eager now to have the Church, South, to unite, after so many years that we have lived in peace and harmony. I am an elderly woman, and my observation is that the Northern people have always wanted the best there is in the South. I could mention some things, but will not. I am not for unification, and I don't see that things will be best that way."

Chaplain John A. Randolph, somewhere in France, April 10, 1918, writes as follows: "We have been up at the front for nearly a month, but not in the big drive. Our men are in camps between the artillery lines and are doing pioneer work in the first and second line trenches. Some work in three shifts, some in two, and others work only at night. They are frequently under fire, but have had few casualties so far. I have visited most of the working parties, although they are widely scattered. We have held services in the open where the big guns were roaring. Our Easter service was particularly impressive. We have seen Granberry and Ruff recently. Both were well."

The following friends, whose kindness has not been elsewhere mentioned, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. R. H. Harper, Oakdale, La., 5; Rev. W. L. Graves, Montpeller, Miss., 3; Rev. A. J. Bonnette, Cotton Valley, La., 2; Rev. Victor G. Clifford, Union, Miss., 2; Rev. S. E. Flurry, Philadelphia, Miss., 7; Rev. J. M. Corley, Lake, Miss., 2; Rev. J. W. Thompson, Wesson, Miss., 2; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Bayou Chicot, La., 2; Rev. R. I. Collins, Courtland, Miss., 2; Rev. A. Joe Beasley, Camden, Miss., 2; Rev. John W. Chisolm, Silver Creek, Miss., 5; Rev. J. Loyd Deceii, McComb, Miss., 9; Rev. John A. Moore, Moss Point, Miss., 2; Rev. M. W. Porter, Shubuta, Miss., 3.

We clip the following from the Shreveport Times of May 6: "Sunday will be remembered by the membership of the Noel Memorial Church as a memorable day in the history of that church. The attendance of the Sunday school was 257, the largest enrollment for several years past. Every department of the school showed renewed activity and marked development. There is every indication of the development of a large Sunday school at the Noel Church in the near future. The services of the morning were devoted to the receiving of about eighty members into full church connection. Impressive services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Drake. A large congregation attended the inspirational service and witnessed the administering of the church vows to the largest class of communicants ever received on any similar occasion in the history of the Noel Church. More than 100 accessions to the Church have been received this year. From present indications the activities of the Noel congregation will surpass all past achievements of this growing church. Every department is active and aggressive and success seems to crown the united efforts exerted for the development of Noel Memorial Church."

Mrs. Maud B. Booth, in the Volunteers' Gazette of April 17, pays the following tribute to Chaplain H. S. Johns, of Baton Rouge, La.: "Passing through Baton Rouge, we added to our company Mr. H. L. Fuqua, President of the Prison Board, and our good friend, Chaplain Johns. For ten years (it seems almost impossible that it can be so long) the Chaplain has been working for the boys of Louisiana, and it has been loving, devoted, patient work that has endeared him to them all, and to us also. The years have left with him none of the marks that passing years are supposed to leave of care or sadness or broken health. I think he looks better and younger than he did on that first day, and if all our hair when it turns white is going to be such a crown of glory as his has become, then we should certainly say, 'Hasten the day.' One thing I know, that the years have deepened and sweetened his Christian character, and we who knew him were all glad of the chance to rejoice with him over the tenth anniversary of his entrance into the work, for it happened to fall on the very day of my visit to Angola. Our dear Colonel and Mrs. Fegley have done a splendid work for the 'boys' of Louisiana, but they, with me, concur in saying that the permanent success of the League is largely due to Chaplain John's unflagging efforts."

"Before we can truly possess anything, we must have the spirit that will enable us to enjoy it."

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

honored customs of Methodism was to be put to the test, when a measure was presented, and its passage sought, providing for the election of delegates to the District Conference by the Church Conference. Amendments, substitutes and counter-propositions met with opposition, and after much debate the whole matter was voted down and the law will remain as it is.

The note of prophecy was sounded when the report of the Commission on the Centenary of American Methodism was considered and the Conference was called to prayer. It was fortunate that Bishop Lambuth was in the chair for this proceeding, as he had given so many useful years to the work as a missionary in the foreign field.

Report No. 2 from the Committee on Episcopacy called for the election of six Bishops, and was taken out of its regular place on the calendar by a motion made by Dr. A. J. Lamar, Chairman of the Committee, who declared that "this is a matter we wish to dispose of as early as possible to get some of the brethren out of their misery." Tuesday morning, May 14, was set as the time for the election of those to be set apart for the holy office of Bishop in the Church of God.

Notes.

Rev. W. L. Broom, of Bristow, Okla., is attending the Conference.

Hon. W. M. Buie, of Jackson, is a member of the Mississippi Conference delegation.

Mrs. W. B. Murrah, wife of Bishop Murrah, of Memphis, is a visitor to the Conference.

Rev. Theodore Copeland, of the North Arkansas Conference, is attending the Conference.

Rev. O. W. Bradley, of Tupelo, North Mississippi Conference, is among the visitors to the Conference.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, Louisiana Conference, is a visitor to the Conference.

The presiding elder of the Shreveport District, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, is spending a few days at the seat of the Conference.

Dr. W. G. Henry, pastor at Brookhaven, Mississippi Conference, is among those visiting the General Conference from his territory.

Rev. W. W. Drake, pastor of the Noel Memorial Church, Shreveport, La., is shaking hands with friends about the Conference room and hotels.

On Monday, May 13, according to the press dispatches, the General Conference granted full laity rights to the women of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Dr. S. A. Neblett, presiding elder of the Matanzas District, Cuban Mission Conference, who has been one of the workers in Cuba for sixteen years, is a visitor to the Conference.

Bishop Thirkield, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who resides at New Orleans, La., was on the platform Thursday, and was introduced to the Conference.

The following brethren from North Mississippi are visitors to Atlanta and the Conference: Revs. T. M. Bradley, J. E. Stephens, B. P. Fullilove, and J. E. Cunningham.

Rev. J. C. Hawk, missionary to China, and a delegate from the China Mission Conference, is an old Vanderbilt man, and is being welcomed by his many friends as a member of the General Conference.

Rev. R. A. Clark, pastor of the First Church Covington, Tenn., in the Memphis Conference, is a visitor to the General Conference. Brother Clark was formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. W. L. Anderson, formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference, but now presiding elder of the Clinton District, West Oklahoma Conference, and an alternate delegate from that body, is present at the seat of the Conference.

Another man whom North Mississippi loaned to the St. Louis Conference is Rev. H. P. Crow, whose boyhood home was in Mississippi, and who began his ministerial labors in that State. He is a member of the St. Louis Conference delegation.

Among the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference noted as being in attendance on the sessions of the General Conference are Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, and Rev. J. D. Wroten and Rev. Olin Ray, pastors from the bounds of the Greenville District.

The correspondent of the Commercial Appeal, who has been giving to the readers of that paper splendid reports of the proceedings of the General Conference, is Rev. E. H. Cunningham, a member of the North Mississippi Conference. His home town is Kosciusko, and we take our hat off to the Commercial Appeal for choosing so competent a man to represent them.

Dr. Robert Selby, Commissioner of Education for Emory University for the two Mississippi Conferences, together with Mrs. Selby, is watching the proceedings with keen interest. We may be sure that he will be heard from, in his campaign for the Lamar School of Law, the paying for the building of which is Mississippi's part of this enterprise of Southern Methodism, when he returns to his work.

MRS. H. L. COUNTISS PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. H. L. Countiss, widow of Rev. J. B. Countiss, died on May 8, 1918, aged 86 years. She leaves surviving her two daughters and one son—Mrs Birdie Tendall, of Calhoun City; Mrs. Docie Ray, of Van Vleet, and Rev. J. R. Countiss, of Grenada. We laid her body to rest in the Reason's cemetery, the services being conducted by her pastor, assisted by Rev. R. A. Tucker, of Grenada; Rev. T. M. Brownlee, of Grenada, and Rev. R. P. Gore, of Pittsboro.

D. R. McDOUGAL.

ANOTHER GIFT OF $500 TO MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Dear Doctor Meek: I rejoice to report that Brother J. E. Birmingham, a loyal and generous-hearted layman of Olive Branch, Miss., has just subscribed $500 to the Millsaps College dormitory, and we take great pleasure in placing his name on our honor roll. Brother Birmingham's son, Drew, who is a most excellent young man, attended Millsaps College two years ago, but is now in the service of his country at Camp Pike. Unusually good success has attended our dormitory campaign during the past two months. Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK, Commissioner.

Jackson, Miss., May 10, 1918.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Corinth District Conference will convene at New Albany June 11-13. A change in dates has been made necessary in order to avoid conflict with another important meeting to be held there. Let all who are members of the District Conference be present. All others who have interests of the Church to represent are cordially invited. Let all who expect to attend send their names to Rev. J. M. Bradley at once.

MARCELLUS G. DUBARD was born in Grenada County, near old Spring Hill Church, in June, 1850, and died in Memphis on March 12, 1918. He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Sarah Nason. She died about twenty years ago, and about fifteen years ago he married Miss Addie Monday. By his first wife there are two surviving children, Mrs. M. B. Morgan and Mrs. W. B. Harris, both residents of Memphis, Tenn. His second marriage was blessed with two sweet children, a boy and a girl. Brother Bubard was carried to a hospital in Memphis on Christmas day, 1917, for the treatment of a broken leg, which he had sustained only a few days before. He had been out of the hospital for several days and was at the home of his daughter. He was talking with so much cheer and bright anticipation about coming home the next day, for which all arrangements had been made, when the summons came. Of course, it was sudden. It came without warnlng. Brother Dubard realized his anticipation of "going home;" but it was not to his earthly home, but to that home where there are no more broken limbs, where there is no more sickness, sorrow, pain, and disappointments. Measured by our Lord's standard of greatness, Brother Dubard was a great man. Matt. 23:11, "But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant." That being true, M. G. Dubard was a great man, for it was his desire to serve every one to the very best of his ability. For a half century he had been a member of the Methodist Church and was loyal to every interest of the Church. He was a man who endeavored at all times and in all places to practice his profession. He was faithful in visiting the sick and those who were in distress. He was only too glad to help those who were in trouble. He was an ardent Methodist. He loved the Methodist Church and its doctrines. He was a steward in the Methodist Church for forty-odd years, and missed one quarterly conference because of bad weather. Another record like that would be hard to find. He was for many years an honored member of the Board of Trustees of Grenada College. In the death of M. G. Dubard, old Spring Hill Church, the Holly Springs District, and the North Mississippi Conference, has sustained a great loss. A truer husband and father I have never known. His life was indeed an example worthy of emulation. Interment was had at Spring Hill Church burying ground, the funeral services being conducted by Revs. R. A. Tucker, J. R. Countiss, T. M. Brownlee, and C. T. Floyd. The face of M. G. Dubard has gone from us and we will all miss him, but his influence will live on and on, and we shall reap the fruits of his labors for years to come. It is a great loss to us, but heaven has just claimed its own. His pastor,

C. T. FLOYD.

JOHN CALEB POTTER was born in Jefferson County, Miss., on April 23, 1833, and died at his home, near Fort Necessity, La., on April 21, 1918. He came to Louisiana in 1867, when settlements were very scattered. About eight years later he became a member of the Boeuf Prairie Methodist Church, of which he remained a faithful and consistent member until he received his last summons. During his connection with this church he served as a Sunday school teacher and as a steward, and in all these capacities, though at times his task was irksome, he never wearied, trusting always in his Savior. In 1908 he had an attack of spinal meningitis. He was forced to give up his active work in the church and retire to his room, where he lived in closer relationship with his God and Savior. He was very much devoted to his family. He made such a study of their interests and their welfare, and provided for them while he lived in such a way, that when he was called to leave them, though his years were four score and five, it was hard to give him up. We can not call him back, but we can go to him later. Hence, may we not look for and expect a happy reunion over there, where no sin, sickness, or sorrow will come to mar our happiness; where there will be no death to separate us, but where all will be sweet and pleasant for us, for God, our blessed Savior and Comforter, will be there, and the great company of the redeemed people and the heavenly host will be there? So, with these and all the good things of Heaven, which no man can describe, we shall be happy throughout the eternal ages. A LOVED ONE.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas God, in His infinite love and wisdom, has seen fit to take from our midst our friend, a member of the Crawford (Miss.) Missionary Society, Mrs. D. W. Babb; therefore, be it Resolved (1), That we humbly submit to His will and thank Him for her pure, true life of Christian service.

Resolved (2), That we cherish the memory of her Christian graces, her patient endurance, and her cheerful submission during her illness.

Resolved (3), That our hearts go out in deep sympathy to the bereaved husband and other members of her family.

Signed: Mrs. G. P. Waller, Miss Alma McGee, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

On May 1, 1918, the grim reaper, Death, came into our midst and claimed one of the best loved members of our Missionary Society, Mrs. Chas. E. Haas. Therefore, be it

Resolved (1), That while we bow in humble submission to God's will, it grieves us to give her up; for it can be truly said that to know her was to love her.

Resolved (2), That we extend to her loved ones our heartfelt sympathy. May they realize that "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform" and look to Him who alone can comfort them in this dark hour!

"Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there, some time, we'll understand."

Resolved (3), That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the Missionary Voice, to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and to the Bunkie Record for publication.

Signed: Mrs. George Fox, Mrs. Stephen S. Thomas.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once, and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain.

He says freezone is an ether compound which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

PICTURES OF HOPE.

The Bible describes heaven in pictures which are intended to suggest rather than describe. Some of these pictures are a harp, a crown, a white robe, a sea of glass, a street of gold, a gate of pearl, an endless Sabbath. Prosaic doubt characterizes all these suggestions as crude and unattractive. Who wants to be forever playing on a harp? Ah, but a harp is but a symbol of eternal harmony! Do you not want that? Who would care to wear a crown? Ah, but the crown is victory! Do you not want that? How much heaven is there in a white robe? Ah, but the robe is the symbol of a pure life! Is that to be despised? How absurd to speak of spirits walking streets paved with gold! Ah, but that is just a way of saying that poverty is forever behind us! Is there not something of heaven in that? Who wants to enter upon an eternal Sabbath? It is already the dreariest day of the week. Ah, but it is a picture of rest after the long day is over!

Heaven is the place where the things which hurt us here are forever behind us. There is no sickness there. Disease cannot dog our steps across the grave. There is no more bondage. The barriers are gone. There is no more sorrow or trouble. As we enter the gates of pearl, the hand of heavenly love wipes away the last lingering tear-drops of earthly grief. There is no more mystery. "There is no night there."

It is a place of victory. "I will make you rulers," is the promise. It is a place of fellowship. "We shall know even as we are known." It is a place of service. "His servants shall serve Him." Heaven is a home. It is where love reigns and welcome waits and happiness dwells.

But all this is wholly inadequate. No brush can paint the picture of heaven. No lip can tell its story. No voice can sing its glory. It is there shining and singing and shimmering somewhere in the golden light of God's presence. There all mistakes are amended. There all wrongs are righted. Heaven is better than our best dreams. Is this glorious hope mine? How can I live without it? Sometimes the load is heavy, but if there is rest yonder I can carry it a while longer. Sometimes disappointment is bitter, but if there is compensation yonder, I can endure with courage. Sometimes duty is hard, but welcome hardness if One waits to say: "Well done!" Sometimes partings are sad, but if we part to meet again, why should we be disconsolate?

Christ died that He might open a way into heaven. He is the door. He died that we might be forgiven, and He says that whosoever cometh to Him, He will in no wise cast out. With Him as a Redeemer, I can face all foes and say: "I am not afraid: I am going to heaven!" "To him that overcometh shall be given a crown that fadeth not away." and

In God's house forevermore
Our dwelling place shall be.

JAMES I. VANCE.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer from chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable condition due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred on the average have reported "no beneficial results. This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The session of the Holly Springs District Conference, North Mississippi Conference, which was held at Abbeville April 30 to May 1, was marked by many points of interest and encouragement. Rev. Robt. Selby, representing the interests of Emory University, preached the opening sermon on Monday night. He very ably addressed himself to the interest of religious education, pointing out the interest that the Church must take in the education of our professional men. He gave an encouraging report of what he had been able to do this year in behalf of Emory University and very vividly pictured the great future of this school. The conference proper convened on Tuesday morning at the call of the presiding elder, Rev. James H. Felts. Rev. R. G. Lord was elected Secretary. In his usual energetic and enthusiastic way the President pursued at once the business of the conference. The reports were far in advance of many years previous to 1918 at this time of the year. There had been over $1200 collected on the benevolences in the district, and the pastors' salaries were well up. For the time of the year the district had gone "over the top" in its quota of new subscribers to the Advocate. One of the most encouraging reports that was made, and one that all the North Mississippi Conference is glad of, was made by Rev. T. M. Brownlee, Commissioner of Grenada College. He has succeeded in getting in cash and subscriptions this year more than $45,000 for that institution. The ground is soon to be broken for the construction of a large and up-to-date, equipped dormitory with library and chapel departments. Brother Brownlee is to be congratulated on the very efficient work that he is doing for this school. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney was with us and preached a most helpful and uplifting sermon and rendered a fine account of his stewardship as Sunday School Field Secretary. A great spiritual interest was manifested throughout the conference. The preachers and laymen seemed to come from their charges fired with spiritual zeal. This interest received great inspiration on Tuesday afternoon when the conference enjoyed a treat such as few district conferences have the opportunity to enjoy. This was when Dr. Shade Walker, his singer, Mr. Boyd, and his accompanist, Miss Cason, who are conducting a series of revival services at Oxford, visited the conference. Mr. Boyd and Miss Cason thrilled the conference and the large congregation present with their heavenly music. Then Dr. Walker's address led all to the mountain-top, where we enjoyed a rare spiritual feast. It was indeed good to be there. Another thing that stirred the conference was the fact that early in the session it was made known that Miss Willard Hopper, the daughter of the beloved pastor at Abbeville and host of the conference, who is in school in Grenada College, had surrendered her life to go as a missionary to China. The conference was thrilled with this glad news. It is well to say in this connection that the laymen of the district agreed to keep some worthy girl, who could not otherwise go, in Grenada College, and the preachers of the district would not be outdone, so they agreed to do the same. Under the able leadership of its most efficient presiding elder, the work of the Holly Springs District is going from great to greater things. Brother Felts is a worker that does things and is in high favor with the preachers and the people of the district. For the popular and beloved pastor and the dear people of Abeeville the district conference will ever hold many kind remembrances of the genial hospitality which they extended to us during our stay with them. The next conference goes to Water Valley, North Main Street. R. G. LORD.

Water Valley, Miss., May 6, 1918.

SAFETY FIRST.

It is mighty easy to make little of every scratch, cut, burn, and sting. Sometimes you can neglect them and luckily get by without any serious infection. If you do, don't think you are fotunate. The next case of neglect may prove fatal. Blood poison is likely to set in unexpectedly and the result may be fatal. Don't play with fate. Take care of your body. In every case of broken skin apply Gray's Ointment immediately and freely. It is healing and antiseptic. For nearly a century one of nature's greatest methods of insurance against infection. Telephone your druggist, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

HELP IN REVIVALS.

A few of our young preachers and our college pastor will be open for engagements to help in revivals, either in preaching or in conducting song services, or both, for the summer vacation, beginning the first of June and lasting until the first of September.

They are faithful; earnest, consecrated preachers, filled with the Spirit, sane, sensible, and will be a blessing in any meeting. If any need their services, we will be glad to put them in touch with the pastors or with the managers of camp meetings.

We have two fine young men from Korea, one in the senior class and one in the junior class. They are both settled men and are consecrated preachers of the Gospel who would like to give some lectures on Korea this summer during vacation. One has a stereopticon machine and a fine lot of colored slides representing mission work in Korea. These lectures will be a great uplift to the cause of missions and to the spiritual help of any church, Sunday school, young people's meetings, etc. They will give these lectures and accept free will offerings from the congregation, provided expenses are guaranteed. We will be glad for these strong young men to be used this summer.

The College has just closed another great revival, held by one of its own graduates, Rev. J. R. Sasnett, pastor of a large Methodist Church in Seattle, Wash. Brother Sasnett graduated six years ago, and it has been a joy for us to see how he has made good in the world. He brought some messages to the young people, and God wonderfully heard and answered prayer. There were about 75 professions during this revival; some were called to the mission fields, and others to definite work for the Master.

Meridian College is closing the most prosperous session that it has had for many years. Four hundred and twenty students have been enrolled, and that is quite a large enrollment when we consider that we have dropped all the lower grades, and when we consider further that the Army has drafted a large number of our young men. God is wonderfully good to us, and we praise Him for the blessings which He has bestowed upon our young people. We have had a number of young preachers and volunteers to the mission fields among our students. Some ministers and missionaries are in the senior class and will go to the training school, while some will go into the pastorate. Several members of last year's class are at Emory University, some of whom are taking the theological course, and others are studying medicine. It is the purpose of this College to be a blessing to God and to the Church in sending out its young people equipped spiritually as well as mentally and physically. We are rejoiced at having a part in spreading the full Gospel to every land. We ask Christian people to pray for us that we may continue to be used of the Lord. J. W. BEESON, President.

Skin Diseases

such as Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter, Itch, Acne, etc., are caused by parasites. To properly treat these diseases, you must kill the parasites. Tetterine is extensively prescribed by the best physicians because it kills these parasitic germs, thereby putting an end to skin troubles. It is a fragrant salve and is absolutely harmless. Ask your druggist for it. 50c a box. By mail from Shuptrine Company, Savannah, Ga.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR FRIENDS.

It is almost impossible to be genuinely friendly with a person who insists on being too close to you, on knowing all your thoughts, feelings, and affairs, and on claiming your time and attention on the excuse of affection alone.

The bonds of true friendship must be easy and its demands must be for something real and vital. The woman who calls on you perpetually because she has taken a sudden fancy to you is a blind and selfish egotist in a mild way. Her calls may interrupt your work and bore you intensely; but if you are a polite and courteous person, you bear with her until she directs her attention elsewhere. She will probably tell the new friend that you are "very unresponsive." Some women clutch at every new acquaintance and then complain that they have so few friends. The reason is that friendship is not built on trivialties and whims, but by giving such valuable things a true consideration, real interest, and manifesting a decent reserve as to the other person's confidence and nonconfidings.—Woman's Home Companion.

Why Do All Doctors Prescribe Calomel?

Of all the medicines in the world, doctors prescribe calomel most often and depend upon it most universally. There must be a good and sufficient reason—what is it?

If you will study the doctors' books you will find that the medical authorities prescribe calomel for almost every disease. The reason is that calomel is the greatest and only thorough system-purifier. It makes the liver active, drives out the poisons from the stomach, bowels and kidneys and thereby purifies the blood. Calomel puts the entire system in the most favorable condition for Nature to exercise her recuperative powers. Your doctor will tell you that drugs merely assist Nature. That is why he prescribes calomel so often.

The new kind of calomel, called "Calotabs," is refined and purified from all of the nauseating and dangerous qualities of the old-style calomel and is rapidly taking its place, for it is more effective than the old style calomel as a liver-cleanser and system-purifier. One Calotab at bedtime, with a swallow of water, that's all. No nausea, nor the slightest unpleasantness. Next morning you awake feeling fine—with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—fruits, acids or anything. No restrictions of habit or diet.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Recommended and guaranteed by druggists everywhere. Your money back if you are not delighted.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Last Saturday and Sunday were spent at Rose Hill with Brother McKee. This is his fourth year and he is doing a great work out there. The people were very responsive, indeed. Three of the teachers in the Rose Hill Sunday school signed up to take the entire teacher-training course. This will mean a great deal to the Sunday school. They will divide their building and provide a place for the Elementary Division. There were other things promised on the work, too.

I hope all the brethren will begin to bear in mind that one of the main features in the District Institute programs this Fall will be a report from each Sunday school on the Standard of Efficiency. It is to be hoped that we will get a report from each school in the Conference. With a report from each school, the district officers will be enabled to do real good, helpful work. Help us get the reports—not how much your school has, but a report on what it has.

June 4 and 5 at Gibson Memorial, the north end of the Port Gibson District will hold their District Institute. A fine program has been arranged, and it is hoped we will have a fine attendance. Pray for me.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Field Secretary.

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The forty-eighth session of the Alexandria District Conference was held in De Ridder, La., April 16-18.

Rev. J. A. McCormack, of Merryville, preached the opening sermon on the evening of April 16, and his fine message was a fit beginning for the Conference.

Rev. H. Wade Cudd, of Elizabeth, preached on the evening of April 17 a forceful sermon to a good congregation.

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt and Rev. R. W. Vaughan were present to represent the work of the Sunday School Board and the Methodist Orphanage, respectively.

During one of the sessions the presiding elder, Rev. Briscoe Carter, prompted by some item of business, made some very fine and inspiring remarks concerning certain phases of our Church work.

The sermons and addresses, together with the helpful talks made by the brethren who conducted the devotional services, were the means of much instruction and inspiration to those in attendance.

The reports of the pastors showed great progress in most of the charges in the district.

Rev. J. O. Bennett has been hindered by sickness, but has been able to meet all his appointments, and by letter reported the Colfax and Montgomery charge to be in good condition.

Natchitoches—J. W. Lee, pastor—will soon begin a campaign to clear the church property of all indebtedness.

Rev. Geo. Fox gave a very fine report of the work at Bunkie. The church building has recently been remodeled so as to give eight classrooms for Sunday school work.

Rev. J. W. Faulk reported that eight rooms have been added to the church at Boyce.

At Pineville, where Brother Fulton is pastor, a better site has been selected, and the contract has been let for a new church.

Oakdale reported finances in good condition. A debt of $1000 upon the church property was canceled the middle of January.

Alexandria has had a large increase in membership, and Dr. Werlein is preaching to great congregations.

Rev. Paul Brown, host of the Conference, is in high favor with the people of De Ridder, and it was evident that his charge was in good condition. The handsome brick church there has been completed and it is one of the finest buildings in the State. In recognition of his services in the parish in behalf of the Liberty Loan, the people of the town have recently presented Brother Brown with a large automobile.

Without exception the reports from the various charges were hopeful and encouraging, though a number of the pastors have been greatly hindered by sickness, notably Brother B. H. Sheppard, of Lecompte. While he was not strong enough to attend the Conference, the preachers were glad to learn that he was much improved.

The following were elected officers of the district Sunday school organization: President, Briscoe Carter; Secretary and Treasurer, O. C. Bates, Alexandria, La.; Wesley Bible Class Superintendent, W. W. Perry, Glenmora, La.; Teacher-training Department, Geo. Fox, Bunkie, La.; Home Department, J. A. McCormack, Merryville, La.; Elementary Department, Miss Nell Richardson, Alexandria, La.

T. W. Holloman, of Alexandria, was elected District Lay Leader.

The following were elected as delegates and alternates to the Annual Conference:

Delegates: Hon. H. H. White, Alexandria, La.; C. W. Patterson, Oakdale, La.; Dr. Thomas Carter, L. E., Nashville, Tenn.; J. E. Williams, Bunkie, La.

Alternates: T. W. Holloman, Alexandria, La.; Robert Jones, De Ridder, La.; Rev. J. H. French, L. E., Carson, La., and A. W. Bryan.

The report of the Committee on Temperance, composed of Rev. Jno. Sholars, Rev. P. M. Brown, and Mr. R. Jones, declared for national constitutional prohibition and unequivocally endorsed the work of the Anti-Saloon League. The report was adopted, and the Conference ordered that a copy be sent to Rev. A. W. Turner, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

The people of De Ridder extended a gracious hospitality, and our visit was made very pleasant.

The Conference adjourned at noon on April 18, sine die, to meet in Boyce during 1919.

R. H. HARPER,
Secretary.

The Root of Skin Troubles

Skin diseases are caused by parasitic germs, and unless these germs are killed your skin trouble will last indefinitely, growing worse each day. These parasitic germs may be killed and without any injurious effect by simply applying Tetterine, a fragrant salve. It is commended highly by the best physicians. A SPRING MEDICINE

That Will Make You Feel Better, Look Better, Eat and Sleep Better.

In view of the fact that disease is ever the same, a medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has been successful for more than forty years in combatting disease and preserving health, is a safe one to rely upon.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is known everywhere as the standard blood purifier, tonic and vitalizer. Its record is one of remarkable results. It has given entire satisfaction in the treatment of scrofula, eczema, humors, catarrh, rheumatism, loss of appetite, that tired feeling and general debility, and is taken as effectively at one time of year as another.

There is nothing better as a prompt, general tonic for weak and run-down men, women and children and old people, invalids and convalescents.

It is pleasant to take, aids digestion, and supplies the vital organs with the rich red blood essential to health.

GALLOWAY MEMORIAL DAY.

The first church to report the result of Galloway Memorial Day was Fernwood, Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, pastor, which sends in the magnificent sum of $1066.15. Let others follow this splendid example.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I have a letter from the Committee on Public Information at Washington endorsing my lecture on "Why We Fight; or, The Fundamental Principles Underlying the War," and urging me to give it as frequently and widely as possible. I have given it at a number of places this spring as a Sunday night lecture. I will say that in future I will not be able to be away from the camp on Sunday as I have been, but if any one wants me for a week night where I will be away from the camp but a short time, I will be glad to serve. I may be able to give a few Sunday night lectures through the summer if I am notified in time to make the necessary arrangements.

ROY H. KLEISER.
Methodist Camp Pastor, Camp Shelby.

NOTICE.

The Rev. H. C. Morehead, who recently passed away, was a faithful member of the Ministers' Relief Association. Call for assessment has been delayed by a by-law which provides that thirty days shall intervene between calls. Assessment No. 21 is now due. Our membership is increasing, and the laymen are becoming more interested in our Association. If we could secure 500 laymen as honorary members who would pay $1 on the death of each member, we could easily have a $1000 benefit. This would mean as much as the Joint Board of Finance could do for the family of the deceased in five years. Let us undertake to secure the requisite number.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Epworth Leagues of the North Mississippi Conference will meet in Holly Springs on May 28 (8 o'clock p. m.), May 29 and 30. Let all our Leagues send delegates. Our pastors are cordially invited and are urged to come. Let pastors who have prospective Leagues send young people as delegates. We will have with us Dr. Ralph Voliner, from the Central office, and Dr. S. A. Neblett, Missionary to Cuba, besides a number of our own missionary workers and young people's leaders. Much stress will be laid upon missions and training. Come, let us have a good conference together. Send the names of the delegates to Miss Sadie Curd, Holly Springs, Miss.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference was called to order on Tuesday morning, April 30, 1918, at 9:30 o'clock, by the presiding elder, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, who presided with the ease and the dignity of a veteran Bishop, and dispatched business rapidly, without undue haste, giving plenty of time for deliberation on all questions commensurate to the demands. There was not a dull moment during the entire session, for as soon as one item of business was disposed of another was called up.

All the pastors of the district except one were present, and twenty-three laymen were in attendance. Perhaps the most interesting, and certainly one of the most interested members of the Conference, was Brother Ira B. Robertson, now seventy-eight years old. He is quite feeble in body, but is still young in spirit.

Revs. Robt. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College; B. F. Lewis, Superintendent of the Methodist Orphans' Home, and John C. Chambers, Sunday School Field Secretary, visited the conference, and each addressed the gathering in the interest of the work he represents.

Prominence was given to the preaching of the Word. The Gospel was dispensed to the edifying of the hearers by Revs. W. W. Hopper, M. M. Black, J. C. Chambers, T. B. Holloman, and W. H. Saunders.

W. W. Ellis, J. N. Hall, J. K. Sessions, and R. L. Davis were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with R. R. Liddell and E. E. Richardson, alternates.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 1, the conference adjourned sine die, to meet next year at Rolling Fork. The Port Gibson District Conference of 1918 goes down in history as a very pleasant and profitable occasion, and in the minds of the brethren linger many delightful memories of the genuine hospitality of Pastor J. O. Ware, host of the Conference, and the good people of Fayette.

THE TRUE IDEALISM.

When men and women pray, as their Lord and Master taught them to, that God's Kingdom should come, is there not frequently a hazy indefiniteness in their thought as to where it is that they wish that Kingdom to be set up and realized? It is a Kingdom of Heaven no doubt, but when Jesus included that phrase in his model prayer, He did not mean to ask us to comfort ourselves with the expectation that one day we might be where it was, but He did mean to ask us to pray, and to work as we prayed, that such a Kingdom might really come to where we now are. If we have a belief in the Kingdom of Heaven, about which Jesus had so much to say, the only vital element in our faith is our expectation that such a Kingdom is intended for earth and that one day it will be actually realized here. And if there is any practical element in our faith that makes it at all a thing worth while, then our life has one great purpose to which all others are secondary, that of making actual among men the vision splendid of the Kingdom of God.

LACK OF WOMEN IN CHINESE COLLEGES.

There are three medical colleges in China that admit women students —Peking, Soochow, and Canton. Among the 1,930 medical students in China are 120 women. The great need for increasing the number of women physicians is seen in the high mortality among women and children, of whom 60 per cent born in China die as a result of the ignorance of midwives. At least 80 per cent of the mothers are infected because of improper treatment at the birth of their children. Can any one doubt the great need for trained nurses and women physicians? There is no greater call in China than that of the mothers and babies.

There are only 84 Chinese girls attending the colleges in China. If the same proportion of girls were in the colleges of America there would only be 21 young women college students in all the United States. The only colleges for girls in China are at Nanking, Fuchow, and Canton, and these were founded by American missionaries. There are two hundred Chinese girls in the colleges in America.—The Missionary Review of the World.

EXTRACTS FROM MESSAGE OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE PRESIDENT TO ANNUAL MEETING.

Under the Colors.

"The demands of the day claim not only our allegiance to the calls occasioned by these abnormal conditions but also our loyalty for the maintenance of those principles on which we have founded our faith and the institutions arising as a result of this. The forces which are to-day working for the alleviation of suffering and the betterment of conditions are either directly or indirectly traceable to the influence of Christianity. We are enrolled under the banner of Christ, the Christian flag being described and interpreted as follows: 'The ground is white, representing peace, purity, and innocence; in the upper corner is a blue field, the color of the unclouded sky, a symbol of faith and trust. In the center of the blue is the cross, the ensign and chosen emblem of Christianity.' Ours is a world-wide task—to make known the saving grace of Christ throughout all nations. The world is shaken to its very foundations, even in those nations not engaged in the struggle; and the most constructive power at work is the Church. Dr. Mott has stated the challenge, which is now before the Church, in this way: 'When the world is teachable is the time to strike the hardest blow that the Christian forces ever struck to shape the world's life according to the unchallenged principles of Christ—changeless amid all the change that has been sweeping through the world.'

"We are called upon to conserve in every material way conceivable. But have we considered carefully the conservation of spiritual forces? It is conceded that civilization is threatened, that the Church is facing a spiritual crisis of world significance. If, as has been stated, the human pivot turns upon the volume and quality of spiritual devotion put into the program, we should take heed and plan more effectively to mobilize the spiritual forces, that the Church may be ready to meet new conditions in a new era. It will require some higher power than human agency, and divine aid can be received if it is only sought."

An Official Statement.

"The women of North Mississippi have wrought well for the past year for the maintenance of our established work. It is gratifying to state that the growth that was so evident the preceding year has continued. By reference to the records we find that for the past three years there has been a constant increase; for 1915 the increase was $1696.54; for 1916, $1349.55; for 1917, $1972.61. The total amount sent to the connectional work for 1917 was $14,674.65; the pledge which we increased with such trepidation at our last Annual meeting was more than met. A definite goal was set for the year, based upon the ten per cent increase in membership, organizations and finances, which the Council accepted as its plan of work. It was kept constantly before the Conference, and when the year's books were closed the records showed that we had more than met every item of the goal set."

Social Service.

"The leaders of the Church are convinced that the gospel for to-day must be expressed in terms of service, for ministries of mercy are but the mind of the Master, and there is everywhere a deep desire for the great realities of practical religion—applied Christianity; in other words, social service. It behooves us to give the most careful study to our social service topic for the year, 'Observance of the Sabbath Day.' The Sabbath has always been one of the moral safeguards of our nation; it is no less so to-day than formerly. Let us not simply study the subject in a formal way, but may we become more determined to stand firmly on the side of right and do what we can to help in the enforcement of the Sunday laws.

"National legislation for the betterment of social conditions has made progress during 1917. Notable among these laws is the National Prohibition Amendment.

"At the conclusion of this war there will be a period of reconstruction and rehabilitation. At this time the Church should take the foremost place, for its purpose is 'to construct and not to destroy, to save and not to kill.' New methods will be employed. What is adequate now will not then meet the need. So in a very particular sense this is a time of preparation. Doors will be opened for new lines of service. It will be more than ever true that each open door will have written upon one side 'Opportunity,' and upon the other side 'Responsibility.'"

Conclusion.

"In this critical hour we see the love of country, of God and his power transmuting American science, gold, and tools into service; we see our country entering the war that it might save for the world the principles of democracy and justice. Countless sacrifices have been demanded; some have made the supreme sacrifice. These are the principles set down for his followers by Christ who himself became the highest exemplication of the same. So in every detail of our planning for future work let us bear this in mind and conform not only to the call of the hour, but to that of the Master: 'Serve, save, sacrifice.'"

Jesus did not come only to preach the Gospel, but that there might be a Gospel to preach.—R. W. Dale.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is preserved by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZE, 603 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultze's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

YOU CAN TELL THE PEOPLE WHO HAVE IRON IN THEIR BLOOD STRONG, HEALTHY, VIGOROUS FOLKS

City Physician Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Nervous, Run-down People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

ONE glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood. They are the ones that do and dare. The others are in the weakling class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, constant dosing with habit-forming drugs and narcotics and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and therefore, nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. When iron is supplied it enriches the impoverished blood and gives the body greater resistance to ward off disease. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. There is nothing like good old iron to help put color in your cheeks and sound, healthy flesh on your bones. But you must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like Nuxated Iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above is one of the newer organic iron compounds. Unlike the older inorganic products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

From the Field

Cotton Valley, La.

Dear Brother Meek: The work is moving off very nicely in this charge. We have everything ready for the erection of a new parsonage at Cotton Valley, and the work of construction will begin in a few days. This is our first year on this charge, and the outlook is very encouraging for a successful year in the work of the Church. We are praying to that end. Our only son, Andrew Guy Bonnette, is in the service of the government, and is now stationed at Camp Kelly, San Antonio, Tex. We are leaning on the "everlasting arms" and we pray that a kind providence may overshadow and protect our boy and the other boys in the great struggle.—A. J. Bonnette, P. C.

Indian Bayou Charge, La. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our second quarterly conference is a thing of the past. To say that the meeting was a success does not by any means express it. Brother Bowman came to us on Friday, and remained until Sunday evening. He preached three sermons (I mean quarterly conference sermons). It is a fact that none of the boys can beat the elder preaching. Brother Bowman rides in the next best thing to an airship. The pastor is riding in the same kind of a vehicle. Congregations are large and spiritual advance along all lines is very perceptible. We have secured nearly fifty new subscribers to the Advocate. I close this report by saying that it is again my good luck to have a crying elder.—G. D. Anders, P. C.

Epworth Church, New Orleans.

Dear Advocate: Perhaps it will be of some interest to your readers to know that we are making some progress at Epworth Church. Despite many discouraging conditions, our organization is coming together, and from time to time there are additions to our ranks. The Woman's Missionary Society is at work regularly, and has done good work in helping to provide parsonage furniture. We hope some day to own our parsonage, as well as the furniture. We had a good program on Easter Sunday, and the decorations were a feature. The attendance at Sunday school on the whole has been increasing, and our congregations have been good, considering local conditions. The Epworth League does good work—its own work—and its member also work in the Sunday school, in the prayer meeting, and in the choir. The pastor held a two weeks' meeting preceding Easter, with the other pastors and churches doing the same. The presiding elder brought a helpful message the first Monday evening on "The Ordinary Man." The meeting resulted in good to the pastor and the people. Our finances are fairly well looked after. We are planning to have "Children's Day." On last Friday evening the pastor was called away from the Masonic lodge to "come home at once on important business." A number of the members had called, and in a beautiful spirit remembered us with good eatables. The spirit was appreciated, also the matter during these times of financial stringency and high prices. The visit was the occasion of a talk by the pastor the following Sunday to the Sunday school on "The Nature of a Methodist Pounding." One little girl said that a pounding was a "spanking." Another knew, but would not tell. A grown-up person thought a pounding was surely a beating by exasperated church members. Well, the lesson was worth while, and, from the smiles of the boys and girls, I am inclined to think they will want to get into the next pounding party. So mote it be! I trust that the war will not too materially deplete our pulpits. The call for preachers is greater to-day than ever. They are coming to their own. Even Gen. Pershing says: "Send us preachers along with the provisions and paraphernalia."

Love to all the friends and brethren and prayers for the greatest of our Conference years.

LUKEWARMNESS.

You know what a nauseous thing a lukewarm drink is. We like cold drinks and hot drinks, but just a tepid liquid is sickening. You know what lukewarm people are, half and half, milk and water. If any cause, or any effort to do good, to effect any change, attracts to it only likewarm people, we despair of it, we know that nothing will ever be accomplished.

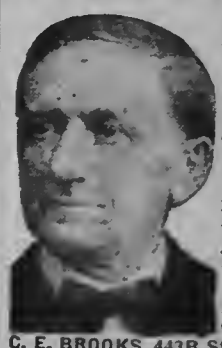
Now, what about lukewarmness in reference to religion, in reference to ourselves, our parish, our church, our fellow-men, our dear Master? Yes, "lukewarm" is the right word, for it does imply some warmth. A lukewarm bath might be life, an ice cold one, death. You do love God in some degree. Generous impulses and high resolves do stir within you. You do try, in some faint, languid way, to follow in His train. But is there not an absence of that enthusiasm, that eagerness, that devotion to our spiritual state and the spiritual state of the world, that glow, that fire, that rush which would transform the world, and change this slow, halting, unsteady progress of the gospel of Christ into a magnificent victory?

Now, what do you do, when you find placed before you some lukewarm drink? Why, you send it out to the fire. Do that way with your spiritual life. What fire, do you ask? Why the fire of penitence, the fire of stern resolve, the fire of earnest aspirations. The blessed food so often on our altars is a fire, prayer is a fire, the giving up of the will is a fire. Take your souls then and warm them up. And what do you say to the lukewarm people in your service? "My son, if you want to stay with me, you will have to show a livelier interest, and step around quicker." So God says to us: "My son, if you continue in this languid way, doing a half-and-half duty, if you show no more interest, your lukewarmness will become coldness, and the coldness will become iciness, and you will lose your soul, not because I wish it, but because you will it."

Let us then struggle against lukewarmness; love God a little more, open our hearts to the fire of the Sun of Righteousness. The ice will melt, the indifference will become enthusiasm; warm ourselves, we will help to set the world on fire.—Author unknown.

THE HORSE AND THE HIGHWAY.

A bill has been introduced into the New York State Legislature to make compulsory the construction on State and county highways of a side road of dirt or stone for the use of horses. To read the auto-truck advertisements one might be quite easily led astray. The horse is still doing 80 per cent of the country's transportation. There have been many sections of the country this winter where, because of the deep snow, the automobile and the auto-truck have had to go out of commission, the horse being the only means of transportation equal to the occasion. One of our gasoline ambulances, becoming stalled in a drifted main highway near Boston, the driver was obliged to hire a farmer to get out his horse and high-boarded sleigh and transport the animal the balance of the way to its owner's stable.—Our Dumb Animals.



NOT LOST, BUT GIVEN.

It is said of a returned English soldier that, when he was being commiserated on the loss of his arm in the trenches, he replied, proudly: "I didn't lose it; I gave it." Glorious reply. What a transformation of our stewardship if we could think of our tithe not as the payment of a debt, but as the offering of a gift! What a transfiguration of our service if we could list it as a heart impulse instead of a conscience pull! What an ennoblement of life if we could live it as a gift to the world! When a man gives his health or his time or his money—or his life—you cannot talk to him about being robbed. He has forestalled the comment. Jesus said: "No man taketh my life from me; I lay it down." Such ought to be the spirit of His disciples. It is very hard to defeat a man with such a spirit.—George Clarke Peck.

Ugh! Calomel Makes You Deathly Sick

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you!
It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Don't Let Catarrh Drag You into Consumption

Avoid Its Dangerous Stage.

There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and the hawking and spitting and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dreaded consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by sprays, inhalers, atomizers, jellies and other local applications.

S. S. S. has proven a most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh because it goes direct to its source, and removes the germs of the disease from the blood. Get a bottle from your druggist today, and begin the only logical treatment that gives real results. You can obtain special medical advice without charge by writing to Medical Director, 27 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

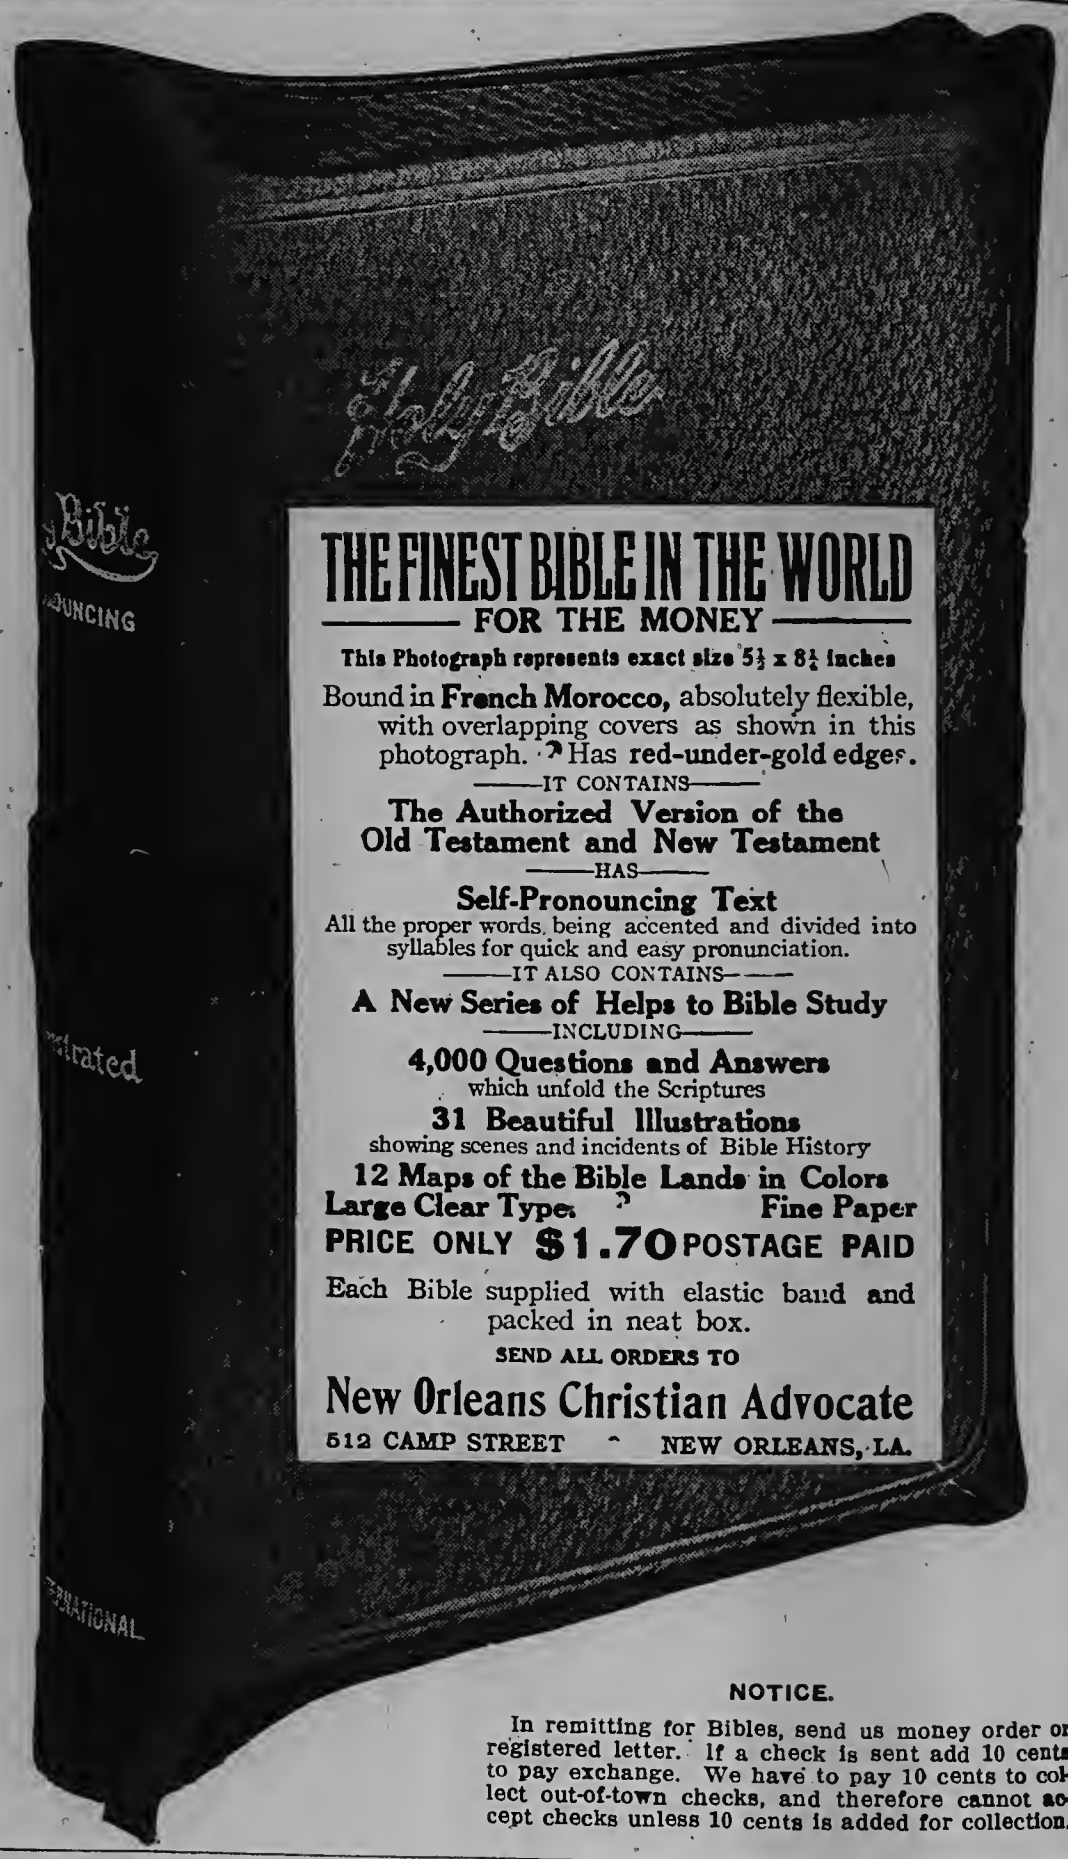
PASTORAL EVANGELISM.

Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler was distinguished more as a preacher, pastor, author and writer than as a revivalist. Pastoral evangelism was his great power. Witnessing the triumphant death of one of his members, he said to a friend, "Oh, it makes me preach like a lion when I see how my people can die." He treated his flock as he would his own family, faithfully attending to all possible needs. His motto was, "Study God's Word in the morning, door-plates in the afternoon."

Dr. Cuyler says, "Once I spent an evening in vain endeavoring to bring a man to a decision for Christ. Before I left he took me upstairs to the nursery and showed me his beautiful children in their cribs. I said to him tenderly, 'Do you mean that these sweet children shall never have any help from their father to get to heaven?' He was deeply moved. In a month that man became an active member of my church."

"On a cold winter evening I made a call on a wealthy merchant in New York. As I left his door, and the piercing gale swept in, I said, 'What an awful night for the poor!' He went back, and, bringing to me a roll of bank bills, he said: 'Please hand these, for me, to the poorest people you know of.' After a few days I wrote to him, sending him the grateful thanks of the poor whose misery he had relieved, and added: 'How is it that a man who is so kind to his fellow creatures has always been so unkind to his Savior as to refuse Him his heart?' That sentence touched him in the core. He sent for me immediately to come and converse with him. He speedily gave his heart to Christ and became a useful member of our church. He remarked afterwards that I was the first person who had spoken to him about his spiritual welfare in twenty years."—Rev. Edwin Whittier Caswell.

SEEING ONLY THE BLACK.



Many people have a strangely perverted faculty of exaggerating their molehills of trouble into mountains, and then of looking at their blessings through diminishing lenses. A cheerful heart always finds brightness, while an unhappy spirit sees nothing but discouragement in even the most favorable conditions. One person is happy in the narrowest circumstances, while another is wretched in a luxuriant home with every want supplied. Some persons never see anything to be thankful for. They may attend a service of praise on Thanksgiving Day; but they are not in a joyful mood, and not the first strain of thanksgiving rises from their hearts. They never stop complaining long enough to allow a grateful thought to nest in their hearts. They keep themselves always in such a mood of discontent that no note of praise is ever heard from their lips. One would think, to hear them talk about their trials, that God does not love them, and that no favor ever comes into their lives. Yet really they do not have any more than their share of human suffering, while they certainly have a full portion of blessing and good.

But this is not the way for a Christian to live. We dishonor God when we indulge in unhappiness and refuse to be grateful. We spoil our own lives and make existence wretched for ourselves when we insist on seeing only the black. Then we make it harder for others to live, casting the burden of our gloom upon them. We should train ourselves just as carefully and conscientiously to be thankful and songful as we do to be truthful, honest, kind, or thoughtful.—J. R. Miller.

WHAT WE NEED.

We must know God in order to worship Him, and the habits of our times are unfriendly to that prolonged and quiet communion with God, without which the knowledge of Him is impossible. We shall not deepen the spirit of devotion in our churches by adding to the beauty and solemnity of our public services. What we need is a clearer vision of God and a profounder and more constant sense of the truth of the ancient words that the [illegible] One that inhabiteth eternity, [illegible] to them that are of

WHAT WOULD JESUS DO?

Some thirty years ago, long before Mr. Sheldon's well known book, "In His Steps," was published, there was written by a distinguished scholar in the west of England a little book called "What Would the Lord Jesus Do?" Soon after the publication of this book the present Bishop of Liverpool received from a friend the title of the book as a motto, to hang over his mantelpiece. One day, as he was visiting among his people, he came across a poor woman dying of cancer. He found she was a lady by birth, though living in two miserable rooms in a back street in North London. She had made a most unhappy marriage, and her friends had cast her off. The minister wrote to her mother, laying before her the circumstances, and asking her to come and see her dying child. One day soon afterward, this lady's card was brought to him, and in a few moments he went into his study. She was sitting looking at the motto over the mantelpiece—"What Would the Lord Jesus Do?"—and, turning sharply round as he entered, she said, "I came here to tell you that I would not see my daughter, but these words have made me change my mind."—Author unknown.

WOULD THAT HE HAD DONE SO!

Napoleon was possessed of wonderful abilities, but his hindsight was better than his foresight, as in the case of most of us. His St. Helena diary contains the following entry: "I made the mistake of my career, when I had the opportunity, that I did not remove the Hohenzollerns from the throne of Prussia. As long as this house reigns, and until the red cap of liberty is erected in Germany, there will be no peace in Europe."—The Westminster Times.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The second Sunday of the General Conference was a beautiful day and just before the hour for the morning service throngs of people were to be seen making their way to the several Churches, many of whose pulpits were occupied by delegates to the General Conference.

Tenth Day—Monday.

Conference met at the appointed hour, Bishop Lambuth in the chair.

After religious service the minutes were read and approved.

Bishop Mouzon took the chair. The call for memorials, etc., having been completed by the Conference, Dr. Haven, of the American Bible Society, was introduced.

Mr. Brockman, associate secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was introduced and spoke to the Conference, under a special order of the Conference, concerning his work in the army. His address was one of broad, philosophical grasp and was well received by the Conference and the audience in the galleries. It was a very strong address.

Dr. Curtis, fraternal delegate from the Methodist Church of Canada, spoke a few farewell words to the Conference.

Report No. 6 from the Committee on Revisals was taken from the calendar, which is the granting of laity rights to women. The committee concurred in the memorials.

It was moved to recommit the report with instructions to submit the question to the Annual Conferences. Under call of the pending question the motion to recommit was lost. A motion to amend by striking out so much of the committee's report as it applied to the constitution of the Board of Missions was lost and the previous question ordered.

It was moved that the vote be taken by orders and one-fifth the number required not sustaining the motion, it was lost.

The report of the committee was adopted by a large majority and when it was announced the delegates and visitors, especially several of the prominent women in the galleries, broke into loud and prolonged applause.

The vote of the Conference as it is gives to the women of the Church all the rights of the laity.

Eleventh Day—Tuesday Morning.

Conference met pursuant to adjournment. Bishop Mouzon in the chair. After religious services the minutes were read and approved.

Bishop Hendrix took the chair.

Among the first items of business was the passage of a resolution to send from the Conference a message of congratulation to the General Conference of the Southern Baptist Convention in session at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

On motion it was determined to have an afternoon session of the Conference. It was also agreed by the adoption of a resolution that the Conference adjourn sine die on next Monday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock.

Resolutions concerning the method of balloting for Bishops and connectional officers were adopted.

Several ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church and Rev. C. P. Neal, of the C. M. E. Church, fraternal messenger from the General Conference of that Church, were introduced.

Dr. McMullen, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it was announced, would take the place of Dr. Kelly, detained by illness, as the fraternal messenger from that Church, and that he would be heard upon his arrival.

The Bishops presented a communication to the Conference which proved to be what is known as a veto of the action of the Conference in granting laity rights to the women of the Church, and changing in the Aposties' Creed the words "Holy Catholic Church" to the words, "Christ's Holy Church." This brought the parliamentarians to the floor and points of order came thick and fast. To one of the rulings of the Chair an appeal was taken to the house. This brought on more points of order, and after the call for the ayes and nays the house refused by a considerable majority to sustain the chair. The action then came upon the Conference sustaining its vote by which the laity rights were given to the women. It required two-thirds of the house to send the question to the Annual Conferences after the veto of the Bishops, and the vote by ayes and nays showed that a very large majority adhered to the action the Conference had taken on the report of the Committee on Revisals. The vote for adhering to the action of the Conference was, ayes, 266; nays, 57.

The Conference also adhered to its action in changing the words in the Apostles' Creed. It was a rather stormy session—this part of it—and the brethren seemed, a majority of them, determined to have their way despite the veto.

The regular order, reports from standing and special committees, was resumed and a number were presented and went to the calendar.

While this call was proceeding it was moved that the regular order be suspended and that the Conference proceed to the election of Bishops. Bishop Hendrix called Dr. Tarboux to the rostrum, who led in prayer. The tellers were announced and the first ballot was taken, which showed 327 ballots cast; necessary for election, 164. The tellers retired to count the ballots.

Dr. Asbury Christian, fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the C. M. E. Church, reported his visit and the cordial reception given him by that body. After Dr. Christian's report of his visit, Rev. C. P. Neal, President of Haygood School in Arkansas, fraternal delegate from the C. M. E. Church, delivered his address, and a good one it was. He had in it both humor and sense. Several times he called forth great applause from the delegates and the audience. His tribute to the Southern Methodist Church was hearty and clear. The conclusion of his address had in it a depth of pathos that is difficult to describe. It was an appeal to the Southern Methodist Church to stand by his Church in its efforts to elevate and make religious the colored people of the South. He stated that the Negroes of his Church had always followed the leadership of the Southern Methodist Church in the past and that his Church would gladly follow that leadership in the future—that the Southern Methodist Church can trust his Church without the least fear of their failing in the things that are right and which stand for the elevation of the Negro. The statistics given by him of his Church shows a decided growth since it was organized in 1870.

Dr. Neal said that his General Conference had adopted a resolution to consider uniting with the A. M. E. and the African Zion Methodist Church, but that what had been done was only the beginning of negotiations and that the representatives of his Church in these negotiations would agree to nothing that would be an injury to the Southern Methodist Church.

Eleventh Day (Tuesday)—Afternoon Session.

The Conference was called to order at 3 o'clock p. m. by Bishop Hendrix. Prayer was offered by Dr. F. S. Parker. Bishop Candler took the chair.

The result of the first ballot for the six Bishops to be elected was announced. The number of votes cast were 327—necessary to a choice 164. Dr. John M. Moore having received 183 votes, and Dr. W. F. McMurry, 167 votes, were declared elected. A second ballot for the election of Bishops was taken.

Report No. 2 of the Committee on Temperance and Social Service pertaining to a uniform divorce law was taken up, discussed, and adopted.

Some suggestions concerning our work among the Indians from the Board of Missions were adopted.

Report No. 6 of the Committee on Itinerancy denying requests to give the Annual Conferences some voice in the selection of the presiding elders was passed, after vigorous opposition by Dr. E. W. Alderson, of the North Texas Conference.

The result of the second ballot for Bishops was then made known. Dr. U. V. W. Darlington, of the Western Virginia Conference, having received 183 votes, was declared elected. A third ballot for Bishops was taken, after which the Conference adjourned with the benediction by Dr. Edgar Blake, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Twelfth Day—Wednesday Morning.

The Conference met, with Bishop Candler in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. J. W. Perry, of the Holston Conference. Bishop Atkins took the chair.

The outcome of the third ballot for Bishops was announced. Dr. Franklin N. Parker having received 173 votes was pronounced elected. A fourth ballot was taken to select the two Bishops remaining to be chosen.

The Committee to nominate a Committee on the Entertainment of the next General Conference reported, recommending that T. D. Ellis, of the South Georgia Conference; F. A. Carter, of the Holston Conference; J. C. Burwell, of the Kentucky Conference; J. A. Rice, of the St. Louis Conference, and Walter A. Crowe, of the Central Texas Conference, be designated as the members of the said Committee. This recommendation was adopted.

"MEN OUGHT ALWAYS TO PRAY"—Luke 18:1.

More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep or goats,
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer,
Both for themselves and those who call them friends?
For so the whole round world is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.
—Tennyson.

GRACE.

The man is not strong who needs the fierce pace, nor is he strong who only reveals his strength in fits of convulsion. He is the strong man who can walk slowly, and, under a heavy weight, without staggering. And this triumph is the promised victory of grace, and the grace is surely given to those who "wait upon the Lord." Grace offers strength for the trudge on the long, gray road. Nay, grace offers more than strength, it offers companionship. It is not satisfied with the gift of power; its gift is a Friend, and He brings His own cordials and balms to our sorrows, and His own bread to our hungry needs. "They that wait upon the Lord shall walk and not faint."—Dr. J. H. Jowett, in The British Weekly.

A GREAT CHASM.

"A chasm is opening between the men who believe their Bible and the men who are prepared for an advance upon Scripture. Inspiration and speculation cannot long abide in peace. Compromise, there can be none. We cannot hold to the inspiration of the Word, and yet reject it; we cannot believe in the atonement and deny it; we cannot hold the doctrine of the fall and yet talk of the evolution of spiritual life from human nature; we cannot recognize the punishment of the impenitent and yet indulge the 'Larger Hope.' One way or the other we must go. Division is the virtue of the hour.

"Neither when we have chosen our way can we keep company with those who go the other way. There must come with decision for truth a corresponding protest against error. Let those who will keep the narrow way keep it, and suffer for their choice; but to hope to follow the broad road at the same time is an absurdity. What communion hath Christ with Belial?"—Charles Haddon Spurgeon.

DISCOVERING GOD.

God loves to be discovered. From the time that man fell in sin, and before, God has eagerly, persistently sought to have man discover Him, sought to make Himself known to man, that God and man might be in closest fellowship and in perfect understanding with each other. But there is one key to the discovery of God; and those who will not use that key can never know God. Both Job and the Apostle Paul cried out in reverent wonder and worship that God's ways are past finding out. That is God's word to us, and is therefore true; at the same time there is a blessed truth, found also in God's Word, that, as some one has well put it, "God's ways are past finding out, save by trusting." If we want to know God, we must first believe Him. If we want to understand some of His ways, we must first believe without asking to understand. The man who says he will wait until he understands exactly why God does this or that, and after he understands will then believe God, will never either understand or believe. Doubtless those who are lost because of their unbelief will never, through all eternity, understand God and God's ways. But a multitude of puzzling questions as to God's ways are instantly illuminated to us when, abandoning all our questions, we simply believe Him in blind faith. And the end, the glorious crown, of this complete and unquestioning faith in God is that some day we shall see Him "face to face," and shall know fully even as also we are fully known.—Sunday School Times.

THE RICHNESS OF POVERTY.

Marie Batterham Lindsay.

"Don't you hate to be poor?" How often we hear this or its equivalent from the lips of the young. Youth is so impatient of restriction, seeming or otherwise. Middle life has a clearer vision and old age the clearest of all.

Thus comes in the philosophy of living or of life. Poverty or riches are only relative terms. For instance, what is one man's penury is another's abundance. Thousands, aye, millions of comparatively happy mortals thrive and live on what to the so-called favored few would be galling chains of almost, if not quite, unbearable poverty.

What more does anyone want but food, shelter, and clothes? Note the order of these three absolutely necessary items for a well ordered and a happy life.

"What about pleasure?" I hear some young, lilting voice exclaim. Pleasure again is only a relative term.

There is a certain amount of deep-seated and lasting pleasure to be won from work well done—duty, if you will, well performed. There is also a vast amount of hidden joy buried in seemingly impassable obstacles. To overcome, to circumvent, to outdo, to ride over, to go around, here comes in the joy of the chase and the glory of the victor.

Work. What were all life, teeming, glorious, immutable and divine, without it? Even the Creator works, or shall we say the Master Mind of the Universe? How stupendous are His labors, how fine and infinite to our befuddled understanding, His purposes! Work? Give me work, something to do for myself, for my fellow-creatures, no matter what the pay is, pain, poverty of competence. I am happy, because, you see, I am needed.—Southern Churchman.

MY ATTITUDE TO THE CHURCH.

Dr. John Henry Jowett.

What is my attitude to the Church of which I am a member? Is it entirely defined by what I can get out of it, or have I an equal concern as to what I can give to it? You will sometimes hear one man say to another as he leaves public worship: "I didn't get much out of the service this morning." Well, here is a very searching test to apply to such a man. What did you contribute to it? When we sit in the house of God on Sundays, what is our conception of our relationship to the service? Are we merely critics, or contributors? How do I regard my function in the worship? Am I a performer, even though I am sitting in the pew, or am I there only to be entertained? We are sometimes inclined to say of a sermon, "There was nothing much in it to-day." Again, I make the challenge: What share had you in the sermon? Did you just sit as you would at a concert, passively listening, or were you an active though silent performer, wrestling with God to endow that sermon with such smashing power that the hardest would break, and chains of enslaving custom would be shattered by the hammer of the Word? And there is the anthem. How inclined we are to just sit as people who are to be entertained by its rendering, and not as people who are to share in its praise! What was my part in it? Did I contribute anything to its power, or was I disloyal to my ministry? Have I ever prayed for the organist, or for the singers that God's holy breath may so possess them that their music would come to us as the very voice and evangel of His grace? Is it not very often true that we go to church "to be ministered unto and not to minister"? And when we have robbed the visible leader of the sanctuary of our prayerful spiritual support, we often express our wonder that these people are unable to do what was the purposed work of a thousand. The real sermon, as purposed by the Lord Jesus, is a sermon preached by the minister and all his fellow-believers in the fellowship. In a very real and profound sense, a sermon is only truly preached when it is preached by a united, believing church. An anthem is only sung by the united and aspiring souls of a believing and sympathetic communion. A real worshiping church is not an audience; it is a company of fellow-laborers exercising the glorious means of grace.

MEN WANT THE GOSPEL IN THESE DISTRESSING TIMES.

By Bishop W. A. Candler.

In the lurid light of a horrible war, which was brought to pass by the loss of faith and the renunciation of moral principles by the German leaders, thoughtful men are perceiving as never before the supreme importance of the Christian religion.

Recently Hon. Henry Watterson, the able and distinguished editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, pointed out that the real issue of the war in Europe is Christianity, and that in comparison democracy is a side issue. In powerful statements and irrefutable arguments he set forth this solid and convincing fact most clearly and convincingly.

Now comes the Wall Street Journal with a strong editorial presenting another side of the same truth. The editor says:

"More than three years ago it was said in these columns that the spiritual influence of the war would have an enormous effect upon mankind and that it would mean a revival of religious belief in its best and humblest application. It should hardly be necessary to say in a newspaper which frankly appeals to business men that such development is of the most profound business importance.

"It is remarkable how the German taint had spread among our clergy of all denominations except the Catholic and perhaps the Jew. Materialism, the German substitute for the God we spiritually conceive, took the form of what was called 'higher criticism.' It reduced Christianity to a mere philosophy, inferior to many others of which the world has had experience. It denied the divinity of Christ, and it created a god for itself which was about the sort of god which might be represented by Hegel or even the Kaiser himself, plus omnipotence.

"But we are coming back to the humbler view where we recognize ourselves as creatures and not as partners with the Creator. We are learning that death is a little thing in life and that the length of life is of the smallest importance when compared with the way we live it. We are beginning to bear our burdens by sharing them. If the distribution is unequal, we shall learn better as time goes on.

"We are learning that when God in his judgment and infinite wisdom lays a burden upon our shoulders he always places his hand beneath the burden to steady it. We may so live that we only feel and resent the burden. But the war can teach us we can so live that we only feel the Hand."

These are wholesome words, which all good men, including both preachers and laymen, should lay to heart.

The Churches ought never again to be used for exhibiting in the pulpit second-hand preparations of German rationalism. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said Jesus with reference to false prophets, and by its fearful fruits German rationalism stands condemned before the world. It has brought forth death and destruction.

Fortunately for the South, this vile stuff was not put forth in many Southern pulpits; but it blighted and blasted the spiritual life of the men and women whom it touched. In the North it was far more prevalent and pernicious. But in no section of our country has it ever attained general acceptance, and it is well for the nation that it is now so generally discredited.

However, it lingers in certain wealthy universities, owned and controlled by self-perpetuating boards of trustees who are responsible to neither Church nor State. Unless a constraining public opinion drives it from these educational strongholds it will send forth its corrupting influences again when the war has passed. It behooves such able and influential papers as the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Wall Street Journal to make war upon it in these educational intrenchments.

Moreover, business men of intellectual ability should consider that, as the Wall Street Journal intimates, this is a matter "of profound business importance." The commercial world cannot prosper in default of morality, and morality cannot survive in the absence of a pure religion. This is too plain for argument. No principle of economics or business management is more well settled.

The gifts of the men of commerce have enriched the universities from which has issued this blighting rationalism, and these institutions will reform when these gifts cease and the givers proceed to tell why they withhold further donations.

Institutions of decidedly Christian character, responsible to some strong and pure Church, must be built up for the defense of the faith. Such institutions can and will do much to safeguard a high Christian civilization. We have had quite enough of irresponsible institutions through which German rationalism has been imported during the last fifty years. German spies are not more dangerous than such establisments, and as a matter of fact German emissaries have been found ensconced in professors' chairs in some of them.

But we must go farther than this. Our people must come back in simple trust and unfaltering devotion to "the faith once for all delivered to the saints." We know the fruits of that faith are good always and everywhere.

Pure and undefiled religion must be revived throughout the length and breadth of our land. Family altars which have fallen down must be rebuilt. Parents and children must come together daily to seek the face and favor of the God of our fathers. The weak and wayward must be restored to lives of piety. The lost must be found and the outcasts brought back to God.

To the accomplishment of this revival ministers of the gospel must lay aside the side issues of "criticism," "sociology," "reforms," etc., and the great fundamental truths of the Christian religion must be proclaimed anew with the power of the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. For this the people are hungering and thirsting, and for the want of it they are dying.

Some men are beginning to discuss, in the midst of these awful times, the silly question: "What must I preach after the war?" This is the most petty trifling.

Men are very serious now. Issues of life and death confront them. Unutterable sorrows are breaking their hearts. Anxieties distress their waking and their sleeping hours. Immeasurable burdens oppress them. Under such conditions they want the gospel, and nothing but the gospel, when they enter the churches.

Discourses on current topics weary them with themes of which they have heard during the week all they can bear. Petty pulpiteering over trifling matters cannot satisfy their souls, nor can musicales conducted from choir lofts by amateurs meet their wants. They resent being given a stony sermonette when they ask the bread of life, or being handed a serpentine song as a substitute for spiritual sustenance. They abhor shams in the house of God.

THE WAR.

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

VI.

Some of the Final Results of the War.

I do not know when this terrible war is going to end—no man knows. I do not think that there is any question but that we shall win—we must win—and when we do, those high ideals which this nation has proposed for itself shall be realized among men. Moreover, since there can be no peace till peace shall be established upon a righteous, just, and equitable basis, when peace does come, we shall have entered upon that age of universal peace of which the old prophets have prophesied when men shall "learn war no more"—an age of universal and lasting peace among all the nations of earth.

The people of America have been a great people to get gain, to accumulate money, and the spirit of greed has so gripped the heart of the Nation that it has been said that the almighty dollar is the god of America. I trust that one of the results of the war will be that the spirit of greed shall be forever driven from our commercial life, and that there shall be born in the heart of this Nation a recognition of the brotherhood of man.

The war is also going to make the American people a more serious, sober-minded people. We have not yet begun to realize the seriousness of this war. Our government authorities are doing everything in their power to awaken us to the seriousness of the situation, but we, in our complacency, refuse to be awakened. During the past several years, it seems to me, the spirit of levity has possessed us as a nation. We are out for "a good time." We seek pleasure, sport, worldly amusements. "Eat, drink, and be merry," is our motto; but one day we are going to awake to the seriousness of the situation which we now face. Already the shadows of death are falling across the thresholds of our homes. We are beginning to scan the list of casualties, and when we have come out of the furnace of this war, the spirit of levity will be burned out of our hearts, and we are going to be a clear-thinking, sober-minded people.

Still another result of the war will be the death of the present widespread, pernicious spirit of indifference toward the Church. The Church has been losing its grip upon the hearts and lives of men because they have failed to appreciate the Church as a factor that makes for righteousness in the life of the community and in the life of the Nation; but the fact that the men who are at the head of our government are making scores of appeals to the Church is an indication of the fact that they appreciate the inspirational power of the Church. Reports from England and France are to the effect that even now the people are flocking to the churches for comfort and consolation as never before in the history of those nations. Even French infidels are falling on their knees and crying, "O God, to whom shall we go, if not to thee, in this hour of stress and storm!" So, when this war is over, if not before, there is going to be an increased church attendance, and the Church will be a recognized factor, not only for "the life to come," but also in "the life that now is." Furthermore, the contributions which men are making as a matter of patriotism to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. work, and through other agencies for the alleviation of human suffering are going to increase their gifts to the Church. According to the statements of the churchmen of England, men are even now giving more largely to the Church than ever before. Through their gifts to the various war agencies, men are ascertaining how much they can give, and when the lesson has been learned they will give their hundreds where they once gave their fives, and their thousands where they once gave their hundreds. Hence, the man who uses his gifts to the Red Cross and other war agencies as an excuse for refusing to give to the Church, when the war is over, is going to be a back number—an anachronism, a useless member of society, though standing in the radiant light of that new day.

Yes, the war is going to change all the conditions under which we now live, and change them for the better. Conditions in politics, in commerce, in society, in religion, will undergo a wonderful transformation, and we shall scarcely know the old world in which we have been living. The Church must begin now to make her preparation to meet these changes which she must face, if she would continue to exert an influence upon the lives of men, and be ready to take her God-given place in a new world. Mr. Wilson said that we are in this war to "make the world safe for democracy." Bishop Atkins, in a great address in the city of Memphis, said that after the war it will be the business of the Church to "make democracy safe for the world;" and if the Church rises to the highest measure of her responsibility, we are going to have a brighter, happier, and a better world in which to live. Therefore, O children of God, "Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow: for thus saith the Lord God of Israel There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel, thou canst not stand before thine enemies until ye take away the accursed thing from among you."

AN APPRECIATION.

Other and abler pens have paid tribute, yet by the friendship of more than half a century, I claim the privilege of placing one small flower upon the grave of Rev. S. M. Thames. In all the walks of life he was a man of sterling worth. He loved his Church, and no trust committed by her failed to receive his loyal service. As a preacher, he was easily the peer of his associates. His mind being of stalwart mold enabled him to grapple successfully with subjects too deep for lesser minds to touch. His remarkable memory was a marvel. Though never given to making notes, he could upon short notice reproduce a sermon preached many years before. As a presiding elder, his real character, perhaps, showed brightest. All through the year and during Conference his care was manifested in supplying his district. The best interests of the Church and the welfare of the man were to him like twin thoughts. No interest was overlooked. It was said by one who knew him well, "Thames is the best presiding elder I know." After a close association with him for more than fifty years, I feel assured that the lamp of his friendship did not grow dim. If by God's will we meet beyond the heaven's blue, I expect to find in Brother Thames the same constant, true friend. He has passed from life's limitations to the "city which hath foundations of precious gems"—the city where mansions prepared by Christ himself await all those who serve him in spirit and in truth.

S. R. E.

HYPOCRITES IN THE CHURCH.

By a Country Parson.

Yes, there are. Christ had but twelve disciples and one was a hypocrite. Yes, my son, there are hypocrites among Christians, and there are hypocrites among the Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, Red Men, Woodmen, Masons, and among men of all other societies, be they fraternal, beneficial or even scientific or philosophical. They are in every trade, business and profession. They are found alike among men and women. They are everywhere but in heaven—there are none there. There are more in hell than anywhere else, for this is their rounding-up place. It is strangely illogical, therefore, that men should remain out of the Church to avoid hypocrites, when they meet with them in every walk of life, and when this very neglect of divine things may cause them to spend eternity in their society.

In addition to their illogical reasoning, some men by affirming that they are not in the Church because of the presence of hypocrites prove themselves to be hypocrites, for they know this is but an excuse—it is not the real reason. The real reason is that, unlike Moses, they choose not to suffer affliction with the people of God, but to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. They elect for themselves the hypocrite's portion. The only wise course, as they have but one life to live, is to become a part of the mystical body of Christ, live such a life as to shame the hypocrites, cause them to repent of their hypocrises and to follow you even as you follow Christ.—Baltimore Southern Methodist.

NOTICE.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Lafayette District will meet with the preachers of the District at Abbeville for their district conference. Every auxiliary is urged to send a delegate. The woman's conference will convene Tuesday morning, May 28, at 9:30.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Bible Society was, upon the motion of Dr. James Cannon, then taken up for consideration. After a somewhat extended address by Dr. W. I. Haven, a representative of that Society, the report was unanimously approved.

The result of the fourth ballot for Bishops was then announced, showing that Dr. H. M. DuBose and Dr. W. N. Ainsworth had been elected, the former having received 173 votes, and the latter 159.

A ballot was taken for two Book Agents to direct the publishing interests of the Church, under the general supervision of the Book Committee.

Dr. F. J. Prettyman read a communication from the Secretary of the Board of Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church, in which it was stated that Rev. William G. Walsh had been named as fraternal messenger to the General Conference from that denomination. Dr. Walsh was then introduced and delivered an interesting address.

The tellers appeared and the result of the ballot taken for Book Agents was announced. A. J. Lamar, having received 250 votes, and D. M. Smith, having received 271 votes, were declared elected. The Conference then voted by ballot to elect a Book Editor.

Report No. 3 of the Committee on Church Relations was then read and taken up for consideration. This report bore on the matter of Unification. There was also a minority report, which Judge J. S. Candler made a motion to substitute for the majority report, the motion being duly seconded. Much discussion followed.

Both of these reports provided for the continuance of a Commission to treat further with the Church, North, if it should be deemed advisable. The chief points of difference between them were as follows: (1) The minority report made provision for the continuance of the same Commission that had been serving the Church, while the majority report proposed the continuance of "a commission," the complexion of which was unknown. 2. The minority report provided that there were to be no further negotiations unless they should be invited by the General Conference of the Church, North; the majority report left the matter of future negotiations to our Commissioners. 3. The minority report was more explicit in its affirmation that the Negroes as a condition precedent to union must be placed in a separate Church; the majority report reaffirmed allegiance to the Oklahoma City enactment, but was somewhat more indefinite at this point.

While the discussion was in progress, the tellers came in with the results of the ballot for Book Editor tabulated. It showed no election, but Dr. F. M. Thomas was far in the lead, having received 154 votes. A second ballot was taken.

The debate was resumed, Drs. Cannon and Alderson speaking. When the outcome of the second ballot for Book Editor was made known, it developed that Dr. F. M. Thomas was elected by a large majority, having received 259 votes. Following this, a vote was taken for Editor of the Christian Advocate, after which the Conference adjourned, with the benediction by Dr. W. I. Haven.

Twelfth Day—Wednesday Afternoon.

The Conference was called to order at 3 p. m. by Bishop Atkins. Dr. W. Asbury Christian led the devotions. After the minutes were read and approved, the result of the ballot for Editor of the Christian Advocate was read. Dr. T. N. Ivey had received 228 votes and was declared elected. A vote was taken for the Editor of Sunday School Literature.

The discussion of the two reports concerning the Unification question was then resumed. Dr. John O. Willson, of South Carolina, offered the following amendment to the majority report: "We further instruct our Commission that the welfare of the South and the fixed opinions of the great body of our people make it very unwise, if the peace of our Zion is to be preserved, to vary from the Oklahoma deliverance of this body concerning the place of Negroes in a unified Methodism, and that we must safeguard all the interests of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America."

Dr. Willson's amendment was voted down. The debate continued through the remainder of the afternoon session, Mr. M. M. Satterfield, of Natchez; Dr. F. J. Prettyman, of Washington; Dr. A. F. Watkins, of Jackson, Miss., and Judge H. H. White, of Louisiana, being among the speakers.

The tellers reported during the session that Dr. E. B. Chappell had been elected Editor of Sunday School Literature, having been given 287 votes. The body then balloted for a Missionary Secretary, with the result that Dr. W. W. Pinson was re-elected, receiving 203 votes. A ballot was also taken for Church Extension Secretary, which resulted in no election, whereupon the Conference again took a vote by ballot.

Thirteenth Day—Thursday Morning.

At 9 o'clock Bishop Denny took the chair, and Dr. D. H. Kern, of the Baltimore Conference, led the devotional exercises. The minutes of the preceding session were read and approved. Bishop Denny surrendered the chair to Bishop Kilgo.

The second ballot for Secretary of the Church Extension Board was read. Dr. H. A. Boaz, of the Central Conference, having received 148 votes, was declared elected. The Conference then balloted for Secretary of the Epworth League.

Dr. Franklin N. Parker, having obtained the floor upon a question of personal privilege, made the following statement:

"I wish to make a brief statement. I have passed through some severe crises in my life. One was when I was licensed to preach. I got through that all right. Others were when I was ordained deacon and elder. Through thirty-two years the Methodist Church has taken care of me, and all that is best in this life I owe to her, under God. Yesterday, by your action in calling me to the office of Bishop, you put me in contact with the severest struggle in my existence. I have never been through such a twenty-four hours as have elapsed since that time. Of all things that I love on this earth, I love the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. As I have said, I owe practically everything to her. I want to do everything that can further her wonderful work and do nothing to hinder it. As I have thought over the matter of this great and responsible office to which you have called me, I have a very profound doubt as to my qualifications for it. There is a question there: 'Are you persuaded that you are truly called to this ministration, according to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ?' I have a doubt in my own mind, and have had, and have never been able to dissipate it. It has been standing before me. I simply feel the lack of qualification for this great task. This is the whole question. I am not bound by any other consideration. There is no other form of service that holds me. I am absolutely not wedded to any particular work of the Church, such as the educational work in which I am now engaged. I am not bound by it at all. It is a perfectly simple question, as to the ready ability to say in my own heart that I should put myself upon the Church to do this great work. After twenty-four hours of thought and prayer upon it, I simply feel that I must decline the offer."

Following Dr. Parker's statement, Dr. John O. Willson offered a resolution regretfully accepting Dr. Parker's declination and committing the Conference to be content with the election of five Bishops, instead of six. In view of the pending order, this resolution was not considered.

The debate of the minority and majority reports from the Committee on Church relations was resumed, Dr. Bascomb Anthony being the first speaker. At the close of his address, the tellers reported that of 266 votes cast for Secretary of the Epworth League, Dr. F. S. Parker had received 229, being thus elected by a large majority. The Conference then took a vote for Secretary of Education.

Bishop Hendrix presented Dr. Wallace McMullen, of Drew Theological Seminary, fraternal messenger from the Methodist Episcopal Church, who came to take the place of Dr. W. V. Kelley, whose illness prevented him from coming to Atlanta. It was announced that Dr. McMullen would deliver his address to-morrow morning.

The pending question concerning unification was again taken up. While Dr. James Cannon, Jr., was making the concluding address in behalf of the majority report, Judge John S. Candler advanced to the front, and the following colloquy took place:

"John S. Candler: May I ask you a question that may save some time?"

"James Cannon, Jr.: Yes."

"J. S. Candler: As chairman of this Committee, who prepared the majority report, and as the member of the General Conference of 1914, at Oklahoma City, who offered what I have alluded to there as the Oklahoma declaration, do you state to this General Conference now that in this majority report we do fully and absolutely approve of the action of the General Conference as to our position on the Negro question?"

"James Cannon, Jr.: Here is what our report says in section 2: 'We hereby reaffirm the action of the General Conference of 1914.' I do not see how I could write any language that expresses more clearly the fact that Judge Candler now asks me to state than that language."

Judge Candler then withdrew the minority report, and the majority report was adopted by a large majority. The chairman inadvertently announced that it was unanimously passed, though seven of the eight delegates from the North Mississippi Conference voted against it and there were a number of persons in other sections of the auditorium who stood up in opposition to it.

Later a resolution was passed that if the Joint Commission on Unification should agree on a plan for uniting the two Episcopal Methodisms and the General Conference of the Church, North, should agree thereto, a special session of our General Conference may be called to deal with the matter. It was stated in the discussion of the resolution that this action would not change the present status respecting this question, since it would be at the option of the College of Bishops to call a special session or not—a power which they already had.

The tellers reported that Dr. Stonewall Anderson had received 196 votes for the office of Secretary of Education, being accordingly elected. This completed the election of the connectional officers.

The question of Dr. F. N. Parker's declination of the office of Bishop again came up for disposal. In the course of a running discussion, Dr. Parker made a second brief statement in harmony with his first utterance, adding to the other things he had said that he had not been in a good state of health for some years. His declination was then accepted, and a ballot was taken for another Bishop to take the place which he had declined. This ballot resulted in the election of Dr. James Cannon, Jr., who received 169 votes.

The Committee appointed for that purpose nominated the following persons for trustees of Emory University, who were duly elected:

For eight years: Asa G. Candler, Sr., R. N. Page, T. T. Fishburne, R. E. Cooper, J. J. Gray, Jr., Bishop J. C. Kilgo, A. J. Lamar, J. E. Dickey, W. D. Thomson, Bishop W. A. Candler.

For six years: Sam Tate, F. J. Prettyman, L. N. Dantzler, E. B. Chappell, Bishop W. B. Murrah, Bishop J. H. McCoy, W. G. M. Thomas, Judge J. A. McCullough, G. T. Fitzhugh, H. R. Fitzgerald.

For four years: L. M. Lipscomb, Plato T. Durham, W. M. Nixon, T. K. Glenn, L. W. Branch, T. D. Ellis, J. H. Willson, L. D. Hamilton, I. C. Jenkins, Lamar Sparkman.

OUR NEW BISHOPS.

(The following facts concerning our six new Bishops are taken from the Daily Christian Advocate.)

Bishop Moore.

John Monroe Moore (D.D., Ph.D.) was born January 27, 1867, in Morgantown, Ky. He was educated in Lebanon College, Ohio, Yale University, and the University of Leipzig, Germany. He was for some years a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was licensed to preach in 1887. Among the pastorates that he has served are the following: Marvin, St. Louis, Mo.; Travis Park, San Antonio; First Church, Dallas, Texas; St. John's, St. Louis, Mo. Dr. Moore was Assistant Editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, 1906 to 1909. He was a member of the Joint Commission editing the Methodist Hymnal, and is a member of the Joint Commission on Unification. Since 1910 he has been the Secretary of the Department of Home Missions of our Church. He is author of "Etchings of the East" and "The South of To-day."

Bishop McMurry.

William Fletcher McMurry (D.D.) was born June 29, 1864, in Shelby County, Missouri. He was educated in St. Charles College and Central College, Missouri. The following are some of the pastorates served by him: St. Joseph, Macon, Richmond, and Centenary Church, St. Louis. He also served as presiding elder of the St. Joseph District and the St. Louis District. He is a trustee of Marvin College and Central College. He has given to the public some notably useful volumes, among which are: "The Down-town Church" and a series of "Church Extension Hand-Books." Since 1906, Dr. McMurry had been Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, in which office he made a great record, which has challenged the attention not only of our entire denomination, but also of all the other Churches of the Nation.

Bishop Darlington.

Urban Valentine Williams Darlington (D.D.) was born August 3, 1870, in Shelby County, Kentucky. He was educated in the common schools and at Kentucky Wesleyan College. He was licensed to preach at the age of eighteen, and joined the Kentucky Conference in 1896. He served pastorates at Washington, Millersburg, and Scott Street, Covington, in the Kentucky Conference, and St. Paul's, Parkersburg, and Johnson Memorial, Huntington, in the Western Virginia Conference. He also served as presiding elder of the Ashland District, and for the past two or three years had been President of Morris-Harvey College, at Barboursville, West Virginia.

Bishop DuBose.

Horace Mellard DuBose (D.D.) was born November 7, 1858, in Choctaw County, Alabama. He was educated in Waynesboro Academy, Mississippi, and by tutors. Among his pastorates were the following: St. James, Galveston, Texas; Trinity, Los Angeles; Tyler, Texas; First Church, Jackson, Miss.; St. John's, Augusta, Ga., and First Church, Atlanta. Dr. DuBose was General Secretary of the Epworth Leagues of our Church from 1898 to 1910, and had been our Book Editor and Editor of the Methodist Review since the death of Dr. Gross Alexander in 1915. He has been a prolific writer, and is an author of distinction, having given to the public many volumes of interest, including works of fiction, poetry, biography, theology, and history.

Bishop Ainsworth.

William Newman Ainsworth (D.D.) was born February 10, 1872, in Camilla, Ga. He was educated at Emory College, and entered the South Georgia Conference in 1891. He has served the following pastorates: Grace Church, Macon, Ga.; Montezuma; Bainbridge, Dublin; Mulberry Street, Macon, and Wesley Monumental Church, Savannah. Dr. Ainsworth was the President of Wesleyan Female College, 1909-1912. He was a member of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference in 1911, and was recently our fraternal messenger to the Methodist Church of Canada. He is the youngest man elected to the episcopacy by the late General Conference.

Bishop Cannon.

James Cannon, Jr. (D.D.), was born on November 13, 1864, in Salisbury, Md. He was educated at the Salisbury High School, Randolph-Macon College, and Princeton University. As a pastor he served the Charlotte Circuit; Trinity Church, Newport News, and Farmville. For many years Dr. Cannon has been the Editor and chief owner of the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate and President of the Blackstone College for Girls. Other positions of prominence that he has held are the following: General Superintendent of the Southern Assembly at Lake Junaluska; Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia, and Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America. Dr. Cannon has for several quadrenniums been regarded as perhaps the ablest debater on the floor of the General Conference. He has an enormous capacity for work, having lately had at his disposal three stenographers: one in Washington, D. C., one in Richmond, and a third at his home in Farmville, Va. Bishop Cannon is admitted by all to be a remarkably strong and forceful man.

REV. FRANKLIN N. PARKER, D.D.,

Who last week declined the office of Bishop.

If we mistake not, Dr. Parker is the third man in the history of our Church to decline to accept the office of Bishop. In 1882 Atticus Greene Haygood was called to the episcopacy, but refused the office, preferring to remain the President of Emory College. Eight years later, in 1890, he was again elected Bishop and this time he agreed to serve the Church. In 1898 Elijah Embree Hoss declined the office of Bishop. The General Conference had intended to elect only two men, but three men received a majority of the votes cast (Bishop Candler 148, Bishop Morrison 140, and Bishop Hoss 129) and were therefore all duly elected. An effort was made to have the General Conference consider all three men as Bishops and would no doubt have been successful but for the fact that Bishop Hoss declined to have his election considered under the circumstances. Four years later, in 1902, he was again elected Bishop by an unusually large majority and agreed to serve the Church. There has been no man in the Southern Methodist Church to decline the office of Bishop who was not elevated to the episcopacy later.

For the benefit of those not informed as to his record, we give the following facts concerning the career of Dr. Parker. He was born in New Orleans, La., on May 20, 1867. He was educated at Centenary College, Tulane University, and Vanderbilt. He wrought in the following pastorates: Patterson, Baton Rouge, and Carrollton Ave., Parker Memorial, Rayne Memorial and Carondelet St., New Orleans. He also served as presiding elder of the Lafayette, Alexandria, and New Orleans Districts. He was the head of the Biblical Department of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., 1912-'16, since which time he has been Professor of Systematic Theology at Emory University.

OUR NEW BOOK EDITOR.

Rev. Frank Morehead Thomas, D.D., who was elected Book Editor and Editor of the Methodist Review by the General Conference in Atlanta last week, was born in Bowling Green, Ky., on July 3, 1868. He was educated in Ogden College and Vanderbilt University. He has served the following pastorates: Henderson, Owensboro, Morganfield, Crescent Hill, Lander Memorial, Walnut Street, and Fourth Avenue, Louisville. He was also for a term presiding elder of the Louisville District. He was a chaplain in the Spanish-American War, and was fraternal messenger to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Minneapolis in 1912. Among the products of his pen are: "A Short Guide to Bookdom," "The Apostolic Church," and "The Commanding Presence." Dr. Thomas received a large vote for the episcopacy in Atlanta.

DR. H. A. BOAZ, CHURCH EXTENSION SECRETARY.

Rev. Hiram Abiff Boaz, D.D., was born in Murray, Ky., on December 18, 1866. He was educated in the Fort Worth High School, the Sam Houston Normal Institute, and the Southwestern University at Georgetown, Texas. He has filled pastorates as follows: First Church, and Mulkey Memorial, Fort Worth; Abilene, and Dublin, Texas. He was for a time the Vice-President of Southern Methodist University, and since 1913 has been President of the Texas Woman's College. Dr. Boaz has pursued graduate studies at some of the leading Northern universities, being an earnest seeker after knowledge, as well as a practical man of affairs.

EPISCOPAL ASSIGNMENTS.

(From the New Orleans Daily States.)

Atlanta, Ga., May 18.—Announcement of the boundaries of the Episcopal districts, as decided upon by the College of Bishops, was the principal business transacted at to-day's session of the Southern Methodist General Conference. The districts as given out by Bishop Collins Denny, Secretary of the College, are:

First District—Bishop E. R. Hendrix, Western Virginia, Virginia and Baltimore Conferences.

Second District—Bishop Warren A. Candler, North Georgia, South Georgia and Florida Conferences.

Third District—Bishop James Atkins, Tennessee, North Alabama and Memphis Conferences.

Fourth District—Bishop Collins Denny, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisville and Holston Conferences.

Fifth District—Bishop J. C. Kilgo, North Mississippi, Louisiana, and Mississippi Conferences.

Sixth District—Bishop W. B. Murrah, Denver, Missouri, Southwest Missouri, and St. Louis Conferences.

Seventh District—Bishop W. R. Lambuth, war work and African Mission.

Eighth District—Bishop E. D. Mouzon, Western Oklahoma, East Oklahoma, Little Rock, and North Arkansas Conferences, and the Indian Mission.

Ninth District—Bishop J. H. McCoy, Alabama Conference and Cuban Mission.

Tenth District—Bishop John M. Moore, Brazil, and South Brazil Conferences.

Eleventh District—Bishop W. F. McMurry, Japan, Korea, and China Mission.

Twelfth District—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., the Mexican Conferences and Missions.

Thirteenth District—Bishop H. M. DuBose, Pacific, Los Angeles, and New Mexico Conferences.

Fourteenth District—Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, North and South Carolina Conferences.

Fifteenth District—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, the Texas Conferences.

Faith in Jesus Christ never can be the outcome of a logical process. Faith in Him has something more vital, more personal about it—it is to give up a man's self to what he believes to be the most godlike and the most divine.—Alexander A. C. Mann.

WAR CONDITIONS

— REFLECTED IN —

TELEPHONE SERVICE

Among the unforeseen conditions which the war has imposed upon us is the necessity of practically suspending the commercial development of our business.

Confronted with an unusual increase in the use of the telephone and a strong demand for new and additional service, we cannot accept or fill orders except subject to practically an indefinite delay.

This situation is due to the importance of conserving our supplies so that the government's requirements may be promptly met by giving the War Department service anywhere and at any time the request is made.

BOYCE AND THE REVIVAL.

A revival meeting was held at Boyce, La., beginning April 28 and closing May 8, during which time a large number were converted or reclaimed, eighteen united with the Church, and large congregations participated in two services daily. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Faulk, was assisted by Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of New Orleans. That is a typical news item, and tells the whole story, so far is its effect for good is concerned, but there are so many frills and sensations running current and cross-current that compose what we term the points of human interest that I am disposed to lengthen this article and put in the frills and currents.

I left New Orleans Monday, April 29, on a slow train. After nine years in Louisiana I find it impossible to ride far without meeting friends. Thank God for friends, especially on a slow train. I had loaded myself with "Mother Pic," the "Digest," "World's Work" and Forest's "The Christ of History and Experience," thinking that I would drive dull care away, but I was nearly to Alexandria before the hour of sociability was over, and I had discussed everything from the war, prospective Bishops, and cotton, to cattle ticks.

At Boyce, Rev. J. W. Faulk met me and carried my "coal-black trunk," and we waded sloppy walks through a gentle rain to the parsonage. It had been raining and old Red River was on a rampage. The river quit ramping and the rain ceased for the night and for the whole meeting. Brother Faulk had arranged for me to dine out, and from the time I dropped anchor in Boyce I was just in the act of going out dining from morning till night. You may talk about hospitality North or South—the fact is when a preacher yields himself without a protest to the hospitality of the ladies of Boyce, he not only goes out to dinner but to breakfast and supper.

The people of Boyce are friendly. I wish I might mention all the friendly ones by name, but I am not publishing a directory of the citizens of Boyce. I am really writing about a revival meeting. The first night of the service gave us the smallest crowd we had. Dr. S. H. Werlein had opened the meeting Sunday night with a sermon on "Heaven." I heard about that sermon before I had been in town thirty minutes, and heaven after the Werlein stamp was sung in my presence until I opened my little jug of sermons and took my own sermon on heaven out, and if Boyce ever hears me preach on heaven it will be on a subsequent visit. The people of Boyce want to go to heaven.

The details of the revival are: The crowds grew; Brother Faulk moved his piano to the church; the music improved; the handsome addition to the church was seated and filled; people began to pray for each other and the church membership warmed up; unconverted people began to seek Christ, found him, and there was great joy; others came and still others, and when the meeting closed on Wednesday night it was with the house packed to its limit and spiritual feeling running high.

"Johnnie" Faulk is one of the men of Boyce. The fact that he is pastor of the Methodist Church there is a matter of appointment, but the fact that he is regarded as a power in all matters, both religious and civic, is due to his own faithfulness, carefulness and prayerfulness. His home is a Christian center and the queen of the parsonage is known as the "power behind the throne."

Much might be said of Boyce, but I am not planning to start a land boom there, so I will desist from mentioning mineral water boiling hot, oil wells, rich soil, good schools, neat and well cared for churches and fine people. It is enough to say that the people who live in Boyce are glad of it, and I did not hear any one talking about moving away.

I might mention in closing that by the kindness and sure aim of Brother Tom Ball, I was piloted into and through Camp Beauregard, and the trip over 52 miles of Rapides dirt and the association with the soldiers and the traveling party, and the splendid courtesy of Major Sam D. Crawford of the 153d Infantry, enabled me to have in my memory the recollection of a perfect day.

A. J. GEARHEARD.

THAT EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE

At Grenada, Miss., June 4-7.

Bigger, better, brighter, happier—it impels and compels. To miss it is to do yourself an injustice. The fellowship is about all that can be desired. It will be baptized with helpful tears and shot through with equally helpful laughter.

The dignity and poise of the bishopric is found—Bishop Quayle will give that. The versatility that keeps one guessing, reaching the unsaved, administering "pep" to the saved—Knickerbocker, of Texas, assures that. Literary flavor, "higher criticism without the malodor of "destructiveness," geniality that bends without breaking; leave that to Dr. Rice. Are you interested in sanitation—"how to keep well?" Our own Dr. Leathers will have an hour that will make you want to take a bath.

P. E.'s, take notice. P. C.'s, see that your P. E. is there. A P. E. from Alabama will be present who DOES THINGS. That alone is worth the price twice over. He will discuss the problem of the rural church.

Say, fellows, this is our occasion. Write it on the fleshy tablets of your hearts; keep it before your eyes lest you forget. Talk it over with your wife. Have her bring you along. Tell your laymen about it. They need it. Remember, they have been hearing YOU for six months.

Patriotism, sanitation, church building, debt-paying, crowd-getting, leadership, fellowship, inspiring music—there will not be a dull hour, and all cheaper than staying at home. Write President Countiss, or Commissioner Brownlee, or Pastor Tucker (not pastor Russell), that you and yours will be there.

An occasion second to none deserves an attendance second to none. Both are assured.

JAMES H. FELTS.

FROM BROTHER DAVIS.

Dear Doctor Meek: Your excellent paper visits us weekly and gladdens our hearts. Its editorials and contributions furnish food for the brain and the heart. They are at once an inspiration and a comfort. The Advocate is a blessing—a benediction. Its old-fashioned, orthodox religion appeals to an octogenarian, who became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church four years before the separation of 1844. He loves the Methodist interpretation of the blessed Book. What a temptation to enlarge! But not now.

Brookhaven is as lovely as it is lively. Its citizenship is fine. We have so many good men and godly women.

Brookhaven and Methodists throughout the State and country at large rejoice in the miraculous escape of our dear presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, from death, when his automobile went into a ditch fifteen feet deep. We rejoice, too, that, notwithstanding his fractured shoulder, he has been able to occupy his place in the General Conference, in session at Atlanta.

Doctors Cooper and Henry and Lay Delegate Davis are also at Atlanta.

Whitworth College commencement will include May 19-21, and it will be a great occasion. Dr. Cooper is "the right man in the right place." The College is worthy of the highest commendation and the largest patronage. Dr. Cooper's educational ideals are bearing fruit. He is carving his name on the temple of fame. An educated people require an educated as well as consecrated ministry. We rejoice to learn that Dr. Cooper is succeeding in his laudable undertaking.

A. LEONIDAS DAVIS.

Brookhaven, Miss., May 15, 1918.

MRS. ESTELLE HARVARD CLEMENTS.

Mrs. Estelle Harvard Clements, one of the most devoted and earnest workers our Church has ever had, was called to her heavenly home on April 23, after nineteen or twenty years of faithful service in the Church and at Candler College, Havana, Cuba. Her place in the Church and in the hearts of the Cuban people, whom she loved dearly, can never be filled; and the loss to her noble husband, Rev. E. E. Clements, and the dear children, is irreparable. Let us carry them to the throne of grace that the Father all bountiful may supply their great need in this sad hour of trial.

MRS. E. H. CLEMENTS.

None knew her but to love her,
  None named her but to praise;
Her life was one of service
  To Him who blessed her days.

Called to labor in His vineyard,
  Where harvest fields were white;
She garnered a golden harvest
  In the power of His might.

How like the blessed Savior!
  Her own fair life was spent,
In ministering unto others
  Whereunto she was sent.

Oh, Cuba, how she loved you!
  Her life she gladly gave,
For the pearls indeed are priceless
  In the souls she helped to save.

Though she walks no more amongst us;
  Her work has but begun.
We feel her presence living
  And hear the Master's, "Well done."

God bade her come up higher
  To join the ransomed host.
And watch and wait the coming
  Of those she treasured most.

'Tis sad indeed the parting,
  To friends and family, too;
But our God is all merciful,
  And knoweth what best to do.

How precious the sacred memory
  Of wife so true and mother pure;
A legacy—most priceless,
  'Twill through the ages endure.

So, dear ones, let us but rejoice,
  Her sweet, pure life came our way,
And leads us ever on and upward,
  'Till resurrection Day.

Then we shall behold Him,
  And she, too, shall appear—
The same sweet face and graces
  We loved so much while here.

A devoted friend,
MARY CESSNA WALL.

Como, Miss., May 11, 1918.

BLESSED ARE THE POOR IN SPIRIT.

A modern seer writes: "Everything can be endured except continual prosperity." The life that needs nothing, or that thinks it needs nothing, does not reach upward, and soon drops its communication with the Giver of all good. He who is so rich that he has nothing to ask is the poorest of all.—Anonymous.

The Home Circle

WHY JOHNNY FAILED.

Johnny had a little mind;
It was his very own,
And nothing could be put in it
Except by him alone.
It wasn't very big, it's true,
But there was room inside
For lots of things, chosen out
As Johnny should decide.

Mother and father gave to him
All sorts of good advice;
But Johnny never put it in
Or thought about it twice;
But all the ugly things the boys
Upon the corners said,
Why, Johnny picked them up at once
And put them in his head.

At school the teacher tried her best
To give him facts and rules
Of every useful sort—but no,
For Johnny hated schools.
He picked up brag and vulgar slang,
Dime novels, too, ten deep.
And filled his mind till it was like
A tainted rubbish heap.

So when the day of manhood came,
When Johnny searched his mind
For skill and power, it played him false,
And nothing could he find
But worthless trash and ugly thoughts,
And so he failed, alas!
Is any other boy who reads this Coming to Johnny's pass?

LITTLE BOYS AND LITTLE SHEEP.

Joe came home with his clothes, and even his curly hair, all wringing wet. "Just knew the ice wasn't strong enough," he grumbled.

"Then why did you slide?" asked auntie.

"'Cause all the other boys did," said Joe; "so I had to, or they'd laugh."

His aunt gave him dry clothes, set him down by the fire, and made him drink hot ginger tea. Then she told him a story.

"When I was a little girl, Joe, my father had a great flock of sheep. They were queer things; where one went, all the rest followed. One day the big ram found a gap in the fence, and he thought it would be fun to see what was in the other field. So in he jumped, without looking where he was going, and down he tumbled to the bottom of an old, dry well where father used to throw stones and rubbish. The next sheep never stopped to see what had become of him, but just jumped right after, and the next, and the next, although father tried to drive them back, and Watch, the sheep dog, barked his loudest. But they just kept on jumping till the well was full. Then father had to pull them out as best he could, and the sheep at the bottom of the well were almost smothered to death."

"My! what silly fellows!" exclaimed Joe. Then he looked up at his aunt and laughed.—Author Unknown.

EVELYN AND A FORTUNE.

Tony had big eyes and was always looking for the marvelous. He was continually picking up some wonderful tale from the newspapers and telling it very impressively for a ten-year-old. He looked up from his bread and butter and peach sauce now to say:

"A man died the other day who had thrown away five million dollars."

"Why, how had he done that?"

Even father was interested.

"It was in Australia, and he owned a mining lease, whatever that is, on a big mine. Only it wasn't working yet. And the man got discouraged and thought nothing would come of it, so he sold it for a hundred and fifty dollars. But the other people who bought it worked it, and they found out that it was almost the richest mine in the country. They got five million dollars out of it, and if he had hung on to it the five million would have been his."

"Oh, I wish I had such a chance," said Evelyn, her eyes shining.

She didn't know, nor did anybody else, that she was to have a chance that very evening of losing or holding on to something so very valuable that it was priceless. She doesn't know yet that it was anything but an ordinary occasion. It happened in this way:

Just after she opened her arithmetic and began to figure, a rattle and a clatter was heard outside and gay voices began to call her:

"Evelyn!"

"Evie!"

"Evie, Evie! Ev! Come out."

Evelyn knew what it meant. The girls had come for her to go roller-skating. And it was such a beautiful night to skate. The moon was so bright that, even looking out of a lighted room, Evelyn could see the trees and walks and houses all silvery. She stepped to the window and pushed it up.

"I can't go, girls; I haven't worked my examples."

"Oh, do them in the morning!"

"I can't. I have to help about the work. Mother is gone, you know."

"I should think that when your mother is gone would be just the time when you could do as you want to."

"Oh, come out for just a little while, Ev. You can study when you get in."

It was hard to resist. Only one who has been through a like temptation can understand how hard it was, for it was the voice of her dearest friend, Dora Hallock, that was coaxing, and to go anywhere with Dora was a delight. But Evelyn answered bravely:

"No; I know I wouldn't do them when I come in. I must work these examples before I do anything else."

The joyous crowd rattled away a little more slowly and less noisily.

"Ev's good," said Dora. "I haven't worked my examples, either. I believe I'll go in and study, too, girls."

"Let's all go in," said Hattie Kelly. "Miss Taylor is getting so fierce I don't know what will happen if we miss any more. We can skate to-morrow night, when there isn't any school to go to the next day."

And so every one of them went in. Miss Taylor was astonished and delighted at the good arithmetic lessons the next day, and decided that, after all, she would not put the class back as she had thought of doing.

Some way, there was a new spirit in it. There is apt to be after a tussel and victory. Evelyn didn't know that she deserved any of the credit of it. But the recording angel, who puts down earthly struggles and victories and defeats, knew, I think, that a very great good was accomplished by that seemingly small act of Evelyn's. Knowledge is more valuable than gold, and to throw away the chance of getting it is more foolish than to sell a five-million-dollar mine for one hundred and fifty dollars!—Journal and Messenger.

ONE OF LIFE'S LESSON'S.

"All of us who have found the way a little rough in spots are tempted at times to think ill of somebody and to feel a desire to get even. Looked at in a broad way, this is not only needless but extremely shortsighted. It is wrong, just as a matter of selfish interest. No man's system can function properly when full of hate. And why hate anybody? For, really, there is nothing personal about ill-treatment. The man who has been unkind to me probably has a disposition which makes him unkind to nearly everybody else. If he is mean to everybody, he will 'get his' sooner or later. And if I, on the other hand, am decent to everybody, I am reasonably certain to be reasonably happy. The laws of retribution are mostly in the hands of the Almighty, and it is really presumptuous for any individual to try to take over the job of seeing to their proper operation."—The American Magazine.

THE LITLE GIRL AND THE CONDUCTOR.

All night long the great through express train had been rushing along in the darkness, while men, women, and children slept safely and were carried where they wished to go.

In one of the sleeping-cars was a little girl, and when the conductor went through for the first early morning round, this little girl was up and dressed. Her mother and grandmother, with whom she was traveling, were still in their berths.

"Good morning, conductor," said the little girl, looking up with a bright smile.

"Good morning," replied the conductor.

"I think we must have had a good conductor and a good engineer to have taken such good care of us all night," said the little girl.

The conductor forgot all about his long, hard night and how tired he was. All day long he kept thinking about that little girl.—Anonymous.

LUZIANNE coffee

Luzianne and Corn Pone —Yum-Yum!

"When It Pours, It Reigns"

WHEN you see your mammy, Honey, bringin' in the coffee and the pone, you can tell before you taste it that the coffee's Luzianne—sure-nuf—by the whifs a-streaming, steaming in the air.

It's the coffee—Luzianne—you remember and you hanker after it until you get another cup.

Luzianne Coffee (your grocer has it) comes put up in tins. Try it tomorrow morning for breakfast. If it isn't all you expect, you can get your money back.

Luzianne for aroma, fragrance and snap. Try it.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.

All copy submitted for publication should be legibly written on one side of the paper with pen and ink, or typewritten. Matter written with a lead pencil and rolled manuscripts are unacceptable. No copy will be returned unless postage is enclosed for that purpose. In no case will responsibility be assumed for the loss or non-return of articles—the writers should keep copies of them. We do not purchase matter of any kind.

WORK OUTSIDE.

For a full century the populaton of thcse United States has been shifting from the rural parts to the larger towns and clties. Immediate and sustained efforts should be made to save the unsaved of the cities. To save the Nation and do the bidding of our Lord, we must capture for Christ these great centers of human life and activity. The war against sin and Satan and for precious souls must of necessity rage fiercest in the cities, and we Methodists and other Christlans must be in the thick of the battle. There are always class distinctions in all communities; and it is to be lamented that our Protestant Churches have in a large measure failed to reach the working classes in the cities, and have become too much the churches of the well-to-do, while the poor have been left to irreligion and infidelity.

Our prosperous churches, speaking of wealth and social distinction, move away from the people to the fashionable and residence sections, and the classes and the masses, to whom it is the duty of the Church to take the Gospel, are left to be reached hy unhealthy and often irreligious influences. True, the doors of our churches are open on the Sabbath for any who shall choose to enter, the services are advertised, and the invitation, hy cards, dodgers, and newspapers, is sent forth to invite them to come to Church. The people, separated by race, or language, or social standing, or some other barrier, keep aloof, and are not slow to excuse themselves. The fact is, the invitation needed is not only to come to Church, but to come to Christ. The persons giving the invitation should he right among them as it is delivered; and it should be the volce of a human brother or sister, tremulous with the weight of love for souls, and, like every real love, hurning its way to those we would reach. If, first, the unchurched multitudes are persuaded to come to Christ, there will afterwards be little difficulty in securing their attendance on church services.

The classes and masses are people that have to be looked after, gone after, come in contact with, and on their own plane of life reached through works of benevolence, and words of cheer, and loving entreaties and persuaded to come to Christ.

This outside and Christ-like work is to he done in the spirit of genuine sympathy and love for them as those for whom Christ died. None of these people can bear to be treated as paupers, or proteges, or to be patronized, but all they ask is what we Christians should be able to give them—to be treated on the hasis of humanity and justice. They are sharp to discern the counterfeit or patronizing spirit from the genuine article; and, unless we go in the spirit of real brotherliness, we cannot reach them. True friendliness is far better than alms delivered as if conferring a favor. We should be all aflame with divine love, and that will carry us out and into all this blessed outside work, and give success in winning souls.

Seeking the unfortunate, the lost, the crippled of sin, and those overtaken by some disaster or misfortune of life, we shall ourselves be strengthened and built up, and God will put a joyous song into our hearts and lives. We cannot help another unless we ourselves are helped, and we stand the stronger because of the strength imparted to our weaker brother-man. J. T. S.

THE EPISCOPAL ASSIGNMENTS.

We are printing in this issue of the Advocate the assignment of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for the current year. As will be seen, Bishop J. C. Kilgo has been given the district made up of the Louisiana and the two Mississippi Conferences. The Methodists of this section may count themselves fortunate in that they are to have as their leader this beloved and gifted chief pastor. He is a truly great preacher, who believes that the doctrines of Methodism are yet vital and efficacious, and who has the fire and spirit of the men who made the Methodist movement irresistible in the days agone. We feel sure that our people in Louisiana and Mississippi will be quickened and inspired to reach forth to larger things under the ministry of this eloquent and zealous ambassador of Christ. There is no other Bishop in the College whom we should have preferred to Bishop Kilgo as our general superintendent at this time, and we trust that he will be pleased with his assignment to the work in this section. With him in the chair, it will be well worth any one's time to attend our Annual Conferences this fall.

We are pleased to note that Bishop Murrah has been given the district embracing the Missouri Conferences, which is one of the choicest and most responsible in the Connection. We are also gratified that our missions in the Orient are to be favored with the supervision of Bishop McMurry, whose splendid judgment and great executive ability are universally recognized, though he will be much missed in the homeland. As will be noted, Bishop McCoy, as the General Conference requested, has been given light work, being assigned only the Alabama and Cuban Mission Conferences. Let earnest prayer be made for the recovery of this faithful servant of Christ and his Church, who has wrought so efficiently in the past, and who is loved and honored wherever he is known.

GOVERNOR PLEASANT'S COMMENDABLE STAND.

Governor Ruffin G. Pleasant is much to be commended for his strong message to the Louisiana Legislature, now in session, in which he recommended the ratification of the Prohibition Amendment to the National Constitution. This was brave and manly upon the part of the State's Chief Executive and shows that he is sincerely devoted to the moral welfare of the citizenship of this commonwealth and the entire Nation. Governor Pleasant has in numerous ways proven that he is something more than a typical successful politician. Indeed, he is exhibiting qualities of statesmanship which promise for him a career of large usefulness in the future.

The battle for the ratification of the national Prohibition Amendment is waxing warm at Baton Rouge. We are pleased to note that the temperance forces are making a great fight and seem to be optimistic as to the outcome. It is certainly to be hoped that Louisiana will take her stand on the right side of this great issue, that she may have a part in this enactment which is destined to outlaw the accursed liquor traffic within all the wide borders of this glorious Republic.

A PERSONAL STATEMENT.

For some time it has been the Editor's intention to sever his connection with the New Orleans Christian Advocate this fall, though the term for which he was last elected extends through the year 1919. A few weeks ago, however, his physician in this city, one of the most eminent medical men in the South, advised him that his physical condition is such as to necessitate an immediate cessation from in-door labor and a somewhat extended season of rest. We have, therefore, tendered our resignation as editor to Dr. J. M. Henry, Chairman of the Publishing Committee, along with a request to be relieved from our present duties at the earliest date practicable and, if possible, by June 1. Dr. Henry is now corresponding with the other members of the Publishing Committee with a view to making some arrangement that will take care of the interests of the paper, while giving us the desired release.

Some of our friends who have learned of our action have ventured to express the view that we should have tried to serve out the remaining year and a half of our term, taking a vacation and endeavoring to recuperate before reaching a final decision as to our course. Our answer to them is that the summers in New Orleans are very long and depressing, and that we we could not, with our present reduced office force, hope to effect any temporary arrangement that would allow us to be away, without taxing unduly with labor the Publisher of the Advocate during the hot months. The Editor's duties under the present conditions are not restricted merely to writing for the paper, but include much office work, such as only one who has had some training can efficiently perform. Moreover, we did not desire to be charged with responsibility for the editorial conduct of the Advocate at a time when our medical adviser thinks that we need to be free from care and taxing obligations of any kind. Since our incumbency in our present position, we have not spared ourself in the service which we have sought to render, often working to an extent far beyond what was for our own physical good, and we have had to draw heavily upon our private income for a support while thus laboring to keep the Conference organ going and up to what we concelved to be an efficient standard. We mention these facts only to show that we have not been without some measure of devotion to the work committed to our hands or a willingness to make sacrifices in its behalf.

THE WORLD FOR CHRIST.

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

These words of Christ mean just what they say; and this charge was not given alone to his disciples who stood by when our Lord delivered it, but it is addressed to all Christians throughout the world, and for all time. What these words meant to those who heard them they mean to us of today. They are of the essence of the religion Christ came to establish in the earth. The world-wide missionary idea they set forth is the underlying principle of Christianity. The very existence of the Church of God has all to do with this principle, and its faithful carrying out in the spirit of the Master who came to save the world, tasting death for every man.

The one business of the Church of God is to steadily press the winning of blood-bought souls at home, and the round world over. Creeds, rituals, traditions, machinery, wealth, numbers, learning, architecture, music and all other human means are just subsidiary in the furtherance of the one mission of the holding forth of Christ crucified to the countless millions of lost human beings. Christ's command, binding upon the Church as a whole, is binding upon every member of the Church. It can never be a question between the Christian and his highest church authority, but it is one of fealty to his Lord, who gave the command. Christ has set the measure of duty, and, as to his disciples who heard him speak, so to all Christians, he says, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

The prosperity of the Church depends upon a missionary spirit. No fact of ecclesiastical history can be more easily proven than that in all ages the Church has flourished or declined according as she went out after the lost, or neglected this duty. Any church that is devoid of missionary zeal and enterprise is doomed to die. Some years ago, when riding along in the country with Professor W. H. N. Magruder, he pointed us to an old building that had once been a flourishing Baptist church. He said that the membership who worshiped there solemnly resolved not to give a cent to foreign missions. Though it was a strong church then, a sad decline seized upon it, and, after a few years of feeble life, it died utterly. A church that will thus array itself against the darling purpose of God and his Son cannot live. Contributions given to missions never weaken a church, nor an individual giver, but they strengthen and develop in the divine life. Two travelers in the high northern latitude lost their way in the drifted snow and were in danger of sinking into the fatal sleep. One, almost overcome, was kept awake by the persistent efforts of the other, and both were saved. The efforts we make and the giving of our substance for the spread of Christ's kingdom, react upon us; and, in saving others, we are also saved.

The heathen world, as also our home land, needs the Gospel. The civil, social, moral, and religious condition of the heathen is most deplorable. There is no mercy in heathenism, untouched by Christianity. Violating all the relations of life and putting no value on human life, the heathen are sunken to the lowest depths of degradation and iniquity. The virtues that adorn common life in Christian lands are unknown among them. Woman is degraded in every land where the Gospel has not elevated her, and in all of heathendom sho is the slave and victim of man's brutal caprice.

Our glorious Methodist Church has been a missionary Church from its very beginning, and we have always had consecrated men and women in the foreign field, preaching "Christ crucified," and seeking the salvation of lost souls in darkest heathendom. God grant that our millions of Methodists in the United States may obey the command of Christ by giving many millions in money to send the heralds of the Cross, bearing "the glorious Gospel of the blessed God," every whither throughout the whole world. PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. L. C. Branscomb, Editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, will preach the Commencement sermon at Grenada College next Sunday. That institution is closing one of the most successful years in its history.

In a business letter bringing us some subscriptions, Rev. B. F. Bullard, of Duck Hill, Miss., appends the following note: "All is going well with us, and the indications point to a successful year. I expect to send you other names for your mailing files soon."

The Commencement sermon of the High School at Marks, Miss., will be preached on May 26 by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Winona District. This means that the citizens of that community will hear a stimulating and uplifting message.

Dr. A. F. Watkins stated to us in Atlanta last week that the Commencement sermon of Millsaps College will be preached on June 2 by Dr. H. M. Dobbs, of Dallas, Texas, and that Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Savannah, Ga., will deliver the annual literary address.

After attending the General Conference in Atlanta, Ga., Mr. J. B. Streater, of Black Hawk, Miss., while en route home, spent Monday and Tuesday in New Orleans, with a view to replenishing his stock of merchandise. He spent last Sunday in Meridian, Miss., as a guest of his sister, Mrs. L. P. Brown.

Rev. A. A. Bernard, our pastor at Pontchatoula, La., brought his wife to the Presbyterian Hospital of this city for treatment last week. Brother Bernard paid the Advocate office an appreciated visit last Thursday. We trust that Sister Bernard's case will respond to treatment and that her health may be speedily restored.

We have in hand an invitation to the marriage of Miss Ruth Beevers, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beevers, of Cleveland, Miss., to Rev. William Clark Early, which will take place in the Methodist Church at Cleveland on June 4, 1918, at 11 o'clock a. m. We extend in advance congratulations and all good wishes.

We are in receipt of an attractive little card, which reads as follows: "1601 Fair Place, Shreveport, La.—Rev. and Mrs. F. R. Power announce the birth of Edith Elizabeth on May 14, 1918, at 1:15 o'clock a. m.; weight five pounds." Both the mother and babe were reported to be doing well. The Advocate extends congratulations to the happy parents.

Dr. M. O. Shivers, formerly of Greenville, Miss., but now a leading physicians at Colorado Springs, Colo., was a delegate to the General Conference lately in session in Atlanta. Dr. Shivers' many friends in Mississippi will be pleased to know that he was looking well, and that, though he is attached to his new home, he has not ceased to take a deep interest in all the affairs of his native State.

We have learned with sincere sorrow that Rev. J. A. Bowen, one of the esteemed evangelists of the North Mississippi Conference, has for some weeks been seriously ill at his home in Tupelo, Miss. Brother Bowen has a large circle of friends throughout the Church who will be grieved to learn that he has been thus afflicted. Let this noble Christian worker and his anxious loved ones be remembered at the throne of grace.

Among the gradnates at Whitworth College this year are two nieces of the Editor of the Advocate—Miss Maude Kittrell of Black Hawk, Miss., and Miss Mildred Meek of Lexington, Miss. In acknowledging the receipt of an invitation to the Commencement exercises from these young ladies, we extend to each of them congratulations upon having finished the College course and our best wishes for a happy and useful life.

Brother W. D. Barrett, of Porterville, Miss., May 20, writes: "With regret, we report to you the burning of our beautiful little Briggs chapel. The fire originated some time between 12 and 1 o'clock, and is supposed to have started from a cigarette stub. This church was built about seven years ago during the pastorate of Rev. A. J. Davis at a cost of about $750. May the Lord help us to get busy at the task of providing another house of worship for this community!"

Writing from Jena, La., on May 17, Rev. Henry T. Young says: "I have just finished assisting Brother Fike in a meeting. I go to Vivian to-mormow to be with Rev. B. T. Crews in a series of evangellstic services." Brother Young has a way of presenting the claims of the Conference organ in his meetings, with the almost invariable result of introducing it into homes which it has not been reaching. It is needless to say that we appreciate his efforts in this direction.

Brother J. G. Parham, President of the Port Gibson Sunday School Institute, May 13, writes us as follows from Port Gibson: "Our Sunday School Institute for the northern half of the Port Gibson District will meet in the Gibson Memorial Church, at Vicksburg, June 4 and 5." He adds: "I desire through the Advocate to urge all pastors, superintendents, teachers, and any others interested to be certain to be on hand on that occasion. There is no more important work in the Church than that done in our Sunday School, from which come 85 per cent of the membership of the Church. I love your paper and I look forward with expectancy to its coming every week."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions, recently sent in: Rev. N. N. Maxey, University of Mississippi (Waterford Circuit), 2; Rev. Guy Ray, Mashulaville, Miss., 2; Rev. Algie S. Oliver, Eden, Miss., 2; Rev. A. A. Bernard, Pontchatoula, La., 3; Rev. C. A. Parks, Ackerman, Miss., 2; Rev. W. D. Bennett, Porterville, Miss., 3; Rev. H. A. Wood, Lauderdale, Miss., 3; Rev. M. W. David, Taylorsville, Miss., 3; Rev. W. W. Jones, Lula, Miss., 2; Rev. W. S. Lagrone, Drew, Miss., 3; Rev. H. E. Carter, Magee, Miss., 2; Rev. W. M. Campbell, Itta Bena, Miss., 3; Brother F. A. Howell, Durant, Miss., 2.

We clip the following dispatch from the New Orleans Times-Picayune: "Garyville, La., May 18. —Rev. E. H. Gregory, 58, died at his home here to-day of organic heart trouble. He had been pastor of the Garyville Presbyterian Church for the past six years. Prior to coming to Garyville, he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Moss Point, Miss. He is survived by his wife and four children, Mrs. G. P. Wood, Orange, Tex.; Mrs. F. W. Cook, Baton Rouge, La.; Mrs. P. H. Stebbins, Garyville, La., and Rev. D. B. Gregory, Henderson, Ky. The body will be sent to Mobile, Ala., for interment." The Editor was an associate pastor with Brother Gregory at West Point, Miss., some years ago. He was a faithful ambassador of Christ and a most worthy and lovable man in every respect. We sincerely regret his comparatively early death.

Rev. W. W. Jones, of Lula, Miss., May 16, writes: "We are making progress in this field. At the last Annual Conference this charge was rearranged, making it possible for us to do more intensive work. It is now one of the most desirable charges in North Mississippi. There have lately been much interest and a marked development in our Sunday school activities. Brother Curtis, presiding elder of the Greenville District, recently held our second quarterly conference. The salary of the pastor was increased $165. Two years ago the Lula church paid $400; the assessment this year is $835. The other two churches of the charge, Rich and Dundee, have likewise made substantial increases in their assessments. I think the General Conference did about the right thing concerning the time limit, if the present arrangement is permitted to stand."

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

By Rev. H. M. Ellis.

Seashore Divinity School has again been most fortunate and is able to present this year one of the highest class programmes it has ever offered the preachers of its section.

Dr. Henry H. Snyder, President of Wofford College, Dr. Ozora S. Davis, President of Chicago Theological Seminary, and Dr. Camden M. Coburn, accupying the chair of English Bible and Philosophy of Religion in Allegheny College, are all masters in their departments and make up a team it is worth going far to hear.

The new feature for this year of having each patronizing Conference represented on the platform by one of its leading preachers to deliver such an address as he deems appropriate to the times and the occasion will not fail to interest all who can attend.

The Second Year's Reading Course for the post-graduates is well chosen and will prove both interesting and profitable to all who will carefully pursue it. It is as follows:

"Rational Living," by Henry Churchill King.
"Les Miserables," by Victor Hugo.
"Adam's Civilization During the Middle Ages."
"The Ideal of Jesus," by William Newton Clark.
"Hamlet," by Shakespeare.

The course is specially adapted to help those who have lacked early opportunities, and none of it is difficult reading. A certificate is given with the completion of each year's course.

The under-graduates will be cared for in the usual efficient way. There will be capable instructors provided for each of the four classes, and the opportunity will be afforded all who have carefully read the class course before coming to the school to take the examinations.

The expense will be as moderate as it can be made. The small fee of $2.50 per session, or 50 cents a day will be charged each person attending, except superannuate preachers, and board and lodging can be secured at from $1.25 to $2 a day. The railroads give summer excursion rates to all coast towns. Incidentals should be but little.

For the earnest Sunday school workers and laymen a special course in Teacher-training, with full discussion of practical Sunday school methods, will be conducted by Rev. A. L. Dietrich.

Let every preacher who can, be on hand at the very opening service and remain to the very end. He who misses this session will miss a great opportunity and a special blessing.

Do not forget the date—June 25 to July 4, 1918.

For information address Rev. C. W. Crisler, President, Jackson, Miss.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, Secretary, 1127 Fern Street, New Orleans, La., Rev. H. H. McNeill, Dean, Demopolis, Ala., or H. M. Ellis, Gulfport, Miss.

MISS MAGGIE GALLOWAY PASSES AWAY.

Dear Dr. Meek: After a protracted illness, Miss Maggie Galloway passed away here at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. M. Weems, at an early hour last Sunday morning. She was a sister of the late Bishop C. B. Galloway. Only two members of the immediate family survive her, viz.: Mrs. J. M. Weems and Rev. J. G. Galloway, of Forest, Miss. She was a patient sufferer, and died in the hope of blessed immortality. The funeral service was held Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. L. Linfield and the writer. The body was taken to Canton, Miss., Monday morning, May 13, for interment in the family burying-ground.

Yours very truly,

W. A. HAYS.

Newton, Miss., May 17, 1918.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

We have received from Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Sardis District, May 21, the following telegram: "The Epworth League Conference, announced to be held at Holly Springs, Miss., May 28-30, has been postponed until the last of June. This action has been made necessary by a conflict with the Chautauqua program. The definite date of the League Conference will be given later."

EDWIN ALLEN WALKER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Walker, was born on Nov. 30, 1909, in Kosciusko, Miss., and died on April 29, 1918, at Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, La., aged 8 years, 4 months, and 29 days. This child, the son of the yardmaster at Angola, La., was a very bright and attractive little man, and the whole community was shocked at the news of his death, which was caused by appendicitis. He was a member of the Angola Sabbath school, and is sadly missed. Weep not for him, dear parents, for God has simply transferred your affections to that home beyond where afflictions are felt and feared no more. Interment took place at the old home in Kosciusko, Miss.

H. S. JOHNS.

HENRY B. CAGE was born near Huntsville, Ala., on Nov. 16, 1834, and died at his home in Jackson, Miss., on April 16, 1918. He was baptized in his infancy. He led a moral life, but was not a happy Christian. In his 80th year he fell, suffered a fracture of a hip, and was confined to his bed and his chair. An aged Methodist minister saw him, talked, sang, and prayed with him, and later preached to him and others in the home, and was rewarded by seeing him happily converted, as was also a son. He was then received into the fellowship of Capitol Street M. E. Church, South, by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Lewis. The writer continued to visit him and his family as long as he remained in the city. The brother's faith was strong and abiding. He fell on sleep, and the smile on his face signified more than the flowers that decorated his casket. The last sad rites were performed by Rev. W. H. Lewis, his pastor, and Rev. H. M. King. He rests in peace. He was a Confederate veteran, a member of Capt. Ratliff's battery, which was in the siege at Vicksburg, and was buried with military honors. He married Miss Margaret Davis, of Vicksburg, who bore him five sons and a daughter. These all survive. The sons are W. H., M. D., and Clarence B. Cage, who reside in Jackson; Howard R., at Crystal Springs, and H. L. Cage is a citizen of Birmingham, Ala. The daughter and her mother make their home in Jackson. A sorrowing sister, Miss Annie Cage, is among the bereaved, as are also a number of grandchildren and friends. These all hope to meet the departed one in the beautiful land.

IN MEMORY OF MY MOTHER.

Just as darkness turned to day,
My mother's spirit passed away;
Went from earth to heaven above,
Where all is joy, peace and love.

On the morning of Dec. 26, 1917, the sweet, gentle spirit of TEMPERANCE JANE BLANCHARD was called to heaven. She was born on July 30, 1838, being the eldest daughter of William and Elizabeth Cagle. She was converted and joined the Methodist Church at the age of sixteen, and lived a devoted Christian life. She was a friend to the poor and to those in distress, and no one was ever turned from her door. She was happily married to Mr. James Blanchard on May 22, 1856. Nine children blessed their union, six of whom still survive her. Her husband died on Oct. 2, 1882. Two daughters died in infancy, and one, Margaret, the oldest, on Sept. 12, 1883. She was left a widow with six children to raise, three of them being small. She was a good, patient Christian mother, always looking on the bright side of life. For many years she lived near Anding in Yazoo County, where she leaves many friends to mourn her death, for she was a friend to the sick and to those in distress. Her home was open to the ministers, and every one was met with a smile. For the last three years of her life she was sick and unable to attend church, but her prayers were with God's people. She was a great Bible student, and the Holy Book was her daily companion. For many years she had been a subscriber to the Christian Advocate, and she looked forward with pleasure to its coming every week. She was the oldest member of our Ladies' Aid Society, and for three years we met at her home so she could be with us, for we felt her sweet presence inspiring to us. While we will miss this dear member, we know that she is one of heaven's most beautiful angels, where pain and sorrow are no more, and we know we will see her face to face when we meet to part no more. We laid her to rest at Fletcher's Chapel in Yazoo County on Dec. 27, by the side of her husband and the children who had gone before. Services were conducted by Revs. J. A. Poe and J. J. Garner. Besides her children she is survived by twenty-seven grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren, who will mourn her loss, for no more will they see grandmother's smiling face on earth. But we can meet her in heaven. We bow our heads in humble submission and say, "Thy will be done, not ours."

Mother, dear, we will meet you on that happy, golden shore;
Mother, dear, we will meet you where parting is no more.

LAURA.

PROCLAMATION.

State of Louisiana,
Executive Department,
Baton Rouge.

The Federal Government is deeply concerned over the coal situation. Coal converts the water into steam, which is the great motive power of the world. There must be no shortage in this power on battleships, transports and other necessary vessels, in locomotives, and in factories operated for the manufacture of ammunition and other war supplies. It will be impossible for the railroads to haul all of the coal needed for the above purposes and also for citizens and business enterprises generally, if we wait until the cold weather begins. The factories and transportation agencies above referred to cannot use wood. They must have coal, and should be the first interests to be served.

In view of the above facts, I hereby request those persons in the State of Louisiana who must have coal next winter to order it now for early delivery. Those who can possibly get along with wood for fuel should order it as soon as possible also. It is suggested by the Federal authorities that all persons who live in the country or in small towns and cities can do without coal and use wood in its place.

If these suggestions are carried out, next winter will find us ready, and the coal mines and transportation facilities will not be overtaxed in this respect. Let everybody respond to the Government's wishes, and much will be done in aiding the National authorities in their efforts to win this war.

In faith whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the Executive Department, at the Capitol, in the City of Baton Rouge, on this, the 8th day of May, A. D., 1918. R. G. PLEASANT.

By the Governor: JOHN MARSHALL,
Secretary to the Governor.

NOTICE.

Those who expect to attend the Lafayette District Conference, coming from the west, will reach Abbeville at 9 o'clock a. m., if they take the Abbeville train at Midland. Those coming from the east will reach Abbeville at 2 o'clock p. m., if they take the Abbeville train at New Iberia. There are only two trains a day. Come, we are expecting you. H. B. PERRITT.

Abbeville, La., May 14, 1918.

WHAT TO READ AND WHEN.

If you have the blues, read the twenty-seventh psalm.

If your pocketbook is empty, read the thirty-seventh.

If you are losing confidence in men, read the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

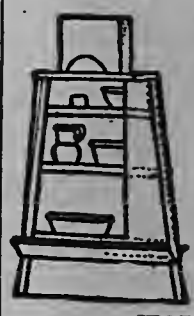
If people seem unkind, read the fifteenth chapter of John.

If you are discouraged about your work, read the 126th psalm.

If you find the world growing small and yourself growing great, read the nineteenth psalm.

If you cannot have your own way in everything, keep silent and read the third chapter of James.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS GET COMFORT
That makes them fit for the hard work in camp and trenches, at sea or on marches, by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to shake into the shoes. It takes the friction from the shoes and freshens the feet. Allen's Foot-Ease has been the standard remedy for 25 years for relief of callouses, tired, aching, sweating, swollen feet, and makes tight shoes feel easy. The Plattsburg Manuel advises the use of Foot-Ease each morning. Try it to-day.



"Our work may seem but a discord, though we do the best we can; but others will hear the music, if we carry out God's plan."

It Works! Try It
Tells how to loosen a sore, tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.
Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.
You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.
This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE.

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds, your body contains eighty pounds of water, for according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one half per cent of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poisons, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar mineral water (use no other water for twenty-one days), and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other curable conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-J, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

TEACHER-TRAINING ENROLLMENT.

During the period, March 20 to April 29, the enrollment in the Standard Training Course of our Church from the Conferences of the Gulf Division was as follows:

Alabama Conference—two classes with eleven students, at Montgomery and Skipperville.

Little Rock Conference—three classes with fifty-two students, and one individual student, at Little Rock (2), Stephens and Thornton.

Louisiana Conference—two classes with nineteen students, at Robeline and Shreveport.

Mississippi Conference—one class with four students, and nine individual students, at Carthage, Harpersville, Hattiesburg, Lux, Raleigh, and Sanford.

North Mississippi Conference—five classes with thirty-four students, and three individual students, at Cleveland, Ethel (2), McCool, Mathiston, Olive Branch, and Senatobia.

Total enrollment from the Division—thirteen classes, 133 students. Aggregate from the whole Church—fifty-three classes, 664 students.

Diplomas were granted to students in the Gulf Division during the same period as follows: Alabama Conference—eight at Mobile and Troy; Mississippi Conference—nine at Montrose; North Mississippi Conference—one at Senatobia; all in the Standard Course.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

If a man determines to observe Children's Day the battle is more than half won. Make up your mind to do it whether you can get help or not and you will find some one to help you.

The reports from those who have observed the day are the best that we have had for many years. Let the good work go on until the children in every charge have had this opportunity of rendering service.

We have a great Sunday school at Clarksdale. Thirty-three teachers are engaged in giving the children of that growing city a definite religious education. Last year this school sent one of its best teachers to Lake Junaluska. Let other schools take the hint and send one or more teachers to this great school this summer. July 23 to August 4 is the time. It need not cost more than $60. Make the investment for your children.

Great teachers will make great children; the teachers of this generation are making the next generation. What are we teaching and how are we teaching? The Sunday school idea is the biggest idea in the world. If you do not believe it, make an honest investigation.

When one of our boys answers our country's call to the flag, let us get two more for the Sunday school. There are scores of them that do not go for the simple reason that we do not have something worth while for them.

The conscience of the people in Mississippi is aroused against war-slackers of every kind. The fact is, we are in a figting mood. This same conscience must be aroused against church-slackers if we hope to see Christ victorious to any great degree.

The past two weeks I have done a great deal of personal work with the teachers of the Sunday schools, simply because the time is all taken with war-work. I find the results are more satisfactory than institute work. People are going to be busier as the war goes on, but we must not give up our Church work. We can change our methods to meet the exigencies of the case. Let me into your charge, dear brother, and with your help we can do effective work on other days than Sunday.

Every charge in the Columbus, Greenville, and Winona Districts has ordered Children's Day programs; just one in each of the Aberdeen, Durant, Holly Springs, and Sardis Districts has failed; all in the Corinth District, except six. It is not too late to observe the day and will not be too late for six months. But now is the time to attend to this matter.

Fine reports come in from the teachers that have been teaching "Heroes of Faith in Japan" during the past quarter. We must teach missions to bring a missionary conscience into activity. It is strange that the Church has not seen this long ago, and stranger still that every leader does not see it now. How long will it take for all of us to see it? Awake thou that sleepest and teach the thing that Christ bids us teach.

THE PREACHERS' LEAGUE.

Dear Mr. Editor: Would you like to hear from the young preachers at Millsaps? Last year there were thirty young preachers here; this year there are eight. There hangs in the chapel a large service flag containing two hundred and fifty-three stars, some of which represent former members of the league. Membership in the league is of a voluntary-compulsory nature. That seems absurd, doesn't it? When a student enters the college to prepare for the ministry he at once becomes a member of the league. The league has been trying to do some real work this year. It has several Sunday afternoon engagements each month, and, as the year is drawing to a close, it feels that the work has hardly begun. Our monthly meetings have been inspiring, replete with pleasure and profit. As each day passes we see a greater need for an educated ministry, and, so far as we are able, we are striving to meet that need.

With love and good wishes to all the readers of our Advocate, and hoping to be back again next year unless our country needs our services in the Army or Navy, we close,

Your younger brothers.

THINGS THAT REMAIN.

There are things that cannot be shaken; there is a kingdom which cannot be moved. It is not a kingdom of the world, for the mightiest of such kingdoms have fallen. Babylon, Greece, Rome, magnificent, beautiful, powerful though they were, did not endure because they were not built upon the eternal principles of God, because they were not in touch with the purposes of God.

It is not a kingdom of wealth or earthly power, but the kingdom of God and His Blessed Son, the kingdom of Christlikeness. It is as wide as the universe, big as the mind of God, but small enough to fit the heart of a child of God. Yes, thank God, among the changes and chances, the upheavals of this reeling, bleeding world, some things endure. And they are things that you and I can lay bold upon and find the peace that comes to those who lay hold upon eternal things.

The world has gone wrong, not because it had no guide, but because, in its arrogance and pride, and power, it refused to be guided. The word of God standeth sure. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My word shall not pass away. The individual, the Church, the nation must go back and listen to the Word of God, or there can never be any power to the nation or stability to the Church.

Great and wise men, influenced by their time, speak for the present. God speaks for all time. In the hours of stress and storms, cling to the eternal promises; plant your feet upon the Rock of Ages.—Bishop Darst.

THE NEVER WITHERING LEAF.

The Scriptures teach that the person in whom is the true life of God bears fruit appropriate to the various parts of the course through which he passes in this world, appropriate to his childhood, youth, maturity and old age. None of them is barren, and there is no monotony. But is this all? Will the fruit perish and the man perish, as the course in time comes to a close? The first psalm speaks otherwise. "His leaf also shall not wither, and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." Here is the promise that both the life and the product of the life are to be perpetuated. This is one of the great dignities and amenities of the human life in which God dwells, that it is eternal and not perishing. Things, knowledge, tongues, and gifts shall vanish and pass away, but God's man and his productions shall not perish, but have everlasting life.—The Presbyterian.

THE TEN MOST IMPORTANT YEARS.

The great writer-preacher Dr. Theodore Cuyier gives an important testimony out of his long pastoral experience bearing on the question of early conversion. He once wrote: "The most important ten years of life are from five to fifteen years of age. The great majority of those who pass twenty irreligious are never converted at all. A neighboring pastor tells me that out of two hundred and thirty-five converts in his church one hundred and thirty-eight were under twenty years and only four had passed their fiftieth year. During my ministry I have received a thousand persons into the Church on confession of their faith, and not one dozen of these were beyond their fiftieth year."—Pilgrim Teacher.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups. —Adv.

HALF SICK, HALF WELL

A Condition That Will Not Improve Upon Itself.

In the Spring the depressing condition that many call Spring fever often runs through families and neighborhoods.

This indefinite, hard-to-describe state of poor health probably means that you are thin-blooded and anemic. Exhausted thin blood gets thinner, low vitality falls lower, poor appetite becomes poorer. Then the thoroughly exhausted system can no longer resist, and on comes the prostrating illness or serious disease.

Treat the half-sick, Spring-tired condition with that splendid course of medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla, to fortify the whole body; Peptiron, to ironize and make rich red blood; Hood's Pills to rouse the liver to its regular daily duties,—and the half-well revives to perfect health. Each medicine is valuable in itself but is trebly so when used in this combination.

REVIVAL AT SENATOBIA.

Dear Doctor Meek: Brother W. M. McIntosh, assisted by his godly and talented wife, closed a very successful revival here on last Sunday night, May 12. The meeting which began on April 28 ran through two full weeks. Brother McIntosh was also assisted during the first week by Rev. W. A. Wilson, of New Albany, Miss. Brother Wilson is fine help in a meeting. His earnestness gets hold of the people. These two men of God preached to large and appreciative crowds. One difficulty was handling the crowds—at times being overrun. Brother McIntosh did fine preaching. One man who had attended the services said "that listening to Brother McIntosh had raised the evangelists 100 per cent in his estimation as preachers." His idea was that the average evangelist didn't preach much. But if anybody has that opinion of W. M. McIntosh, he is certainly laboring under the wrong impression. His strong and impressive presentation of the claims of the gospel did and will continue to bear fruit. I don't think I ever attended any services where the presence and power of God's Spirit was more manifest than in many of these services. There were about 35 additions to the various Churches. But the greatest work was in reviving the Church.

Brother and Sister McIntosh went from here to Shaw, Miss., and will go from there to Bowie, Texas. May the Lord continue to bless them in their great work! A. T. McILWAIN, P. C.

BROTHER EARL MOLL RECOMMENDED.

Dear Brother Meek: Brother Earl Moll who has been with me as a song leader and a worker with young people is going to do independent evangelistic work through the summer, beginning with June. Brother Moll is thoroughly consecrated, and has both the gift and the tact necessary for successful evangelistic work, and I most cheerfully recommend him to the brethren who may need help in their summer revivals. Brother Moll has been for nearly three years a student in Centenary College, and he may be reached by addressing him at Shreveport, La., in care of that institution.

FROM REV. J. H. ROGERS.

Dear Brother Meek: I want to say through the columns of your most excellent paper that we have closed a very fine meeting in this town with quite a number of additions to our Church. Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., did the preaching and he did it well. The longer he stayed the better the people liked him, and the last service was the greatest one of the meeting. The church was packed full, and more. Brother Bass is a strong gospel preacher and would be acceptable anywhere. My work moves on well.

Your brother,

NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders, Pastors, and Epworth Leagues, Mississippi Conference.

The Mississippi Conference Epworth League will convene at 8 p. m. on June 5, at Wiggins, and will remain in session throughout June 6 and 7. A very splendid program is being arranged, the subject of which is "Our Work." We will have with us from the central office Rev. S. A. Neblett from the Cuban Mission field and Miss Phala Hawkins, a very fine Junior worker.

We urge you to attend this Conference, and get as many as you can of the Epworth Leaguers and young people to attend that they may receive inspiration and help for a life of service. Send the names of the delegates to Mrs. Geo. L. Pou, Wiggins, Miss., and free entertainment will be provided. Try to be present for the first meeting and remain throughout the session.

Coveting your prayers and co-operation to make this the best conference ever held. Yours sincerely,

W. D. HAWKINS,
President Miss. Conf. Ep. League.

DUTY.

This truth comes to us more and more the longer we live that on what field or in what uniform or with what aims we do our duty matters very little. Or even what our duty is, great or small, splendid or obscure. Only to find our duty certainly, and somewhere or somehow, to do it faithfully, makes us good, strong, happy and useful men, and tunes our lives into some feeble echo of the life of God.—Phillips Brooks.

THE CALL—WHO ANSWERS?

Use me, my God, in thy great harvest field,
Which stretcheth far and wide like a wide sea;
The gatherers are so few, I fear the precious yield
Will suffer loss. O find a place for me!
A place where best the strength I have will tell;
It may be one the other toilers shun;
Be it a wide or narrow place, 'tis well,
So that the work it holds be only done.

A MESSAGE FROM THE FIRST VICE PRESIDENT OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

It is interesting to note that the Young People's department of the Mississippi Conference was among the five Conferences attaining the goal in all points in 1917.

Mrs. Perry, Council First Vice President, writes most encouragingly of the splendid work done by the faithful auxiliary first vice presidents and young people, that made this distinction possible.

Can we not catch a vision of our Mississippi Conference when these trained young people become adults?

Mrs. Perry in her report says: "Two things have impressed themselves as being of vital importance at this time. One is a more efficient leadership for the Young People's Auxiliaries. Throughout the Church the work of organization goes on and for a time these new auxiliaries prosper and give promise of a vigorous and healthy growth, yet for lack of an interested, sympathetic, capable leader they gradually lose vitality and eventually cease to be. The loss to our work through lack of well equipped leadership is tragic, but more tragic is the loss sustained by the young women themselves, who are thus deprived of the development and enrichment that comes through active service in the Young People's Missionary Society. This body (Council) can do no better thing than to devise some plan for the training of leaders of Young People's work.

"Another question demanding serious consideration is the new conditions confronting the young womanhood of the nation and our responsibility in meeting these conditions.

"As the young men are going out in vast numbers to give themselves for a righteous cause, the young women, too, are being called upon to enter new and untried walks of life, taking up the activities hitherto engaging the young men. Their excitement and bewilderment is just as great as that of the men in the cantonments or 'over there.' They need protection and a kindly, sympathetic interest as they enter the new doors of activity opening to them—doors that have been opened by the necessities of this cruel war, but doors that will not be closed when our boys return victorious from the front.

"The responsibility presses heavy upon the Christian women of America to maintain and uphold the high standards of womanhood wherein lies the security of our nation, and to protect and shield the young women against the allurements that would seek to destroy the noblest and best in life.

"May wisdom from above be given at this time that we may plan wisely and well for the tasks that are ours."

Yours in this great Young People's cause. Mrs. H. O. MIDDLETON.

MOHAMMEDAN ADVANCE IN CENTRAL AFRICA.

While the servants of the owner of the field slept, the enemy sowed tares. While Christians are busy elsewhere the Moslems are advancing in Africa.

Unfortunately the influence of the European governments too often favors the Moslems. Battalions in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan are recruited from the pagan tribes and the chaplains are Mohammedan mallams, appointed and paid by the government of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. As a result, African soldiers returning to their tribes after service in the army carry with them the religion of Mohammed.

Many Mohammedan traders, financed by European trading companies, go freely among the pagan peoples, and into districts where, before European governments arrived, they would have been killed. They preach Islam while they trade. The troops of the Senegal, of Northern Nigeria, of the French Shari-Chad Protectorate, and of the Anglo-Egytian Sudan are Mohammedan, so that the war in the Kameruns and East Africa has increased the prestige of the Moslem fighting man.

On the other hand, the French Government has tried to meet the Mohammedan advance in the Western Sudan by forbidding the use of the Arabic language in the schools; Sir Frederick Lugard (the British Governor General of the Niger Territories) has printed in his blue book, "I hold out every encouragement to establish missions in pagan centers." In the Shari-Chad Protectorate the French government has had far more trouble with the Mohammedans than with the pagans, for the reason that the Mohammedan advance is not desired.

In the Anglo-Egytian Sudan, the Governor General has said that it is impossible for the government to deal with the Mohammedan advance and has asked that Christian missionaries come and help Christianize and civilize the pagan tribes. This will be the greatest blessing to the people, for Christianity, far more than Islam, helps to establish justice and maintain peace.

Dr. Karl Kumm gives the names of over forty tribes not yet reached by Christian missions. These include over 2,000,000 Africans.

The number of missionary societies in South Africa and on the West Coast is disproportionately large when compared with the amount of territory still to be occupied. In Sierra Leone there are ten Christian missionary societies at work, while between the Niger and the Nile on the Central Plateau, where the Mohammedan propagandists are exerting their greatest pressure, not one society is represented. "This is poor strategy!" says Dr. Kumm.

It would be advisable to appoint a commission, representing American and British foreign mission boards, to devise ways and means by which the energy of societies engaged in missionary work in Africa may be distributed on the strategic advance line of Mohammedanism.

HOW OUR MISSION SCHOOLS ARE HOOVERIZING.

Miss Rebecca Toland, of Matanzas, Cuba, writes as follows: "In the school we are all well. We get bread or crackers to eat at least once a day. We now cook a proportionate amount of the raw rice for each boarding pupil for each meal, which they substitute for bread. One man in the Camaguey Province thought we did not have bread, and he sent us a big box of crackers. Another from another province came to see his little girl and brought us two big sacks of bread. Among the poor the little children cry for bread. They cannot understand why they cannot have it and cannot get used to doing without it."

A TEST OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

One of the surest tests of real Christian experience is the practice of the presence of God. A young man was asked: "What does religion mean to you?" and this was his answer: "God is quite real to me. I speak to Him and He answers me. Something over a year ago I was in the direst perplexity for some weeks. I turned to God's Holy Word, and the promise 'My grace is sufficient for thee' seemed to come fresh from God's heart to mine. Every time my thoughts turned to my trouble I heard that ring and I knew that He was speaking to me. God is the nearest of all realities to my soul. He surrounds me like an atmosphere. He is precious to me. He is necessary; more to me than my own life. He is my life."

The same question was put to another man, older in years and of wider experience. His reply was: "God is more real to me than any thought, or thing, or person: I feel His presence positively. The more I live in close harmony with His laws as written in body and mind, the nearer do I feel Him to be. I talk to Him as a companion in prayer and praise and our communion is a joy."

It may be that every Christian cannot offer as clear a testimony as these mentioned and yet every one who is in very truth a child of God and who acknowledges that relationship will recognize and respond to the reality of the things to which these two testimonies refer.—New York Christian Advocate.

CHANGE NOTION ABOUT CALOMEL

New Variety Called Calotabs Is Perfectly Safe and Delightful.

With all of the liver-cleansing and system-purifying qualities of the old-style calomel, but robbed of its sickening, griping and dangerous effects, Calotabs is destined to become the most popular of all home remedies, as it has become the favorite of all physicians.

The new style calomel, called Calotabs, is perfectly delightful in effect. One tablet at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. No nausea, no griping. Next morning you awake feeling fine, your liver active, your system purified and with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please; there is no restriction of habit or diet.

Genuine Calotabs are never sold in bulk. Ask for the original, sealed package, price thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends and guarantees Calotabs.

Harleston, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: I have just closed a revival meeting at Tanner's Chapel. Brother L. L. Roberts did the preaching. We felt the Spirit of God in our present from the beginning, and we had a good meeting. Some bright young men were converted. We received five into the Church. The meeting closed on the river banks where I had the pleasure of baptizing two young men by immersion. Everything is moving along nicely with us.

Shubuta, Miss.

I have sent one or two over my allotment of subscriptions, but I don't expect to cease working for our paper. I wish it were possible to get this paper in the home of every Methodist on my work.

Our second quarterly conference was held on May 4 and 5, at New Hope. I feel safe in saying that it was the best quarterly conference that has been held on the work since I have been here. Brother W. B. Jones, our beloved presiding elder, was with us and preached three excellent sermons for us, which I am sure will result in much good. We had our first Children's Day service here at Eucutta, on Sunday, May 12. Several said that it was the best they had ever seen here. Of course, Doctor, this makes us feel good. Our contribution was exceedingly good. To God be all the glory.

M. W. PORTER, P. C.

Boyce, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a great meeting here under the leadership of Rev. A. J. Gearheard. The whole town was benefited, and especially was the church built up. Eighteen were added to the membership, and all departments received a quickening. Brother Gearheard is a fine preacher. His is the simple gospel of the Bible—the kind that draws men. He was never sensational. He used no tricks to draw the crowd. His only method was the simple story of the God-man, who said, "And if I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me." The meeting closed on Wednesday, May 8, but the revival goes on. Last Sunday it was manifested in a very substantial way when the preacher announced that we still owed $225 on the church and would need another $150 to furnish it. In less than five minutes the $225 was subscribed, and a good beginning made on the furnishings, which will be pushed. In a few more weeks we will be ready to undertake in earnest the work of a modern church and Sunday school. Our people are loyal and true, and are in love and charity with each other and with their pastor, and we are looking forward with great anticipation to a successful year's work.

The unification controversy is not causing us any trouble. We favor it with the Negro eliminated. I, personally, fear that all the proposed plans will destroy our Third Restrictive Rule and give us a limited superintendency. I am not yet convinced that a limited episcopacy is the best thing. I am not personally afraid of the Negroes ever getting the leading power even if the Church should unite with him in the organization, for Dr. Jones' "crack of doom" will come before a Negro is ever elected "general superintendent" in the Northern Church, as it is, much less if you add the Southern sentiment to it.

We are praying for a union, but not any kind of a union. We want a right union and would rather have none at all than one that would be distasteful to anything like a large minority.

May God lead us all in the way that we should go and make us ready ever to dare and to do for his glory!

J. W. FAULK, P. C.

Calomel Salivates and Makes You Sick

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated to-morrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

MORE POTATOES, LESS FLOUR AND SUGAR.

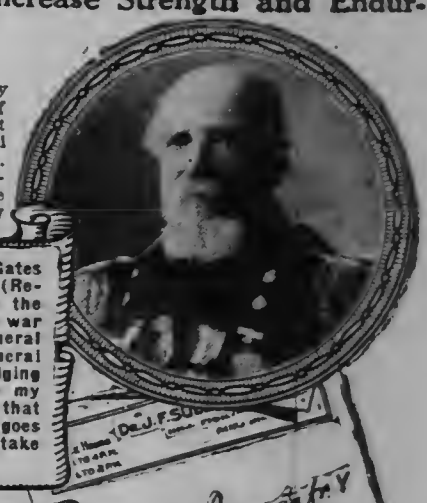
An array of letters and telegrams received daily by John M. Parker, Food Administrator for Louisiana, provide proof positive that Louisiana's record potato crop is not yet on the safe side of the ledger. Conditions have improved considerably. Panicky farmers have recognized that they were injuring themselves and all their fellows by digging up immature potatoes and rushing them to markets already glutted. They are leaving more potatoes in the ground and may stand a better chance of striking a more active demand. In the meantime, the retail dealers in New Orleans and elsewhere have seen the light and reduced prices to a scale which will prove attractive to the housekeepers and multiply consumption. The New Orleans Department of Agriculture has offered practical co-operation, planning to handle potatoes direct from producer to consumer, and to organize a cheap delivery system which will induce the poor people to share in the opportunity for quantity purchases at lower rates.

Various plans to make the potato drive most effective will be considered at a meeting of the food administrators of the State which will be held in New Orleans on June 1. The purpose is to exchange ideas and experiences and to systematize the work. The scope of the Food Administration has constantly extended, and it will this week be compelled to add several rooms to its office space. There are now separate divisions for sugar, flour, perishable products, hotels, restaurants, bakeries, bottlers, transportation, enforcement, rice and other industries and activities, and the list is constantly expanding. Other States have made large appropriations for the food work, but Louisiana has to depend entirely upon her share of the United States Food Administration Fund for the State division service. She has been fortunate, however, in enlisting an exceptional force of volunteers, who not only work without remuneration, but devote almost their entire time to the patriotic duty undertaken. The district and parish administrators have extended the staff into the communities, and they write that a number of their lieutenants will accompany them to the gathering.

A concerted spectacular patriotic finish to the wheat conservation effort may be one of the convention's outcomes. The need for flour for shipment to the soldiers and the nations across the sea is constantly becoming more acute; there is very little flour left in the country, and no chance to secure more until the next crop comes in. The supply which the nation feels, in duty, honor, and humanity, bound to send must come out of the consumption in this country. Herbert Hoover finds that all the expedients so far evolved have not been able to yield the full quantity desired. So he has appealed for more steam in the voluntary drive which he has been directing. The churches, the fraternal organizations and other civic bodies have been urged to combine an extra effort, and all agencies have been impressed with the importance of the observance and enforcement of the flour regulations already formulated.

Louisiana will probably establish another record by first invoking the courts in connection with the flour-saving plan. One of the parish administrators discovered a small merchant who had a hundred barrels of flour hidden away in various places, in defiance of all the food laws and necessities. The excess was taken away from the hoarder, and he additionally obeyed the advice to contribute to the Red Cross by way of fine. The case was so flagrant that it was reported to Mr. Parker, who presented the facts to the United States District Attorney. Indictment and trial in the Federal Court are expected to follow, and in case of conviction, the offender will be subject to both heavy fine and imprisonment for several years.

As an offset to such disloyalty there are entire parishes which are barring wheat flour altogether for the next three months, and there are merchants refusing to buy or sell flour under any circumstances until the strain is lifted. The homes are also beginning to consecrate themselves to the cause, that of General A. B. Booth in New Orleans, and W. A. Lee, of Sorrento, in the rural districts, being the first to send in combined pledges to abstain from wheat flour and products for three months. J. I. Munoz, a large dealer in flour and a member of the committee handling the flour surrender movement on behalf of the Food Administration, suggests a State league of such pledges, with a special inexpensive badge of honor, and believes that very near the entire population would enroll.—U. S. Food Administration for Louisiana.



Germs of Disease should be promptly expelled from the blood. This is a time when the system is especially susceptible to them. Get rid of all impurities in the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and thus fortify your whole body and prevent illness.—Adv.

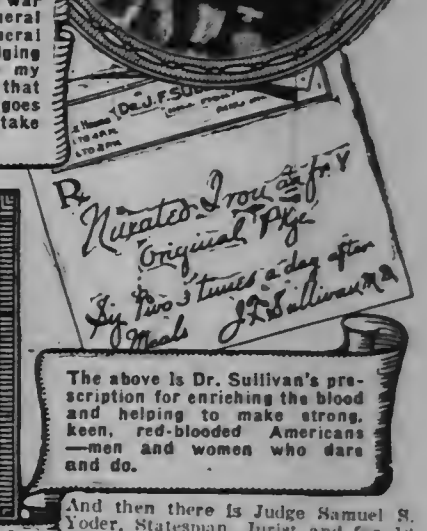
Send Nuxated Iron To Your Boy In Camp

General Gibson Says He Feels That Every Soldier Who Goes To The Front Should Take Nuxated Iron. Dr. James Francis Sullivan Explains Why It Helps to Increase Strength and Endurance and Build Up Weak, Nervous, Run-down Folks.

What every soldier most needs is tremendous "stay there" strength, power and endurance, with nerves of steel and blood of iron. To help produce this result there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron, says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "I have personally found it of such great value as a tonic, strength and blood builder that I believe if General Gibson's advice were followed many of our fighting men would find it of great benefit. In my opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping increase strength, energy and endurance.

General Horatio Gates Gibson, U. S. A. (Retired), who entered the City of Mexico in the war of 1847 with General Winfield Scott. General Gibson says: "Judging from the results in my own case, I feel that every soldier who goes to the front should take Nuxated Iron."



General Horatio Gates Gibson says Nuxated Iron has brought back to him in good measure that old buoyancy and energy that filled his veins in 1847 when he made his triumphant entry with General Scott into the City of Mexico and he feels that every soldier who goes to the front should take Nuxated Iron.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, Formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

Another remarkable case is that of General David Stuart Gordon, noted Indian fighter and hero of the battle of Gettysburg. General Gordon says: "When I became badly run-down this year, I found myself totally without the physical power to 'come back' as I had done in my younger days. I tried different so-called 'tonics' without feeling any better, but finally I heard of how physicians were widely recommending organic iron to renew red blood and rebuild strength in worn-out bodies. As a result I started taking Nuxated Iron and within a month it had roused my weakened vital forces and made me feel strong again, giving me endurance such as I never hoped to again possess."

Another interesting case is that of General John Lincoln Clem, who at the early age of 12 years was Sergeant in the U. S. Army and the last veteran of the Civil War to remain on the U. S. Army active list. General Clem says: "I find in Nuxated Iron the one and ever-reliable tonic. Two months after beginning the treatment I am a well man."

The above is Dr. Sullivan's prescription for enriching the blood and helping to make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans—men and women who dare and do.

And then there is Judge Samuel S. Yoder, Statesman, Jurist and for 18 years a practicing physician—formerly Surgeon Major in the Army and now Commander in Chief of the Union Veteran Union, who says: "Nuxated Iron restores, revivifies and rehabilitates the system. To the man of 70 as I am it is just as certain, just as efficacious as to the youth in his teens."

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed by Dr Sullivan, and which has been used by Generals Gibson, Gordon, Clem, Judge Yoder and others with such surprising results is not a secret remedy but one which is well-known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

A NATION'S VOICE.

We've made us a gun, a giant gun,
  That never the world has known;
Its thunder-flame leaps up to the sun
  And touches the highest Throne.
Mere kings and crowns are blown from its path.
  To uttermost darkness hurled—
For this is the gun of a people's wrath!
  Its range is around the world!

We've made us a gun, a glowing gun,
  A gun of the steel of youth;
Its bore is a pit the bad must shun,
  Its bed is the rock of truth.
Jehovah's fingers have set its sight
  To carry his righteous curse—
For this is the gun of a Nation's might!
  Its arc is the universe!

We've made us a gun, a master-gun,
  Whose rumble can shake the earth
Till the wolves shall flee from the field they've won—
  Their litter die in its birth.
It makes stars tremble, yet they rejoice
  In shivering orbits high—
For this is the gun of a people's voice
  And evil it bids to die!

All cannon voices to silence fall,
  Whenever its words begin—
For this is the gun of a Nation's call,
  And its shell speaks only, "Win!"

—John O'Keefe in the New York World.

CONVENTION RIGHTS GIVEN BAPTIST WOMEN.

A dispatch to the Memphis Commercial Appeal, from Hot Springs, Ark., dated May 15, says:

"Women of the Southern Baptist churches to-day were granted full and equal rights with men in the convention of the churches by an overwhelming vote of the sixty-third session of the Southern Baptist Convention. By the action taken, which consisted of an amendment to the Convention constitution, women now are entitled not only to represent their churches in the conventions, but also to hold any office in the convention, which is the highest administration organization in the denomination.

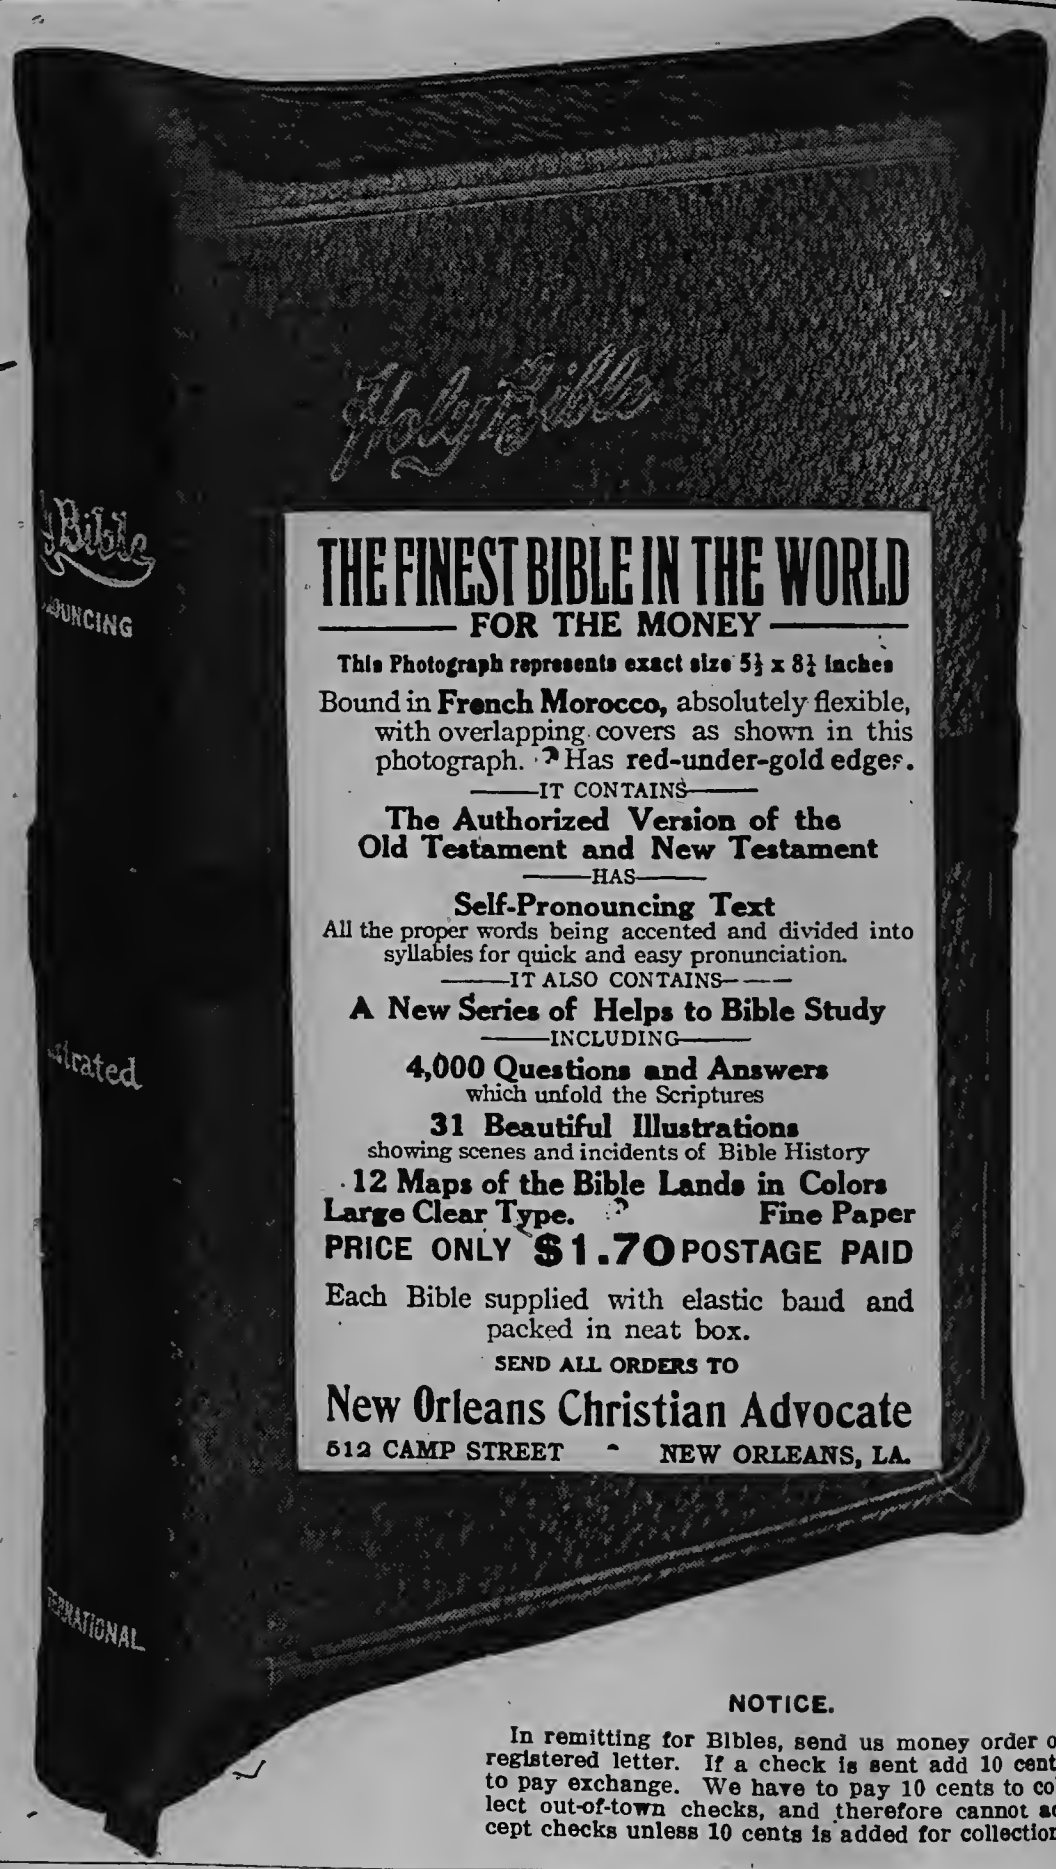
"The vote was taken after three hours of rather strenuous debate. The huge tabernacle in which the convention is being held was crowded to its capacity, and a large portion of the audience was composed of women, who are here to attend the Woman's Missionary Union of the churches. They were permitted to attend the convention to-day as visitors. All of the delegates, as well as the visitors, displayed a lively interest in the debate, and it was plainly evident from the shouted comments from every corner of the tabernacle that the motion to amend the constitution would prevail long before the question was put finally to the delegates.

"After the vote was announced, a division or roll call was demanded by some of the opponents to the amendment, but because of the evident numerical domination of the convention by Western delegates, who, as a whole, were staunch advocates of woman suffrage, the opposition withdrew its demand for division and the constitution was declared officially to have been amended so that women now may participate in any and all matters of church government. Then the delegates and women visitors rose to sing 'Blessed Be the Tie That Binds.'"

FUNERAL OF LIEUTENANT HORACE BIRDSONG.

Lula, Miss., May 15 (Special)—The remains of Lieutenant Horace Birdsong who died at Camp Mills, Long Island, on Friday morning last, reached Lula last night, accompanied by the Captain of his Company.

The funeral, held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, was probably the most largely attended of any similar event in this community. Every business house in the town of Lula and Rich was closed for the services as a mark of respect to the dead officer.



The services were held in the Methodist church at Rich by Rev. W. W. Jones, who spoke feelingly and paid tribute to the character of the deceased, who was loved and admired by all the people of Coahoma County, where he was born and reared, and who at the age of 27 had given his life in the service of his country. Lieutenant Birdsong was a Christian gentleman, and always noted for his courteous, kindly, and knightly demeanor.

At the grave the services were concluded by the Local Chapter of the U. D. C., who deposited in the grave miniature flags of our country and beautifully sang "America."

The floral offerings were many and beautiful, having been sent by friends from far and near.

The funeral procession was over a mile long, all the citizens of this end of the county, as well as from a distance, joining to show this last tribute and mark of respect to the popular deceased soldier, who had been first to answer his country's call as a volunteer early in 1917, and then who had later been the first to answer his Maker's call.—The Clarksdale (Miss.) Register.

THE BIBLE ON DIVORCE.

In addressing a Bible study class upon "The Family and the Home," one of the editors of The Biblical World said the other day that he held marriage to be inviolable for any cause. (A Mormon Bishop once told the Aviator that that was his belief; offering that as a reason for not putting away one or more of his harem, all of whom he had "married" by the same rites). But when the teacher was asked whether Jesus did not say that adultery vitiated the bond, he replied that it was in Matthew, but he "did not believe Jesus ever said it." Did not all discovered manuscripts contain that text? Yes, there was no textual authority for rejecting the reading, but he rejected it because his conscience was against it. All of which goes to show that our new theologians do not believe the Bible is infallible, but that they are.—The Presbyterian.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 22. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopai Churcb, South. Whole No. 3249.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Thirteenth Day (Thursday)—Afternoon Session.

The Conference opened at 3 p. m., with Bishop Kilgo presiding. Dr. J. O. Willson, of the Upper South Carolina Confcrence, conducted the devotionai exercises. The minutes of the morning session were read and approved, after which Bishop Murrah took the chair.

Greetings from the Northern Baptist Convention, now in session, were read, and a suitabie reply was ordered to be made.

Report No. 11 of the Committee on Revisals was then taken up. Some features of this report pertained to the manner of disposing of Church property. The proposed enactment required that ten days' notice be given and that at ieast as many as five members must be present at the quarteriy conference authorizing the disposal of Church property. After speeches by Rev. Briscoe Carter and a number of others, this report was finally adopted.

A report from the Committee on Education nominating trustees for Southern Methodist University was approved, as were aiso some other reports from that Committee.

Report No. 1 from the Committee on Sunday Schools was then considered, being read by Dr. Chappeil and passed upon item by item.

The young iadies who had served the General Conference so acceptably as pages were calied forward, and after a few appropriate remarks by Mr. J. R. Pepper, of tiie Memphis Conference, each of them was presented with a handsomc card case, in each of which $15 had been placed.

The Conference, upon motion of Rev. M. T. Piyler and Dr. Stonewall Anderson, ordered that greetings be sent the General Assembiy of the Southern Presbyterian Church, in session at Durant, Oklahoma.

Reports Nos. 5 and 6, pertaining to dividing the Church into Episcopal Districts and requesting that, in so far as it might be practicable, the Bishops work in harmony with this plan, assigning the same man to the same district for four consecutive years if possibie, were then brought forward. Much discussion foliowed. It was made clear that this plan was only recommendatory, the General Conference not having the power, under the Constitution of the Church, to go further than that. These reports were adpoted by a vote of 185 to 44.

The Conference adjourned with the benediction.

Fourteenth Day—Friday Morning.

Bishop Murrah called the Conference to order at 9 o'clock a. m., after which Rev. G. H. Thompson, of the Mississippi Conference, led in prayer and read the Scripturc iesson. After tbe approvai of the minutes, Bishop Murrah surrendered tiie chair to Bishop Lambuth.

Greetings from the Southern Baptist Convention, sitting at Hot Springs, Ark., were read.

A resoiution was passed restricting aii speeches from this time on to five minutes.

The Special Committee on Superannuate Endowment reported, and, after discussion, its recommendations were adopted. This enactment will create a General Board to direct this movement, and that Board will place an active General Secretary in the field. This Board will also seicct the city and State in which it is to be domiciied.

Several reports from the Committee on Missions were then considered. Among these was a statement in reply to tbat portion of the Episcopal Address which dealt with certain aiieged actions of the Board of Missions concerning the Mexican work and otber interdenominationai matters. After some discussion, the statement in question was allowed to go to record without being voted upon.

Following this action, Dr. Wallace McMullen, fraternal messonger from the Methodist Episcopai Church, was presented and addressed the General Conference at considerabie length. A brief response was made by Bishop Hendrix.

Speaking for the Committee on the Constitution of the Church, Bishop Mouzon stated the Committee had been at work, but had found that its task was too large a oue to be compieted during the session of the General Conference. This Committee was authorized to continue its labors through the quadrennium, subject to the requirement that the results of its investigations be published six months before the meeting of the next General Conference.

The Committees having tbe matters in hand nominated the new Book Committee and the new Boards of Church Extension, Missions, Sunday Schools, and Epworth Leagues, tbeir recommendations being approved.

Dr. F. J. Prettyman called attention to the fact that the measure to provide a site in Washington City for the proposed monument to Francis Asbury had passed the United States Senate, but had not yet passed the House. He urged that members of the Generai Conference shouid communicate with their Congressmen on the subject.

Reports from the Committee on Education were next given attention. One of these provided for two centers for the Correspondence Schooi for young ministers taking the Conferences Courses of Study—one in Atlanta, and the other at Dallas. The taking of the courses of study in the Correspondence Schooi was made obiigatory. After considerabic discussion, aii these reports were adopted.

Through Dr. H. M. DuBosc, the Commission having in charge the matter of determining between the ciaims of the John Street Church, New York City, and the Sam's Creek Log Meeting-house in Maryland to priority, reported the results of its labors, the decision being unanimousiy in favor of Strawbridge and the Log Meeting-house. This Commission sat with a like one from the Methodist Protestant Church and a portion of the Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the New York members having declined to participate in the deiiberations. The iate Gencrai Conference of the Church, North, did not accept the findings of this Commission, but named another to take the matter up.

Rev. I. S. Patterson, of Florida, gave notice that there would be a protest against permitting the statement of the Committee on Missions in reply to the utterance of the Bishops in their address to the General Conference to go to record without discussion. The Conference closed with the benediction by J. C. Reed.

Ordination Service.

At three o'clock p. m. Friday afternoon a great audience assembied in the Wesley Memorial Church to witness the ordination of the six Bishops-elect. After a sermon by Bishop Hendrix from Hebrews 13:7 and 8, Dr. J. M. Moore, Dr. W. F. McMurry, Dr. U. V. W. Darlington, Dr. H. M. DuBose, Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, and Dr. James Cannon, Jr., were impressively consecrated to the work of the episcopacy, all the Bishops and a number of elders participating in the service.

Friday Afternoon—Business Session.

Bishop Lambuth called the Conference to order at 4:15 p. m. The minutes were read and approved, and the Secretaries were complimented upon their efficiency by Bisbop Lambuth. Bishop Mouzon took the Chair.

Some recommendations pertaining to war work were passed.

The Committee on Revisais nominated Dr. E. B. Chappell and Dr. F. N. Parker to serve on the Committee on Constitution in place of Dr. Darlington and Dr. DuBose, who had been elected Bishops. These nominations were approved.

Numerous reports from various Committees were taken up and quickly passed. Among tbese was a provision to cali the new Annual Conference to be formed of the East Columbia, Columbia, and Montana Conferences, the "Northwest Conference." Another was to make the Annual Conference Committees on Temperance quadrennial boards.

Bishop Mouzon surrendered the chair to Bishop John M. Moore.

The Committee on Church Relations nominated the members of the Commission on Unification, whom the Conference elected. It is composed of the following members:

Bishops—W. A. Candler, Collins Denny, E. D. Mouzon, J. M. Moore, and James Cannon, Jr.

Clerical—F. M. Thomas, Louisville, Ky.; W. J. Young, Atlanta, Ga.; C. M. Bishop, Georgetown, Texas; E. B. Chappell, Nashville, Tenn.; T. N. Ivey, Nashville, Tenn.; A. F. Watkins, Jackson, Miss.; A. J. Lamar, Nashville, Tenn.; Paul H. Linn, Fayette, Mo.; C. C. Selecman, Los Angeles, Calif.; James E. Dickey, Atlanta, Ga.

Lay—M. L. Walton, Woodstock, Va.; H. N. Snyder, Spartanburg, S. C.; Percy D. Maddin, Nashville, Tenn.; J. R. Pepper, Memphis, Tenn.; R. S. Hyer, Dallas, Texas; J. H. Reynoids, Conway, Ark.; R. E. Blackwell, Ashland, Va.; T. D. Samford, Opeiika, Ala.; H. H. White, Alexandria, La.; J. G. McGowen, Water Valley, Miss.

Alternates—Bishop H. M. DuBose, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; Rev. W. D. Bradfieid, Dallas, Texas; Rev. I. C. Jenkins, Jacksonville, Fla.; Rev. L. E. Todd, St. Louis, Mo.; Rev. D. H. Kern, Roanoke, Va.; E. W. Hines, Louisville, Ky.; G. T. Fitzhugh, Memphis, Tenn.; W. P. Few, Durbam, N. C.; C. M. Hay, St. Louis, Mo.

Fifteenth Day—Saturday.

The Conference convened with Bishop J. M. Moore presiding. Dr. O. E. Goddard led the de-

HYMN.

By A. Leonidas Davis.

(The following was suggested by the opening of the Golloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss.)

Great Jehovah, we adore thee
And would worship at thy shrine;
Fill this temple with thy glory,
With shekinal light divine.
May we feel that thou dost love us;
Do thy pard'ning grace impart,
And thou God, who reign'st above us,
Reign in each and every heart.

For the Church which thou hast founded,
For its gracious mercy seat,
May our loudest praise be sounded
Till our rapture is complete!
Blessed Jesus, send thy spirit
To revive each doubting soul;
Let thy blood's atoning merit
Cleanse each heart and make it whole.

Grant the pastor inspiration,
Grant him unction from on high;
Give the people consecration
And their spirits' wants supply.
Free the world from hate in action,
May all war and carnage cease!
Haste the day when every nation
Shall obey the Prince of Peace.

Bear our burdens, blessed Jesus,
We are sinful, weak and blind;
'Tis thy precious blood that frees us;
We would peace and pardon find.
May our sins be all forgiven,
May we daily watch and pray,
Till we reach our home in heaven,
There to praise thy name for aye!

THE LOVE OF GOD ETERNAL.

We grow lonely as the years go on, and we cannot make new friends like the old. In one's life there often comes a change, when the keen vitality of a younger day seems no longer capable of the old intensity, and the very power of loving appears to pass from some. Slowly much dies out of a man, and he wonders if the old eternal promises of his faith can be true at all. But the one thing that will surely remain through everything is the love of God.—John Kelman.

PAUL'S PERILOUS TIMES.

It is noticeable that while Paul in his epistles often prophesied of the "perilous times" that were coming, the only perils he dreaded were those which arose from within the body of the Church itself. He never feared the greatest of the Caesars as he feared the weakest of the saints—"gone wrong." The wolves he warned against, as he told the Ephesian elders, were those "from your own number." Persecution only solidfies a church, but dissension disintegrates it. The fruit of our orchards and the roses in our gardens are blighted by the worm at the core, the canker in the heart. "One sinner destroyeth much good," but nowhere so much as within the Church. A fault-finding church member will do the Church more harm than a profane and ribald infidel. The member who must "rule or ruin," rules only to ruin.—The United Presbyterian.

FELLOWSHIP WITH GOD.

God has made us for communion with Himself, and our life can attain its aim only in intimate fellowship with the Father. But how shall lives so conscious of fault and guilty lives, moreover, so ignorant and weak, enter into any kind of living communion with such an One as He is? There is always something of this difficulty when the lower and weaker seeks the friendship of the higher. If I desire the friendship of some great man, I may by persistence make my way past his servants into his presence. But on such terms I can get only an interview, never a friendship; an interview burdened for me, the fitter I am for friendship, with a sense of intrusion, the sense that I, and not he, am making the approaches. But the whole situation is morally transformed when he comes seeking me, and persists in seeking me, enduring patiently my rebellion and neglect of him. So it is with the Christian view of God in Christ. Here God comes right into the world of human sin, comes as it were, right through it, bearing its scars upon him, to the soul behind the sin, "lays His glory by, makes Himself of no reputation, takes upon Him the form of a servant, and becomes obedient to death, even the death of the Cross," and all that He may break through to me, seeking my friendship.—David S. Cairns, D.D.

WHEN "BILLY" SUNDAY BEGAN PREACHING.

Rev. Frederick Campbell was the pastor of the Chicago church in which Mr. Sunday did his first Christian work. He writes as follows.

"Through the agency of the Pacific Garden Mission, William A. Sunday had been converted about four years before I knew him. He joined Jefferson Park Church, Chicago, just at the close of the pastorate of the late Dr. Thomas Parry. A pastorless interval of more than three years followed, during which the late Professor David C. Marquis of McCormick Seminary filled the pulpit. Dr. Marquis married Mr. Sunday and Nellie Thompson, and baptized some of their children. On my going to Jefferson Park Church, 'Billy' was described to me as a professional baseball player. But I had never heard of a ball player who was at the same time the live wire among a fine lot of ever-ready young people of the church. He was only twenty-nine years old; yet in the infancy of his Christian life he had acquired an experience, an understanding of the Word of God, and a consecration to service, that would make one eminently useful altogether aside from native gifts. About two years after I had become his pastor my heart was gladdened to hear him say that he had resolved to abandon professional baseball and to give his life to some form of Christian activity.

"All the education that he had had, beyond common schooling, was about two years in the Preparatory School at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., where he was induced to study by the offer of free tuition on condition of his training the ball nine. He was now thirty-one years old, married and the father of two children. The laying aside of professional baseball meant the sacrifice of an excellent income. He must earn something at once and constantly, and what he could earn in any form of Christian activity open to him would barely support himself and family and afford no opportunity for classical or theological study.

"Happily there opened an opportunity to take a subordinate position with the Chicago Young Men's Christian Association, with a salary of about $85 a month. 'Billy' decided on this; nor did he waver in his decision when the baseball magnates sought to tempt him back to the field with a $3000 offer for part time. He was seen doing energetic work for the association in the office, leading meetings, and out on the street and in saloons handing out cards of invitation and persistently urging men into the meetings, and conversing with them as opportunity came.

"Despite his Young Men's Christian Association duties, he was still available for church work. The Sabbath school needing a leader, at my suggestion he was made superintendent, and a wide-awake, active era was opened in that branch of the church's life. Here Mr. Sunday began to display those powers of leadership which have since made him a general of the first order. Even his pastor was admonished if he allowed the morning service to run over into the time belonging to the Sabbath school. The growth of the school was not, however, as marked as we had hoped it would be.

"With increasing church membership, it seemed best to increase the number of elders; and proposing this to the session I also suggested that despite his youth Mr. Sunday be chosen as one of the new elders. To this all readily assented, and the day came for his ordination, when kneeling before me as his pastor there was imparted to him his first consecration to sacred office. Billy was present for this service, but when he had joined the church a few years before he was so ignorant of the ways of religion that he did not respond when his name was called, and wondering at his absence, the elders made inquiry and learned that he was attending a ball game. Their admonition he meekly received, promising never again to fail in duty, and that promise was faithfully kept. Such a light as 'Billy' Sunday was burning could not be hid under a bushel, and Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman soon wrested him away from the Young Men's Christian Association work and made him his advance man. This was 'Billy' Sunday's entrance into the evangelistic work that has since made him famous. His part was to go ahead and open and organize the work so that when Dr. Chapman followed all might be found in readiness for speedy results. Suddenly Dr. Chapman notified Mr. Sunday that he had accepted a call to the pastorate of Bethany Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia. For the moment he was dismayed and paralyzed. But while waiting and praying for light there came an invitation to hold a ten days' series of meetings in an Iowa town. Believing that the Lord was leading, but with fear and trembling, he undertook his first independent evangelistic work. Another church wanted him immediately after. And he has never lacked for openings since. It was during the period of my six years' pastorate at Jefferson Park Church that Mr. Sunday made some of his first public appearances.

"My record shows that he spoke in my pulpit a number of times, and also at the great outdoor meetings held at the door of the church opposite the park on summer evenings. His intense, trenchant and evangelical addresses on these occasions went far to convince us that God had something for this man to do. In 1903, having determined to ask admission to the ministry, in loyalty to the old church where he had had his only membership and his first Christian training, he returned to its walls for ordination, and was made a fully ordained minister of the Presbyterian order.

"Nineteen years had elapsed, during which I had neither heard nor seen this once promising youth; but I recently made a hundred-mile journey to Syracuse, N. Y., to behold the work and listen to the voice of perhaps the most noted evangelist of all history. It is the same 'Billy' Sunday.

THE TASK GOLDEN.

By Bishop William A. Quayle.

To get hold of a thing that is big enough to get hold of us is magnificent. To go winking and blinking around about a little business is not worth the winks and the blinks; but to get hold of the sea and tuck your fingers into its mane, and see the thing leap and fight to be riderless, and to sit and ride it to the shore—that is worth while! It is worth while to be in a great Church, with a great God, steering to a great eternity, and the thing I think of pretty often is: Who is going to keep us to our immortality? Who is going to keep us to our bigness? Who is going to look after our vastness? Who is going to tell us with insistent voice that we are sublime? Who is going to tell us that death does not count any, if we live a right life? Who is going to point the finger at the majesty we are and the majesty we are to be?

There are many who will help us to look after our mortality. The grocer will help us, and the doctor will help us, and the shoe merchant will help us, and the railroad man will help us, and the statesman will help us, and the educator will help us, and the college will help us; but who is going to help us look after the Godward? Who is going to help us look after our everlastingness?

Answer: The preacher is going to help us. He is the man that keeps tune with the infinite; he is the man who, though he may not spell the best and though he may not be educated the most, has heard in his own heart the deathless music, and pitches the tune.

What people need is the tune of their everlastingness. I remember so many times when people would say: "Preach on the things of the day; preach on the things that people are thinking about during the week." But I never did, because they thought about those things themselves and did not need to have me help them. But on Sunday I began to take up the harp of life and to smite upon some of the strings with what little might I had, and began to make men dream of deathless-ness; and then men got religion. The thing we are after is to get hold of our own souls; to know that life leads us so long a distance, that the run is so very far, so very expeditious, and so very glorious.

O my heart, canst thou take to the race? O my heart, canst thou make the run? O my heart, who is going to get thee to the summit of the sky, and get thee back behind the stars? O my heart, who is going to get thee over where the angels stay? Who is going to get thee where Christ walks the road every day and bringeth a morning to every shadowy night? Who is going to get theo there?

And the answer is: The preacher is going to help us; and so the preacher has the most majestic task of all men.

"LET NO MAN DECEIVE YOU."

Unquestionably many of the early Christians expected the Lord's return in their own day, and died disappointed. Ignatius and Polycarp both thought that the end of all things was imminent. Justin held the same view some fifty years later. In the third century Tertullian, of Africa, announced Christ's early return. Many more great names might be mentioned, but soon Augustine appeared on the scene and taught another view which dominated the Church for practically a thousand years. From the fourteenth century on, however, especially when great political upheavals shook Europe, every few years witnessed a revival of the study of prophecy, usually resulting in the fixing of a time for Christ's return.

Milltz, of Kromeriz, predicted the end of the world between 1365 and 1367. A little later, during the Hussite wars (1415-1436) many Bohemians believed the end so near that they sold their property and gathered in five cities which had been selected as places of refuge, to be spared from the world conflagration. In the next century a group of Germans took possession of the city of Munster and founded a new Zion, in anticipation of Christ's return. Here fanaticism became so unrestrained that they had to be forcibly suppressed. In 1627 Alsted set the time for 1694. A little later a French Protestant, Jurieu, announced 1689 as the year. The Ronsdorf sect in Germany agreed upon 1730, and ten years after that date Bengel, a great student of the Revelation, fixed the year 1836. Before that year arrived, stimulated by the French Revolution, the Irvingites arose—named from Edward Irving, a Scotch Presbyterian—and they were sure Christ would return in 1864, their prophecy gaining many believers in America because of the Outbreak of the Civil War. About this time, too, arose the Mormons and the Millerites (now known as Adventists), both groups placing great emphasis on the Lord's return, the latter fixing the date at 1843, but later revising the figures and agreeing on Oct. 22, 1844. There were many, many more; but the world still went on.

These mistaken prophets were by no means all ignorant men. On the contrary, they were often among the most learned and devout of their times. If they had kept their studies to themselves no great harm could have come, but they gave forth their mistaken beliefs as the "sure word of phophecy," and many persons, more emotional and less well balanced, suffered much and caused others to suffer because of the blunders of the false prophets. Read, for instance, the story of the "Cobbites," a sect which grew up in Arkansas out of the Irvingite and Millerite agitations. They had fixed on 1875 for the Lord's coming, and on the appointed day piled up their household goods for a great bonfire, and in emotional delirium "watched" for the Lord's coming. A citizen of a nearby town whose curiosity led him to draw near was murdered by the frenzied "saints" and his head stuck on a gatepost. Two of the murderers were tried and acquitted on the ground of "emotional insanity." That is a concrete illustration of the practical outcome of the danger—mental and moral—which lurks in the seductive study of signs. There are much better ways to use one's time. Wise men will find those ways and, in spite of those who teach that the only business of the elect is to save themselves and insure their own happiness, it still remains true that "he that winneth souls is wise," and Paul's admonition to the Thessalonians, disturbed on this very subject, is most pertinent to-day: "Be not weary in well-doing."—The Presbyterian.

THE NEED OF WITNESSING.

If ever it has been necessary for the Church of Christ to have clear, well-defined impressions of the great fundamental fact of the actuality of the resurrection of Christ, it is to-day. Dr. Abraham Kuyper, in a recent article, has expressed himself as to the crying need of the hour in Protestantism, which is the "Need of Confession," or "Witnessing."

Why and whence this crying need? we may ask. Have we not our great solid Confession of Faith, carefully elaborated by the Westminster fathers of 1643-49? Most assuredly; and this is also the fact with the Dutch Church in the case of the Confession of 1563, and the Canons of 1618-19.

Dr. Kuyper insists that as the line of battle changes our own must follow the change, and that special points of doctrine and life demand our attention. In our day the fundamental facts are bitterly assailed. The virgin birth, the true divinity of Christ, the atonement, the resurrection, the ascension, the promised return of Christ, all these are weighed in the balance. And our light and heavier literature is filled with innuendoes or bold negations, and whoever is in living touch with young people knows how deeply the knife of doubt has penetrated and how ugly is the wound that has been made. What the Church needs, therefore, is to "confess," or witness anew what she believes of Christ, and in answer to the blatant heresies about and within her.

Now the resurrection is the very keynote of the life of Christ. Without it the life of the Master is a riddle and none of the facts of that life appear actual. It seems like a road without a terminus, a battle without an objective. "He was mightily proven to be the Son of God by his resurrection from the dead."

If Christ be not risen, Paul tells us, our faith is vain, we are yet in our sins. To Paul faith in the resurrection was the crucial thing of all his faith in Christ. The apostles called themselves "witnesses of the resurrection," and, ingrained as was their Judaism, they raised the indestructible monument to their faith in the resurrection of Christ by the institution of the "Lord's Day," which even in their time completely replaced the Jewish Sabbath.—Christian Observer.

A MAN OF PRAYER.

Every great man in the Church of God has been a man of prayer, and Asbury was no exception. While on the road he spent ten minutes of every hour in prayer, and for years prayed daily for all his preachers by name. Dr. Tipple, his biographer, says: "This habit of close and fervent communion with God was the spring of that amazing and steady zeal which bore him on in his unparalleled American career. The secret of his life and labors was a regnant sense of fellowship with God, a sense so real, so vivid, so dominant, that it drove him across seas, into cities and out of cities, through wilderness and over mountains, a sense of fellowship so complete and so beautiful that it made him impervious to hardships, buoyed him amid uncommon discouragements and held him steady amid distressing torments, until at the last the chariot of the Lord caught him up."

We read in his journal time and time again such notes as these: "As sure as we draw nigh to God in sincerity He will draw nigh to us. I have given myself to private prayer seven times a day, and find my heart much drawn out in behalf of the preachers, the societies, especially the new places, and my aged parents. And while thus exercised my soul has been both quickened and purified. Let the glory be given to God." Again: "Fasted and intended to spend a greater part of the night in prayer, but felt weak through want of rest. I spent better than an hour in fervent prayer, and was much blessed, having my soul divinely filled with love when I lay down. Rose about five in better health; passed some time in fervent prayer for the whole work—the preachers and people."

Soul-Saving—His Master Passion.

Asbury had one consuming passion to save perishing souls. To save the lost was worth all the pain, sorrow and suffering man can endure. Nothing cheered him more than to hear of great revivals of religion. On hearing such reports he would shout, "Glory, glory, glory." During a long tour through the South he and Bishop McKendree rode together in a carriage. In his journal it is thus described: "We are riding in a poor thirty dollar chaise, in partnership, two Bishops of us; but it must be confessed it tallies well with the weight of our purses. What, Bishops! Well, but we have great times; each Western, Southern and the Virginia Conference will have a thousand souls truly converted to God, and is not this an equivalent for a light purse, and are we not well paid for starving and toil? Yes, glory to God."—Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate.

SOMETIME.

"Sometime, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars forever more set,
The things which our weak judgments here have spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine out in deeper tints of blue,
And we shall see how God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

"And we shall see how, while we frown or sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How, when we call, He heedeth not our cry,
Because His wisdom to the end could see;
And even as wise parents disallow
Too much of sweets to craving babyhood,
So God, no doubt, is keeping for us now
Life's sweetest things because it seemeth good.

"But not to-day. Then be content, poor heart,
God's plans, like lilies, pure and white, unfold;
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And when through patience long we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loosed, may rest,
Then we shall clearly see and understand;
Then we shall say, 'Our God knew what was best.'"

GOD REIGNS!

Nor must we forget the undefeatable hope of humanity. At a time when all the facts seem to favor despair, and pessimism is most easily justified, there rises up an unconquerable hope of a better world to replace the old—the dawning of a day when darkness shall give way to light, wrong to rectitude, and hate to good will. Even before any frontier had been crossed, almost before the first shot had been fired, the finest minds of all lands began to lay plans looking to a day when such a tragedy cannot be. It is indeed wonderful—this hope, this conviction, this dream of humanity still unshaken, a pillar of cloud by day, a pillar of fire by night. These are some of the things that remain amid the upheavals and overturnings of our time, and of all times, and they are tokens of a kingdom that cannot be moved.

God reigns!
His is the day.
And the night of hate
And the storm of wrath
Shall pass away.

Love reigns!
Hers are the years,
And the age of peace
And of kindliness
Shall banish fears.

Truth reigns!
God is on high,
And the pride of kings
And the lust of things
Are doomed to die.

REV. S. M. THAMES.

"There is no death! What seems so is transition!
This life of mortal breath
Is but the suburb of the Life Elysian,
Whose portals we call death."

These words are true of all who accept and live for Christ, and to this noble company the subject of this sketch belonged. Not in death and the grave has his career ended. Though he vanished from physical sight when his brave, true heart ceased to beat and his pulseless form was laid beneath the sod, faith yet sees him in the "City which hath foundations," reigning with the Master and the countless millions of the redeemed. Fidelity to God leads to the heights both in time and in eternity, and that he was faithful none who truly knew him will deny. This is incontrovertibly attested by the splendid record of service that he has left, which is well worth recounting as an encouragement and inspiration.

Samuel Monroe Thames, the son of John and Ruth (Cobb) Thames, was born in Shelby County, Alabama, January 14, 1835. He came of a sturdy and worthy ancestry and the early influences about him in the home of his parents were wholesome and helpful. As a result, he was soundly converted when a boy and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The educational opportunities in the Southern States at that time were not so abundant as they are to-day, but he attended a high school in Bibb County, in which he was well taught and where he laid the foundations for the largely useful life that was to follow. In the opening days of his young manhood he was anxious to enter the legal profession and for some time planned to do so, but a higher hand than his own was shaping his course and a divine call to the Christian ministry came to him so clearly and unmistakably, that he felt, "Woe is unto me if I preach not the Gospel." Like the great Apostle to the Gentiles, he was not "disobedient to the heavenly vision," but, under the influence of this strong conviction, he set about making ready for his life-work. Having been licensed to preach in 1857, he joined the Alabama Conference in 1859, and served the Winston Mission in 1860, and the Murphy Valley Circuit in 1861 and '62, being ordained a deacon at the close of his second year (in 1861) by Bishop Early.

At this time the War between the States was furiously raging, and the young itinerant entered the service of his country, becoming an officer in Company D, of the Thirtieth Alabama Regiment. A braver soldier never wore the gray in that memorable struggle. He participated in the siege of Vicksburg and the fighting that led up to it. While commanding his Company in the Battle of Baker's Creek, he lost his youngest brother, Charles, and a brother-in-law, both being killed. He went into that battle with forty men, and came out with eight. It was once the writer's privilege to go on a train from Jackson, Miss., to Vicksburg with Brother Thames, and during the trip he commented on the campaign that took place about the Hill City, relating many of the trying experiences that he passed through in those fearful days, telling particularly of the agony that wrung his soul when he had to leave his brother slain upon the field that had been so fiercely contested. But though he remained loyal to the South and the cause for which she so splendidly sacrificed and suffered, he carried no bitterness toward the North in his heart. He took pride in the glories of the reunited Nation, and there was beneath the flag of the Stars and Stripes no citizen more patriotic or more devoted to the true welfare of the whole country than was he.

Having been honorably discharged from the army, the year 1864 found Brother Thames again at his "loved employ," in the itinerant ministry, being still in the Alabama Conference, in which he served the following charges, in addition to those already mentioned: 1864, Jonesboro Circuit; 1865, Choctaw Circuit (he this year received at Mobile elder's orders at the hands of Bishop Paine); 1866 and '67, Butler and Mt. Sterling; 1868-'71, Gaston Circuit; 1872, Suggsville Circuit; 1873-'74, Dayton and Springfield. At the close of the latter year, he was transferred to the North Mississippi Conference, where he remained until his death, serving therein the following appointments: 1875-'76, Wood Street, Water Valley; 1877-'80, Crawford Circuit; 1881, Hebron Circuit; 1882, Kosciusko and Durant; 1883-'86, Grenada District; 1887-'90, Sardis District; 1891-'94, Winona District; 1895-'98, Aberdeen District; 1899, Macon Station; 1900-'01, Minter City and Strathmore; 1902-'04, Coldwater and Love's; 1905-'07, Grenada District; 1908, Durant District; 1909-'10, Pickens Circuit; 1911-'12, Carrollton; 1912-'15, Hernando; 1915-'18, superannuated.

In 1867, Brother Thames was united in marriage to Miss Mary Elizabeth DeLoach, of DeSotoville, Ala., and this union was in every respect a most happy one. The accomplished young bride was admirably equipped to be the wife of a Methodist minister, and in every field to which her consecrated husband was assigned she re-enforced his efforts and contributed largely to the success that he achieved. The home of this devoted couple was blessed with four children—two daughters and two sons. The older daughter died in infancy, and the younger son, Charles, who was a promising young lawyer at Vicksburg, died suddenly shortly after his father's superannuation, giving him a shock from which he did not seem ever wholly to recover. The other son, Hon. James D. Thames, a leading member of the Mississippi bar, resides at Vicksburg, and has for some years filled with distinction the responsible office of District Attorney. Mrs. Connie Loyd, the surviving daughter, resides with her mother at Jackson, Miss. She had the misfortune to lose her husband some years ago, when she became again an inmate of her father's home, being a great help and blessing to him in his closing years.

Brother Thames' active ministry covered a period of fifty-five years, during which time he labored with a diligence and zeal that never flagged. Duty was his watchword, and he spent his strength freely and unselfishly in whatever work the Church commissioned him to do. He wrought effectively on circuits and in stations, and served for twenty years in the presiding eldership. His fitness for that important office was universally recognized, and he magnified it and made it a mighty force for the upbuilding of the Church and the Master's Kingdom. As the president of a quarterly conference, he was wise, tactful, and masterful, and in the Cabinet he was a valuable counselor on whom the Bishop could safely rely. Bishop Galloway said he knew no presiding elder in the Church who, for general effectiveness, was his superior. He never traveled a district which he did not leave in a far better condition than he found it. And what a friend he was to the young ministers who served under him! He took a deep interest in their spiritual and intellectual development and sought in every possible way to incite them to seek all that was highest and best. He was the writer's first presiding elder, and his indebtedness to him for his helpfulness is beyond the power of words to express. And he left a like impress upon scores of others whom he touched in the opening years of their itinerancy.

As a preacher, Brother Thames was strong, suggestive, and forceful. He was a clear and vigorous thinker and he dealt with the great, vital themes of the Gospel in his discourses. For the graces of the rhetorician he cared little; he appraised a sermon by the thought contained in it. He gripped his audiences by his striking, practical way of presenting the truth, and held them, as he proceeded with the discussion of his subject, by the orderly processes of his logic. He was never dull and uninteresting. He was no distributer of other men's wares—he was analytical, original, and sometimes startling, in the views expressed. On some occasions he preached with great unction and power, profoundly moving his hearers and awakening within them an earnest hunger for God and spiritual things. The Heavenly Father honored his pulpit messages and he was not without many seals to his ministry.

But besides being an effective pastor and preacher, Brother Thames had uncommon gifts of leadership. It is doubtful whether any other member of the North Mississippi Conference has ever made his influence more strongly felt for the good of the Church in Mississippi. He had a considerable part in all the great enterprises that the Methodism of that State has carried forward within recent decades. He was an active worker in the movement to acquire the Grenada College property and to set that institution going. He served on its Board of Trustees for twenty-five years, faithfully attending its meetings and leaving nothing in his power undone to promote its interests. He was one of the original trustees of Millsaps College and helped to cradle and launch that choice school, and he was still serving in that capacity at the time of his decease. His love for Millsaps was ardent and deep, and he was never known to miss a Commencement or a meeting of its Board of Trust. He was a warm personal friend of Bishop Galloway and Major Millsaps, and so safe was his judgment that they counted it worth while to seek his views in council. He was also a fast friend of the Mississippi Orphans' Home at Jackson and gave valuable support to that institution both in its earlier and later years.

Best of all, however, Brother Thames was a good man. He was virile and aggressive, and his piety was not of "the luscious sort;" but he had a sound experience of grace and he was genuine to the core. He was bold, outspoken, and incapable of any sort of deception. He had an unwavering faith in the fundamental verities of the Christian religion, and he was a man of prayer, who lived in daily communion with the risen Lord. The Bible to him was truly the Word of God and he was willing to stake all upon its teachings. He lived above reproach. No whisper was ever heard against the purity of his character. And how he loved his Church! He had a passionate devotion to it, and his loyalty to its interests could not be shaken. All that he had was upon its altar, and twined about it were the very tendrils of his heart.

Everywhere a worthy disciple of the Lord Jesus, it was not surprising that the home life of our ascended brother was so ideal and beautiful. He was a chivalrous and devoted husband, and a kind, tender, affectionate father. One could not be his guest without carrying away delightful memories of that charming family circle, for love reigned there and Christian courtesy abounded. I do not think I have ever known the head of a household to be more reverenced and honored by his wife and children than was Brother Thames. The affection and watchful interest that he so unstintedly gave to them seemed to be returned to him in full measure.

The deceased was nearly eighty years of age when he gained his consent to put off the active harness and take the superannuate relation. Very few men have the vigor and energy to continue on the effective list to so late a period in life. In order to be near his sons in Vicksburg and close to Millsaps College, where he knew he would be able to meet often many of the friends that he had learned to love, he decided to make his home in Jackson. So long as he was able, he there attended regularly the ordinances of the Church, and he continued to take a keen interest in all that pertained to the Kingdom of Christ. It was evident, however, to the close observer that his strength was gradually failing, and he seemed to grow feebler more rapidly after the sorrow that came to him in the unexpected death of his beloved son, to which reference has already been made. In February, 1917, he fell and broke his arm, and was as a result a shut-in for several weeks, but at last recovered sufficiently to be present again at the services of the sanctuary and to attend the Millsaps Commencement of that year. On the 5th of last September he and Sister Thames celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, the occasion being a happy one to them and their many friends. A month later, while out walking, he slipped upon a banana peeling and fell, fracturing his hip. Then followed weeks of painful suffering, until finally he was able to get in a rolling chair and go about the house. But frequently he would complain of being very tired and express an earnest longing for rest. About two weeks before his death, he was seized with an attack of la grippe, from which he suffered greatly. All that his faithful physician, Dr. E. H. Galloway, and the tender hands of anxious loved ones could do, was done; but nothing could prolong the earthly stay of the worn and weary pilgrim. Just as day was dawning on April 11, 1918, he peacefully fell asleep, surrounded by the members of his family and other relatives and friends.

The obsequies took place in the spacious Galloway Memorial Church, in Jackson, on Friday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, in the presence of a large concourse of people, gathered from the city and other sections of the State. The Millsaps College Faculty and the resident superannuated preachers acted as honorary pallbearers. The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. W. Crisler, who spoke touchingly and appreciatively of the deceased, as also did Rev. J. R. Countiss and Rev. W. W. Woollard, of the North Mississippi Conference. The hymns used were "Jesus, Lover of My Soul;" "The Home of the Soul," and "Soldier of Christ, Well Done." The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, attesting the high esteem in which the translated veteran was held. The body later was transported to Vicksburg, and laid to rest in that historic city, with Dr. T. B. Holloman officiating.

Thus, after having served well his day and generation, by the will of God, another co-worker with Christ has passed through the gateway of the tomb to his eternal coronation. We shall see his face on earth no more, but he will not be forgotten. His work will abide, and his influence will long continue to be felt. Many whose lives he was instrumental in blessing will cherish his memory through the coming years and will expectantly look forward to the time when they shall again clasp his hand in "the land of cloudless day." The hope of such a reunion is thoroughly Scriptural and spans like a rainbow the mystic bosom of the future. Yes—

"Every loved one that is gone,
We shall meet again beyond—
In that land so bright and fair,
We shall know each other there.
What a happy time 'twill be,
When the Savior we shall see,
With our friends and angels blest,
In that land of peace and rest—
When that happy home we gain,
Where the King of kings doth reign."

SNOBBERY'S LAST WORD.

The abyss to which "exclusiveness" may ultimately sink was unconsciously illustrated by a man who was asked which of two views he thought finer. One lay at the end of a traveled trail, the other in the wilds. He chose the latter, because, said he, "fewer people see it." Can littleness of soul go farther than this notion that Nature is cheapened by being appreciated?—Collier's Weekly.

SOME DOINGS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE AT ATLANTA.

Mrs. Corra Harris tells of a visitor of solemn mien who had for some time looked down from the visitors' gallery with evident disgust at what was taking place in the conference room, gave vent to his feelings with the exclamation: "It is mighty near ungodly the way them fellers are acting down there."

Some of the visitors from the Mississippi Conference reached a like conclusion, but were more modest in expressing their mind. The authority of the revered old doctor, Parliamentary Law, was often invoked with much perseverance, and at times, with seeming animosity. The presiding Bishop could not take all the prescriptions offered, and at times found trouble in culling the real from the spurious. When he had made his choice the Conference was sometimes appealed to in order to show the Bishop that he had made a mistake.

After seventeen days spent in the room of the General Conference, and in the committee room—and the doings in both rooms were much the same—I do not recall that any man left me with the idea that he was not trying to do the best thing for the Church as he saw it, his earnestness always accounting for his vehemence and insistence. Like the youngest of Job's friends, he felt that he "must speak on the Lord's behalf." I sometimes felt that the service might have been better rendered by another.

No, we did not behave like we were at a prayer meeting. The sessions of the Conference were held in the immense auditorium of the Wesley Memorial Church, and only a good voice could make one distinctly heard. The cry of "louder," "louder," was frequently heard. A brother with a voice of wonderful volume got the floor for a speech, and he could have been heard some blocks away. When he closed a sentence with one of his best and loudest notes, some member with a voice of equal volume cried, "louder." A brother from Texas who had impressed himself on the Conference as the possessor of some eccentricities managed to get the floor, and began by saying: "I want to make a motion to amend, myself;" when some member with a loud voice cried: "I second that motion." But the speaker was not mended.

Yes, the radical was there. He had heard of many things that were cures-all for the sick church, and he favored trying all of them. But his favorite prescription was "democracy." If it bore that label it must he good. And the conservative was there, too. With him whatever is in Methodist polity must be best. To him change is synonymous with revolution. Between these extremes stood the majority of the General Conference who seemed to have adopted the motto of the Christian Advocate: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

I thought I discovered in the agitation, if not in the legislation, a disposition to take from beneath the pastor his props, without giving him a corresponding support from above. With the present trend is there not ground to fear that democracy and autocracy may meet in mighty pressure on the pastor? No man in our itinerant system needs legislative relief so much as he.

We will need to train our lips to new phrases for old things. "Children's Day" has been turned into "Sunday School Day." The Joint Board of Finance got a slight trimming, and henceforth must be called "Board of Finance." The office of Superintendent of Wesley Bible Classes has been abolished, and the office of Corresponding Secretary has been created in the Sunday school work.

When the District Stewards do their work for the new Conference year there will be sent out an increase of assessments to the several pastoral charges aggregating more than $300,000. More than $246,000 of this will be new matter, and in the list of items for Conference collections will appear, "Theological Schools," "Negro Work," "Epworth Leagues," and "Sunday Schools."

The Commission on Finance.

The Commission on Finance is a new creation, and one that I do not like. A brief outline of its workings, as I understand it, follows: This commission acts for all General Boards in making assessments for the boards on the Annual Conferences. One treasurer for an Annual Conference handles all the funds, and distributes the money received among the claimants on a percentage fixed by the Commission of Finance. Each pastor must send his collections to the treasurer in a lump sum, and the treasurer distributes this by the fixed percentage. All this looks very well on paper, but its practical workings will be revolutionary. As I view it, it hinders any educational program that may be inaugurated by a board or a pastor. The "slacker" board shares equally with the diligent board. It prevents putting forward emergency claims. If a church wishes to provide for the Conference Claimants during the month of March, as we try to do in the Mississippi Conference, it is not allowed to do so, unless all assessments are paid at that time. It prevents the giver from directing his gifts. This I believe to be an unjustified interference with a member's liberty, and that it imposes conditions which must stifle giving. But we will see what we will see.

The Time Limit.

The only option left many of us was a choice between a complete or a limited removal of the time limit. I preferred a small venture at a time. A little flexibility may enable us to move more wisely in the future. Since the Bishops did not see fit to send this question down to the Annual Conferences for their approval or rejection, the next General Conference can tinker with it in the light of four years' experience.

Laity Rights for Women.

No question was more prminently before the General Conference than that involving laity rights for the women. Many who had opposed this in former Conferences championed the call of the women for fuller privileges and labors. This indicates that the measure did not win its passage by the vote of the General Conference novice. But there was little disappointment that the Bishops saw fit to send the question down for further trial before the Annual Conferences.

The Holy Catholic Church versus Christ's Holy Church.

There was a very general dissent from the action of the Bishops in calling on the Annual Conferences to say if the word "Christ's" should be instituted for the word "catholic" in the Apostles' Creed. The veto must rest upon the assumption that the ritual of the church is a part of its constitution—a contention of very late birth. Nearly every General Conference has seen fit to make some change in the ritual, and these changes have never before been sent to the Annual Conferences. The writer labors upon the impression that the phrase "Holy Catholic Church" did not find its way into the ritual by General Conference action, but by way of a commission chosen to act with a like committee from the Methodist Episcopal Church in providing a common ritual and a common hymnal for the two Churches. That was less than sixteen years ago. The statement has been made that only twice in the history of our Church has the veto power been invoked, prior to the late General Conference. Is the statement correct, Mr. Editor?

Lay Membership in an Annaul Conference.

After this the District Conference will be called on to elect eight, not four, lay members who will be members of the ensuing Annual Conference. I hope all of them will attend and participate heartily in the business of the Conference. At Atlanta the cry was loud and insistant: "Give the laymen something to do." I am heartily in favor of giving them everything they want and will use, and we cannot know this without a trial.

Stewards and the Church Conference.

A strong effort was made to take the election of stewards from the quarterly conference and have them elected by the Church Conference. The move was defeated by a small majority, and thus was saved to the pastor one of his best props.

Unification.

The question of unification loomed large before the General Conference. If its settlement had been left to those present pro-unification would have carried by a decisive majority. No question half so perplexing as this came before the Committee on Church Relations, and in the effort of the Committee to agree on a report it was late in the session before the matter came before the General Conference. The majority and the minority each offered a report. With other things for which the minority stood was the continuation of the old commission. The minority report was finally withdrawn, and the majority report was adopted with only a few nay votes. There was some talk of a "nigger in the wood-pile," but he never showed his head. Both sides seemed to be satisfied with the personnel of the new commission. As I see the question, much prayer, patience, and forbearance will be needed to avert a split in our Church.

Our Superannuates.

The Conference took what is thought to be a long, forward step in taking care of our Conference Claimants. This interest has been put on the same footing as Missions, Church Extension, and Education. A board of managers were elected, and a secretary will be employed who will give his entire time to this interest. The selection of a secretary in the future will be left to the General Conference. The funds of this board will be distributed on the basis of the years of service. The Annual Conference Joint Board of Finance, now the Board of Finance, will continue its work as in the past.

Bringing my story to an abrupt close, and summing up my impressions of what was done, let me say that I think many wise things were done, and some things were done that were otherwise. But we will commit our honest efforts to Him who can make even the wrath of man to praise Him, and believe that He will forgive our failures, and bless our labors.

GEO. H. THOMPSON.

Meridian, Miss., May 24, 1918.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: The Treasurer of the General Board of Missions has sent the following appeal to our Conference Treasurer:

"Mr. S. H. Meyer,
New Orleans, La.

Dear Brother: The borrowing time of the year has come, and what will save us from going heavily into bank to meet our current demands is that the Conference Treasurers make urgent appeals to the charges to pay their assessments, and to send this office not later than June 1 all money received. The need is pressing, and relief can only come from your well directed efforts. Will you help? Sincerely yours,

J. D. HAMILTON,
Treasurer Board of Missions."

Let me urge you to heed this call by presenting the matter to your people at once. We must not leave our General Board to borrow money to carry on the work of our great missions. If each charge will pay at once its assessment for Foreign Missions the General Board will not be forced to borrow in order to carry on the great missionary operations of our beloved Church. Please give this your attention at the earliest possible moment, and send the money to S. H. Meyer, 116 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La.

N. E. JOYNER.
Lake Charles, La. Conference Secretary

PAT'S CHOICE.

Two sons of Erin, shoveling dirt on a hot day, stopped to rest, and exchanged views on the labor question.

"Pat, this is mighty hard work we're at."

"It is, indade, Jimmy; but what kind of work is it you'd like if ye could get it?"

"Well," said the other, leaning reflectively upon his shovel, and wiping the perspiration with the back of his hand, "for a nice, aisy, clane business, I think I would like to be a Bishop."

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Every telephone operator understands that she is working under conditions unprecedented in our national life, and in rendering efficient service she is doing a patriotic duty similar to that of the soldiers in the trenches.

She knows that the enormous increase in telephone traffic is due directly to the government's war activities, and that it is regarded as a matter of course that she will meet the new demands cheerfully and well.

So when the increasing business is reflected in your telephone service by a slowing down and by more frequent busy reports, remember that the operator is not entirely to blame.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

votions. The Journal of yesterday was read and approved.

Bishop McMurry took the chair.

The Commission on Temperance and Social Service was nominated and elected by the Conference.

The Publishing Agents were ordered to meet the expenses of the Board of Finance until such a time as it may have funds of its own.

A resolution of thanks, offered by Dr. John O. Willson, was adopted by a rising vote.

Bishop McMurry surrendered the chair to Bishop Darlington. Sundry reports from the Committee on Revisals were read and adopted. One of these provided for a return attachment to a Church letter issued to a member, by means of which it is hoped to keep track of persons moving from one community to another.

Bishop DuBose took the chair, beginning his presiding with a facetious remark.

Report No. 14, proposing to have stewards elected by the Church Conference was read, as was also a minority report proposing nonconcurrence. Much discussion followed. The minority report finally prevailed, leaving the matter unchanged.

A form for submitting the question of laity rights to women was proposed, amended, and adopted.

Bishop DuBose turned the chair over to Bishop Ainsworth.

Bishop Denny, for the College of Bishops, announced the Commission on War Work.

Bishop Denny also read to the Conference the plan of episcopal visitation for 1918-19.

Upon motion, Dr. DuBose was requested to prepare a memorial of the late Dr. Gross Alexander to be placed in the General Conference record.

Owing to the illness of Bishop McCoy, Bishop DuBose was substituted as President of the Epworth League Board.

The protest against the statement of the Committee on Missions in answer to the Episcopal Address was read and ordered spread upon the Journal of the General Conference.

Bishop Lambuth, being recognized, presented Rev. J. W. Gilbert, of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, who addressed the Conference at some length.

Bishop Cannon took the chair, being heartily greeted by the Conference.

Bishop L. H. Holsey, the Senior Bishop of the C. M. E. Church, was introduced and spoke briefly.

Bishop Waterhouse addressed the Conference in an interesting manner. At the close of his remarks, many members of the Conference rose and applauded.

Action was taken to the effect that if vacancies shall occur in the Board of Trustees in Emory University, the right to confirm them is committed to the Board of Education.

The Commission on Finance submitted a report, levying an assessment on the Church for various causes. The total amounted to $1,700,000.

The Conference adjourned with the benediction by Dr. H. K. Carroll.

Fifteenth Day—Saturday Afternoon.

The Conference assembled at 3 o'clock p. m., with Bishop Cannon presiding. Dr. Chas. D. Bulla conducted the opening religious exercises. Bishop Hendrix took the chair.

Upon motion of Dr. A. J. Lamar, the motion, previously adopted, that the General Conference adjourn Monday afternoon, was reconsidered and it was resolved to adjourn at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon (Saturday.)

Report No. 15 of the Committee on Missions was adopted.

A Commission on Statistical blanks, consisting of Rev. B. C. Horton, Rev. J. R. Countiss, and Rev. R. E. Turnipseed, was constituted.

The question of lay representation in the Annual Conferences then came up on a report from the Committee on Revisals. The Committee recommended ten from each presiding elder's district. This number was reduced to eight and the report was adopted.

A number of other reports were acted upon.

Bishop Hendrix then announced Hymn 22, after which Rev. H. C. Morrison led in prayer. Following this, Bishop Hendrix made a brief address, after which he pronounced the benediction, and the Conference stood adjourned sine die.

PREACHER'S WORKING PROGRAM.

By Andrew Gillies, D. D.

1. Hold sacred your hours of study. You must if you are to remain fresh in thought, strong in body and mighty in spiritual power. Start right and it will be easy.

2. Write one sermon in full each week. I believe there is no other way for the most of us to do effective preaching.

3. Make your Sunday night service evangelistic. I believe more than ever in the personal appeal followed by the public decision.

4. Be systematic. It will conserve your strength and increase your power.

5. Make the indwelling Christ the most real thing of your life.

A MUCH USED BIBLE.

When we turn to the Supreme Court, instead of many Bibles we find but one small volume, now celebrated as the Justices' Bible, used continuously during the one hundred and sixteen years since 1800 for installation of oaths of all the justices and the pledging of allegiance of all the attorneys who have practiced before that court. No wonder that on an average for about every decade of this period a new or extra outside cover of black leather has been required to keep the red morocco binding of the little Book in such freshness as it still possesses. This Bible is five and a half inches long and three and a half inches wide, and tradition says that it formed one of twenty thousand which Congress imported in the early days of the Republic to relieve the Scriptural dearth of the country. The title-page shows that it was printed at Oxford in 1799. This Bible has always been in the care of the clerk of the Supreme Court.—The Christian Herald.

DOES IT PAY?

Before Jack London died so unexpectedly recently he said, "When I make my pile, I am going to quit selling my brains to literary junkshops, and settle down to something worth while," but he went out too soon to keep his word.

Life is too serious for us to take chances on anything in which soul values are concerned. To juggle with time is to trifle with destiny. To fail below the level of one's possibilities is to cheat one's own soul. To fail to be master of circumstances will surely spell defeat.

John Burroughs and Jay Gould were schoolmates. They had a wrestling contest one day, and agreed on a certain hold to be observed by both from start to finish. When Jay found he could not throw John, he broke his hold, and his word, and threw him heavily to the ground. John was vexed and said, "Jay, you lied when you broke your hold;" but Jay replied with a grin, "Never mind, John. I threw you just the same, didn't I?" Now trace for yourself the career of each man; then say whether it pays or not to break your hold.—Norman La Marche.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Corinth District Conference will convene at New Albany on June 11-13, beginning at 3 o'clock p. m., on the 11th inst.

The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. W. S. Norton, our pastor at Ripley and Blue Mountain, at 8:30 p. m., on the 11th.

The following committees are appointed:

On License to Preach and Recommendation to the Annual Conference for Admission on Trial—J. E. Cunningham, L. A. McKeown, J. M. Bradley.

On Orders—J. W. Ward, J. D. Simpson, B. P. Fullilove.

Let all who expect to attend the Conference, be sure to send their names to Rev. J. M. Bradley at New Albany in due time. This is necessary.

THE TRUTH WILL TRIUMPH.

The kings of the earth may rule the people, but the prophets of the Lord must direct them in the path of duty. In every age, God's prophets vindicate God's honor. The cause of truth and righteousness has never been without a witness in the world. The candle of the Lord continues to shed its rays of light into every dark corner. Noah was a preacher of righteousness. John the Baptist was the herald of salvation. The Reformation bore testimony to the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. We often despair at the small number of Christians. We imagine the Church has lost its influence, and the Gospel its power. There are people who talk as though the hour had struck some hand to write "Ichabod" over the portals of the Kingdom of God. This feeling of depression is often due to local conditions, or it may be to a torpid liver. If we cannot have our own plan carried out, or if others do not agree with our views, we are apt to believe that the end of all things is at hand. No Christian can be despondent without forming an indictment against himself. Let us not underestimate the strength of God's hosts in the world. They are more than we can number. Christians are as innumerable as the stars above us or as the sand beneath our feet. The Church is continually enlarging her borders, strengthening her stakes, and stretching forth the arm of salvation to embrace all mankind. The Word of the Lord endureth forever.—Reformed Church Messenger.

VOLTAIRE.

Voltaire, the noted French infidel, when a mere child learned an infidel poem which so poisoned his mind and life that its effects were the production of a skeptical character who, by his writings, lectures, and life, so poisoned the minds and lives of hundreds and thousands of other immortal beings as to send immense multitudes to everlasting destruction. Only an infidel poem learned by a five-year-old old, and a whole nation is flavored with infidelity as a terrible result.—Anonymous.

Every young man and woman should be a junior partner with the Lord Jesus for the salvation of the world.—Jacob Chamberlain.

I shall never attempt to palliate my own follies, by exposing the error of another.—George Washington.

THE SQUIRREL'S ARITHMETIC.

High on a branch of a walnut tree,
A bright-eyed squirrel sat.
What was he thinking so earnestly,
And what was he looking at?
The forest was green around him,
The sky all over his head,
The nest was in a hollow limb,
And his children snug in bed.

He was doing a problem o'er and o'er—
Busily thinking was he
How many nuts for his winter's store
He could hide in the hollow tree.
He sat so still in the swaying bough,
You might thought him asleep.
Oh, no; he was trying to reckon now
The nuts the babies could eat.

Then suddenly he frisked about,
And down the tree he ran.
"The best way to do, without a doubt,
Is to gather all I can."

THE JOY GIVER.

"Catherine, please feed the bird before you go," Mrs. Howard called from the couch, where she was temporarily confined with a sprained ankle.

Catherine was just leaving the room on her way to school, and she slammed the door a bit sharply as she came back.

"Birds are such a nuisance," she complained as she filled the seed and water cups. "I don't see why we keep one, anyway. May I wait until tonight to clean the cage, mamma?"

"Of course, if you think you will be late. I hate for Dicky to sing all day in a dirty cage, though." And Mrs. Howard gave a little sigh which reached Catherine across the room.

"O, well, I will clean it if I am late," she said shortly. And she took down the cage, jostling the surprised bird roughly, and carried it out.

Tears came into Mrs. Howard's kindly eyes. "I suppose the little girl is just tired out with so much to do," she mused. "How glad I shall be to be well again."

Catherine brought the cage back and, hanging it up with no gentle hand, snatched up her hat and left the room without a word of good-by, slamming the door so hard this time that old Katy, the cook, came running in, startled by the noise.

"Just the wind, I guess, Katy," faltered Mrs. Howard, motherlike, shielding her child.

Catherine was not late to school, after all, but she had an uncomfortable feeling that kept growing and growing as the day wore on. She kept seeing her mother's look of pained surprise and remembering how she had frightened poor Dickey by jerking his cage. It was a long, miserable day, and she was glad—O, so glad!—when she could go home. Almost a block away she could hear Dicky singing, and some ladies were talking as she passed.

"That blessed bird is certainly a joy giver," one of them was saying. "When I was ill I used to make the nurse raise the window, so I could hear him; his song was better than medicine."

Catherine gave a little gasp. Dicky a joy giver, and she had only that morning called all birds a nuisance and been angry because she had to stop and feed him! All the events of the morning loomed up big and black before her—going away without telling mamma good-by and slamming the door as she went. If Dicky was a joy giver, what was she? No doubt mother had been unhappy all day on account of her bad temper. Suppose her unhappiness should make her ill! Catherine's feet fairly flew along the pavement, and a moment later a flushed and penitent little girl rushed into Mrs. Howard's bedroom, almost startling her.

"O mamma," she cried, "I'm sorry that I was mean and cross." And she threw her arms about her mother lovingly.

"Mamma knew that you were just tired dear," smiled Mrs. Howard.

"No, I was just cross; but I have learned something from Dicky. The lady across the street called him a joy giver, and after this I mean to be that, too—every day a joy giver, mother dear."—Beth Slater Whitson.

AN IMPROVISED BIRD-BATH.

Helen E. Bee.

When we first came to the suburbs of Portland, I noticed the birds getting under the spray from the lawn sprinkler. Concluding that they could not find many drinking places in the neighborhood, and having no pan to spare for their use, I had a little wooden box not quite two inches deep made of heavy boards. After some hours of soaking, this box would hold water and was placed on the lawn and filled for their use.

At the odd times when I was watching, I saw only an occasional bird drinking or bathing in the newly-found pool, but decided it was worth while if but one bird a day used it. Soon I saw two birds which I took to be young blue jays bathing together in the box. I was encouraged. Then one morning about six o'clock, birds appeared near the house, and a robin stepped into the water. He was followed in quick succession by two more robins, then a small bird took his turn, and another robin. I decided that early morning was the time when birds attended to their daily toilet and was watching the next day at the same hour. But no birds appeared.

However, I had not long to wait to find that the news had spread. That noon, in the midst of the gentle rain, the first that had come in weeks, the feathered friends began to arrive. So many were taking advantage of the free bathing that I did not attempt to count. The robins could scarcely wait for one another to finish their shaking and spattering and leave the box, and the small birds, too, wanted their chance. Two of them were in at once, when along came a third, which declined to step in till one had gone and then pecked at the other to drive him out. Next, more robins came, one of which was determined that no others should come near while he occupied the tub.

So the birds, big and little, kept coming for the next hour and a half until at least twenty had bathed, while many others had been there to drink. There is nothing to disturb them, and while reasonably cautious, they seem to be learning that there is no serious danger. I decided the experiment was worth while alike to the birds and to those who watched.—Our Dumb Animals.

ADVICE TO LITTLE CHILDREN.

Little children, you must seek
Rather to be good than wise;
For the thoughts you do not speak
Shine out in your cheeks and eyes.

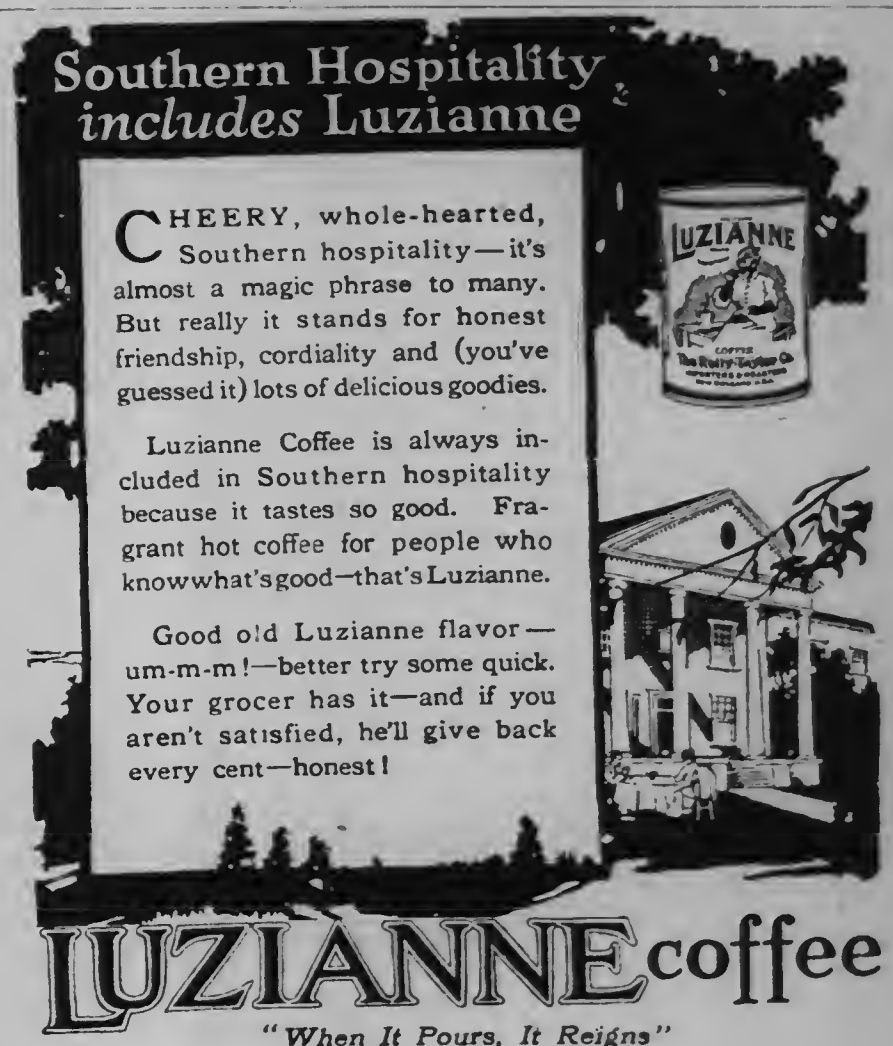
SUCH AS SHE HAD.

Adelaide, the daughter of the new family on Pleasant Street, stepped into Mrs. Sargent's on an errand.

"Look out of the window, please," she said, "do tell me if that is Esther Pinney going by.



"Yes, certainly; why do you ask?"

"Well, everywhere I go, somebody is sure to have something in praise of Esther Pinney. She is as if she was one of the most important persons in town, and she can't be any older than I. I wonder why it is so; is she very rich?"

"Oh, no," Mrs. Sargent answered quickly; "the Pinneys are not rich." Then, after a pause: "About Esther; I have known her all her lifetime and I think I can answer your question. One thing that makes Esther so welcome everywhere is her serene faith. It is such a comfort to have somebody around who isn't tossed about by doubts. And out of this storehouse of faith she takes the things that she has for others; things that are so much better than silver or gold. Her words of comfort are so confident, they have such a ring of sincerity to them, that they are wonderfully cheering and strengthening. 'Somethines' old lady Jopson told me once, 'after Esther has been here, it seems as if I could get right out of my chair, in spite of my rheumatism.' And one thing especially about Esther is that she looks at folks with the eyes of her heart. So she sees down deeper into the needs of people. Sometimes it makes her go to work in what looks like a queer way, but in the end it turns out to be just the right way. I think those are the great reasons why Esther is so beloved." "I think," Adelaide spoke out gently, "it would do me good to get acquainted with Esther Pinney."—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

WATCH AND WAIT.

The Godly man waits for the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ as for a Master. The voice of the Church continually says in his ears, "The Lord Is at hand." He goes to his daily work as the servant of Christ; he takes his daily task from Christ's hand; he believes that he has made him what he is. He is diligent in business because he is "serving the Lord." He may not be as successful as he could wish, he may not be as he thinks he might be; but he is where his Master has put him. It is only for a little while; his Master is coming, and it will soon be over.—Hawaiian Church Chronicle.

THIS LIFE AND AFTER.

The "beloved disciple" in the evening of life, and nearing the end, did not recline on his past, wonderful as that was. He was comforted in sight of the land just ahead, the blessed light of which fell full upon him. The passing away of this world did not sadden him, for he was wrapt in contemplation of the better world of fadeless glory and eternal youth. These are his words: "And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." He states an all-important truth, that a man's character and destiny are shaped by his view and practice regarding the things of time and sense.

A philosophical, stoical unconcern that regards this world and this life with only a passive interest, and as insignificant and incomprehensible, is spiritually fatal. One has said: "The devotees of physical science see the same light that shone into the bowers of Eden streaming down from the stars, and they reflect that through all the centuries it has shone on all alike—down on saints and sinners, and on the joys, and sorrows, and passions, and struggles of men and nations; and so, they come to think lightly of human experience. Measured by the awful extent and duration of the physical universe, man seems to them wholly insignificant—as no more than a mere buzzing insect against the window-pane, beating its life out trying to reach the free air and larger prospect. So, say they, the sooner the strife is ended the better."

Such persons fail to note that man is grander than aught and all else around him, in the fact that he is not only matter but is also a thinking being, a living spirit, having largely power and control over his material environment. The birth of an idea in a man's heart and mind may be of more value than aught that is just matter. The history of our race is in the main the record of great thoughts and important happenings, and their results. Some of the greatest human achievements have been begun in the thought of a moment.

While there have been a few who have lived to great age, the average life of mankind has been short; but the brevity of our existence on earth is no indication of God's estimate of the soul, for in the thought of God the soul of man is beyond price. To save the deathless souls of men from eternal ruin God gave the best he had—his Son to die the death of the cross.

Human life, though brief, is long enough to make of it an eternal success. However, many persons make the fatal mistake of giving themselves wholly to the things of this world. They run upon a hot axle, and do more work than they should in accumulating a fortune, or making a reputation, or erecting a big structure of some sort. Hours that should be given to rest or recreation they spend in wearying labor to accomplish more than should be done in a life-time. Such living often results in untimely death, or nervous prostration, which is a living death. It is also spiritually fatal for one to idollze worldly pleasures, yielding utterly to them, "living while they live" as the saying goes, and never allowing the thought of death to dampen their giddy round of fleshly delights.

It is spiritually destructive to live to have, just to accumulate, and add dollar to dollar, and get a fortune. When such sort pass from earth, the living give them scarcely a thought. They are only mentioned in the amount of their leavings, estates, effects, succession—they having lived sordid lives. A writer says of all such: "Like seared leaves in the autumn time, after their will has been probated and their name thus having its last record, they are blown out of memory into a merited oblivion."

Again, for men just to live to do great and creditable things, regardless of the claims of the Son of God upon them, must prove at last spiritually fatal, though by their deeds they may have added somewhat to the brilliant records of their time. If men of strong thought and telling action, their names may survive on the pages of earthly history; but, being wholly unprepared for the day of judgment, they will be barred from entering through the gate into the eternal city, no more to go out therefrom forever.

There is only one true life, and it is found in doing the will of God; and that life, as John declares, "abideth forever." This true life is entered upon in this world. Beginning in a deep and thorough repentence of all sin and faith in the crucified Lamb of God, it is found at his Cross. The being "born again" and becoming a "new creature in Christ Jesus," washed and cleansed from every stain, is the work of the Holy Ghost. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." Linked to the Father by a steady faith in the Son, the new man is daily led of the Holy Spirit, Christ being formed within him, the hope of glory. In the dying hour the Christian is found to be ripe for heaven, and he goes sweeping through the gate into perfect and eternal peace, fadeless splendors, and unalloyed bliss.

J. T. S.

THREE GREAT WORLD MENACES.

Mr. William T. Ellis, the well known religious writer, is anything but narrow and provincial. Since the outbreak of the present great war he has been a visitor to four battle fronts and a close student of the existing world conditions. He has a son in the Nation's military service, to whom, some months ago, he wrote from Paris a remarkably striking and impressive letter. This communication was published in The Outlook of April 24, under the caption, "'Gasing' the World's Mind." It is so suggestive and so applicable to much of the superficial talk that is now being heard in both civic and Church circles that we are moved to reproduce a portion of it on our editorial page:

"My Dear Son: * * * The fine portrait of yourself in your military uniform which came with your letter—and I tell you, lad, it's a pleasure that millions of dollars cannot buy for a father, to see the son of his loins fit and accepted for service by his country—reminds me that, as a sort of expert in this war in its broader phases, I should write you frankly about what I consider the three greatest menaces of the present hour. As a good soldier of the coming day, you should be prepared for them; for they are especially threatening the high-spirited youth of many lands.

"Perhaps, recalling the many speeches you have heard me make upon America's duty to the whole world and the perils of our provincialism, you will think it strange that I put first the danger to civilization from the current 'internationalism.' I can imagine what your radical young professor of social science would say to my indictment! But he lives in a world of books, and I have just come out of Russia. He knows the theory; I know the thing. And this cult of 'internationalism,' which is sweeping sentimentalists in many lands away from whatever moorings they once had, is, bluntly, a worse menace to the whole world's welfare than Prussianism itself.

"It is an attempt to reduce all integers to ciphers and then add them up and find the sum of perfection.

"It hopes to make everybody a nobody, and then suddenly produce the perfect man and the perfect State.

"Do you remember that passage in one of Stevenson's essays wherein he describes the thrifty Scotch grocer who, at a sale, bought a job lot of odds and ends of liquors and then poured them into a common vat? When asked what he was making, he replied that he did not rightly know, but he thought it would turn out port! So your 'internationalists' think they can mix good and bad, ripe and green, black and yellow, white and brown, old and new, educated and ignorant, and out of all this queer commingling get a newer, higher order of being!

"In America these sentimentalists are fond of quoting the Bible verse which says that God has 'made of one blood all nations * * * of the earth,' forgetting that the same verse continues, 'And hath determined aforetime the bounds of their habitation.' The big fact of the entire Bible misses them—namely, that it is a book of a Chosen People. Providence did its best by the whole world by doing its best by one peculiar nation.

"It was in Russia, which is fairly rotten with this specious idea, that I came to see clearly that 'internationalism' is fundamentally a vast disloyalty. It breaks old allegiances and offers none that are new or better. For up to date the only way a man can be loyal to the race as a whole is by loyalty to that section of it of which he is a part. In life, as in mathematics, the whole is but equal to the sum of its parts; and if certain of our present-day reformers would give over trying to transform the universe and confine themselves to effecting some substantial improvement in that infinitesmal fragment of it which lives within their own clothes, they would have a task more commensurate with their powers and likelier to promote the general result desired. Have you noticed how relatively few of the very vocal makers-over of the world have achieved personalities for themselves? How much greater service was done for his generation by such men as your dear old doctor grandfather, who never preached a word, but lived a life and did a work and stood fast for honor and died like a gentleman and a patriot? 'Internationalism' as I noticed it in Russia was, wittingly or unwittingly, only a cloak for mental and moral laziness. It meant a repudiation of clear and tangible and undoubted obligations to the people of the country and to its national allies. These poor dreamers acted as if they thought that they could build up humanity by wrecking Russia. If I am not mistaken, it will yet prove the greatest disservice ever done by one nation to the whole world. While it may be only the mist that precedes the sunrise, I very much fear that it is a fog of death.

"So for you, my boy, I prescribe patriotism—passionate, pulsing, purposeful patriotism. Be sure that every atom you contribute to the well-being of America is the most direct service you can render to the human race as a whole. Every brick built into her walls is like a foundation stone for the entire world. Whatever you do to help your country to fulfill her highest destiny is the straightest contribution you can make to the well-being of mankind. And any act of recreancy to America is black disloyalty to all the little peoples and weak peoples who are leaning upon her for support and guidance. As one who has traveled over more of this earth's surface than most men, I solemnly declare to you, my son, that the best internationalist to-day is the true American. Even in this immediate matter of the Germans, the men who are facing them in the trenches are truer friends of Germany than the muddy-minded Russians who have been fraternizing with them instead of fighting them.

"Seriously as I believe that this perverted doctrine of 'internationalism' is a German poison gas, so also am I convinced, in the second place, that the prevalent hysteria about the destruction of life as the supreme ill is born of German materialism.

There is no denying that up until this year, at least, modern America had become a coddler of the carcass. Mere prolongation of physical existence had come to be accepted as the supreme boon. Pain was the king of terrors. Suffering was more odious than sin. Our writers and speakers vied with one another in painting the horrors of war and the terrors of death. Destruction of life was held to be the most dreadful of evils. 'Safety first' had become a National slogan, echoed from the souls of the timorous and the body-loving. This dangerous doctrine was as poison in the system of the people.

"I throw down the challenge to that theory. Better—far, far better—is it that three-fourths of the race should perish than that all should live in cowardice and corruption of spirit. There are a thousand worse fates than being dead. Why is it that in all of big Russia the one element of hope, the one steadfast and loyal group, are the Cossacks, who despise life as a prize and covet a warrior's death? Is it not the death-defying soul of France that has made her the hero nation of this war? One of the blessings of the peace which lies ahead of us is that we shall rebreed from a race of men who have subordinated the body and have jauntily flung it over the top into the teeth of destruction. If I at all understand the genius of the Christian religion, it is the spirit of the Cross, which represents the free and lavish offering up of the most precious Life for the sake of love and loyalty and righteousness. There is no need for me to tell you, what you already know, that I would rather see you dead than a cowering, fearful seeker after the safety of self. * * *

"The third word I have for you I have observed anew in a dozen lands since the war began, seeing how misty thinking concerning it has played into our enemy's hands. I allude to a man's relations to women. Here again you should recall the commingling of civilizations and the merging of standards and ideals which this war has effected. Frankly, we are in danger of being 'gassed' by the ethics of Russia as well as of Germany. The fact of the existence of immoral nations is to be accepted and reckoned with. Just as Germany cannot comprehend our American code of honor among gentlemen or the sanctity of a pledged word, so Russia is incapable of attaining our viewpoint about women. Russia is still more Oriental than European, and even the usages of some European nations are far enough different from ours. I cite Russia as extreme, for I have come to fear that in more ways than one the Russian infection is a menace to the new world order for which we are fighting. To the Russian the subjection of a desire to a principle is difficult to comprehend. His reasoning is entirely simple. Every man has certain strong physical inclinations; why should he do otherwise than gratify them? The spirit of what we may call sexual curiosity or adventure is strong in both men and women; therefore, reasons the Russian, yield to it. After observing certain prudential considerations, throw the reins on the neck of the steed of desire, and away! It has frequently been remarked that in Russia the conditions are less those of immorality than of unmorality; or, as one purist calls it, of 'a-morality.' * * *

"A sufficient reason, as I see it, why a man should walk straight is for the sake of home and womanhood. There are bad women; one of the hardest lessons for a chap with fine ideals to learn is that a woman may be a temptress. In the long run, though, the man must save the woman and society. He has an aptitude for considering the larger political order; and he must think of things in their longer reaches. No man is ever so bad that he does not desire his wife to be good; and good women are essential—absolutely essential—to good homes, which, in turn, are the indispensable factor in a high degree of civilization. Anything else than good women presiding over good homes produces a—well, I'll not name names. Since we are now about the grim business of entirely reconstructing civilization, we are bound to take seriously our obligation to create and preserve a noble social system, and one that will be safe for those first factors in democracy, our daughters and sons. Even in the most dissolute of the ancient Roman days those old reprobates took measures to preserve the chastity of the women of their own homes. The Moslems of Turkey, than whom there are no more sensual people on earth, safeguard maidenhood at the peril of life. They do it by outward means, we by the inner principles of both men and women. Religion's part in this I shall not amplify, only remarking that it needs all the assistance of a supernatural faith to keep most of us up to the level of our capabilities.

"There you have my views on the three poisonous gases that imperil us in this war: first, 'internationalism,' with its corollary of pacifism; second, the apotheosis of mere physical safety and comfort; and, third, the relaxing of our Anglo-Saxon ideals of personal chastity."

RATIFICATION TEMPORARILY DEFEATED.

The measure ratifying the Prohibition Amendment to the National Constitution, after passing the lower House of the Louisiana Legislature by a vote of 70 to 44, was defeated in the State Senate by a tie vote of 20 to 20. There was considerable jollifying among the supporters of the liquor traffic over this meagerly won victory, but their rejoicing promises to be of brief duration, for Governor Pleasant has already ordered an election in the Senatorial district made up of the Parishes of Winn, Caldwell, and Grant, which is without a Senator, and in which the prohibition forces are in the ascendency, and has issued a call for a special session of the Legislature to begin August 5, with a view to having the ratification question taken up again.

The brave and forceful manner in which the Governor has met this issue is winning for him high praise. He manifestly is a man who has the courage of his convictions and who cannot be trifled with when a great principle is at stake.

The prohibitionists deserve to be congratulated upon the great fight they have made at Baton Rouge. When the liquor men can make no better showing than they have done in Louisiana, so large a portion of which is wet, the end of the whiskey business must be near at hand. Our hat is off to Superintendent Turner and those battling with him in behalf of this great cause!

THE WAY SPURGEON EXPRESSED IT.

Perhaps the greatest preacher since the time of John Wesley was Charles Haddon Spurgeon, the renowned Baptist minister. He had a pithy way of saying things which often struck home with wonderful force. An illustration of this is seen in the following statement bearing on the question of skepticism in some congregations:

"My dear friends, where there is a warm-hearted church you do not hear of doubts. They do not come near; it is too warm. I never saw a fly light on a red hot plate."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The 1919 Convention of Southern Baptists will be held in Atlanta, Ga.

The fall meeting of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held at Shreveport, La., November 1-3, 1918.

The professors in Millsaps College have appealed to the members of the Board of Trust of that institution to increase their salaries to $2000. There is no sort of doubt that they deserve to have this done.

We regret to learn that Rev. C. F. Emery, pastor of Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, Miss., has recently been ill, but we are pleased to know that he is now better. Brother Emery is one of the choice men of his Conference.

Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of our First Church in Baton Rouge, La., has recently been out on a speaking tour for the Louisiana Council of Defense. It scarcely needs to be said that his addresses were heard with interest and appreciation.

Mrs. Galloway, widow of the late Bishop Charles B. Galloway, was a visitor in Atlanta during the late session of the General Conference in that city. She attended a number of the sittings of the Conference, being apparently much interested in the proceedings.

The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, lately in session, quickly voted down a measure proposing union with other Churches. This seems to have been a striking illustration of the old saying, "The burnt child dreads the fire."

Rev. W. F. Baggett, our pastor at Carriere and Picayune, Mississippi Conference, was in New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated visit. Brother Baggett left with the Publisher 17 subscriptions to the Advocate. He gave an encouraging report of his work.

We are grateful to the following friends, to whose kindness reference has not elsewhere been made, for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. E. Blizzard, Myrtle, Miss., 2; Rev. Louis Hoffpauir, Sulphur, La., 3; Rev. E. S. Lewis, Greenville, Miss., 2.

Rev. J. H. Bell, who at the last session of the North Mississippi Conference was appointed Conference evangelist, has gone to Blue Ridge, N. C., to take up training for the Y. M. C. A. war work. His presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Duren, has requested Bishop Kilgo to release him for that service.

Judge H. H. White, of Alexandria, La., is, by appointment of the General Conference, a member of the Committee to determine what the constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is. Judge White has a fine judicial mind and is admirably equipped to aid in the performance of this task.

The Methodist pastors of New Orleans, in accordance with the recommendation of President Wilson, have arranged to hold a union prayer service at First Church next Thursday. Presiding elder Holmes has issued to the Methodists of New Orleans a public statement urging attendance upon this service.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen (Miss.) District, says: "The late quarterly conference on the Tremont Circuit was an excellent one. The stewards reported quarterage to the amount of $200.40—the full amount due for the second quarter. The work is very promising in our country charges."

Our Church has laid out a large program of money-raising for the next few years. The plans of our Missionary leaders call for $35,000,000; those of our educational leaders, for $13,000,000, and the directors of our war work are asking for a million a year. There will have to be much good campaigning if these sums are to be secured.

We acknowledge the reception, from Miss Mary McLemore Garrott, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Garrott, of Greenwood, Miss., of an invitation to the graduating exercises of the Greenwood High School on June 4. Miss Mary McLemore is a member of the finishing class, and we congratulate her upon having successfully completed her high school course.

We desire to acknowledge our indebtedness to Dr. John T. Sawyer, of New Orleans, for taking care of the editorial department of the Advocate while we were in attendance upon the General Conference. Dr. Sawyer is a clear thinker and a vigorous writer. And, better still, he is a Christian Southern gentleman, who loves his Church and the land that gave him birth.

We do not often hear a really great sermon, and when we do we are given to reflecting upon it for a long time afterwards. It was our privilege to hear such a discourse by Bishop Kilgo during the recent General Conference, and some of his illuminating statements have been ringing in our mind ever since. The truth is, the Bishop's stirring message was about the only utterance that we heard in Atlanta that was of a very high order. Whatever else may be said of the late General Conference, it will hardly be claimed that it abounded in exhibitions of large intellectuality either on the floor or platform or from the pulpit.

Vigor
SUCCESS IS ACHIEVED by vigorous men and women.
When one is lacking in strength and endurance, when good health is wanting, when physical power is at low ebb, it is impossible to accomplish one's work.
One of the causes of ill health and low vitality is the improper functioning of the kidneys. Trouble results when they fail to eliminate waste and poisonous matter from the system, and rheumatic pains, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles, and other symptoms quickly follow.
Foley Kidney Pills
banish effects of kidney and bladder trouble by removing the cause. They are healing and curative. They tone up and strengthen the weakened or diseased organs.
H. D. Castleberry, Marine Engineer, Port Vincent, La., writes: "I consider Foley Kidney Pills the greatest medicine for kidney and bladder trouble I ever used. I recommend them to all who suffer with kidney and bladder trouble." 50c and $1.00 sizes.

FRECKLES
Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.
There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.
Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.
Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove freckles.

MRS. LIZZIE B. ELLIS.

The sweetest and most fragrant flowers soon fade. The brightest sun must have its setting. Life, it seems, is but a morning—then evening. We meet and then we part. But, in the Lord we part only for a season.

On the morning of February 15, 1918, the gentle spirit of Mrs. Lizzie Beauchamp Ellis broke loose from its moorings—from earthly ties and souls akin in love—and drifted to eternity's shore. Her bark has entered its haven and is safe from all storms, for He is her anchor and He holds her secure. While away from home in the quest of health at the Street Sanitarium, in Vicksburg, Miss., God touched her and she fell quietly asleep. When the news was flashed over the wires and the message went from friend to friend, each asked, "Can the sad news be true?" Her going was so sudden, so unexpected, not even her husband, a physician, apprehended that the end was near, for he had just read a letter in the morning's mail which was full of hope and encouragement.

Mrs. Ellis was born at Utica on January 13, 1858, and she spent her entire life, with the exception of her college days, in her native town. At an early age she was married to Mr. E. E. Mimms, who lived only a few years. On July 5, 1882, she was married to Dr. G. E. Ellis, who, with three sons, Captain Eugene B. Mimms, of the U. S. Navy, George B. Ellis, and William K. Ellis, survives her.

Mrs. Ellis was a woman of rare endowments of mind and heart. She was loved by all who knew her. Her lord loved her and chastened her, till naught but pure gold was left to reflect the Master's image. Possessed of an unusually cheery nature, she brought comfort wherever she went. Even in times of great suffering, she never murmured, but was always cheerful and ready to speak words of comfort and encouragement to others. Unassuming, modest and tactful, she ever had a keen appreciation of the present need and on instinctive knowledge of the kindest thing. She lived apart and above the sordid things of life. Her ideals were noble, her thoughts beautiful. One could not associate with her without longing to be better, to live nobly. She loved the beautiful, keenly appreciated music, art and literature. But her light shone brightest around her own hearthstone; she reserved the best that was in her for her own loved ones. She was indeed a mother to her sons and a companion to her husband. No service was too lowly nor sacrifice too great for those she loved best, and her family in turn held her in the highest affection. The wife and mother was their idol. In her friendships and her relationships she loved widely, but some she loved ardently, and whom she once loved she loved forever. Loyalty to her friends was one of her chief characteristics.

She loved her Church and was loyal to it. She delighted in its services, and her sweet alto voice was always heard in the choir. She was a leader in all church work until her health failed. Her pastors found her a true friend. Like the Shunammite woman of old, the prophet's chamber was always ready for his coming in her home. It was one of the joys of her heart to minister to the servants of God. The presiding elders and evangelists always were entertained in her home.

Her body was tenderly laid to rest in the Utica cemetery on the afternoon of February 18, the funeral service being delayed, awaiting a son, William Kirby, a member of the Hospital Corps at Fort Oglethorpe. The large concourse of sorrowing friends and the numerous floral offerings bore eloquent testimony to the love and sympathy of those who knew her. The services were conducted at the home by her pastor, Rev. B. W. Lewis, assisted by her former pastor and devoted friend, Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Jackson. We lift our eyes to the hills, whence cometh our help, "and wait for the morning-time when the parted veil shall lift; when the films fall from our weary sight—our eyes meet clear in the morning light, as the night clouds earthward drift. So loving, hoping, believing in the guardianship of God, we leave her, secure in his eternal love."

Mrs. ANNIE LOUISE TAYLOR.
Hazlehurst, Miss.

W. E. HARMON was born on Dec. 23, 1863, and died on Nov. 11, 1917. In the Wake Forest lonely graveyard, beneath the cold and chilly clay, the body of my dear husband rests awaiting the judgment day. In heaven's brightest mansions with his Savior and his King his immortal spirit is praising him in glory, singing the songs that the angels sing. 'Tis sad to live without him. Oh! it is more lonely than tongue can tell; but we know that Jesus took him, and He doeth all things well. To think he is gone never to return would almost seem that life is vain! But just to look to Jesus, we can take up our cross and press on.

We miss you, oh dear husband!
We miss you everywhere;
We miss you, oh we miss you!
We miss your voice in prayer.

His devoted wife, DENA.

As the morning light began to dawn on the 12th of March, 1918, there fell upon J. P. WIYGUL a peaceful slumber which kissed down his eyelids still. Some few days before his death he underwent a surgical operation for cancer at the Baptist Memorial Hospital, Mempbis, where he breatbed his last. To mourn their loss, because of his departed life, are left a wife, one daughter, Estelle; two sons, Roy of Shannon, and Mitchell of the U. S. Navy; and also an aged mother, two sisters and four brothers. As is the case with every good man, many noble traits characterized his life, and standing out pre-eminently among them was that of self-sacrifice. No duty was too heavy, no task too great for him to perform for his family and friends; and no pleasure was too sweet for him to give up to others. A more devoted husband, a tenderer father, a gentler brother, and a more obedient son never lived than Brother Wiygul. Before his health declined, he was a very active church worker in the M. E. Church, South, of which Church he was a member for better than a quarter of a century. He lived a consistent Christian life and bore his sufferings without a murmur. His body was laid to rest in the Wiygul Cemetery east of Nettleton, the services being conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. J. E. Thomas. Thus, at the age of 50 years, passed away a good man; but earth's loss is heaven's gain. Sorrowing ones, you are commended to the heavenly Father, whose grace and love will sustain you. WM. I. WHITE.

WILLIAM DANIEL ROBERTSON, was born on Sept. 25, 1844, in Nottoway County, Virginia, near Petersburg, where he lived until in 1868, when he came to Mississippi and spent one year near Sardis in Panola County, after which he came to Holmes County, where on May 8, 1918, he fell on sleep. The call to the world beyond came through an accident, a fall of several feet from a bridge upon some timbers, by which painful internal injuries were sustained, as well as fractures of limb. I had but a short acquaintance (though it was very cordial and pleasant) with this brother. Whenever I met him he seemed vigorous, buoyant, friendly, and very cordial. He was careful to ask me to visit his home. I always enjoyed meeting him. His home was near the old Sweetwater Methodist Church, of which he was a member until it was left off the charge and the membership transferred elsewhere. He never moved his membership and was the loser by not doing so. His sorrowing wife and children,

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS
You simply say to the drug store man, "Give me a quarter of an ounce of freezone." This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn from one's feet.
A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn should relieve the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn, root and all, dries up and can be lifted out with the fingers.
This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that, while freezone is sticky, it dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.
Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whittling at his corns, but clip this out and make him try it.

from over the county, accompanied his body to the old church place and delivered it back to mother earth, leaving a flower-covered mound after the burial service of his Church had been conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Walter Johnston, of Grace Church, Dallas, Texas. May this sudden going of husband, father, brother, friend, and neighbor inspire all of us to live so close to God that, though it be but a step 'twixt us and death, it may also be a glorius step into eternal joys! BEN P. JACO.

Lexington, Miss., May 21, 1918.

Captain D. G. PEPPER, one of our oldest citizens, passed away at his residence in Sardis at the good age of eighty-three. He moved to Mississippi at a very early age from Charleston, S. C., the place of his birth. Captain Pepper first settled at Richland, Holmes County. When about grown, he moved to Jackson where he engaged in the mercantile business until the war broke out. He then enlisted, and in a short while arose to be the captain of his company. Since the war, he had followed merchandising and planting. He was a man of large executive ability and made quite a success in life. He was at the time of his death a member of the Methodist Church and the chairman of the Board of Stewards in his home town. He rarely ever missed the monthly meeting unless too feeble to attend. Frequently he was in his place when he was hardly able to get about. His home was the preacher's home and never have I known a more hospitable host. It was my good pleasure to spend the season of the Conference in his pleasant and comfortable home in 1894. I never forgot the kind consideration and words of encouragement he gave me at that time. They were needed by a young preacher knocking at the door of the Conference for admission. At the last session of the Conference held here, it was again my pleasure to be entertained in his home and for nearly two years I had been his pastor. He and his good wife were always at church till the last few months of his life, when he was too feeble to leave his home. We shall always cherish his memory. May the blessings of the Heavenly Father abide with the dear widow and the children and grandchildren!

W. D. WENDEL, Pastor.

TRANSPLANTED TO THE HEAVENLY HOME.

Dear Dr. Meek: I sent the Advocate a card last week announcing the birth of our little baby, and to-day I write to tell you that she was too sweet and pure for our home. Hence, she went to live with our Father in Heaven. She was sick only a few hours and passed away Sunday at 4 o'clock a. m. The mother is bearing her trouble as well as could be expected, and is gaining some strength each day. Pray for us in our sorrow.

Yours fraternally,

F. R. POWER.

Our heart goes out in tender sympathy to these stricken parents. May the Heavenly Father comfort and sustain them!

A HEALING SPRING AT YOUR DOOR.

Here is a very unusual and peculiar offer—one that you rarely meet with. It evidences the greatest faith on the part of its maker and inspires confidence. It is made by an earnest and enthusiastic man who not only thinks but knows from personal experience that he is right. He proposes to give you the equivalent of a three weeks' visit to a Mineral Spring of most remarkable restorative powers and make no charge if you are not benefited. His offer has been accepted by over a hundred thousand sufferers in all parts of the United States and his records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, report no benefit.

If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney, bladder or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other condition caused by impure blood, take Mr. Shivar at his word and sign and mail the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-K, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Sunday School

PUTTING PEP INTO THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS.

By Blanche Wyatt.

A young man dropped by to see a Sunday school expert about his class. He said the fellows were alive—in fact, often too alive for the good of law and order; he said they were loyal all right; he had to keep no night vigils in order to count on their attendance. He declared they were well behaved and dignified enough until the lesson period. He had always been a successful teacher so far as getting facts into the other fellow's brain was concerned. The "expert" asked what he was teaching (or trying to teach). The young man named the quarterly—a good one; but he had been teaching the same sort of thing quarter after quarter. The "expert" recommended a present-day, right up-to-now quarterly. The young man smiled. He said the youngsters had told him just recently that they honestly couldn't care to know about people who had lived so long ago that the archaeologists are busy with their bones. Some day those boys will want to hear that story, but now they want something entirely different.

Heroes for Hero Worshipers.

A group of young people took a basket of food supplies to an old woman unable to care for herself. She smiled, she thanked them, she had them sit down and tarry awhile—for said she, "'Taint things I want; it's folks."

When girls and boys come to their teens, "'Taint things they want; it's folks." Always they want to know people who do things. In the study hour they want to learn about people—people of action—people who paid a big price, but "did the thing."

Our Sunday School Board has taken steps to meet exactly that need. In one quarterly, thirteen lessons, there are available thirteen stories of action on the part of men and women who "did the thing" in that most fascinating of lands—Japan. And some of those men and women were Japanese! "Heroes of Faith in Japan"—how attractive even the name of the quarterly! It's certain the "hero" part of the title grips the intermediate, and Japan! Why, every boy and girl knows Japan, and right now every youth and senior watches Japan breathlessly. Quarterlies, 20 cents each.

Japan the Key to the East.

The amazing growth of Japan from paper houses to kimonos up to smoke-stacks, manufacturing centers, and dress suits startles the Bible class man and woman, but holds them fascinated when they see how much influence Japan has over all the East.

Men and women are even more eager than boys and girls for living issues—a modern world study—and here it is in Dr. Pell's missionary quarterly on Japan. Thirteen live lessons, full of stirring facts—such is "Japan the Key to the East." Price, 20 cents.

A Big Drive for the Third Quarter.

For a good many reasons it is wise to put into the Sunday school the livest plans possible during the third quarter. Heat and summer trips take many out of the Sunday school unless something unusual holds the members. The only quarter left is the fourth, so full of Thanksgiving and Christmas excitement and extra work. Therefore, it is very much worth while to put on a Big Drive for mission study during the third quarter. Superintendents, teachers, district workers, institute speakers, all Sunday school workers are urged to enlist in this Big Drive.

Junior and Primary Quarterlies.

Yes, there are special Japanese quarterlies for the younger people, too. That for Juniors is called, "Boys and Girls of an Island Empire;" for Primaries, programs, "About Little Folks in Japan." Teachers' books, 25 cents; pupils' book, 10 cents. Order all quarterlies from Smith & Lamar. The Japanese calendar issued by the Board of Missions is offered complimentary to classes taking up the study of one of these quarterlies. "A Handful of Facts About Japan" will be supplied free to teachers.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Many fine reports on the observance of Children's Day have come to me. All so far have done much better on the contribution than last year. I hope that all will observe the day and send their offering to Rev. J. L. Decell, Mccomb, Miss. I have had the privilege of being with two churches during the rendering of their program and the exercises were fine.

I have been with Brother S. C. Moody on his work and had a fine visit. We organized three Wesley Bible Classes, secured one individual teacher-training student, and organized a Workers' Council at East Columbia. This small church looked to me like one with a great prospect. At Oloh, they started a Cradle Roll. I was with them when they had their Children's Day exercises. They are painting their church and there were other signs of development also.

We were to go to Oak Grove, but it rained us out. We were sorry to miss this appointment—the first one, so far. At Clyde, one individual teacher-training student was enrolled. Brother Moody is finishing his fourth year and he is doing a fine work.

At Pleasant Ridge, on the Seminary charge, we organized a Cradle Roll, and a Teacher-training Class, with 5 students; and the school pledged one Sunday for Missions. At Oak Bowery, we organized a school with forty members. We put in the Cradle Roll, secured one individual teacher-training student, and one Sunday was pledged to missions.

At Eminence Church, money was raised to repair the church building, and $4 was raised for the district parsonage. A Cradle Roll was organized, and one individual teacher-training pupil was enrolled. There was one request for prayer. At the Eminence schoolhouse Sunday school, a Cradle Roll was put in, one individual teacher-training student was secured; a Workers' Council was organized, and the observance of Children's Day was promised. One Sunday for missions was also pledged.

At Seminary, a Cradle Roll was started, the observance of Children's Day was promised, and one Sunday for missions was pledged. At Sanford, a Cradle Roll was started, a Home Department, and a Teacher-training Class with 7 students was organized, and they promised to observe Children's Day.

Ten individuals have volunteered to do active Sunday school work, so far this month.

I want to thank the brethren for their many kindnesses to me. I appreciate them more than words can express. I feel my need of the presence of God and the Holy Spirit. Pray for me, that I may be used forward by the Lord alone.

Yours in His name,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Field Secretary.

TAKE PEPTIRON NOW

Needed in the Spring by Pale, Weak, Nervous People.

Peptiron is in the form of pills, chocolate-coated, pleasant to take, easily assimilated, and is the most successful combination of iron of which its makers, C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., have any knowledge.

You must have an abundance of iron in your blood if you are to be keen, quick and fit in the battle of life, overcome obstacles and know no such thing as failure. For several reasons lack of iron in the blood is more noticeable in the Spring than at any other time.

Besides iron, Peptiron includes pepsin, nux, celery and other tonics, nerve helps and digestives. It gives strength, color and body to the blood; reddens pale cheeks, steadies the nerves, improves the digestion, nourishes and gives stamina to the whole body.

It is the tonic Spring medicine for — and for your family.

OAK RIDGE, MISS.

Editor Advocate: Sunday, May 19, was a good day at Oak Ridge. Dr. H. W. Featherstun, of Port Gibson, preached in the morning on the Red Cross. It was indeed a forceful and Scriptural presentation of this sacred and hallowed subject. He showed very clearly that contributing to the Red Cross was fulfilling Matt. 25:35-40 It made a lasting impression on the community relative to the sacredness of the work. He also preached in the afternoon at Bradley's Chapel on the Brotherhood of Man. The only thing lacking in this service was that all of Warren County wasn't there to hear this truth that is so distorted among the people of said county. His words concerning the relation between the white and black races were the best I have ever heard.

At night a Children's Day service was held at Oak Ridge, and it was a success viewed from any angle. It had been said that we would not have a large crowd, the service being held at night and no "dinner on the ground;" but as well as I could see we had the largest crowd I have ever seen assembled at Oak Ridge, and the program was carried out so nicely and so easily, and I have heard nothing but praises concerning it since it was staged. On account of a collection in the forenoon, and that night, too, for Red Cross work, and the collectors failing to wait on the whole crowd, we did not get what we intended to get, but when our other children's services are held we will "come across" with our share of said collections. They are planning for three more such services on the charge. I want to express my gratitude to the ladies who did their work so grandly, nobly, and successfully at Oak Ridge.

Regardless of the many collections Uncle Sam has been calling on us for, we have over one-third of our Conference collections for the charge in hand, for which we feel very thankful. We have secured some new subscribers to the Advocate. We are making general progress all over the work. I am grateful, happy, and wonderfully encouraged. Still pressing on,

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The Commencement sermon will be preached on June 2 by Rev. H. M. Dobbs of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas. He will also preach the sermon before the Y. M. C. A. at night.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth will deliver the annual address on Tuesday morning.

Some members of the graduating class have left college to enter upon some form of service for their country. They remained in college, however, long enough to finish their work.

The young ladies here made a service flag with two hundred and fifty stars in it which now hangs in the chapel. This is a silent testimonial to the young men who at some time during the last twenty-six years were matriculated at the College and have joined the colors of our country. Some of them are "over there." Several members of the faculty will be in the service next year.

Dr. J. M. Burton left about May 1 to respond to the call for his services in the selective draft.

Dr. Mitchell will leave in a few days to enter upon work in the Y. M. C. A. service.

Professor Noble will leave some time later for service.

Dr. Kern will leave soon after Commencement for Austin, Texas, where he will be one of the instructors in the summer school of the University of Texas.

Professor Noble will teach education in the summer school of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Watkins and Dr. Sullivan will, as usual, spend a large portion of the summer in canvassing for the College.

Professor Lin will be found for a large portion of the vacation at his desk looking after the matter of sending out catalogues and other literature pertaining to the College.

Professor Hamilton will probably engage in Y. M. C. A. service for the summer as a director of music.

Professor Huddleston and Professor Savage will be found at the State Department of Education. Professor Huddleston is the President of the State Board of Examiners, while Professor Savage has recently been appointed Assistant State Superintendent of Education.

Dr. Key and Professor Harrell will remain at the College to look after the affairs of the summer school.

The event of the vacation that is attracting the most interest at present is the approaching total eclipse of the sun which occurs on June 8, 1918, at 6:37 p. m. Preparation is being made at the James Observatory for the observation of the eclipse. Some members of the Senior Class who have been studying astronomy during the year will remain until after June 8 that they may see if the prediction made in the chapel two years ago comes true. The statement was then made that when the then Sophomore Class was graduated the sun would become eclipsed. A change in the time of closing makes the event come just after rather than during Commencement.

The following will come to the James Observatory for the purpose of observing the eclipse: Professor E. J. Moutton, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.; Professor W. L. Kennon, University of Mississippi; Professor D. U. Guthrie, Louisiana State University; Professor A. B. Dinwiddie, Tulane University of Louisiana, and Professor J. M. Sullivan, Millsaps College. These, together with Professor G. L. Harrell, Director of the Observatory, and Mr. W. B. Gates, Mr. B. O. Van Hook, Mr. G. M. Lester, Mr. D. S. Dearman, Miss Mary Etta Cavett, Miss Maud Wise Kennedy, Miss Catherine Bailey, Miss Lizzie Glick, Miss Elizabeth Manship, members of the Astronomy Class, will constitute the official observers.

The partial phase will be seen everywhere in the United States. Those who wish to observe it may use a simple smoked glass to great advantage.

G. L. HARRELL.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT BILOXI WESLEY HOUSE.

May 2 marked the close of a very successful and fruitful season of work at the Wesley House in Biloxi, Miss. Cards, announcing "Open Day," were sent out early and eight o'clock in the evening found about three hundred of our friends gathered in the large chapel to witness the program given by the children from different departments of the work.

By special request the Kindergarten Department repeated their May Day exercises, which had been given earlier in the day, and very willingly crowned their queen the second time.

The gymnasium class, which has done splendid work throughout the year, gave an exhibition in free exercises, wand drills and marching tactics. They were followed by about thirty girls from the Serving School who, in bright colored crepe paper dresses representing the different spring flowers, made a beautiful flower bed with the sun in yellow dress beaming down upon them. Watered by the rain and nodding and bending in the wind and with the sunbeams dancing about them, they grew and flourished in a very natural way, so that one would not have guessed they were little girls if it had not been for the bright faces and the lively songs which they sang.

Rev. W. H. LaPrade acted as master of ceremonies and was assisted in the religious services of the evening by Rev. Mr. Darsey of Ocean Springs, and Rev. Mr. Campbell of Biloxi.

The summer term opened on Monday, May 6, and will consist of English classes for the foreigner, Bible story hours, friendly visiting and playground work. The Sunday school and church services will be continued throughout the summer.

HOW THE SUSAN B. WILSON GIRLS OBSERVE CHRISTMAS.

It is a very beautiful custom of the Port Gibson friends of Miss Nell Drake to send a Christmas box to her every year, containing gifts for teachers and students; and the following letter was written in acknowledgment of the one sent for 1917.

"Another Christmas has come and with it your generous and beautiful remembrance of all of us. We hope that the joy you have given us at this season may be with you all the year, and that your hearts may be warm because of the love you have shown us, and in showing to us have showed to the Heavenly Father.

"When the boxes arrived all of the Sungkiang lady missionaries came together and had a grand opening, and such fun as we did have discovering all the pretty things! Then the teachers were called together, and I believe they were as pleased and excited over everything as the girls themselves. They wanted to examine every bag to see how it was made, try on the strings of beads, and fan with the fans. They were delighted to find that they also were to have something from the box this time, and send thanks to you.

"The next event, of course, was the giving to the girls. The stockings were such a success last year that we decided to use them again. Expectation ran high the last few days before Christmas, and the last morning before the gifts were given, old Father Time certainly walked very slowly. The little ones got out an hour before the big ones, but had to wait until all could come together. Nearly every five minutes I could hear them trotting down the stairs to look at the clock. But at last the hour came and all went together to the chapel. The girls were as excited and pleased over the gifts as last year, and each one seemed delighted with her particular present. If a single one was not satisfied, I heard nothing of it.

"I want to tell you, too, something of the girls' Christmas. It seemed to me last year that the girls had received so much that it would be nice if they, too, could learn to make Christmas a time of giving joy to others. They have very little money, but I felt each could give something, if only a copper. I fixed up a little box, covered it with red paper, and put a slit in the cover. On this box was written in Chinese characters, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive,' 'The Lord loveth a cheerful giver,' and 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'

"There is in Sungkiang a home for old women, which is supported by the city. I understand that the women are allowed only about a cent a day to buy food, besides the very little they can make sewing or knitting. Some are blind, some are deaf, and all are very pitiful or decrepit. I thought it would be nice for the girls to send some good food to these poor people on Christmas Day. I took the little box to chapel and told the girls about it. Then the box was placed just outside the study-hall door.

"The girls entered into the spirit of giving with real enthusiasm, and the coppers and a few dimes began to drop in. Just before Christmas one of the teachers got up a beautiful little play, on Christmas giving, and had the children give it at the missionary meeting; another teacher at the school prayer meeting gave a splendid talk on giving, and told them about the 'White Christmas.' After this more coppers went into the box.

"When the box was opened we found there were thirteen dimes and about one hundred and fifty coppers. The matron bought the food for them, and the school cook did the cooking. There are sixteen women in the home and each woman had a nice, big bowl of pork (cooked with oil and bean curd), and two nice oranges. I thought it would be nice if some of the girls would take it themselves, so each grade elected a representative, and the seven girls on Christmas Eve went off very happily together on their little errand of mercy. The poor old women were delighted and almost before the food was uncovered each one was running up with her bowl. Some could hardly walk, but they made all speed to get there nevertheless. When they began to thank the girls, the girls tried to tell them that it was given because of the love of the Heavenly Father, who sent Jesus to us to make us happy, and told them to thank Him, so the poor old souls repeated with them their thanks to the Heavenly Father. I hope this thought of Christmas giving may always remain with the girls."

IN THE INTEREST OF ACCURACY.

Dear Advocate: Dr. Sawyer in last week's Advocate called attention to the condition of the Methodist Preachers' lot in the Cypress Cemetery, and stated that, possibly, among others, Rev. Marcus C. Manly and wife may be buried there. Perhaps his first wife was, I do not know. I was with Brother Manly when he died in Rayne and, at his own request, my wife and myself accompanied his wife with the remains to Opelousas, where I held burial services and saw him laid away in the cemetery at Opelousas.

Having been a close friend of Brother Manly for many years, in the interest of truth I make this statement. F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH.

THEY CONTINUED THEIR FELLOWSHIP WITH JESUS.

As a shell that has floated on the sea at last fills itself with the sea and sinks into the sea, so these disciples' lives, which had floated on the bosom of Christ's love, when at last the crucifixion came, filled themselves with Christ's love and sank into its depths. Thenceforward they must follow Him. They followed Him until He brought them to their crosses. They followed Him across the dark river. They are following Him to-day in some bright fields of the unknown eternity. But wherever they are following Him, they are following in Him these eternal principles—the Love of Brethren, the Love of Right, the Love of God.—Phillips Brooks.

"WAIT UPON THE LORD."

"Wait upon the Lord!" Twine thy life about the Lord, twine and intertwine it in every part, until all that is earthly is mixed up with all that is heavenly, and all that is human is pervaded with the divine. And this sort of waiting upon God will give thee wings, and will give thee all that wings bring with them—loftiness, vision, coolness, perspective. And this sort of waiting upon God will give thee ample strength to keep pace with the swiftest and most exacting circumstances. And this sort of waiting upon God will give thee power to go slowly on a tedious road, because when thou art walking the bleak, cold way, thou shalt walk it in the wonderful companionship of thy God. It is a most wonderful thing to walk with God. They who twine their lives about the Lord shall "renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."—Dr. J. H. Jowett.

SHE USED TO BE GRAY

Society Ladies Everywhere Use "La Creole" Hair Dressing.

The well known society leader's hair was prematurely gray, perhaps just like yours, but Mrs. J— — heard of "La Creole" Hair Dressing—how thousands of people everywhere had used it with perfect satisfaction. It is not a dye, but a preparation designed especially for the purpose of gradually restoring color to gray or faded hair, and which is easily applied by simply combing or brushing through the hair. "La Creole" Hair Dressing positively eradicates dandruff, keeps the scalp in a healthy condition and promotes the growth of new hair; brings back a natural, soft, even, dark shade to gray or faded hair, and makes it lustrous, full of life and beautiful. THAT CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Godden Tells How It May be Passed in Safety and Comfort.

Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared." — Mrs. M. GODDEN 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Such annoying symptons as heat flashes, nervousnsss, backache, headache, irritability and "the blues," may be speedlly overcome and the system restored to normal conditions by this famous root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complications present themselves write the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions how to overcome them. The result of forty years experience is at your service and your letter held in strict confidence.

Watch Your Blood Supply, Don't Let Impurities Creep In Pure Blood Means Perfect Health.

The average druggist has handled hundreds of medicines in his day, some of which have long since been forgotten.

But there is one that has been sold by the druggists throughout this country, for more than fifty years, and that is S. S. S., the reliable blood medicine, that is purely vegetable. Many druggists have seen wonderful results accomplished among their customers by this great old medicine, and they know that S. S. S. is one of the most reliable blood purifiers ever made. Keep your blood free of impurities by the use of this honest old medicine, and if you want medical advice, you can obtain same without cost by writing to Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 28 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

From the Field

Sulphur and Vinton Charge, La. Conf.

Dear Doctor: I thought that while the brethren who have been so busy having their say on the question of unification were devoting their time this week to the work of the General Conference, this would be a good time for me to write just a few things about our work here. We have just had our second quarterly conference, with the elder and his wife who were not in such a rush to get away that they did not have time to meet our people and plan with us for the work, and the reports showed the pastor's salary paid up to date, and that only two members of the official board were absent. No discouraging note was sounded about the work. In fact, these two and a half years here have been so pleasantly spent that we have been thinking that one year and a half yet seems too short a time for us to remain here. The first thing on the program when I came home from Conference was a trip to Washington to the Anti-Saloon League Convention. This was given me by a man who is not a member of the church, but a very good friend to the church, and before the recent quarterly conference came to a close one of the stewards offered a resolution asking for one month's vacation for the pastor, which was adopted. Then another steward offered us a furnished cottage on the banks of a beautiful lake. So our vacation was obtained in this way, and possibly they thought that their own would be obtained, but alas! we have two Methodist preachers living in the bounds of the charge, and you know the rest. So that you can see that the possible lengthening of the time limit comes at a very happy day for us, for these stewards who have been so kind, strong, busy men that they are, are the men who come to our mid-week prayer-meetings and hold up the preacher's hands, and that would be enough to make an old man happy, much less the young man who feels that he needs their help so much. We have made our plans for our revival meetings. Pray for us, that we might be enabled by grace divine to do the work that is so urgent to-day.—Louis Hoffpauir, P. C.

Merigold, Miss.

Having just finished a very inspirational meeting at Alligator, I feel that I should tell of it and of some other things that we are trying to do on the Merigold and Alligator charge which might be of interest to some. In this meeting we had the services of Brother Chas. D. McGehee, pastor at Indianola, Miss., and Brother Paul Templeton, a gospel singer from Meridian. They make a good team. I do not know when I have listened to a more forceful and earnest presentation of the truth than Brother McGehee gave us. The interest was remarkable. Every business house in the town was closed at the hour of services and Jew and Gentile came to Church. Did it not speak for the power of the gospel when ten or fifteen of our Hebrew friends attended practically every service throughout an entire meeting? The church was greatly revived, acquiring some additions, and we closed feeling that we had had a season of grace, indeed.

The district conference met with us at Merigold the latter part of April. It was a great inspiration to us at the time and we have since felt its results in many ways. Strong laymen are becoming more interested in the work. Their eyes were opened and their hearts touched. Soon after the conference we launched our campaign for a new church of modern style. I hold that the war should not dampen the fires at home which are giving the light to the pathway over which numbers are struggling both literally and figuratively. Schools and churches must go on to lead the way as they have in the past. If war undermines us in our religious and educational work, it is war indeed. I think we should not let opportunities slip from us at this time. People are beginning to want to do something for God, and I say let them do it. They could build a church in every place where one is needed and it would not dampen their patriotism. In fact I believe it would make them more zealous patriots. I heard of one eminent divine who said he thought it was unpatriotic to try to build a church now, I think he was a narrow-headed fellow, following the path of least resistance. One of my laymen said in reference to building a new church in his town, that if it was going to take all the money he had to carry on the war he wanted some of it to go in a church at his home to help teach the coming generation divine truths, and he is as liberal in patriotic causes as any we have. There is no question about that being the right attitude to take. At Merigold we have such a golden opportunity to teach young people, for this prosperous little town is simply full of God's precious gifts children. Our Epworth League is doing splendid work under the leadership of Brother H. M. Garland, a young business man of the town. So is our Sunday school with Brother J. S. Fincher as superintendent, another prosperous young business man. All we need here is a church suitable for us, and then by prayer and work we can do something for the Master. On the whole, our prospect is bright in this charge. We have a choice people who are willing to go where sent, if sent aright, and to follow where led if led aright.—W. R. Lott, P. C.

THE ROOKIES' BATTLE HYMN.

"Onward, Christian soldiers,
Marching as to war—"

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! The Liberty Theater at Camp Dodge rocked the other afternoon as lusty-voiced rookies sang the old hymn. They were standing, hundreds of them, with heads bared, these members of the 337th Field Artillery, tramping their feet to the accented beats of the hymn. Louder and louder swelled the music. It was a real battle song.

"With the cross of Jesus
Going on before—"

The volume of the song increased. The feet tramped harder. The soldiers might have been marching victoriously through the streets of Berlin. And they seemed to be getting the spirit of the stirring hymn. It typified their attitude toward the war. They realized that they were to fight for more than a material victory.

Before them stood Dean Holmes Cowper, cantonment music director, leading the "song service." Their eyes were upon him. Every move of his hands brought new enthusiasm from his men. They had signed up for war; they knew it. But that hymn was telling them why. It was saying that theirs is to be the good fight.

"Christ, the royal master,
Leads against the foe.
Forward into battle,
See his banners go."

The soldiers sang on; their feet tramped tirelessly. They were going "forward into battle." They knew that "over there" men are dying, victims of Prussianism, and their jaws tightened perceptibly; the determined light in their eyes grew. Clear through the stanza they sang; then came the lines:

"We are not divided,
All one body we—"

They spoke these words with conviction. The lines embodied their prime purpose to work together, fight together, and die together, if need be. The soldiers held their heads high. About them were the rough walls and rafters of the cantonment theater; but they saw far beyond—to the blood-soaked fields of France, or to the devastated little villages "over there."

"Onward, Christian soldiers,
Marching as to war,
With the cross of Jesus
Going on before."

The last words of the chorus died away, the tramping feet were still. The soldiers picked up their hats abstractedly and moved slowly up the aisle. The singing was over.—Dorothy Ashby in the Des Moines Capital.

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

DOCTOR SAYS NUXATED IRON WILL INCREASE STRENGTH of DELICATE PEOPLE in TWO WEEKS' TIME

In many instances says City Physician persons have suffered for years without knowing what made them feel tired, listless and run-down when their real trouble was lack of Iron in the blood—how to tell.

IF you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied a multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and one of the best blood builders in the world. The only trouble with the old forms of inorganic iron like tinctures of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron which is recommended above is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them look black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee to return the money and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund the money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

GREAT MEETING IN PROSPECT.

By Mr. H. H. Ahrens.

One thousand selected men and women from North and South will assemble June 26-30, at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, to attend the joint meeting of the Centenary celebration. Present indications are that the meeting will be one of the most constructive contributions yet made to the Centenary movement.

Bishop James Atkins recently said: "This gathering will be a training school rather than a speaking bee." The general plan calls for a full morning session, with the afternoons free for recreation and illustrated lectures at night.

The original plans call for 500 delegates from each Church, but it is said these figures may be slightly enlarged. The Canadian Methodist Church will send representatives, and Bishop Hiriaowa is invited from the Japan Methodist Church, besides other selected leaders. One of the most pleasing features will be the stereopticon lectures by Dr. S. Earl Taylor, of New York.

Preachers and laymen will find in this meeting a season of refreshing and every effort should be made to attend.

COMMENCEMENT AT MILLSAPS.

Dear Doctor Meek: As far as I can learn, the Senior Class has failed this year to get out invitations to Commencement, and I would be much obliged to you if you would allow to appear in the columns of the next week's Advocate the following statement of our Commencement program.

Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, in the College Chapel, Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs, Dean of the Theological Faculty of the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, will preach the Commencement sermon. Sunday evening at eight o'clock, in the Galloway Memorial Church, the sermon before the Y. M. C. A. will be preached by Dr. Dobbs.

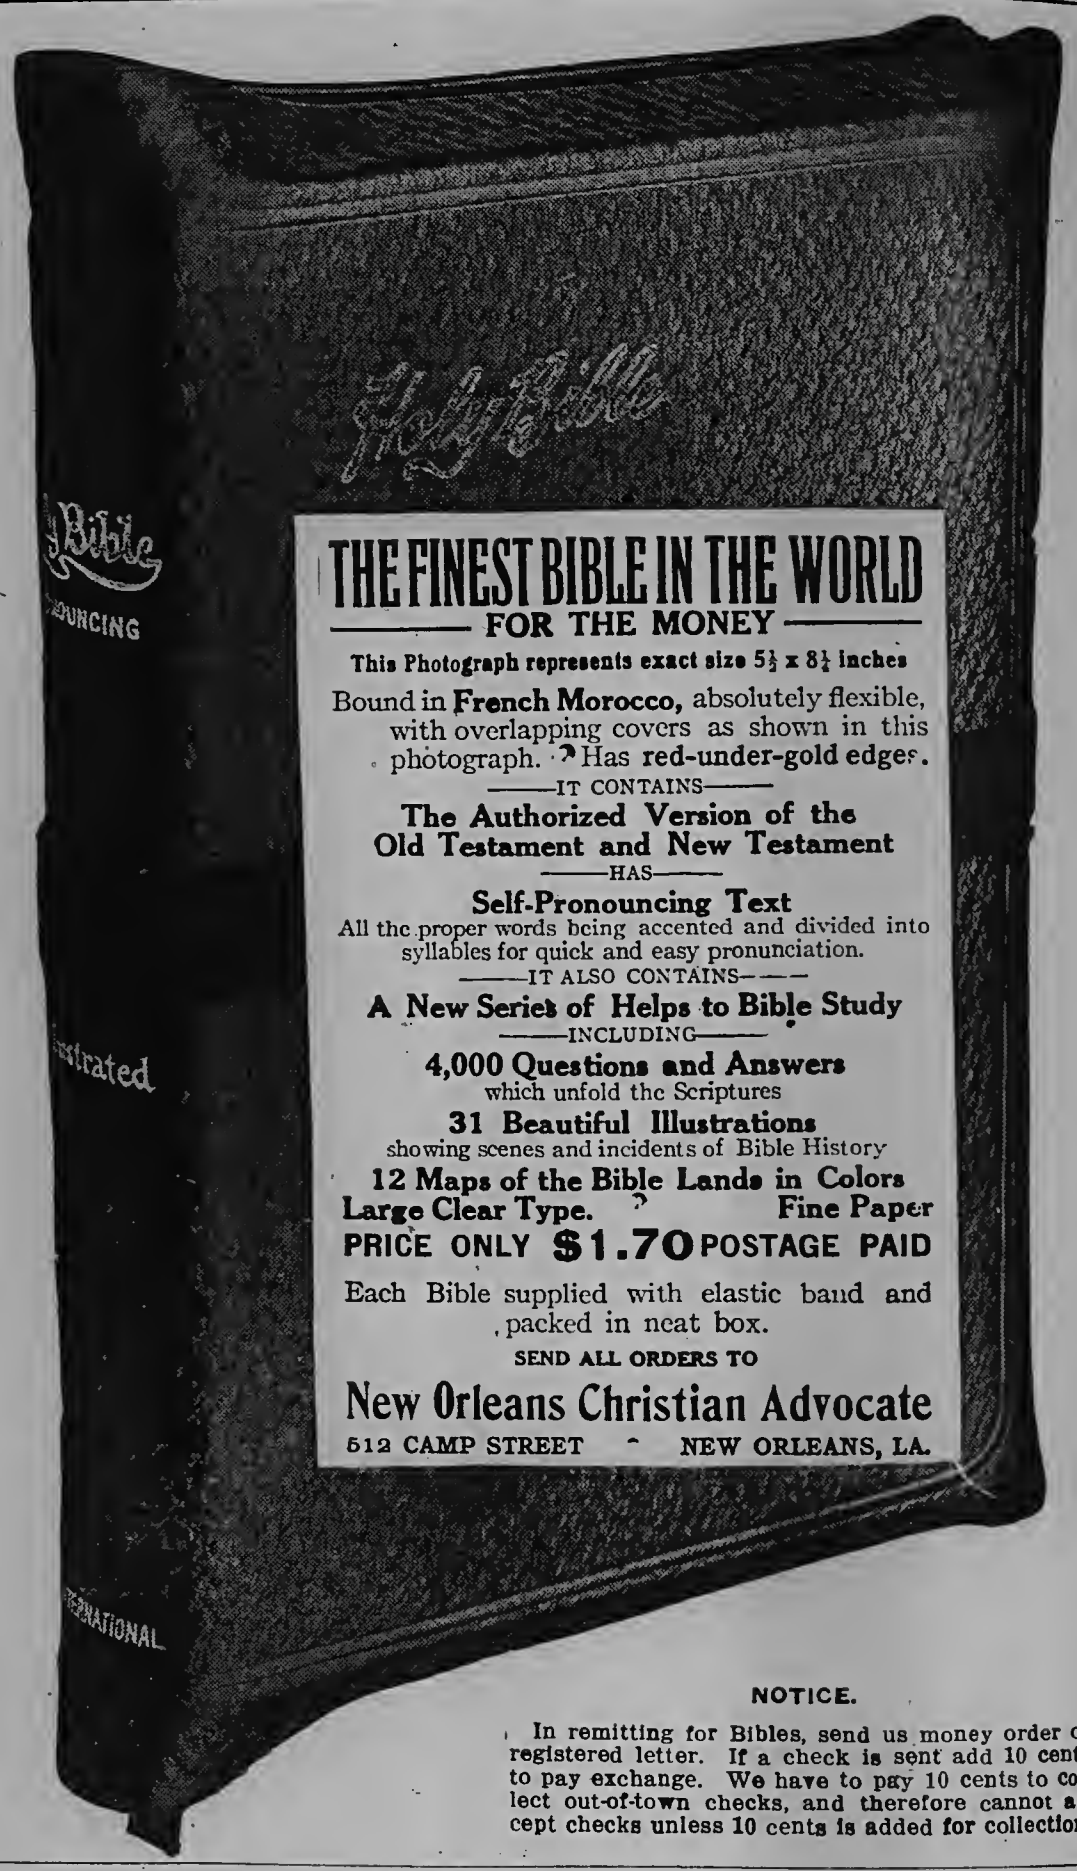
Monday morning at nine o'clock the Honorable Board of Trustees will meet in the College Library.

At ten o'clock Monday morning there will be a declamation contest by representatives of the Freshman and Sophomore classes.

Monday evening at eight o'clock the Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting.

Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock the Commencement address will be delivered by Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Savannah, Ga. This will be followed by the bestowal of the diplomas and conferring of degrees on the members of the graduating classes. Yours cordially,

A. F. WATKINS.



SOME RECENT GIFTS TO MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I take pleasure in reporting that two big-hearted laymen of Mississippi, one of whom is Brother James Hand, of Purvis, the name of the other layman being withheld at his own request, have recently subcsribed $2500 each to the Millsaps College Dormitory fund, which is steadily growing, and which gives promise of being large enough in the near future for work to be begun on the new building. It will be gratifying news to the friends of the College to learn also that a gift of $500 in Liberty bonds has just been made by one of our most consecrated women, namely, Mrs. A. P. Harland, of Tupelo, Miss., to be used as a ministerial aid fund. This is a noble benefaction, and during the coming years will assist many a worthy young preacher in obtaining a college education. These gifts to the College are all more deeply appreciated than words can express, and indicate that the hearts of our people are responding more and more to the needs of the young men and women in our denominational schools. Although these are the days of the big "drives" for the support of the government in the great war and the blessed work of the Red Cross Society, our Methodist people have never given more generously to our colleges than they are doing now.

Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK, Commissioner.

Jackson, Miss., May 24, 1918.

CHILDREN'S DAY FUND.

The Treasurer of the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference makes this partial report of receipts from Children's Day offerings so as to encourage the others who have not reported. Look at the figures below.

Itta Bena	$106.43
Winona	25.25
Greenville	25.02
Columbus, First Church	18.71
Tchula	15.35
Shelby	15.00
Sardis Circuit	13.30
Coffeeville	12.00
Webb	11.69
Myrtle	10.55
Pleasant Hill	10.41
New Albany Circuit	8.25
Louisville	8.00
Alligator	7.60

In nearly every case this is an increase over last year. Special mention ought to be made of the offering at Itta Bena. Our hats are off to Pastor Campbell and his splendid school. We had the most effective service here at Greenville I have seen in a long time. One feature of the program was the baptism of four little children.

A WILDERNESS OR A PARADISE.

Any wilderness whither God sends His beloved is sure to turn out a place of safety and of food convenient, if not of flowers. And were it possible for the whole Church or for one single soul to take up its abode in heaven against the divine will, heaven itself would be found thenceforth a stronghold not of peace, but of unrest. There is no peace outside the peace of God.—Christian Rossetti.

"SO WALK YE IN HIM."

Paul tells us to walk in Christ just in proportion as we have received him as Lord. "As ye have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him." It is necessary that we recognize the Master in many ways. He was a great teacher. He was discovered to be a master of law when but a lad, and all through his ministry he "spake as one having authority." His knowledge of heaven surpassed revelation and his ability to evade his questioners evidenced his skill in reason.

We must receive Christ as our Savior. "The son of Man came to seek and to save the lost." There is no place we can reject Christ with more deadly effect than as a Savior. If he was less than that, he was a fraud, and failure must rest upon his Church. But the message of the Church is Christ our Savior. He is the power and wisdom of God unto salvation to all who believe on his name. We preach him, and by our preaching we are able to win sinners from darkness to light.

But going further than the power of Jesus as teacher and Savior, we must consider ourselves and the manner in which we live as Christians. We may have mastered the divine teachings of Jesus until we are able to pass as master theologians, but the world is not greatly influenced by the scope of our learning. We may have an experience of salvation until we feel in our hearts that we are saved and that we will certainly reach heaven when we die, but the world has misgivings, sometimes, when people profess great spiritual emotions. The world regards us as we walk. It was after John the Baptist had looked upon Jesus as he walked that he said: "Behold the Lamb of God."

We can walk religiously in proportion to how fully we walk with Jesus as our Master. is his voice supreme? Do we wait upon his Commandment? You ask, By what standard can we know that we are walking with Jesus as our Lord? Paul has answered in detail. He says, "Mortify therefore your members." No man will regard your Christianity if you allow appetite, passion, lust and greed to sway your actions. You must do no less than to quit your sins; and then Paul tells you to "put on" certain things. The things we put on are the works of righteousness, but we must first mortify our members and then are we able to do Christian works.

After a man has quit his meanness and has begun to do the works of righteousness in the name of Jesus Christ, Paul tells us it is proper for him to "teach and admonish." Many assume the role of teachers and critics long before they leave off sin and put on Christ, but the order is out of order. Preachers, Sunday school teachers and all others who instruct should live correct lives. But the final aid that assures us more than all others that we are walking with Christ is the prayer life. If we talk with him hour by hour we will by a divine hand be led in his way, which is the way everlasting. A. J. G.

Much depends upon keeping busy, but more depends upon the character of your task.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES—THEIR FUTURE.

High school graduates are urged, in a special message sent out by the War Department in Washington, D. C., to attend college. "You serve your country better by going to college," says the message. We agree that a college education is much to be desired and young men and women should by all means arrange to attend some college this fall.

Right now is the time for parents to plan where their sons and daughters shall enter school for higher training. In making this decision the needs of the age as well as the needs of the individual should be taken into consideration. It is too frequently true that ambitious parents are attracted by the bigness of secular schools, or allow the enthusiasm of their children, who are carried away with numbers or the fact that their classmates are going to a secular college, to force their final decision in this great matter. Your son or daughter may desire association, and you may desire to attach after your child's name the name of some noted college, but the thing of greatest importance is, What has the college for your child that the world needs?

Right now, it may be said that character and Christian leadership is in greatest demand. Uneducated men become money makers, and oftentimes far outstrip their college partners in the quest for gold. But the man who would lead the world into higher paths of righteousness must have training. The Church college is the only safe place for the boy or girl. There is where moral leadership is available. There is where men hear the call to preach, and there is where the world-wide vision of missions is obtainable. Our Conferences are needing ministers and our churches and cities and communities are needing moral leaders and the Church college must furnish them in the future as in the past.

If Methodist preachers, the parents of high school boys and girls, and church leaders would render a great service now, they will use the power of their influence to send the 1918 High School graduates to Methodist colleges. A. J. G.

GIVE YOUR PASTOR A VACATION.

Our Church has a great property located in Biloxi, Miss. Throughout the whole South a location fraught with material advantages is hard to find equal to the Seashore Campground. Besides its bathing facilities, its refreshing breezes, and its fine fishing advantages, all of which have their appeal, there lives or lodges along the coast true Southern people with big hearts and restful hospitality. The Campground is a great place for a vacation.

Not only is the Seashore Compground an ideal place to go at all times, but it becomes, now and then, the center of large attractions, which offer spiritual comfort, intellectual stimulus, and social exultation. Such an attraction is the Seashore Divinity School, which opens its 1918 session June 25 and closes July 4. Nothing takes the place, in the life of a tired preacher, of a summer assembly. He needs freedom from his pastoral duties for a season; the encouragement found in association with his fellow-pastors; the physical refreshing wrought by sea bathing, fishing and rowing; and the spiritual uplift effected by the hearing of great addresses. Ten days at such an assembly as is the Seashore Divinity School sends a pastor back to his people with renewed vigor.

But the average Methodist preacher finds it hard to meet the demands upon his scant purse every year, and now above other years. Duties are heavier, money is no more plentiful and the dollar buys less that before. The preacher is not a beggar. He would not think of calling the attention of his Stewards to the fact that he needs a vacation, would like to attend the Seashore Divinity School, and has not the money. He ought not to have need to mention anything of the like to his Stewards. One of them, or some other devout member of the charge, should mention it to him and raise the money to pay his expenses on such a trip.

Here is a great resort belonging to our Church; here is a special season when a program attracts preachers and is built to help them; here are hundreds of tired pastors in Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama, most of whom are not able to take a vacation, and here are just as many congregations that are able to lay a purse for expenses upon the altar for their pastors' benefit. There remains just one thing lacking (and that may not be lacking), and that is the spirit in one or more persons in each charge to take the lead in sending each pastor to the Seashore Divinity School this year.

A. J. G.

That person who has not made his peace with God need scarcely hope that God will hear him in prayer for the peace of the world. it is the prayer of the righteous that availeth much.

A ten-year-old boy ran into the house, after a time of hard work in the yard, to show his mother the big drops of perspiration on his face. He was proud to show visible results of hard work. There are few things in this world that give us more satisfaction than our own knowledge that we have worked faithfully.

Are you living for to-day or are you planning for days to come? The answer to this question determines how you should spend your time. To-day is now and your next breath is time to come, to-morrow is time to come, eternity is time ended. Live right and do God's will now and you may fear neither time to come nor eternity.

"Every time I feel resentment against war bread, meatless days, and other war-time economies, I think of the sacrifice our soldiers are making," said a patriot who is staying where no cannons roar. He is a poor citizen, indeed, in these tragic days, who complains because he must make sacrifices. Nothing of large value was ever purchased for the world until a big price was paid.

I WILL BE WORTHY OF IT.

I may not reach the heights I seek,
My untried strength may fail me,
Or half-way up the mountain peak
Fierce tempest may assail me.
But though that place I never gain,
Herein lies comfort for my pain—
I will be worthy of it.

I may not triumph in success.
Despite my earnest labor,
I may not grasp results that bless
The efforts of my neighbor.
But though my goal I never see,
Thls thought shall always dwell with me—
I will be worthy of it.

The golden glory of love's light
May never fall on my way;
My path may always lead through night
Like some deserted by-way,
But though life's dearest joy I miss,
There lles a nameless joy in this—
I will be worthy of it.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

GOD IS NO SLACKER!

There is a modern ring in the verse, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promises as some men count slackness." II Peter 3:9. God is a pattern of lnfinite patience and deliberateness. Everything he does is grandly intentional. In the leisure of eternity he devised his plans of creation and redemptlon, and they will not be worked out in the forenoon. To imagine God is asleep because a heathen is expected to ring a bell at the pagoda to arouse the god to receive a belated caller is foolish and profane. To imagine God is undecided and of wavering judgment is to picture a god to please our halting purposes. "God is not slack"—He waits for us—"He remembereth that we are dust"—He delighteth in mercy although he will not keep his anger forever. Let every American cry, "God is not slack" and whisper, "I will not be slack, either."—The Christian Intelligencer.

AND ALSO THE MORNING.

Tennyson in his "In Memoriam" speaks of the possibility of being able to "reach a hand through time to catch the far-off interest of tears," but he hints that it is not an easy thing to do sometimes. And indeed it is not an easy thing, but it is a possible one nevertheless, possible only as a great many other hard things are possible, through the faith and far-seeing vision of the man who absolutely believes ln God. Tears may water the seed that will yield a rich harvest of gladness in the days that are to come, bread that ls cast upon the flood may be found after many days, a man may drop his grain into the furrow with an almost breaking heart, but the day will come when he will carry his golden sheaves with a caroling harvest-home song upon his lips. And to see through the gloom the joy that is coming, to see in the loss a gain that will more than match it, that's what it ls to be a Christian. And the world never needed the enterprising, far-seeing, eager souls who can display such Christianity more than it does today.—Christian Guardian.

"IMPOSSIBLES" REALIZED IN GOD.

We touch our "impossible" almost at a stride. The "impossibles" stare upon us on every side. How then? It is only in God and in the power of His holy grace that the impossible thing can be realized. In the Lord Jesus miracles may happen every day; they are happening every day. But in our pathetic folly we go on trying to mend the broken earthenware, when the mighty God would recreate the vessel. We rely upon the ministry of good-fellowship when we can do nothing without the communion of the Holy Ghost. We use social cosmetics upon a withered and wizened society and the holy Lord is waitlng with the unspeakable quickening of the new birth. We use rouge when we really need the blood of the Lamb.

The world is always arrested when it sees impossibles being accomplished. In God the impossible becomes possible.

Though earth and hell the Word gainsay,
The Word of God can never fail;
The Lamb shall take my sins away,
'Tis certain, though impossible.
The thlng impossible shall be.
All things are possible to me.

SEASONS OF THE SOUL.

By Wm. C. Allen.

But yesterday all life in bud was hid;
But yesterday the grass was gray and sere;
To-day the whole world decks itself anew
In all the glorious beauty of the year.

We know that summer follows winter all round the globe. How do we know that summer will succeed winter in our souls? Not only do we draw an analogy from the outward seasons, but we listen to the story of God's people through the ages and they tell us that ever so has he dealt with those He loves. We remember that since we gave our lives to Jesus, to this very present hour, alternating summer and winter has been our portion. We have partaken of the common Christian lot.

Probably we have prayed long for the advent of heavenly warmth into hearts that have seemed desolate and cold. Storms of physical distress or mental agitation may have beaten upon us. The flowers of joy and fruits of service have been denied. Our spiritual faculties have seemed congealed. The skies have not responded to our petitions for light, and we wonder if God's south wind of love shall ever again breathe peace upon us. Thus sometimes do the heavens seem as brass and the earth as bars of steel to the children of the Highest.

Then there will come days when the coldness and hardness vanlsh. The spiritual chill leaves us. Warm showers of blessings descend. We see the benign and lofty mountains of God's purposes through the clear atmosphere of His perfect love. Our lives once more bear flowers of righteousness and we yield ripe fruits of service to His praise. For us:

"The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of birds is come."

Thus the Christian remembers that summer ever draweth nigh. It sometimes may be nearer than he appreciates. The struggle for a llvelihood, the fight with temptation, the combat with disease, the wrestling for faith must some time disappear. All these represent the wintry season and are transitory. The Infinite Love that permits them will lead His faithful people into a delightful summer clime of fruitage and content.

We always welcome summer as it approaches with the enticing beauty of that time of year. The north wind with its biting cold must cease. The snows and dreary lanscape disappear. The soft winds once more caress mountaln and valley with their loving touch. The bravery of a green robe ls thrown across the scene. The sun-kissed gardens delight the eye. The broad, green fields bow in lowly obeisance to the Supreme Creator of all this fruitfulness and warmth. The blossoming orchards become rich with glorious and golden fruit. Even so, in God's own time—which is always the best time—will lt be with Hls faithful children. Summer succeeds winter in their souls.

DR. BELLE H. BENNETT SPEAKS TO THE WOMEN OF SOUTHERN METHODISM.

Members of the committee appointed by the Woman's Missionary Council at its last session held in Knoxville, Tenn., April 3-11, to attend the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, in the interest of the legislation touching the Woman's Work of the Church, reached Atlanta, Ga., the seat of the Conference on the first day of the session.

The memorial and petitions presented by the women were referred to the proper committees, and later reached the body for action. All the requests of the Woman's Missionary Council were granted. The memorial asking for full membership for women in the Church created perhaps the greatest interest and warmest discussion.

From the beginning it was evident that a very large majority of the body was heartily in favor of granting laity rights to the women of the Church. However, in a few days our committee was informed that some sharp opposition to the form of the memorial had developed in the Commlttee on Revisals, to which it had been referred.

On May 13 the memorial came before the house and, after less than 30 minutes' debate, was passed by an overwhelming majority, despite the fact that a "rider," involving the Constitution of the Board of Missions, had been attached to it by the Committee. When the Chair announced that the measure was adopted, the enthusiasm was so great that the men rose from their seats and turned to the women in the galleries, waved hands and handkerchiefs, and cheered with hearty, sympathetic approval.

The following morning in a formal paper the College of Bishops declared that the admittance of women to the councils of the Church was a constitutional question that could not be decided by even a two-thirds vote of the General Conference. The body immedlately re-affirmed the actlon of the previous day, by a vote of 256 to 57, thereby "over-ruling the Bishops' veto," thus sending the matter down to the Annual Conferences for a final decision.

By a resolution later in the session, the Bishops were requested to present the matter to all the Annual Conferences of Southern Methodism within the next twelve months. A constitutlonal question thus referred to the Annual Conferences requires a three-fourths vote of all members of all the Conferences to legalize the change.

Many prominent friends of the cause said that the men so sincerely and earnestly desired to give the women full membership ln the Church that lt is evident that lt will pass the Annual Conferences by a large majority.

The women of the Council believe that God's time has come for woman to assume her full responsibility in the Church. They realize that lt means indefatigable and patient work on the part of the friends of the cause, both men and women, to present clearly the issue to the eight or nine thousand preachers and laymen who compose the Conferences, and in whose hands, under God, rests the final decision.

My appeal to the Church now ls for constant and united prayer that the Holy Spirit may gulde and direct ln all this work and that ln the result, which is inevitable, the spiritual llfe of the Church may be quickened, the name of Jesus, the Savior and Liberator of women, may be glorified and the kingdom of this world may become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ.

BELLE H. BENNETT.
President, Woman's Missionary Council, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I wish to call the attentlon of the Methodists of the Port Glbson District and others who are interested to a part of the report which the committee on educatlon made wlth reference to Port Gibson Female College. The Presldent of the school, Rev. T. J. O'Neil, offers to give, ln addition to his already liberal contributions for improvements, an equal amount with any others who will contrlbute for repairs and improvements on the property up to $500. As secretary of the committee, I feel that this challenge ought to be made known to the publlc and not allowed to rest quietly in the district conference record.

1 note in a recent letter from Brother O'Nell that already about a thousand dollars has been spent in repairs and improvements; that the past session has been a prosperous one, no serious case of sickness occurring in the college during the session or in fact for several years; that the school has gone back to lts orlginal policy of taking girls only, and that lts graduates will receive a two years, State license to teach. I have been ln the school a number of times during the past two years and find it to be a splendid, home-like institution, whose very atmosphere tends toward the development of the right sort of character.

Now what ought the Methodists of the Mississippi Conference, more especially of the Port Gibson District, to do for the school? We ought to give at once that five hundred dollars and then go over the top and make it ten times as much. This is the richest agricultural section of the State and our people own a great part of it. Take the matter up with the President at once. Then in the second place we ought to give it a liberal patronage. Of the fifty-eight thousand members of the Mississippi Conference I believe that at least five thousand are boys and girls who ought to be in college, enough to fill to overflowing Port Gibson, Whitworth, Millsaps, Montrose, and the Seashore Campground School, with a large margin to go to our splendid State institutions like the Normal College and others of its kind.

What are we going to do about it? We can do it if we will. Sincerely,

J. B. CAIN.

Jackson, Miss.

WESLEY'S LAST YEARS.

Our recent survey of the marvelous personality and work of the great American Methodist leader leaves us in sympathetic mood for considering the still more amazing personality and work of Asbury's prototype and example, the immortal John Wesley. The seventh volume of the invaluable standard edition of the Journal, just issued (for which we are so greatly indebted to Dr. Curnock and his associates), with its priceless notes, illustrations, and reproductions of the wonderful diaries, covers, in its 528 pages, almost the very final years; that is, it reaches from July 18, 1784, to August 18, 1789, or within eighteen months of the end. It betrays no diminution of the prodigious activities which for half a century had marked this unique career. Unfaltering health is still enjoyed. Each recurring birthday, June 28, calls out renewed thanksgiving for the astonishing perpetuation of strength. He continues to go the rounds of the circuits in England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales (besides a visit to Holland), preaching constantly and feeling no fatigue from it (even after four sermons in one day), meeting the classes, rewriting the membership lists, settling feuds in the societies, stiffening up the discipline where he finds it relaxed, bestowing reproofs and praises as appear needful, answering letters, and administering the communion to vast numbers, often to six or seven hundred, and occasionally to as many as 1200.

The days of opposition and persecution are over; prejudices have been overcome, and victories won all along the line. It is a triumphal procession that he makes. The churches of the Establishment are quite commonly open to him, but no churches can accommodate the vast numbers that throng to hear him, so he still preaches very largely in the open air, where sharp winds and pouring rains have no power to disperse the multitude. They hang on his words. It is in many cases a farewell tour. They do not expect to see him again, and great emotions are aroused. "I expect to finish my course this year," he writes in July, 1788, and there were various predictions that he would. His brother Charles had passed on in March of that year, at the very moment when John and his congregation, far away, in Shropshire, were singing, "Come let us join our friends above." He had been, and still was, as he says, "a wanderer upon the earth," looking for rest in a better world.

He owes his health, he writes, under God, largely to his constant exercise and change of air, to his never having lost a night's sleep, sick or well, on land or sea, since he was born, to his having constantly risen at 4 for above sixty years, and preached at 5. The diaries uniformly begin at 4 (although once in a very great while 3:30 or 5 or 6 is set down as the rising hour) and close at 9:30. His breakfast time was generally 8, his dinner at 1:30, tea at 5 and supper at 8 or 8:30. Saturday, March 21, 1789, he writes, "I had a day of rest; only preaching morning and evening." There were many temporal cares, connected with his publications and his poor. December 5, 1885, he writes, "I spent every hour I could spare for the whole week in the unpleasant but necessary work of going through the town and begging for the workmen who have been employed in finishing the new chapel. It is true I am not obliged to do this, but if I do not nobody else will." Also on January 4 of the same year, when he was nearly eighty-two, he tramped the streets of London for five days, the streets ankle deep in slush, so that his feet were steeped in snow water from morning till night, begging $200 to clothe the needy.

As a rule there were plain indications of the presence of the Holy Spirit when he preached and manifest blessings received—"many were cut to the heart, and many rejoiced with joy unspeakable." On the other hand, in some places there was immovable apathy; "the people seemed to be mere sticks and stones;" it was a "plowing of the sand;" "the congregation was well dressed but ill behaved." Even this great apostle had the usual experience of all preachers, as was to be expected. But one could not expect that at Horsleydown (apparently not far from London) "no man, woman, or child seemed to know me either by face or by name!"

Settling quarrels was no small part of his work. At one place he writes, "I found the matter itself was nothing, but want of patience on both sides had swelled a molehill into a mountain. Oh, how patient, how meek, how gentle, toward all men should a preacher, especially a Methodist, be!" As a rule he succeeded in quieting things, but not always. Of one disturber he says, "I talked with him till I was tired; but in vain; one might as well have talked to the north wind. So I gave him up to God, and only endeavored to quench the flame among the people."

At Aughrim, in Ireland, he found the society well-nigh shrunk into nothing, "such is the powerful influence of riches. The same effect we find in every place. The more men increase in goods (very few excepted) the more they decrease in grace." At Macclesfield he found a people "still alive to God in spite of swiftly increasing riches. If they continue so it will be the only instance I have known in above half a century."

Each of the years he held a Conference in Ireland and in England. They were seasons of great spiritual power and of remarkable harmony. The frequent entry is: "We began and ended in much peace and love, being all resolved not 'to do the work of the Lord lightly.'" "We had no contention or altercation at all." "We parted as we met; in peace and love." A day of fasting and prayer was frequently observed, concluding with a solemn watch night.

So this great little man (he was five feet, three inches in height, and weighed 125 pounds) passed on toward the close. It does us good to follow him, to note (as the diary bears witness) how closely each day was packed with usefulness, what a model of industry and uttermost consecration he was, how exemplary all his habits. He lived for eternity, making everything tell for God's glory. Reputation and honor he cast to the winds. Money he despised except as he could use it for advancing Christ's kingdom. He took final leave of leisure very early. In the spirit he showed, the aim he followed, the purpose he pursued, and the manner in which he managed his life he is worthy of all emulation. In his unselfish, unswerving, whole-hearted devotion to duty, his utter loyalty to his Lord, he has never been surpassed. To be like Christ, to think Christ's thoughts, to speak Christ's words, to carry out Christ's plans, to do Christ's will was the one grand ambition of his days. He was an entirely dedicated man, a thoroughly consistent Christian. His life is one of the greatest gifts yet made by God to the Church Universal. And Methodists especially do well pretty often to hark back to the example of their illustrious founder.—Zion's Herald.

"Religion is the only force in the world that I have ever heard of that does actually transform the life; and the proof of the transformation is to be found all over the world, and is multiplied and repeated as Christianity gains fresh territory in the heathen world."—Woodrow Wilson.

IS THERE NO DEVIL?

Men don't believe in a devil now
As their fathers used to do,
They've forced the door of the broadest creed
To let his majesty through.
There isn't a print of his cloven foot,
Or a fiery dart from below,
To be found in earth, or air to-day:
For the world has voted it so.

But who is mixing the fatal draught
That palsies heart and brain,
And loads the bier of each passing year
With ten hundred thousand slain?
Who blights the bloom of the land to-day
With the fiery breath of hell?
If the devil isn't and never was,
Won't some one rise and tell?

Who dogs the steps of the tolling saint,
And digs the pits for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the fields of time,
Wherever God sows His wheat?
The Devil is voted not to be,
And of course the thing is true;
But who is doing the kind of work
That the devil used to do?

We are told that he does not go about
As a roaring lion now;
But who shall we hold responsible for the Everlasting row
To be heard in home, in church, in state,
To the earth's remotest bounds,
If the devil by a unanimous vote
Is nowhere to be found?

Won't somebody step to the front forthwith,
And make their bow and show
How the crimes of a single day spring up?
We really want to know.
The devil was fairly voted out,
And of course the devil's gone,
But simple people would like to know
Who carries his business on?

GIFTS TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Dear Doctor Meek: I am glad to report that the Rev. D. W. Babb, of Crawford, has recently added $100 to a former contribution, making his total $358. This is simply an expression of Brother Babb's increasing interest in Emory University.

It has been my pleasure to receive several $500 contributions during the past several weeks, and credit is hereby given H. L. Bruister and R. P. Turner, of Tutwiler, and E. A. Enochs, of Natchez. This public acknowledgment is due these gentlemen who express their interest in Emory by such magnanimous donations. May their tribe increase!

In addition to these splendid gifts, I have had the pleasure of accepting several smaller contributions, and I feel sure that I will have some very interesting data to give the readers of the Advocate in not a very great while.

The conviction is growing with our people that we must provide larger things for the greater possibilities that are rapidly opening to us, and I appeal for a still larger liberality among our people in their appreciation of Emory University.

Blessings upon our entire constituency!

PRAYING FOR OUR FELLOW-MEN.

"I cannot pretend to care for many with whom I come into contact as much as I do for the few. But I can pray for them, and the feeling will more or less come in time. Just try to pray for some person committed to your charge—say for half an hour or an hour—and you will begin really to love him. As you lay his life before God, as you think of his needs and hopes, and failings and possibilities, as you pray earnestly for him as you would for some one whom you feel intense affection for—at the end of the time you will feel more interested in him, you will think of him not as one of a class, but as a separate, mysterious person. You will not, it may be, have time to pray for many in this way, but you will learn imperceptibly to extend your sympathy—to feel real love for many more. I advise you to keep a record of these prayers. It is quite worth your while to take practically a day off sometimes, and to force yourself to pray. It will be the best day's work you have ever done in your life. Remember, that."—Forbes Robinson, "Letters to His Friends."

EDUCATION DAY IN THE LOUISIANA METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Several weeks ago I suggested in the Advocate that our Sunday schools in Louisiana observe Religious Education Day, which is planned by our General Sunday School Board and our General Board of Education, to be held during the month of June, just after the closing of our schools. Our Baptist friends will be observing a similar day in their Sunday schools.

In suggesting this observance, I offered on behalf of the Board of Education of the Conference, to furnish programs to all of our schools that would use them. The first application for programs has just reached me from an earnest pastor who is alive to this great interest of the Church. The program prepared is based upon a program of responsive reading which appeared in the Sunday School Magazine some months ago, with some additions and changes. Some suggestions have been taken from the program prepared by the Baptist Board. It is intended in this program to bring before our Sunday schools the facts about our educational work and its importance, and it has been so arranged that any Sunday school without a great deal of preparation can observe the day. If such observance should become general throughout our Conference, with programs improved with experience and enriched by practical suggestions, it would mean much in binding our Sunday schools to our Colleges and making them feeders to our institutions of higher education. By the time the Advocate reaches its readers, the programs will be ready for mailing.

In connection with this observance, it would be wise for every pastor to preach the sermon on Christian Education which is required by the Discipline. In order to help in the preparation of such a sermon, I am arranging to secure for those who wish it a series of valuable pamphlets on Christian Education, which may be secured for a small sum, not more than fifty cents for the set. I will be glad to put each one who wishes it in touch with this help.

W. WINANS DRAKE,
Conference Secretary of Education.

OUR EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

By Rev. Stonewall Anderson, D.D.

The importance of the educational work of the Church was greatly emphasized by the General Conference at Atlanta.

The Conference recognized the need of our schools and colleges for funds aggregating $13,000,000, and the need of our connectional universities for $10,000,000. Moreover, a Church-wide campaign to secure the $13,000,000 for the schools and colleges was approved and ordered. It was provided that this campaign shall be conducted under the general supervision and direction of the Board of Education in co-operation with Conference Boards of Education and college trustees. The Board was further authorized to employ a Financial Secretary to aid in carrying forward the campaign for the schools and colleges.

The campaign for $10,000,000 for the two universities, $5,000,000 for Emory University, and $5,000,000 for Southern Methodist University, was "Indorsed and ordered and the immediate conduct of this campaign is hereby lodged in the Boards of Trustees of these respective universities." It was further provided: "That the Board of Education shall, upon the request of either or both of the Boards of Trustees of the two universities, elect from among its members a special campaign committee of five—and this committee, together with a like committee, or committees, from either or both the Boards of Trustees of the two universities, shall constitute a Joint Campaign Committee for the organization, supervision and control of this special connectional Ghost[illegible]n for said universities, in so far as either [illegible]ed and[illegible]h of the Boards of Trust[illegible]es of said universities may desire to avail themselves of its services as herein provided."

The Relation of the Educational Campaign to the Other Campaigns of the Church.

In addition to the educational campaigns mentioned above, two other campaigns were launched by the General Conference. These are the great Missionary Centenary Campaign for $35,000,000, and the Superannuate Endowment Campaign.

The plan to unite these various interests and to launch a single joint campaign was given careful consideration and rejected as not being feasible.

The plan of the General Conference is: "That all the great campaigns, prepared and projected, be carried forward with a clear vision of their supreme importance and a whole-hearted zeal, born of a faith in the ability and in the intelligence of the Church to meet its duty in this crucial hour of the world's history." It is further expected that those to whom are committed the great interests for which campaigns have been launched "will wisely work and plan in helpful harmony, knowing that the complete success of each depends at last upon the success of all."

Full right of way is given to the campaigns for the universities and the Superannuate Endowment Fund throughout the entire quadrennium. Since the campaigns for these "are not, in a sense, general campaigns, they may be carried on throughout the quadrennium without embarrassing other campaigns or being embarrassed by them."

The campaigns for schools and colleges which are now under way are to be completed as speedily as possible. Assurances are given that it is no part of the plan of the Centenary Movement to interfere with such campaigns. However, the General Conference provided that, in the interest of efficiency, only one popular campaign be carried on at once. Hence the "right of way is given to the Centenary Movement during the first two years, and to the educational campaign during the second two years of the quadrennium, and that during these two periods, as far as possible, the full power of the Church be delivered in these respective campaigns." I am sure that during the first two years of the quadrennium the educational forces of the Church will put forth their utmost strength in aiding the Missionary forces to make the Centenary Movement a great success. I am also equally certain that during the second two years of the quadrennium, the missionary forces will join hands with the educational forces in aiding to make the Educational Campaign a success.

The splendid program of the quadrennium calls for loyal support, united efforts, and unstinted, generous service on the part of all the forces of the Church.

AN INTERESTING COMMUNICATION TO BISHOP ROBERTS.

Dear Brother Meek: I am sending you a copy of a letter from Hon. Seth Lewis, of Opelousas, La., to Bishop Robert R. Roberts that will be one hundred years old on September 24, 1918, and which will doubtless prove to be of special interest to some of your readers in Louisiana. Rev. Thomas Nixon's grave is about six miles southeast of Utica, Miss. I also have in my possession the annual report of the first meeting of the Missionary and Bible Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, held in John Street Church, New York City, April 17, 1820.

Yours fraternally,
B. W. LEWIS.

Utica, Miss.

The letter to Bishop Roberts referred to by Brother Lewis follows:

Opelousas, Sept. 24, 1818.

Reverend Sir: Though I am personally unknown to you, I trust the subject on which I now write will sufficiently apologize for my troubling you with this letter. My object is to lay before you a sketch of our situation in this country with regard to religion, and to entreat you, if practicable, to relieve our wants in this respect. This circuit, at present under the care of the Rev. Thomas Nixon, seems to me much too large for a single preacher and the more so as in the whole extent of it there is not a single local preacher, except one Presbyterian who resides at Alexandria, and two or three of the Baptist Church who reside near the upper part of the circuit, and who sometimes come into this parish and preach to the people. But from the neighborhood of this place to Berwick Bay, a distance of near one hundred miles, the voice of a Protestant minister of the gospel is scarcely ever heard except when the Methodist preacher comes round to his appointments. This, with his utmost exertions, he is able to do only once in five weeks, travelling each time not less than five hundred and eighty miles, according to the computed distances. This alone may enable you to judge how necessary it is to send more ministers into this circuit.

Where the preaching of the gospel is seldom heard, the Christian waits with patience, and rejoices when the time comes for him again to hear the glad tidings of salvation and join in the public worship of the God he loves. Not so the men of this world, who it is to be feared are rather "like the man beholding his natural face in a glass, who goeth and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was." Does not the long intervals between the times of preaching give time for many good impressions to wear off and be lost? Is it not to be feared that many a good seed sown that might spring up and bear fruit, is thus choked and destroyed among the thorns, when the tender plant by more frequent watering might have been preserved alive?

With the exception of a few names in this extensive circuit, all appear careless of the one thing needful, and I am confident that could you find time to pass through our country and witness for yourself the state of religion in it, your strongest sympathies would be awakened. Indeed, it seems to me important and very desirable, that if possible either yourself, or one of the other Bishops should visit this almost insulated place.

This circuit is extensive—its population already considerable and increasing. It includes five parishes, Rapides, Avoyelles, St. Landry—better known by the name of Opelousas—St. Martin, and St. Mary; the two last included with the former Parish of Attakapas. The population is composed of two classes: first, the original settlers, who are chiefly of French origin, and use the French language—these are, almost without exception, professed Roman Catholics—and secondly, what is here called the American part of the people. The people in Rapides are chiefly American; in Avoyelles I believe the majority are French, but of the numbers in these two I am in possession of no certain information. In both, however, the population is fast increasing. This parish is believed to contain about eight thousand persons, probably one-third of them American. St. Martin about the same number, of which one-fourth is believed to be American, and St. Mary about three thousand, a majority of whom are thought to be American. Amongst these are many men of education, and of considerable wealth; insomuch that perhaps the American part of the people in this circuit, in point of information and talents, may fairly vie with any equal mass of population in the Union; but, as I observed before, all are immersed in the pursuit of the riches of this world, and, to all appearance, are thoughtless of the world to come. You will easily perceive the task the preacher assumes, and the talents he ought to possess, to stem the torrent of irreligion and vice among such a people. Talents would seem to be requisite, such as will command the respect of all.

Your ob't servant and brother in Christ,
SETH LEWIS.

"Pray without ceasing and teach others to pray without ceasing. This is the fundamental principle. When a man really loves a human being, or an idea of his own mind, his secret thoughts are ever clinging to his love, while he is attending to the many various occupations of his life, be it the life of a servant or the life of a king; and this does not prevent his attending carefully to his work, for he has no need to speak many words to his love."

A RECORD DAY IN VICKSBURG.

In compliance with President Wilson's proclamation to observe Thursday, May 30, as a day of public humiliation, prayer and fasting, using an overworked expression of the day, Vicksburg "went over the top." The pastors of the city asked the Mayor to issue a proclamation, which he did, calling upon all business houses to defer opening until ten o'clock and setting aside the hour from nine to ten for religious gatherings. By nine o'clock every church in the city was thronged to its fullest capacity with serious worshipers. For a long time our people could not appreciate the fact that we were at war—real, serious war; but in this city at least all are convinced that we are not only in the thick of it, but there is a unanimous sentiment and spirit of enthusiasm declaring that we are in it to win. From what I have heard from the different congregations, all were in sympathy with the statement, "Except the Lord keepeth the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." Not a week passes, and often more frequently, but we have been, and are being reminded by visiting speakers of the fact, and of the needs of the various war boards. "No one is allowed to consider the things that he may possess as his own." The cry is, "Give! Give!" and our people seem glad to respond.

As a reader of the Advocate I must thank your reporters for the news as it was furnished from Atlanta; but, Doctor, did you know you have gotten yourself in a "strait betwixt two," in your last sentence in the "Personal and other Notes" of this week, wherein you say, "Whatever else may be said of the late General Conference, it will hardly be claimed that it abounded in exhibitions of large INTELLECTUALITY, either on the floor or platform, or from pulpit?" Your chances for the Irishman's easy job are gone unless you see to it that the future Conferences are made up of other delegations. But Sam Steel may be comforted by the contrast. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

DAY OF PRAYER IN NEW ORLEANS.

By Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." Whoever attended the great service of prayer in the First Methodist Church on Thursday, May 30, felt the truth of this Scripture, if never before. The great audience filled the church to the limit of standing room and scores were turned from the door. When Rev. W. W. Holmes called for silent prayer God was there and hearts were warmed, although no song had been sung and no voice of praise or exhortation or petition had been raised.

The great service was the answer of New Orleans Methodism to the call of the presiding elder to observe the Day of Prayer in accordance with the proclamation of President Wilson. Every congregation in the city was represented, and after the Lord's Prayer was recited, a Hymn sung and the leading of the opening prayer by Rev. W. H. Coleman, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" was sung and the service flags of all the churches were borne to the altar by two mothers from each of the twelve congregations. It was an impressive moment. There, visible upon the national colors, was the representation of what New Orleans Methodist homes had given to the nation and to liberty.

Sister J. W. Bothic led the prayer. Sister Bothic knows God and by a lifetime of prayer knows how to talk from the hearts of a great audience and represent everybody. It was no use to grit the teeth and practice self restraint. Tears were flowing everywhere and the great audience just gave up to the mellow atmosphere and wept in evidence of the feelings of pure devotion and reverence and sympathy.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard read the Scripture, reading from Romans 10:1-13. Rev. A. F. Vaughan prayed for the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., Chaplains, Doctors and Nurses. Rev. F. M. Freeman prayed for our President and those in authority. Rev. C. C. Wier prayed for our Allies and our enemies, and Dr. U. G. Foote prayed for victory and a speedy, permanent and just peace.

Rev. W. W. Holmes delivered the address. It was a great deliverance. He meditated on high lines and spoke with emphasis. God was in the service and all were greatly benefited.

A REQUEST.

There is now a great influx of men and women from various parts of the country to Washington City. The adult Sunday school classes of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, South, Ninth Street and Massachusetts Avenue (the Representative Church of Southern Methodism at the National Capitol), realizing the inevitable loneliness of strangers in our city and the great probability of some going astray, earnestly desire to prevent, as far as possible, either of these contingencies.

We, the undersigned, request and urge all ministers, Sunday school superintendents and any other person who may see or hear of our request, to send the names and Washington home (or office) addresses of any relatives or friends who may have recently come to Washington or who may come in the future, to Thos. D. Gannaway, Office Compt. of Currency, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., and a member of our Sunday school will call upon them with that "Southern hospitality," and extend to them a cordial invitation to become members of our Sunday school and Church, if we are the denomination of their choice. Should they prefer some other Church, we shall be glad to assist them in getting acquainted in the one of their preferences.

Pastors and Sunday school superintendents will please make this announcement publicly and let us help the boys and girls of our people while they are in our city. It may mean everything to them.

Very truly,
C. G. CHAPPEL,
Pastor Mt. Vernon Place M. E. Church, South.
W. W. MILLAN,
Superintendent Sunday School.

SPIRITUAL DERELICTS.

The waste of our natural resources has its parallel in the spiritual life. The Christian World points out "how much the kingdom of Christ loses through the large number of drifters, spiritual derelicts, members whose fervor has slumped." We quote:

They are ecclesiastical saunterers. You remember how that word is traced back to the old Crusaders returned from the Holy Land (the saint terre) who roamed over Europe without definite aim until they became a nuisance and a menace. Such is your religious saunterer. His name may still be on a church roll somewhere, or he may have become wholly unattached. He ought to be a faithful, working Christian. Instead he is a wandering star, counting for less than nothing in the service of the Master. The Presbyterian Church is said to have 75,000 of these "saunterers." No doubt our own Church and the others have an equal proportion. They are nominally members, but actually handicaps. There are some two thousand derelict ships, forsaken, the sport of wind and wave, adrift on the seas of the world. They are a menace to commerce. And so there are millions of relapsed members of the Church in the world, who owe Christ zealous service but refuse to honor His claims upon them. Their talents are often greater than those of many a faithful worker. If they were but true to their early pledges the cause of Christ would have a host of strong recruits for all of its vacant posts. Oftentimes the best results of an evangelistic campaign is its discovery and revitalizing of these wasted lives.—Christian Intelligencer.

Our Lord has endowed intercessory prayer with promises which attach to no other form of Christian service.—J. S Holden.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The man who remarked that the high cost of living means the cost of high living, might also have observed that low living comes high, too. Especially is this true of low moral living. There is the man who is forever trying to get "something for nothing." He finds that in the end he is only a bankrupt. The world of success never lies in that direction. Real wealth must be paid for. If some parasites and thieves were to labor as hard in trying to make an honest living as they strive to avoid honest toil, they would be materially, as well as morally, better off. The wages of sin is always death. Low living destroys influence, kills character, and ends in moral bankruptcy.

The man who thinks prosperity can be built on short cuts and crooked dealing has not reckoned with universal law. He only reproduces the tragedy of the green bay tree which flourishes only to be cut off. The wise man in Proverbs was right; for "In the revenues of the wicked is trouble."—The Baptist Commonwealth.

FROM BROTHER BOWEN.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am glad to say that I am improving nicely and have been for several weeks. I am much encouraged. This enforced rest is preparing me for more efficient work. The Bible study, the reading of four new books, our Review, and four of our Advocates and other readings, are helpful. My work grows. The requests for my services are many, but I have to postpone engagements until my good doctors consent for me to return to my field of labor. I am very grateful to my brethren for being so considerate. With love and gratitude, I am yours faithfully,

J. A. BOWEN.

WAR CONDITIONS
— REFLECTED IN —
TELEPHONE SERVICE

Every telephone operator understands that she is working under conditions unprecedented in our national life, and in rendering efficient service she is doing a patriotic duty similar to that of the soldiers in the trenches.

She knows that the enormous increase in telephone traffic is due directly to the government's war activities, and that it is regarded as a matter of course that she will meet the new demands cheerfully and well.

So when the increasing business is reflected in your telephone service by a slowing down and by more frequent busy reports, remember that the operator is not entirely to blame.

YOUR CHURCH.

If you think your church the best,
Tell her so!
If you'd have her lead the rest,
Help her grow.
When there's anything to do,
Let tho fellows count on you,
You will feel good when it's through;
Don't you know?

When a stranger from afar
Comes along,
Tell him who and what we are—
Make it strong;
Needn't flatter, never bluff,
Tell the truth, for that's enough;
Join the boosters—they're the stuff,
We belong.

PREACHING BIBLE DOCTRINE.

A writer in The Herald and Presbyter ventures the sound assertion that "the minister who preaches doctrinal sermons discreetly, scripturally, and with needful and proper illustrations, other things being equal, will have a strong and spiritually-minded church." The following is well worth quoting:

Dr. Cuyler, in addressing a body of theological students, spoke of the tendency to set aside this variety of preaching, and adds, "I beg of you not to yield to this unhappy drift, no, not for an hour. Sound doctrine is the backbone of truly successful preaching. The mightiest discoures that have shaken vast assemblies, and sent sinners trembling to the cross of Christ, having been vitalized by some stupendous doctrine, or revealed teaching of Almighty God. If you are ever dry, never be dry in your doctrinal sermons. Always preach doctrine with intense emotion. Heat your argument red hot. Introduce all the lively and picturesque illustrations you can in your doctrinal discourses, it will make them interesting, and the truth will become pictorial to the mind's eye and to the memory. This was our Savior's method. What a matchless discourse on the doctrine of God's mercy to the sinner is the parable of the Prodigal Son! A good minister is nourished in the words of faith and of good doctrine."—Christian Intelligencer.

AS IT LOOKED.

The recent General Conference at Atlanta, Ga., began evidently in splendid form, and proceeded, of course, with becoming decorum and dignity unto the final finish. The much in compliments, however, was intoxicating, more or less, to a few at least, as it looked from a distance, and as it was reflected by the General Conference Daily. A great company appeared also to enjoy the sunlight of M. E. Church favor. In fact, the union element, by all signs, was much "in the saddle." Secretary Daniels quoted the Allies as an example for Church union, but the American soldier is an American all the same, and his country is intact even while he fights with France and the rest.

The combined Churches of all the earth confront a common foe, and line up together when needful, and constantly are allied for the overthrow of Satan's kingdom. Patriotism and devotion to God's cause are not damaged by trueness to the "home base."

"The Holy Church of Christ" sounds better than "the Holy Catholic," if it may get by the Conferences. "The rights of the laity" was evideutly popular, and by a similar process may reach adoption.

Church "unification" took the right of way, and after full discussion was placed in an attitude extremely favorable; not that the whole Church is disposed to go so rapidly upon that question. The few prominently present, however, were no doubt enthusiastic and ventured with apparent confidence. The "ninety and nine," so safely with the churches at home, are less agitated as to "unification" and "the rights of the laity" generally.

Of course, it is understood that some new Bishops were elected, but the great speeches and the much of else that was printed, could not be read extensively, and only the fewest will suffer distress as to the effect of the union sentiment on the "call" to the great office of General Superintendent.

It was good legislation to make possible the extension of the "time limit" in cases of evident need, and the latest in "pages" was a new departure for the M. E. Church, South; but who can tell? The Bishop himself, and the delegate as well, may be a lady at some later time.

The "colored brother" has been much discussed. Grace has no doubt abounded. If he shall be given a rest, along with the "regional conference," great peace may come to the Methodist Zion. Much service and revival meetings will no doubt now prevail. Special gifts for "seeking the lost" are at a premium, even from apostolic times, and from Bishop Asbury unto the most recent of Episcopal leaders struck from the mint of materials at the Atlanta Convention.

BROTHER JONES' SECOND THOUGHT—OLD BILL CROW.

Brother Jim Jones was a Methodist of the old school; always at his place in church, ready to shout, sing or pray. He never cheated in a horse trade nor lied about his dogs, and was always honest with his neighbors and his God.

Among his stock was old Bill Crow, a black mule nearly a third of a century old. His faithful service had been almost as long as his years.

One morning Brother Jones hitched Bill Crow to the plow and started across the field.

"Git up!" said Brother Jones.

Bill Crow didn't move. He just turned his head and looked kinder mournful-like at his boss and then laid down. His working days were over.

Brother Jones knew that, because it was the first time Bill Crow had ever refused to move. He looked into the mule's eyes and thought he saw tears in them. He knew Bill Crow had done his level best, and that he hated to quit. But there was no help for it, and he turned the old mule out in the woods to die.

That night Joe, Brother Jones' boy, said:

"Pap, what've you done with old Bill Crow?"

"Why, son, he fell down at the plow this morning, and so I turned him out to die. Guess his working days are over."

"You turned old Bill Crow out to die!"

"Why, sure; he ain't no good any more."

"But, see here, pap; ain't he been working for you all his life?"

"He sure has, son, and he worked hard, too."

"And you goin' to church every Sunday and singing, 'I want to be an angel?' Pap, do you reckon an angel would treat old Bill Crow that way after he's worked for him all his days?"

This was putting the thing in a new light to the old man, and Brother Jones began to feel that he had been pretty mean to old Bill Crow. He spoke to his wife about it, and she told him that if he didn't go out and get old Bill Crow and bring him to the barn and feed him and treat him well from that time on, she'd leave him. Every person about the place seemed to think that Brother Jones had treated old Bill Crow outrageously mean, and Brother Jones got so ashamed of himself that he sneaked down into the woods and hunted up the old mule and brought him back.

From that time on every day was Sunday for old Bill Crow.

Was Joe right?

Were Sister Jones and the hired man and the neighbors right?

Was Brother Jones' second thought right?

Did old Bill Crow's third of a century of faithful geeing and hawing and plowing and mowing beget duty?

And I wonder if Brother Jones thought further, so that on the next day he sent his contribution to the Board of Conference Claimants, and thus fulfilled his duty to the old preachers who had served him?

If not, Joe will be after him again, and so will his good wife and his conscience; for old preachers' service begets duty.—The Christian Advocate. New York.

MRS. J. W. PRICE.

On the afternoon of May 12, Mothers' Day, we laid to rest in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery, at Greenwood, Miss., all that was mortal of Mrs. J. W. Price. This good woman was the daughter of John and Mary Valentine, of Bowling Green, Ky. It was there Mrs. Price was born on Sept. 20, 1842. There she grew up to young womanhood, and she was educated in a Presbyterian school in that city. In 1870, she was married to Dr. J. W. Price, of Hopkinsville, Ky. Six children were born to them—Claude, Thomas, William Valentine, Daysle, Margaret, and Mary.

Mrs. Price was a faithful wife, a devoted mother, and a kind and good neighbor. She was ever ready and willing to deny herself pleasure and comforts that she might help and bless others. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Likens, at 1182 Snowden Avenue, Memphis, Tenn., on May 11, 1918.

Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved, especially to our esteemed and beloved brother, Dr. Price. May that divine grace that never falls, and that is sufficient for all our needs, bo graciously and abundantly manifested unto him!

THE LEGEND OF ST. MARTIN OF TOURS.

Eugenie du Maurier.

St. Martin was a soldier brave, in France of long ago;
And riding on his prancing steed along the road did go.
One day he met a beggar-man, forlorn, and meanly clad;
St. Martin checked his charger's pace; the vision made him sad.
No gold or food the soldier had, but then a purpose woke:
He drew his sword and cut in twain his handsome riding-cloak.
Half of his cloak he laid upou the shivering beggar's back,
And then, with sunshine in his heart, rode down the winding track.
That night in dream he saw our Lord wearing in Paradise
The half-cloak he that day had given to Him in beggar's guise.
The poor they are God's very own, and when we give to them,
It is as if we gave to Christ, homeless in Bethlehem.

GRANDMA'S WINDOW.

Alix Thorn.

I love to play down by the bending willow,
It's like a great green tent, a summer day,
The little leaves soft flutter in the breezes,
And it is such a lovely place to play.

I'm never lonely, for right through the branches,
As if it were a star set in the sky,
Above the climbing rose bush and the garden,
I watch my grandma's window, dear and high.

It makes me feel so comfortable and happy,
That little far-off window that I see,
For while I'm playing, I am thinking of her,
And while she's knitting, oh, she thinks of me!

—Zion's Herald.

LUCY'S MOTHER.

Eugenie Du Maurier.

Without thinking much about it, Lucy had fallen into the way of making little complaints about her mother.

"I wish mother wouldn't be so particular about everything I do!" Lucy said, fretfully, one morning, as she sat in her small rocking-chair ripping out some hemming she had done the day before. "She always makes me take out my sewing when I don't do it right. And there are ever so many things I want to do that she will not let me do. And I don't believe she cares a bit when I feel badly because I can't do something I want to. She just smiles sometimes. And she read me a mile-long lecture about trying not to get spots on my new apricot party dress. I am sure I act prim enough in it to have kept off all sorts of nasty spots. But there are some right in the front, too. Oh, dear!"

"Why don't you get another mother?" asked grandma, who was sitting near by, "as long as this one has so many faults?" Grandma spoke in her usual quiet voice. And Lucy looked up in quick surprise.

"Another mother! Why, grandma, what are you talking about? I don't want another mother. Why, you know how much I love my mother!"

"But you seem to think she has so many faults," grandma went on in the same quiet tone. "I should think you'd be glad to find another mother, one who didn't have those faults."

"But, grandma," said Lucy, almost ready to cry, "she's the dearest mother in the world. And I just wouldn't change her for anybody's mother! I don't see what makes you say she has so many faults."

"I thought I heard you talking about them yourself, Lucy, a moment ago," said grandma, in mild surprise. "I certainly thought I heard you finding fault with your mother, though, perhaps, I was mistaken."

Lucy's cheeks were like peonies. And there was something bright and glistening in her eyes as she answered bravely: "No, grandma, you weren't mistaken. I was finding fault with my precious mother, with the best and dearest and sweetest mother in the whole world. But I didn't think how it sounded. And, grandma, you will not hear me doing it again. Another mother! No, indeed!"—Southern Churchman.

TALKING JESUS CHRIST.

By Henry W. Adams.

In every great city there are scholarly, eloquent, popular preachers, who draw big crowds, but who are almost totally unacquainted with Jesus Christ. If I had a son or brother, or other dear friend, thoughtful on personal religion, but undecided, about the last place I would take him to would be to hear such a preacher. Such a man counts as trivial the awful themes of heaven and hell, and hardens the heart of every soul that listens to his voice.

In Acts 4:13 we find the secret of how a handful of ignorant fisherman turned the world upside down. "When they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned, and ignorant men, they marveled, and they took knowledge of them that

"They Had Been with Jesus."

I used often to go down into the slums of Water Street, New York, to hear that mighty trophy of Christ's redeeming grace, Jerry McAuley. Hundreds and hundreds were saved through the simple but thrilling testimony, given every night of the year by Jerry, and the others congregated there. Well did they argue if Jesus could save Jerry there was no man or woman too far gone for His grace.

The Sunday School Times relates the confession of a minister who bravely tells of his lapsing into coldness, and how he was restored to companionship with Jesus through the ministry of his seven-year-old daughter.

"After prayers Sunday morning the little girl asked, 'Are you a preacher, father?' and I answered, I was a sort of preacher, though not now pastor of a congregation.

"'You're no really-true preacher: You don't talk Jesus,' she said.

"How it cut home! I had read story after story from the Bible to her, and taught her prayers, and had prayed with her and for her. Oh it cut deep!

"Then she said, 'Mr. M——, our church pastor, does not talk Jesus, either!' I ventured to ask, 'What does Mr. M—— talk about?'

"'Oh about lots of other people!' Then, with exaltation, she answered: 'But Grandpa talks Jesus.'

"She had spent the summer with her grandparents. He was one of the old style preachers. He had the Bible at heart from Genesis to Revelation, and had it marked whenever it speaks of a sinful soul needing divine pardon and finding it. He wasn't popular in the big, stylish churches, but had done splendid service for a score of years on a very moderate salary. His six children, during these years had taken their college degrees, and from his parishes more young men and women have entered the ministry in home and foreign fields than from any such field that I know of. The secret lies where the little child found it.

'Grandpa Talks Jesus Christ.'

That my benign but greatly grieved Heavenly Father had spoken these words of rebuke through the lips of my little prattling girl I was confident.

"I thank God for the warning of this little child, and I pray that by His grace there will be no more wandering out of the way. 'Grandpa is the really-true preacher; he talks Jesus.' Henceforth I, too, will talk Jesus."

What do you say, dear ministerial and lay readers of these God-given words?—Christian Intelligencer.

A PRETTY LONG SNAKE.

A small boy was asked by a member of the school committee who was visiting the school to illustrate the working of the telegraph, by telling something it was like.

The little fellow thought a moment, and then he said: "Well, suppose you were going along a street in Chicago, and you came across a snake big enough to reach from there to New York. If you stepped on his tail there in Chicago, he would instantly open his mouth and stick out his tongue in New York."—New York Christian Advocate.

LIKED THE MINISTER.

"Oh, wasn't that a good minister we had today?" said Johnny.

"Yes, very good. Which sermon did you like best?" said his teacher.

"Oh, I don't know! It wasn't the sermon altogether that I mean."

"What, then?"

"Why, he prayed for Sabbath schools and boys. I never heard any one pray so much for boys. Most of them do not. That is why I like him."

"Do you like to be prayed for?"

"Why, yes, of course I do."

"The minister prayed to-day that all the boys may be Christ's boys. Did you like that?"

"Yes, and I prayed as hard as I could that I might be. When we hear people praying for us it makes us think it is about time for us to be praying for ourselves. If children don't like to say much about good things, I guess they all like to have the minister remember them. I always watch and see if they pray for young folks; if they don't, I think they won't have much in the sermon either. Then, of course, I don't listen as well as I should if I thought there was something for me."—The Herald of Light.

Do not let us lie at all. Do not think of one falsity as harmless, another as slight, and another as unintended. Cast them all aside. • • • Speaking truth is like writing fair, and comes only by practice; it is less a matter of will than of habit, and I doubt if any occasion can be trivial which permits the practice and formation of such a habit.—Ruskin.

SOME FINAL WORDS.

As our connection with the New Orleans Christian Advocate is practically at an end and we are liable to be relieved at any day, it is perhaps proper that we should write a few parting words at this time. Eight years and a half ago, without solicitation upon our part, we were called to be the editor of this publication, having been twice elected, and we responded to this summons, accepting it as providential. Since the paper has been in our hands, the conditions within its territory have been almost continuously abnormal. During the first years of our incumbency the ravages of the boll weevil upset things considerably in both Louisiana and Mississippi, and four years ago the great conflict in Europe broke out, destroying in its incipiency the markets for our agricultural products and superinducing a state of financial paralysis. Later, prices became better, but, because of the high cost of printing materials, all kinds of public journals have had to make their way in the face of difficult and trying circumstances. In view of these facts, we are gratified that the Advocate has been able to make its appearance regularly without any reduction in size or any considerable increase in price—expedients to which many periodicals have had to resort—and that it is to-day free from debt and continuing to come from the press in its usual creditable form. Of course, it has been a disappointment to us that we have not been able to carry it forward to much larger things; but, as we have said, the tides have been against us. When the tocsin of war sounded across the seas, the circulation of the Advocate was probably nearly, if not quite, as large as at any other time in its long and honored history. Much of the credit for the record that has been made amid the prevalence of these adverse influences is due to the Publisher, who has not spared himself in his efforts to keep the Conference organ going and up to an efficient standard. The utmost economy has been practiced by reducing the office force to a minimum and giving more work to those whose services were a necessity. The Editor has shared in these additional toils, being glad thus to aid it in meeting a crisis, though he has had less time to read and write than he felt to be needful.

Our course on the tripod has been a very different one from what we had planned and expected it to be. The uppermost thought in our mind when we became an editor was to try to strengthen the evangelistic spirit throughout the Church and deepen the spiritual life of its membership. But we were soon confronted with situations of which we did not dream. The Vanderbilt imbroglio, which menaced the entire educational system of Southern Methodism, arose; and ere long we saw that the Church was fast drifting toward liberalism in theology, latitudinarianism in conduct, and a gelatinous interdenominationalism in its activities. The result was that we were soon engaged in controversy. We did what we could to stir the Church up to take the position that her educational work must be done in schools that she owns and controls; and we have combated the other tendencies referred to with the utmost vigor at our command, believing them to be harmful, and calculated to strip the Church of her spiritual power. In dealing with these matters we have spoken plainly and pointedly, but we believe that a discriminating examination of our utterances will show that we were careful not to impeach any man's motives and that they were not called in question, except as this may have been impliedly and unavoidably done by a clear setting forth of his statements or his record. We feel that we can say, without successful contradiction, that we have stood for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and what we conceived to be its highest and best interests, without fear or favor. To be sure, we have made mistakes; and we are well aware that if we had been willing to drift along in a namby-pamby fashion, pussy-footing as to all movements and combating nothing, we should have been more popular as an editor. There has never been a time when we did not know this, and we have often felt the full force of the temptation to pursue this course; but, over against this, we have recognized the fact that the eye of God was upon us and that he expected us to be true and faithful. This we have sought conscientiously to do.

And in laying down our pen we desire to have it distinctly understood that we are not abandoning a single one of the causes which have been so much upon our heart. We are as resolutely as ever against "higher criticism" and the German rationalism which are threatening the doctrinal integrity of Protestantism; we are humiliated by the apparent disposition of the Christian Churches to retreat from what has been their historic position concerning the so-called questionable amusements and the various forms of worldliness, and we are uncompromisingly opposed to the absorption of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the Northern Church (which is much more secularized and much more in the grip of the new theology than is ours)—a thing that will certainly come to pass if the union of the two bodies is consummated along the pending lines. Having stood outspokenly against these things when to do so resulted in our being nagged and struck at from many quarters, we have no notion of shifting our position now when we shall likely be less under fire than we have been for some years. To the full measure of our ability, we shall continue to contend for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints, for an unworldly Church, and for the essential integrity of Southern Methodism, along with a safe measure of guaranteed autonomy.

The fact that the tide of battle has, for the time being at least, gone somewhat against us has not at all dismayed or disconcerted us. We are not a disciple of that philosophy which holds that temporary success is the criterion of right; that truth is always with the majorities.

In saying this, we do not wish to be understood as intimating that the masses of Southern Methodism have become liberalistic and unsound or that they are lacking in loyalty to the principles and ideals for which their Church has so nobly stood. We do not believe that this is true. Under our form of Church government it is not easy for the great body of our people to make their influence felt and to register their will. A general Conference is not the Church, nor does it by any means always rightly represent the Church. The representative principle, as is well known, scarcely applies at all in our Church gatherings and councils. Herein lies one of the weaknesses and perils of our denomination. The people may err, and sometimes do err, but, after all, there is more safety in their united will than can be found anywhere else. As an illustration of how little regard may be had for the wishes of the rank and file of the Church in enacting legislation, take the question of the time limit. The General Conference in Atlanta came pretty near removing it entirely; yet we do not doubt that if it were submitted to a vote of the congregations of Southern Methodism it would be retained by an overwhelming majority. We sincerely wish that we had a regulation in our Church requiring all questions of large importance to be referred to our general membership for settlement.

The times in which we are living are serious and perplexing. There are those among us who talk optimistically as to the situation and what is to be with the coming of peace. The truth is, God alone knows what is ahead. Something must be radically wrong in the world or the present deplorable condition of things could not exist. Superficial reformers are abroad, with their cure-alls for the ills of afflicted humanity. One of the most striking things to the careful observer is that there are so few calls for a return to an earnest preaching of the old-time Gospel and to Scriptural Christianity. On the contrary, we are told that there must be all sorts of new combinations and devices to rescue the perishing and save the world's imperiled civilization. The teaching of the proposed new order is, in our opinion, too much like that under which Germany has gone to wreck and ruin to have any sound basis for its pretentious claims. The truth of God and the power of God, manifested by the Holy Spirit, are but little mentioned and are apparently but little to be relied upon under the suggested new regime. Surely, this is an hour when Methodists need to live much upon their knees and to witness with the note of certitude to the saving power of Christ, as it is set forth in the Word of God. We need to try the spirits which are abroad and to let none beguile and mislead us. Pure Christianity has in no other way been so much hindered and hurt as by its counterfeits. May the Heavenly Father watch over our beloved Church, and help her, amid the babel of voices now being heard, to hearken only to the call of her living Lord, who has given to the human race one Gospel, and who has none other to give!

In conclusion, we desire to express to the many correspondents who have sent us cheering messages since we have been associated with the Advocate our thanks for their kindnesses, and to assure them that they will not be soon forgotten. And upon all the readers of the Advocate we pray Heaven's richest blessings, grateful to them for their patience with our numerous shortcomings. With malice toward none, and good-will toward all, carrying upon our heart no scars, we shall, God so willing, soon set our hands to other tasks, hoping that many to whom we have been speaking every week for nearly a decade will not fail to remember us in their prayers.

THANKSGIVING DAY AND CONFERENCE.

The following are the dates of the Annual Conferences in the Fifth District of which Bishop J. C. Kilgo has oversight:

North Mississippi Conference—Clarksdale, November 20, 1918.

Louisiana Conference—New Orleans, November 27, 1918.

Mississippi Conference—McComb City, December 4, 1918.

It will be noted that the Louisiana Conference includes the last Thursday in November, which, according to usage, is declared annually by the President of the United States to be Thanksgiving Day. This is also true of the North Arkansas, Alabama, and North Carolina Conferences. This will be the second year in succession that Louisiana Methodist churches will be without their pastors on Thanksgiving, and it will mean further that the Methodists in more than 600 charges in the four Conferences affected will either attend services on Thanksgiving Day in a church of another denomination or dispense with church going entirely on that day.

It may be impossible to arrange the session of the Annual Conference in these four Conferences on another date. The Arkansas, Alabama and North Carolina Conference preachers may not object to being away from home Thanksgiving Day, but unless sentiment has changed since last November we believe that Louisiana preachers would prefer a change in the date of the Louisiana Conference so as to permit the preachers to be at home on Thanksgiving Day. A. J. G.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, left New Orleans, Saturday, June 1, to attend the Commencement exercises of Centenary College in Shreveport, La.

Words of kindly appreciation were contained in a brief note from Brother N. B. Aiken, of Tallulah, La., which also brought his renewal to the Advocate. A kind word written or spoken is appreciated by all of us.

Rev. Henry T. Young closed a gracious revival at Vivian, La., on May 26. The pastor, Rev. B. T. Crews, had the congregation in fine shape for direct results and reports indicate that the meeting was even more than was expeeted.

Rev. L. M. Sharp, pastor of West End Church, Laurel, Miss., reports a stirring revival meeting in his charge, which closed May 14 and resulted in eight accessions to the Church. Rev A. M. Broadfoot, of Fernwood, assisted him in the services.

The many Mississippians who are friends of J. W. Malone will be pleased to know that he has been elected to the Presidency of Centenary College Conservatory for young women in Cleveland, Tenn. He has entered upon his duties and has fine prospects for large usefulness.

Rev. James W. Shaw, Bishop of the San Antonio Diocese, of the Roman Catholic Church, whose appointment to the arch episcopacy at New Orleans to succeed the late Rev. James H. Blenk was announced in January, was duly installed as Archbishop on Sunday, June 2, in St. Joseph's Church, of New Orleans.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer, an honored superannuate of the Louisiana Conference residing in New Orleans, preached at the Fink Home Friday evening, May 31, to an audience that contained many of his former parishioners. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," was the text of Dr. Sawyer's sermon.

In a personal letter from Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College, of Brookhaven, Miss., he comments on the recent Commencement exercises as follows: "Our home men, Rev. H. M. Ellis, Rev. W. H. Lewis, and Dr. J. M. Sullivan, did the college and themselves great honor." Nothing else was expected at the hands of men like the ones you selected, Doctor.

The Okolona, Miss., charge is in fine shape. There have been sixty-four accessions since Conference and the pastor has more than one-third of his Conference collections in hand. Rev. J. B. Randolph is the efficient pastor and we are not surprised that a good report is in the making. Brother Randolph is taking care of the interests of the Advocate, as, indeed, he always does.

Rev. Osmond S.. Lewis, pastor of Gibson Memorial Church of Vicksburg, Miss., will hold a revival meeting the latter part of June, embracing the third and fourth Sundays. He will be assisted by Rev. J. T. Lewis, of Aberdeen. In a letter containing five subscriptions to the Advocate, Brother Lewis reports that his work in Vicksburg is in advance of what it was the first of June, last year.

We are informed that Dr. F. M. Thomas, who was elevated to the office of Book Editor of our Church at the recent session of the General Conference, will not assume charge of his office until after the session of the Louisville Conference which convenes on September 25. The July number of the Methodist Review and the 1918 issue of the Discipline will be brought out by Bishop H. M. Du Bose.

The Commencement program of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., is on our table. The Baccalaureate Address was delivered by President W. P. Few on Sunday, June 2, at 8:30 p. m. The Commencement Address was delivered by Governor S. W. McCall, of Massachusetts on Wednesday, June 5, at 10:30 a. m. The exercises of the week closed with a great patriotic demonstration Wednesday evening, June 5, at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. U. G. Foote, pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, of New Orleans, delivered the Commencement sermon for the Louisiana State Normal School at Natchitoches on Sunday morning, May 26, and occupied the pulpit for our pastor, Rev. J. W. Lee, in Natchitoches at the evening service. It goes without saying that his audience heard a great sermon. Dr. Foote used as his text, "And he divided unto them his living."

Dr. W. G. Henry, the pastor of our Church at Brookhaven, Miss., has received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Boston University. Dr. Henry is one of the most effective ministers in Southern Methodism and people at Brookhaven attest his ability as a pastor, and as a direct, thoughtful, concise and forceful preacher. He is held in high esteem and the host of his friends offer him hearty congratulations on having the right to append Ph. D. to his signature.

Rev. Robert W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage at Ruston, and Rev. N. E. Joyner, pastor of our Church in Lake Charles, La., and Missionary Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, attended the Baton Rouge District Conference at Hammond, La., last week. On their return from Hammond they shook hands with several of their friends in New Orleans. Both men are busy and they are doing fine work for their Church.

The 1918 session of the Port Gibson (Miss.) District Sunday School Association adjourned June 5 after a two days' session in the Gibson Memorial Church in Vicksburg.

Rev. E. R. Smoot, pastor of our church at Holly Springs, Miss., preached the Commencement sermon of the Northeet High School at Red Banks, Miss., on Sunday, May 26. The secular papers carry favorable reports of the sermon.

Rev. H. W. Jamieson, who for many years has been a pastor in the Louisiana Conference, is now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work and has been assigned to a Hut in Camp Beauregard, near Alexandria, La. Brother Jamieson attended the Y. M. C. A. Training School in San Antonio, Tex., during the month of May.

Our church in Como, Miss., was sorely bereaved during the month of May in the death of Mr. C. R. Brown, a teacher in the Sunday school and a member of the choir, and of Mr. W. M. Tait, a member of the Board of Stewards. The Advocate extends sympathy to the bereaved loved ones of these two faithful laborers in our Church.

Sanders Evans, eldest son of Rev. E. N. Evans, who was for many years a member of the Louisiana Conference, has been seriously ill at his father's home in New Orleans for three weeks with typhoid fever. We are glad to report that his recovery is assured. The many friends of Brother Evans have him in mind in their prayers.

Rev. W. W. Reddish, who has served the Horn Lake (Miss.) Circuit for the past two years, gave up his duties as a pastor and on Friday of last week joined the Marines in Memphis, Tenn. He entered as a private. Brother Reddish is a local preacher and has served acceptably in the pastorate as a supply. We trust that he will make a faithful soldier for his country.

The Commencement exercises of the Seashore Campground School were held Wednesday evening, June 5, Dr. W. H. La Prade being the speaker of the evening. The Commencement sermon was delivered Sunday, June 2, by Rev. W. H. Lewis of Jackson, Miss. Under the careful supervision of President Van Hook the Seashore Campground School has had a most successful session.

The sixteenth annual session of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League is in session in Wiggins, Miss. A program of inviting addresses is being carried out. Among those who are on the program are Dr. S. A. Neblett, Nashville, Tenn., Rev. J. R. Jones, Rev. W. H. Lewis, Rev. H. B. Watkins, Dr. H. M. Ellis, and Dr. I. W. Cooper. Rev. A. M. Broadfoot has charge of the devotions. The convention closes Friday, June 7.

The closing of the Baton Rouge District Conference at Hammond, La., last week was the occasion of the beginning of a revival meeting. The pastor, Rev. L. I. McCain, has with him the Louisiana Conference Evangelist, Rev. H. T. Young, of Jena, La. Brother Young has been an able assistant to Louisiana pastors since his entrance upon the work of an evangelist, and we predict for the people of Hammond a season of spiritual benediction.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate joins Centenary College, of Fayette, Mo., in its exultation over the honor that has come to two of its long list of brilliant alumni. Hon. X. P. Willifley, who was recently appointed to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy made by the death of Hon. William Joel Stone, and Dr. W. F. McMurry, who was elevated to the episcopacy at the last session of our General Conference, are both sons, of Centenary.

Sister T. S. Randle desires to attend the coming session of the Monroe District Conference at Mer Rouge, La. She fears that her husband, Rev. T. S. Randle, who is an honored superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference and who is in feeble health, may not be able to go with her. She requests, as a favor to her, all who will to join with her in prayer at 11 a. m., Sunday, June 9, that Brother Randle may be able to attend this conference.

Saturday, June 8, at about 5:10 to 5:15 p. m., the readers of the New Orleans Christian Advocate may have the privilege of viewing an eclipse of the sun. At Jackson, Greenville, and Meridian, Miss., and other cities and the community adjacent, as well as in Morehouse, Richland, East and West Carroll and Madison Parishes, of Louisiana, the eclipse will be total for about one and one-half minutes. This is the first total eclipse in this section since May 28, 1918, and will be the last one until 1936.

A reception was tendered Miss Helen Gibson, Head Deaconess of St. Mark's Hall in New Orleans, on the evening of May 23. The occasion was in honor of her return after two months' absence. She gave a report of her experiences at the Missionary meetings at both Memphis and Chattanooga and also of her observations at Atlanta, Ga., during the General Conference. The report of St. Mark's Hall for the month of May shows that good work is being done in the crowded section of New Orleans.

W. H. Black, Lay Leader of the New Orleans District and Superintendent of the McDonoghville Sunday school, has been appointed to the cashiership of the New Orleans Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank. Mr. Black is esteemed as one of the most effective laymen in the New Orleans District and his call to this important office was in recognition of his Christian character as well as his safe business judgment. We congratulate Brother Black on his having been selected for this important post.

Rev. J. A. Hall, pastor of our Church in Greenwood, Miss., reports that the good women of his charge have treated the parsonage to a coat of paint. Brother Hall merits a good house in which to live. He keeps up with his work and no interest of the Church suffers where he presides. He has already paid his Home and Foreign Missionary claims in full. Other assessments will be cared for in their turn, and it may be added that the Stewards at Greenwood have paid the pastor and presiding elder in full to date.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions, recently sent in: Miss Nina Pollard, Batesville, Miss., 2; Revs. J. W. Price, Perth, Miss., 4; H. J. Moore, Montrose, Miss., 2; J. Loyd Deceli, McComb, Miss., 5; J. F. Waltman, Eros, La., 2; A. T. McIlwain, Senatobia, Miss., 5; Miss Hallie G. Harper, Florence, Miss., 2; T. A. Ferguson, Hermanville, Miss., 2; J. A. Patterson, Vaiden, Miss., 3; Rolfe Hunt, Montrose, Miss., 3; B. F. M. Bullard, Duck Hill, Miss., 2; P. S. Carpenter, St. Francisville, La., 2; C. Y. Higginbotham, Chunky, Miss., 7.
